Consisting of CUTICURA SOAP to cleanse the skin of crusts and scales, and soften the thickened cuticle, CUTICURA OINTMENT to instantly allay itching, irritation, and inflammation, and soothe and heal, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT to cool and cleanse the blood, and expel humor germs. A SINGLE SET is often sufficient to cure the most torturing, disfiguring skin, scalp, and blood humors, rashes, itchings, and irritations, with loss of hair, when the best physicians, and all other remedies fail.

WONDERFUL CURE OF PSORIASIS.

As a sufferer for thirty years from the worst form of Psoriasis, finally cured by Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, I wish to tell you my experience, that others may benefit by it. I was so grievously afflicted that the matter that exuded from my pores after the scales had peeled off, would cause my underclothing to actually gum to my body. After remaining in one position, sitting or lying down, for an hour or two, the flesh on my elbows and knees would split, so thick and hard would the crusty scales become. The humiliation I experienced, to say nothing of physical agony, was something frightful. The detached scales would fairly rain from my coat sleeves. I have read none of your testimonials that appear to represent a case so bad as mine. But as to the cure. I commenced bathing in hot Cuticura Soap suds night and morning, applied the Cuticura Ointment, and then wrapped myself in a sheet! In two weeks my skin was almost blood red in color, but smooth and without scales. Patches of natural colored skin began to appear, and in less than a month I was cured. I am now passed forty years of age and have skin as soft and smooth as a baby's. Hoping that others may benefit by my experience, and regretting that sensitiveness forbids me from disclosing my name, I am yours gratefully,

Millions of People Use Cuticura Soap

As sold by Cuticura Ointment, the great skin cure, for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales, and dandruff, and the stoppage of falling hair, for softening, whitening, and healing red, rough, and sore hands, for baby rashes, chafings, and chafings, and for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. Millions of Women use CUTICURA SOAP in the form of baths for annoying irritations, inflammations, and excoriations, or too free or offensive perspiration, in the form of washes for painful weaknesses, and for many sanative antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves to women, and especially mothers. CUTICURA SOAP combines delicate skin purifiers and beautifiers derived from CUTICURA, the great skin cure, with the purest of cleansing ingredients, and the most refreshing of flower odors. No amount of persuasion can induce those who have once used these great skin purifiers and beautifiers to use any others, especially for preserving and purifying the skin, scalp, and hair of infants and children. No other soap of refined taste is to be compared with it for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair, and hands. No other foreign or domestic toilet soap, however expensive, is to be compared with it for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. All combines in ONE SOAP at ONE PRICE, the best skin and complexion soap, the best toilet and baby soap in the world. Sold by all druggists.

ALARMING MORTALITY.

Noticeable Among the Weak and Ailing.

Spring the Time Death Reaps Its Largest Harvest.

There is a Way of Eluding the Grim Destroyer.

Every Spring it is noticeable how many people are taken away that we have been accustomed to see in our daily life.

Statistics show that at no other season of the year does so many deaths occur.

Especially large is the mortality among weak and sickly people.

The reason for this is apparent. The body that is weakened by age or disease has much to contend with during the Winter months. Insufficient exercise frequently has been taken. Too much starchy and fatty foods have been eaten. The system has been allowed to become run down, and when Spring comes with its bright, sunshiny days, older people will begin to realize that their vitality has become very low. The same thing is true of people who are naturally sickly and weak.

This is the season of the year when even a strong person feels at his worst. That tired, restless feeling is experienced by too many.

There need not be as many deaths this year as usually take place. A little care will ward off many Spring funerals. If one is weak or ailing they should take time by the forelock and take Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. This great medicine has been in many cases, and will continue to be, the means by which the black angel of Death has been driven from the threshold. It dispels the grim destroyer in a scientific way, for it purifies the blood and gives strength and vitality to the nerves. It tones up and restores to a healthy condition all of the great life-giving organs of the body.

Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy will enable those who take it to throw off little ills that prove dangerous only when they attack a system already wasted and weakened.

From many people, who have experienced benefit from this greatest of all life-lengtheners comes the following from the famous General Longstreet of 1217 New Hampshire avenue, Washington, D. C. He says:

"It gives me great pleasure to add my testimony with many others for Dr. Greene's Remedy, which I have used with highly beneficial results and I am able to recommend its virtues from experience. I have used it for catarrh and have derived help."

Mr. Wellington Hynes, Elizabethtown, N. Y., writes:

"I feel it my duty to tell how much good Dr. Greene's Nervura has done me. I was so run down that I could not sleep at night and everything worried me. I had no appetite and could not work, my head ached all the time and there was an all-gone feeling in my stomach and I was always looking on the dark side of everything. I began to take Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy and in less than three weeks I felt like a new man. I can now do as much work as is expected of a man my age. I advise any one who is troubled to take Dr. Greene's Nervura. Do not go to a doctor, but get a bottle of Dr. Greene's Nervura. It is cheaper than a doctor's bill."

The latter part of Mr. Hynes's advice might be profitably disregarded, however. If you should feel you would like the advice of a physician, You can have such advice and have it free if you will write or call on the greatest known blood and nerve specialist, Dr. Greene, 35 W. 14th St., New York City.

New Vegetable Wanted.

Our present garden vegetables are cultivated varieties of wild species. Why do not our horticulturists seek for other wild plants that could be introduced with profit to our tables? A fortune awaits him who does this successfully, says Le Science Francaise. We may be shy, at first, of a dish of iris, or a saxifrage salad, but the papers will relate how Bernhardt and Coquelin ate and liked them, and then the iris and the saxifrage will become popular, like the potato.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. Horse Shoes Weighing One Ounce.

The smallest horse probably that was ever fitted with a set of shoes by any horseshoer in California occupied a place in the shop of Howard & Millerick of Petaluma a few days ago. It was a six-months-old Shetland pony, one of a band a Los Angeles man was bringing down from Mendocino county, where they had been pastured during the summer. The rough roads had worn its bare feet and necessitated shoeing. The shoes, fashioned out of a steel bar, when fitted to the pony's feet were a trifle larger than a silver dollar piece and the full set weighed just four ounces, an ounce for each shoe.

HELP FOR WOMEN WHO ARE ALWAYS TIRED.

"I do not feel very well. I am so tired all the time. I do not know what is the matter with me."

You hear these words every day; as often as you meet your friends just so often are these words repeated. More than likely you speak the same significant words yourself, and no doubt you do feel far from well most of the time.

Mrs. Ella Rice, of Chelsea, Wis., whose portrait we publish, writes that she suffered for two years with bearing-down pains, headache, backache, and had all kinds of miserable feelings, all of which was caused by falling and inflammation of the womb, and after doctoring with physicians and numerous medicines she was entirely cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you are troubled with pains, fainting spells, depression of spirits, reluctance to go anywhere, headache, backache, and always tired, please remember that there is an absolute remedy which will relieve you of your suffering as it did Mrs. Rice. Proof is monumental that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the greatest medicine for suffering women. No other medicine has made the cures that it has, and no other woman has helped so many women by direct advice as has Mrs. Pinkham; her experience is greater than that of any living person. Elevators are by no means the recent invention generally supposed. An amusing account of what was probably the first attempt at an elevator is told by St. Simon and according to him it was from a M. Villayer that the idea of a "flying chair" first emanated. This ingenious person set up a passable prototype of the modern elevator in his house in Paris, working it up and down between the walls. The daughter of Louis XIV. was so delighted with the novelty that she had one put up in her own apartments at Versailles. This honor was, however, the undoing of poor M. Villayer's machine. The chair suddenly stopped moving while the princess was between two landings and she had to remain blocked up for three hours until the workmen broke a hole through the thick wall. The king was so annoyed at this that he forbade any further experiments in the same line.

Russell and the Solicitor.

It is said that once when the late Lord Russell, then Sir Charles, was on circuit, he became so indignant with every one in general and his solicitor client in particular that he seized his large and heavy brief and smote the solicitor on the head with it. The solicitor indignantly collected his papers and hurried out of court, muttering that he would never brief Sir Charles again.

Some time afterward a shipping magnate came to the same solicitor with a big case. "Brief Russell," he said. The solicitor said he was sorry, but it was impossible, as Russell had never recovered. "Then give me my papers," said the shipowner, "and I'll go to some one who will."

Eventually the unhappy man of law, not wishing to lose his best client, had to apologize to Sir Charles Russell for leaving the court when assaulted.—Pearson's Weekly.

"So On."

Lady Dorothy Nevill is one of the wittiest women in London society. Some time ago there was a rich and ambitious man in society who went in for entertaining largely and especially for making his parties interesting and representative. A marked falling off began to take place after awhile in the quality of his guests. Lady Dorothy, commenting on this deterioration, said, "Once we used to meet Browning and Whistler and Henry James and so on there; but now we only meet—so on."—Chambers' Journal.

Alabama Fertilizer the Standard.

Our most reckless competitor will only claim that what he is selling is "Just as good" as the celebrated ALABAMA FERTILIZER, but it is not so. For 21 years the ALABAMA has stood at the head of the fertilizer class. With cotton at current good prices it is more important than ever to use the best fertilizer. The ALABAMA is the standard of excellence, and only those whose interest dictate the statement assert otherwise.

Without extra cost to the consumer we ship all ALABAMA FERTILIZERS in the CELEBRATED MUMMIA VEGETABLE FIBRE PRESERVED BAGS, which are acid and weather proof, thus avoiding any loss in handling. These bags, after thorough investigation and practical tests, have been indorsed by the Alabama Agricultural Department, who recommend their use by the farmers of our State. Steamer agents on certain water routes have given notice that they will only receive for shipment fertilizer sacked in these celebrated bags, thereby insuring both themselves and their consignees from loss in handling.

One of the exhibits of the recent Good Roads Procession which attracted the attention of all was a wagon drawn by six well fed oxen containing 24 bales of cotton produced on 9½ acres of land, made from Russell improved big boll cotton by the use of ALABAMA FERTILIZER.

Customers Protected by Trade Mark.

The law requires every sack of fertilizer sold in the State to have the word ALABAMA branded on each sack offered for sale in the State.

To protect both ourselves and our customers we have our trade mark on every sack of ALABAMA FERTILIZER, we also tag each MUMMIA VEGETABLE FIBRE PRESERVED BAG. Our Trade Mark is copyrighted, the Bag is patented and we will prosecute any infringement on either. See that the Trade Mark and Tag are on each sack. Be certain to get what you pay for.

Pure high grade Acid Phosphate and Genuine German Kainit always on hand and sold at no higher price than other goods of the same grade.

A Testimonial From High Authority.

Captain S. B. Trapp, President of the Board of Inspectors of the Alabama Convict Bureau, who is well and favorably known throughout the South (particularly in Alabama), whose able management of the convict system of our State has met with the approval of all, himself a farmer of twenty years' experience, has the following words of commendation to say in regard to the Celebrated Alabama Fertilizer:

Executive Department of Alabama,
Convict Bureau.
Montgomery, Nov. 20, 1900.

I consider the ALABAMA FERTILIZER the best manufactured. I have raised and seen others raise large crops of cotton and corn by its use.

In my opinion the farmer who invests in it, will succeed in making larger crops of cotton and corn at less cost for fertilizers than one who buys and uses acid phosphate, kainit and cottonseed meal in any proportion or quantity whatsoever.

My conclusions are arrived at after an experience of twenty years in the use of fertilizers—during which long period I have tried many kinds of fertilizers.

The MUMMIA VEGETABLE FIBRE PRESERVED BAGS, in which the ALABAMA FERTILIZER is put up, is one of the greatest blessings to all, and none better than the farmer can appreciate and value the cessation of loss in wasting, rotting of bags and vexation by having to resack fertilizers put up in the ordinary bag. I have seen some Mummia Bags used two seasons, which is the strongest possible proof of their singular and superior merit. S. B. TRAPP, President.

The Record of Alabama Fertilizer.

It has produced nearly four bales of cotton on one acre of poor sandy upland.
One hundred and thirty-two bushels of corn on one acre of poor sandy upland.
Two thousand and forty-one bushels of corn on twenty acres of poor upland.
Land and corn accurately surveyed and measured by competent disinterested and honorable men.

It is the oldest brand now sold in Alabama, and is just the same as it always has been. Every one of the 43 premiums given during a series of years, through the COMMERCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL ASSOCIATION, for the greatest yield of cotton and corn on a specified area of land, was awarded to farmers who used exclusively the ALABAMA FERTILIZER.

FREE BLOOD CURE

An offer proving faith to believers.

Is your blood pure? Are you free of it? Do cuts or scratches heal slowly? Does your skin itch and burn? Have you Pimples? Boils? Eczema? Old Sores? Boils? Neuralgia? Rheumatism? Foul Breath? Catarrh? Are you pale? Purify your blood with B. B. B. (Botanic Blood Balm). It makes the Blood Pure and Rich, heals the sore and gives a clear, healthy skin. Deep seated cases like ulcers, cancer, eating sores, Painful Swellings, Blood Poison are quickly cured by B. B. B., made especially for all obstinate Blood and Skin Troubles. B. B. B. drains the Poisons and Impurities out of the Blood and entire system so the symptoms cannot reappear. Give it a trial. It cures when everything else fails. Thoroughly tested for 30 years. Sold at drug stores, $1 per large bottle, 6 large bottles (full treatment) $5. Be sure the bottle reads Botanic Blood Balm. To sufferers may test it, a trial bottle given away absolutely free. Write for it. Address BLOOD BALM CO. Atlanta, Ga., with stamp to-day. Describe trouble and get medical advice given.

Healthy Mothers

Few mothers are healthy, because their duties are so exacting. The anxiety of pregnancy, the shock of childbirth and the care of young children, are severe trials on any woman. But with Wine of Cardui within her grasp, every mother—every woman in the land—can pay the debt of personal health she owes her loved ones. Do you want robust health with all its privileges and pleasures? Wine of Cardui will give it to you.

WINE OF CARDUI

strengthens the female organs and invigorates weakened functions. For every female ill or weakness it is the best medicine made. Ask your druggist for $1.00 bottle Wine of Cardui, and take no substitute under any circumstances.

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY

Lily, March 4, 1901

Editor Banner.—I see that some one has suggested the name of E. B. Deason as a candidate for the constitutional convention. Now, as I have the advantage of many in regard to my acquaintance with Mr. Deason, I will say that I have known him all his life, knew his parents before him, and am fully prepared to say that he is an honest man, and if you want a man who cannot be pulled around by any dishonest schemer, who will stand to the right though the world be against him, one who has the interests of his county at heart, one who at all times and under all circumstances will be found at his post fighting for the right, and one who cannot be bribed by the money of anyone, one who is not afraid of the slurs and slang of the opposing party, you can take him, for in every sense he is a true, honest, honorable gentleman, and if you want this sort of a man you can send him. R. E. Roper.

A Widow's Love Affair

Receives a setback if she has offensive breath through Constipation, Biliousness or Stomach Trouble but Dr. King's New Life Pills always cure those troubles; clean the system, sweeten the breath, banish headache; best in the world for liver, kidneys and bowels. Only 25c at Clanton Drug Co.

Kincheon, March, 12, 1901

Editor Banner.—Please allow me space in your paper to say a few words in regard to a delegate to the forthcoming constitutional convention. I have no chunks to throw at, or harsh remarks to make about, any candidate or prospective candidate, but would like to say a few words in behalf of a man whom I feel assured would, if sent as a delegate to the constitutional convention, conduct and deport himself in a way that would command the respect of the convention and reflect credit upon himself and the people of his county. The man of whom I speak is E. B. Deason. I have known him from childhood up, was daily associated with him in school for two years, and I never in all my life knew him to do anything that was beneath the dignity of a gentleman. I know him to be a man of firm convictions and honest, upright principles, and endowed with remarkable talent and tact.

So, fellow-citizens, let us send him to the convention as a delegate from Chilton. By so doing Chilton will have a representative in the convention in whom they can place the most implicit confidence and sacred trust, and feel assured that he will ever do all in his power for the well-being of the people of his State and county, and will not under any circumstances yield to measures that will be detrimental to the interests of his people. So I will say again, fellow-citizens, let us send him. With due respect to all,

I am most respectfully,
JAMES W. MIMS.

An Honest Medicine for La Grippe.

George W. Waitt, of South Gardiner, Me., says: "I have had the worst cough, cold, chills and grip and have taken lots of trash of no account but profit to the vendor. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the only thing that has done any good whatever. I have used one bottle of it and the chills, cold and grip have all left me. I congratulate the manufacturers of an honest medicine. For sale by the Clanton Drug Co, and D. I. Deramus Verbena.

Through all coming time his immortal music will be cherished among the priceless treasures of art, inspire the emulation of genius and cast its witching spell around the souls of myriads of reverent listeners.

To the student of civilization the increase of certain kinds of crime in the United States is startling. While there is a decrease in brutal crimes, there is a marked increase in crimes involving blackmail, and generally of pecuniary crimes—to coin a phrase—such as embezzlement, forgery, swindling and counterfeiting. Criminals in this country are not only of a high degree of intelligence, but many of them are quite well educated, being graduates of the common schools.

Connecticut, that thrifty State of Yankee notions, which never sold a wooden nutmeg, although in its early days it may possibly have whittled out a few for fun, is about to ship a million and a half pounds of wire for use on electric lines in India. Little brass idols for Hindoo temple worship have been modelled in Birmingham for generations, but it is somewhat startling to learn that New England is called upon to supply trolley wires for the land of Vishnu and Siva. The wheels of the triumphal chariot of the Oriental deity were red with sacrifice in former years. Let us hope that the victims of the modern Juggernaut will never equal in numbers those earlier lists of the slain, remarks the New York Tribune.

Woman's educational progress can be illustrated by a few facts collected by Professor Harris, the National Commissioner of Education. He reports that the high schools of the United States in 1899 graduated 36,124 girls and only 20,344 boys. Between 1872 and 1890 the number of male students in college in proportion to the whole population increased nearly 100 per cent., while the number of female students increased six fold in the same time. Of the sixty foremost colleges and universities in the country, all but nine confer degrees on women. Every college founded since the war is open to students of both sexes. Only three State colleges in the Union, those of Virginia, Georgia and Louisiana, exclude girl students. Practically all the schools in the country below the high school grade are in the hands of women teachers and eighty per cent. of the teachers in the high schools of New England are of the gentler sex.

DISASTROUS FIRE.

Gordo Loses Half Its Business Houses—Damage of $20,000.

At 9 o'clock Thursday night the prosperous little city of Gordo, located on the Mobile and Ohio road, had a very disastrous fire, destroying half the business portion of the town.

O. D. Graham & Co., John Kirk & Co., druggists, Carver & Son, W. R. Gilbert, J. D. H. Glass, general merchandise; A. H. Cole, dry goods and millinery; A. T. Ezell, postoffice and confectionery; J. H. Propst, general merchandise, were all badly damaged.

The estimated loss is $20,000, with one-fourth insurance.

But for the heroic efforts of the citizens and freight train No. 73, which stopped and rendered valuable assistance by supplying water, almost the entire city would have been in ruins.

The origin of the fire was in John Kirk & Co.'s drug store, supposed to have caught by a stove flue.

What the Legislature Did for the Schools.

Speaking to a newspaper reporter recently of what the legislature did for the schools, Representative Gunnells, who is chief clerk in the department of education, said:

"The friends of the public schools are very well satisfied with the action of the legislature. They usually got from it all for which they asked.

"In the first place, the general appropriation for school purposes was increased one hundred thousand dollars. The increased facilities guaranteed to the normal schools was an important and a necessary measure. The normal schools are at the head of the public school system, and whatever benefits them, benefits the common schools. The uniform examination was amended in several important details. I think we now have the best examination law in the union.

"The law to increase the public school term to five months and to make the schools absolutely free for that time, was the most important one created by the legislature. This law is preeminently one for the benefit of the people. It kills the 'pay school' and makes the public schools of the state what they should be, absolutely free.

New Knitting Mill.

The Rosenau Hosiery Mills, for the manufacture of seamless hoisery and other textiles, has been incorporated in Tuskaloosa. The capital stock is $50,000 and is already paid in. The machinery for the mill has been ordered and the president states that he expects the mill to be in operation within six weeks. At a meeting Friday the following directors were elected: D. L. Rosenau, Tuskaloosa; J. Pollok, Mobile; L. Black, Cleveland; Gus Lurie, New York; M. D. Rosenau, Tuskaloosa. The following officers were elected: D. L. Rosenau, president; M. D. Rosenau, treasurer. A superintendent for the mills is yet to be selected. A majority of the stock of this mill is held by Tuskaloosa parties.

Grand Chapter of the Evening Star Instituted.

Wednesday night, in Birmingham, Mrs. Harriet E. Ewing, of Boston, Grand Matron of the General Grand Chapter of the United States, instituted the Grand Chapter of Alabama, Order of the Eastern Star. The institution of the chapter was preceded by an able address from Mrs. Ewing on the objects and aims of the order.

The annual meetings of the state body will be held in November. The first annual meeting will take place in Jasper, Ala., next November.

New Savings Bank.

A new savings bank, namely the Birmingham District Savings Bank, will open in a few days in the block on Nineteenth street, between Second and Third avenues, Birmingham. W. J. Dangaix will be president and George Reynolds cashier. J. A. Van Hoose will be vice-president. The bank has a capitalization of $50,000, and will be a savings institution strictly so-called.

Many Alabama Towns After Waterworks Systems.

One of the evidences of advancement that is peculiar to no section of the state is the effort to secure water works, and as a consequence better fire protection and a lower rate of insurance. Several towns have secured authority to issue bonds for this purpose and others are arranging betterments in the line of such advantages.

Prominent among these places is Talladega. There the question of the city owning the water and light plants arose because of alleged failure on the part of the water company to comply with contracts. To settle the dispute an agreement of sale was reached and the municipality has just come into possession of the property of the water company, which includes also the gas plant. The city, therefore, becomes the purveyor of light as well as water to the community.

The cost of the plants, for there are two, was $45,701.43, and the deeds of conveyance, etc., bore revenue stamps to the amount of $46. As the council issued $50,000 of bonds, a surplus is left to be used in improving the facilities and equipment.

Selma comes along too, and joins the procession. It is thought by many that the protection offered the town could be greatly augmented if the city owned the water works, and, on a majority vote of the property owners, it was decided that the purchase should be made by the council. So far, however, this has not been done, but it is understood that the new board will make the purchase and improve the system.

Florence is getting things arranged for water works, and Tuscumbia is to move soon in the same direction, it is said. Clayton has been given authority to issue bonds for the same purpose and ex-Sheriff Vance at Centerville has petitioned the city council of that town to be allowed to erect such an enterprise, with an electric light attachment. Numbers of other places are also urging the same kind of utilities.

Grading Work.

Within a few weeks from now the Louisville and Nashville railroad will begin the work of grading the track of Pensacola and Selma division of that road from Sardis to Selma. When the road is graded to the river work will be commenced upon putting up a bridge across the Alabama river about a mile above Selma. The bridge will be, according to the statement of the Louisville and Nashville officials, a magnificent and exceedingly strong structure, capable of holding up the road's heaviest engines and trains.

State Convention.

The State Convention of the Christian Endeavor Society will be held in Montgomery April 26–28, and already many local societies are preparing for it. It is probable that nearly every society in the state will be represented and some by large delegations. It is probable that a car load of delegates will go from Birmingham.

For a Library.

Recently Mr. Carnegie offered Montgomery $50,000 for a public library building if the city would provide a site and $5,000 a year for support. The last legislature granted permission for the city to make an appropriation, and the city council has unanimously accepted Mr. Carnegie's offer.

Bank notes issued by the First National Bank of Greensboro, with the signature of L. M. Otts, president, and J. M. P. Otts, cashier, are in circulation. The bank went into business in February with a capital stock of $25,000 and is doing a good business.

Capt. Richmond P. Hobson, United States Navy, is expected to arrive in Greensboro on the morning of the 15th from New York. While there he will be presented with the silver service which was bought by the committee headed by Mrs. M. G. Pickens and contributed to by admirers in every State. It is planned to have Governor Samford make the presentation speech at the opera house on March 19.

Seventeen white men were, last week, sentenced to ninety days apiece in the mines for walkin railroad tracks in Butler county.

In New Quarters.

The office force of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railway Company have moved into their new office building on Alabama avenue and Twenty-fourth street, Bessemer. The building is not quite completed, but will be shortly. Furnaces Nos. 1 and 2 are running on full time and getting out 130 tons of pig iron every twenty-four hours.

DESTRUCTIVE CYCLONE.

Several States Visited by Storms Saturday.

MANY KILLED AND WOUNDED

Hundreds of Thousands of Dollars Worth of Property Destroyed.

Willspoint, Tex., March 9.—At 11 o'clock this morning a terrible cyclone swept through the western part of this city, demolishing everything in its track. Eight persons are known to have been killed and at least twenty more are severely injured. Fourteen dwelling houses, the public school building, cotton oil mills, a large gin plant and several business houses are in splinters. The path of the cyclone was about three hundred feet wide, and it burst from a lowering cloud like a clap of thunder, leaving misery and desolation in its wake. Wires were blown off the poles, fences were leveled and the air was filled with dying debris. A freight car was blown from the track and is a total wreck. Household utensils are strewn as far as the eye can reach and mark the path of destruction left by the tornado. Property loss is $75,000, which is a conservative estimate.

At Chicago.

Chicago, March 10.—One of the worst wind storms of the season struck Chicago early today and during the hours that it was at its height damaged property throughout the city to the extent of $175,000. Many heavy plate glass windows were blown in. Telegraphic and telephone companies were the worst sufferers, and it will be some time before order can be restored. Thousands of poles were blown down and Chicago was practically isolated from the west and Northwest by telephone and telegraph. The long distance telephone service was crippled so badly that it was of little value. The storm is belived to have been most severe in southern Wisconsin. Along a short stretch of the Milwaukee road in southern Wisconsin 500 telegraph poles are down. Reports from many points in Indiana and Kentucky also indicate heavy damage from the storm.

Cloudburst Does Great Damage at Owensboro.

Owensboro, Ky., March 10.—A cloudburst here last night did great damage. The sewer well at Main and Davies streets burst and a torrent of water poured into the opening and the streets were torn up for some distance about fifty feet in diameter and trenty-five feet deep. A large water main was undermined and broke in two and this added to the fury of the waters, poured into the large opening, created a roar like a big waterfall. Davies and Main streets were undermined for many yards, there being only a top crust of macadam and underneath the appearance of a mammoth stream of water.

Three Persons Killed at Forest City.

Forest City, Ark., March 10.—Three persons were killed in this vicinity last night by the tornado. Four miles west of the city Pinky Wilson and her infant child were killed, and in the same neighborhood sixteen houses and miles of fences and many trees were leveled to the ground. In Johnson township the cyclone literally lifted the house of J. A. Wil[illegible] n its foundation and shattered it to [illegible]ments, killing Wiley and seriously injuring his wife and stepson, Bob Allen.

At New Boston.

Houston, Tex., March 9.—Reports from New Boston, Tex., indicate that no lives were lost in the storm there this afternoon, but five people were seriously injured. During the storm at Texarkana the residence of Mrs. Poole at College Hill was blown down and Mrs. Poole was seriously injured.

Struck Texarkana.

Texarkana, Ark., March 9.—A storm having the fury of a tornado swept over the eastern part of this county today. It is reported that many buildings were destroyed and several lives lost. Wire connections with the stricken district is interrupted.

Sporting Brevities.

Automobilists want speed limit in cities and towns made ten miles an hour.

Brown's University hockey team has defeated Princeton's by three goals to nothing.

The National League baseball season will open on April 18 and close on October 6.

The American League has decided that no club shall carry more than fourteen players this season.

In the interstate live bird shoot between New York and New Jersey the former team won by 303 to 302.

Heavy Rain Storm.

A heavy rain, wind and thunder storm, accompanied by lightning, visited Arkansas Saturday, being an accompaniment of the Texas storm. Little Rock suffered very little and that only from the rain.

At Van Buren lightning struck the residence of James Morrell, rendering his wife unconscious. A 13-year-old boy was knocked down in the street.

At Conway fifteen business houses were unroofed and three others blown down, many of the stores being flooded.

Reports from Pine Prairie, five miles from Ashdown, say that a cyclone struck there, wrecking everything in its path. A boy, the son of Mr. Turner, was killed.

Terrific Storm at Fulton.

Fulton, Ky., March 10.—A terrific storm swept this section last night. The damage at Clinton and Hickman was heaviest. At Clinton twenty negro cabins were demolished and a score of negroes hurt. Two negroes were mortally hurt and many others badly bruised and mashed. Part of Marvin College was unroofed and the waterworks destroyed. Eight freight cars on the Illinois switch at the depot at Clinton were blown from the track. The Baptist church at Hickman was destroyed by the wind. A large number of tenant houses and barns were blown down in Fulton and Hickman counties, and the loss of property is large.

In Northwest Texas.

Houston, Tex., March 10.—News of the storm of Saturday is now coming from northeast Texas. The casualties were small considering the scope of the territory covered. There are four dead and five believed to be dying at Wills Point, where the property loss will reach $100,000. Five were badly hurt at New Boston, but none fatally. The property loss there will reach $75,000. At Blossom no one was seriously injured, but the damage was great. At and near Emery, in Rains county, one man was killed and several persons were hurt, two seriously. The damage to property was heavy.

Storm at Paducah.

Paducah, Ky., March 10.—A storm struck the neighborhood of Maxson's mill last night and upturned three houses filled with negroes. Twenty stables were blown down and many horses killed. Tobacco barns were razed and their contents blown away. The Catholic, Cumberland, Presbyterian and the Baptist churches were destroyed. Loss, $50,000.

Whole Family Injured.

Emery, Tex., March 10.—The storm which passed over Willspoint yesterday killed one man near the Sabine River. In Raines, Mrs. Miller was seriously injured and W. T. Lewis and his entire family of six were injured, two fatally. Lewis' house was completely destroyed and the buildings of Messrs. Miller and Foreman, Holder, Buchanan and Cochran were badly damaged.

Wrought Havoc in Arkansas.

Paragould, Ark., March 10.—Last night's storm wrought havoc in Green county, and three fatalities are reported. At Rockhill, Mrs. Millie Davis and a 13-year-old boy named Osmar Roberts were killed by falling timbers. At Jackson commissary, twelve miles west of Paragould, Charles Billing, a young business man, was killed by the roof of his house falling on him. Several persons are reported injured.

Three Men and 76 Head of Horses Burned to Death.

San Francisco, March 10.—Three men—Charles White, Charles Young and R. E. Jameson, with seventy-six head of horses, burned to death today in the destruction of Morton's livery stable. The men, who were employed in the stable, were asleep in the hayloft.

Sunday morning in Kalamazoo, Mich., a daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kastead and a son to Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Kastead. Both babies weighed exactly twelve pounds and both babies were born in the same house at exactly the same hour. The fathers are twins, as are also the mothers, and the couples were married a year ago last November and have lived together as one family.

The carpenters' union of Toledo, Ohio., with a membership of 1000, have made a demand for 30 cents per hour and an eight hour day. They announce that the new schedule must go into effect May 1 or they will strike.

Fire Sunday morning destroyed the College of Medicine and literary buildings at the University of Iowa. The loss is not less than $250,000.

LL ARP'S LETTER

[illegible]tow Man "Dissects" Book Written By a Negro.

[illegible]CTS SOME SPICY COMMENTS

[illegible] Sure Son of Ham Declares Thoth [illegible]te No Good in the Negro" and [illegible] William Agrees With Him.

[illegible]he race problem has bobbed up [illegible] at the north. The Hon. William [illegible]lon Thomas cut Herods Herod [illegible] denunciation of the negro, and [illegible] New York Sun seems to indorse [illegible] Thomas is a negro freeborn in [illegible], but came down to South Carolina [illegible] served in the carpetbag legislature [illegible]ng the reconstruction period and [illegible]wards held judicial office and says [illegible] preface to his book that he has [illegible] studying the negro for thirty [illegible]rs and is more and more confirmed [illegible] his opinion that there is no good in [illegible]—neither socially, morally, indus[illegible]rially or politically. His remarkable [illegible]k has recently issued from the well [illegible]own press of the Macmillan Co., in [illegible] York, and The New York Sun [illegible]otes a good part of a page in re[illegible]wing it.

[illegible]he author says the race is slowly [illegible] surely degenerating—that the [illegible]gro is by nature a savage with an [illegible]ath ferocity and knows no such [illegible]tion as mercy, that he is a beast [illegible] his domestic relations and will sell [illegible] virtue of his wife or his daughters [illegible] lose no social position among his [illegible]pe[illegible]rs in his church. That the [illegible]gro preachers are the worst of the [illegible]. They stalk into negro sanc[illegible]aries, overshadow the pews, invade [illegible] privacy of domestic life and de[illegible] the family and yoke virgin inno[illegible]ce with brazen guilt. That the [illegible]gro churches are debauching ren[illegible]gions. That negro religion is a [illegible] and worthless to reform or r[illegible]generate them, and the most heinous [illegible]mes are committed by those who [illegible] and write and are members of [illegible]gro churches.

He says that the negro is a brute in [illegible] commission of crime and is a [illegible]ven coward after it is committed, [illegible] when caught and punished be[illegible] himself a martyr, and if he es[illegible]pes the gallows would repeat his [illegible]me with no sense of wrong do[illegible]. He has no conception of virtue [illegible] truth, no fear of hell or damnation, [illegible] with the hangman's rope around [illegible] neck is going straight to heaven. [illegible] author mildly condemns lynching [illegible] certain outrages, not because it is a [illegible]el or illegal, but because it does [illegible] deter other negroes from sim[illegible] outrages. He says, however, [illegible] he has not yet found that an in[illegible]cent man has ever been lynched, [illegible] advocates force as the only practi[illegible] remedy for the negro—force—con[illegible] subjection to the white race, not [illegible] a state of slavery as before the war, [illegible] to one of fear and obedience.

He goes still farther and suggests [illegible] extermination of the inferior ele[illegible]nts of the race because it is better [illegible] have individual extermination than [illegible]e extinction. But space forbids [illegible]re of these anathemas and the won[illegible] is that the book was written by a [illegible]gro of the north and that a reputable [illegible]blishing house would chaperon it [illegible]fore northern people and that, a [illegible]thern editor, who has been for [illegible]ars and years lampooning the south[illegible]n people about the negro, should [illegible]w giv, this book his qualified endorse[illegible]nt.

What does all this mean? We [illegible]ew that they did not love the negro [illegible] Akron and Pana, nor in the slums [illegible] New York city, but we thought the [illegible] was still safe in the sanctum sanctorum [illegible] Republican editors. What is [illegible]hind this new departure? [illegible]

An agent has recently been to our [illegible]wn distributing sensational circulars [illegible]out a new book just issued by Sil[illegible]ais in which the author asserts that [illegible] negro is a beast and he tries to [illegible]ove it by the Bible as well as by [illegible]ientific research. This book is but [illegible] revival of the former book called [illegible] Ariel," and published about thirty [illegible]ars ago. It is refreshing to old [illegible]ras, but seems to be a brand new [illegible]octrine up north and has the influence [illegible]ent of numerous preachers and sect[illegible]ge professors. One preacher up in [illegible]aine says that if it had been written [illegible]rty years ago there would have been [illegible] civil war, for their people would [illegible]ve fought for the freedom of a [illegible]t of beasts.

Then again I see in a recent edito[illegible]al in a Republican paper an evident [illegible] weakness and reaction about the [illegible]gro and the editor asks, "Can it be [illegible]ossible that the two hundred millions [illegible] money cast by the north to liberate [illegible]e southern negro has all been wast[illegible]d?" Apologies are now in order. In [illegible]addition to all this it has been asserted [illegible]y those who know that Mr. McKinley [illegible]as changed front and that no more [illegible]egroes will be appointed to office. Is [illegible]e north about to abandon the negro [illegible]nd return over to the mercy of his [illegible]ormer masters? If so, the negro will [illegible] the gainer, and so will the south. [illegible]hat is all we have asked for all these [illegible]ears—just to be let alone.

They were our negroes before the [illegible]ar and they are our negroes yet. We [illegible]on't give them offices or allow them [illegible] sit on our juries, nor ride in our [illegible]ars, nor find lodging in our hotels [illegible]or take pews in our churches, and [illegible]at for northern interference they [illegible]ould not have been allowed to vote, [illegible]ither state or national or munici[illegible]al, but we pay them for their labor [illegible]nd give them a fair education. But [illegible]r fear of shocking our northern [illegible]riends the whipping post would have [illegible]ong since been the force that Thomas [illegible]ays must be used and then the 5,000 that are in the state and county chaingangs of Georgia would have been reduced to 500 or a less number.

A bad negro who fears not God nor regards man, cares not a great deal for the gallows and less for the chaingang, and nothing for a term in jail, but he does dread a good whipping. We old masters all remember that. One good whipping will last a negro for years. The chaingang effects no reform and does not last six months. But the average negro does not need corporal punishment often; he needs a boss.

Thomas is right when he declares that they are getting worse instead of better, especially in the towns and cities. Read the Atlanta papers and ask the Atlanta police. Ask Judge Broyles to compare the records of his court. Ask the judge and solicitor of any court. They are growing worse everywhere, except on the farms and plantations, where they are controlled by landlords, who are nearly as much their masters as in the olden times. If they don't use physical force they exercise a will power that exacts the utmost obedience. The landlord is the boss.

Thomas is right when he asserts that they have no conception of domestic virtue and morality. They seldom marry according to law, but just take up and quit when they feel like it.

There are more negro children in this town and every other town who are born out of wedlock than those who are born in it. Neither man nor wife nor church member loses caste for notorious infidelity to the marriage relation. As Thomas says most of the preachers are on that line. Eight negro preachers are now in our state chaingang and as many more in the county gangs. I asked a negro the other day what they turned their preacher off for, and he said, "it were for some oureglarities." Some of our negro school teachers get the same reputation and have to step down and out. We had one here a few years ago who was highly educated and wrote a beautiful letter, but he got to kidnaping little things and ran away in the night and didn't stop until he got to Africa and was made a bishop.

But Thomas does not tell us how to exterminate them, nor where to draw the line between the inferior classes and those who shall be allowed to live and multiply. He exhausts his indignation without defining the mode and manner of the remedy. I suppose we might transport the men and boys over to the Philippines and turn the army loose upon them, but that would be expensive, or we might drive them out west and let them starve to death or be killed off by the Indians. Any way would satisfy Thomas if it exterminated all the bad ones. We are doing reasonably well on that line, for besides lynchings for the usual crime, which I hope will be kept up diligently, we have retired about 5,000 to private life in the chaingangs of Georgia, and 15,000 more in other southern states. That amounts to a partial extermination and is better, for we get their labor during the process.

We ought to take up every trifling vagabond and send him there, for idleness is the parent of vice and crime. If he had done something send him for doing it and if he hadent done anything then send him for doing nothing. And as for those snatch thieves who are prowling and robbing the ladies of Atlanta I wouldent send them to the chaingang until they had been whipped once a week for a month. Force is the thing—the force of a cowhide on the naked skin. That is the remedy for black and white in Delaware, and neither a snatch thief nor a bank robber dares to stop in the state. They hurry through to another state where there is no whipping post. Until we get a legislature that has got wisdom and moral courage enough to exterminate the dogs and protect the sheep they will re-establish the whipping post.

But about the Beasty book that says the negro has no soul. I suppose it was manufactured to sell and fool somebody. As my nigger Bob once said to Nathan Freeman: "Effen a white man got a soul and a nigger haint got no soul how about a mellater?" That is a conundrum. And how about the Indians and Chinese and Cubans and the Arabs? How much coloring does it take to germinate a soul? How about such high-minded philanthropic negroes as Booker Washington, President Council, Bishop Gaines, Bishop Turner and the bishop of Louisiana, who are doing their utmost to reform their race? I had rather risk them and many other good negroes for souls and salvation than many a white man I know. How about my faithful Tip, who was born and raised in our family and has been loyal and true to his mistress and her children all these years, and how about old time servants in almost every family who owned negroes and whose devotion never died when freedom came?

No. Let Nelson and Company write books to pervert the north and make money for themselves, but let us alone our negroes alone. Just keep hands off and we will manage them. We need them in our fields and furnaces and mines and on our railroads. Just for their labor as slaves the south would have been fifty years behind in the clearing of our forests, building our railroads and developing our mineral resources. But for them the south would be inundated with a horde of foreigners who bring with them all sorts of isms and religions and strikes. The negro has his faults, but his presence will keep immigrants away it will be a blessing. It is still the destiny of the south to perpetuate an uncontaminated white race who will save the republic from anarchy and ruin or from imperialism.

P. S.—We read that extermination has begun at Terre Haute and Indianapolis. I hope Hannibal is happy.—BILL ARP, in Atlanta Constitution.

WHERE POLITENESS COUNTED.

Courteous Conductor Receives Good Position Through Trifling Action.

"It's astonishing how few people realize the value of politeness," said a gentleman today, in speaking of the opportunities for young men.

"I come into town every day on the Ellicott City cars," continued the gentleman, "and usually at the same hour every day. It seems to me that the conductors on that line are, as a rule, very courteous and accommodating, but there are a few exceptions. For several months a very pleasant young man was in charge of the car I used in the morning, but after New Year's day I missed him, and upon inquiring for him found he had left the road. His politeness had secured him a better position.

"It seems that during the brisk shopping times just before the holidays this conductor had as a surburban passenger one rainy day a lady who was encumbered with a number of parcels and an umbrella. When the car arrived at the lady's stopping place the conductor sprang off the car, raised the lady's umbrella for her, assisted her with her packages, touched his cap and went on his way, thinking nothing more of the incident.

"Not so with the lady, however. That night she mentioned the circumstance to her husband, who is a large wholesale merchant, and requested him, if possible, to give the young conductor a better job than ringing up fares and expostulating with truck drivers. The husband is one of those model men who live only to please their wives, and the result was that on January 2, the conductor went to work at a salary considerably better than that paid him by the railway company and with almost unlimited opportunities for advancement.

"But mark the difference in men. The terminus of the Ellicott City line is at Charles and Lexington streets, but if the cars are a little ahead of time they must wait at the corner of Saratoga and Charles streets, which is a convenient passing point for the cars of the Edmonson avenue line. Our polite conductor had always called cheerily out, on reaching this point, 'Two minutes to wait,' or 'Going right down,' as the case might be. The first morning I came in with the new conductor he plumped right down in a seat when the car reached Charles and Saratoga streets, and when, after a slight pause, a passenger ventured mildly to inquire how long the wait would be, the conductor replied angrily, 'Bout five minutes.' All the passengers got off, and then, on looking at my watch, I found there were really only two minutes to wait. Before we got to Charles and Lexington streets, the car overtook us. That conductor will never rise any higher, and it is doubtful whether he will even hold his present position long."—Baltimore News.

Deep Sea Pressure.

It is difficult to realize what the pressure at the ocean bottom really means; how enormous it is at three miles in depth. It is greater by several times than the pressure exerted by the pistons of the very greatest steam engines. Scientific men ascertain the temperature of the deep sea by sending down thermometers inclosed in small strong thick glass tubes. Sometimes these tubes suddenly collapse to a fine powder under the enormous pressure of several miles of depth. Indeed, one may say that a hollow, man-made thing that sinks in the deep sea is crushed beyond recognition before it reaches the bottom. The strongest steel ships are hardly more resisting here than pasteboard boxes.—McClure's Magazine.

He Did and Then He Didn't.

Apropos of runs on banks, a story is told of an Irishman who had heard reports affecting a bank in which he had deposited his savings.

Presenting himself at the paying teller's window, he said, peremptorily: "I want me money."

The official thus addressed quietly took his book, counted out the correct amount and handed it out.

"Then you've got it!" exclaimed the depositor, his ire subsiding.

"There it is," replied the teller.

"I don't want it. You may keep it." And he went away satisfied of the bank's solidity.—Baltimore Sun.

REV. DR. TALMAGE.

DISCOURSE BY THE EMINENT DIVINE LAST SUNDAY.

Subject: The Printed Word—A Call For a Warm Friendship Between Those Who Make Newspapers and Those Who Preach the Gospel.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—In this discourse Dr. Talmage calls for a warm friendship between those who preach the gospel and those who make newspapers, the spoken word and the printed word to go side by side; text, Luke xvi. 8, "The children of this world are in their generation wiser than the children of light."

Sacred stupidity and splendid incompetency and sanctified laziness are here rebuked by Christ. He says worldlings are wider awake for opportunities than are Christians. Men of the world grab occasions, while Christian people let the most valuable occasions drift by unimproved. That is the meaning of our Lord when He says, "The children of this world are in their generation wiser than the children of light."

A marked illustration of the truth of that maxim is in the slowness of the Christian religion to take possession of the secular press. The opportunity is open, and has been for some time open, but the ministers of religion are for the most part allowing the golden opportunity to pass unimproved. That the opportunity is open I declare from the fact that all the secular newspapers are glad of any religious facts or statistics that you present them. Any animated and stirring article relating to religious themes they would gladly print. They thank you for any information in regard to churches. If a wrong has been done to any Christian church or Christian institution, you could go into any newspaper office of the land and have the real truth stated. Dedication services, ministerial ordinations and pastoral installations, cornerstone laying of a church, anniversary of a charitable society will have reasonable space in any secular journal if it have previous notice given.

If I had some great injustice done me, there is not an editorial or reportorial room in the United States into which I could not go and get myself set right, and that is true of any well-known Christian man.

Why, then, does not our glorious Christianity embrace these magnificent opportunities? I have before me a subject of first and last importance: How shall we secure the secular press as a mightier reenforcement to religion and the pulpit?

The first thing toward this result is cessation of indiscriminate hostility against newspaperdom. You might as well denounce the legal profession because of the shysters or the medical profession because of the swindling bargain makers as to slambang newspapers because there are recreant editors and unfair reporters and unclean columns. Gutenberg, the inventor of the art of printing, was about to destroy his types and extinguish the art because it was suggested to him that printing might be suborned into the service of the devil, but afterward he bethought himself that the right use of the art might more than overcome the evil use of it, and so he spared the type and the intelligence of all following ages. But there are many to-day in the depressed mood of Gutenberg, with uplifted hammer, wanting to pound to pieces the type, who have not reached his better mood in which he saw the art of printing to be the rising sun of the world's illumination.

If, instead of fighting newspapers, we spend the same length of time and the same vehemence in marshaling their help in religious directions, we would be as much wiser as the man who gets consent of the railroad superintendent to fasten a car to the end of a rail train shows better sense than he who runs his wheelbarrow up the track to meet and drive back the Chicago limited express.

The silliest thing that a man ever does is to fight a newspaper, for you may have the floor for utterance perhaps for one day in the week, while the newspaper has the floor every day in the week.

Napoleon, though a mighty man, had many weaknesses, and one of the weakest things he ever did was to threaten that if the English newspapers did not stop their adverse criticism of himself he would, with 400,000 bayonets, cross the channel for their chastisement.

Don't fight newspapers. Attack provokes attack. Better wait until the excitement blows over, and then go in and get justice, for get it you will if you have patience and common sense and equipoise of disposition.

It ought to be a mighty sedative that there is an enormous amount of common sense in the world, and you will eventually be taken for what you are really worth, and you cannot be puffed up, and you cannot be written down, and if you are the enemy of good society that fact will come out, and if you are the friend of good society that fact will be established.

I know what I am talking about, for I can draw on my own experience. All the respectable newspapers, as far as I know, are my friends now. But many of you remember the time when I was the most continuously and meanly attacked man in this country. God gave me grace not to answer back, and I kept silence for ten years, and much grace was required. What I said was perverted and twisted into just the opposite of what I did say. There were millions of people who believed that there was a large sofa in my pulpit, although we never had anything but a chair, and that during the singing by the congregation I was accustomed to lie down on that sofa and dangle my feet over the end. Lying New York correspondents for ten years misrepresented our church services. But we waited, and people from every neighborhood of Christendom came there, to find the magnitude of the falsehoods concerning the church and concerning myself. A reaction set in, and soon we had justice, full justice, more than justice, and as much overpraise as once we had underappreciation, and no man that ever lived was so much indebted to the newspaper press for opportunity to preach the gospel as I am.

Young men in the ministry, young men in all professions and occupations, wait. You can afford to wait. Take rough misrepresentation as a Turkish towel to start up your languid circulation or a system of massage or Swedish movement, whose pokes and pulls and twists and thrusts are salutary treatment.

There is only one person you need to manage, and that is yourself. Keep your disposition sweet by communion with Christ, who answered pot again, get society of genial people and walk out in the sunshine with your hat off and you will come out all right. Don't join the crowd of people in our day who spend much of their time damning newspapers.

Again, in this effort to secure the secular press as a mightier reenforcement of religion, let us make it the avenue of religious information. If you would secure the press as a mightier reenforcement of religion and the pulpit extend widest and highest Christian courtesies to the representatives of journalism. Give them easy chairs and plenty of room when they come to report occasions. For the most part they are gentlemen of education and refinement, graduates of colleges, with families to support by their literary craft, many of them weary with the push of a business that is precarious and fascinating, each one of them the avenue of information to thousands of readers, their impression of the services to be the impression adopted by multitudes. They are connecting links between a sermon or a song or a prayer and this great population that tramp up and down the streets day by day and year by year with their sorrows uncomforted and their sins unpardoned. Oh, the hundreds of thousands of people in our cities who never attend churches! Our cities are not so much preached to by ministers of religion as by reporters. Put all journalists into the prayers and sermons. Of all the hundred thousand sermons preached to-day there will not be three preached to journalists and probably not one. Of all the prayers offered for sinners of men innumerable the prayers offered for the most potential class will be thought a preacher's impertinence. There are many journalists in our church membership, but this world will never be brought to God until some revival of religion sweeps over the land and takes into the kingdom of God all editors, reporters, compositors, pressmen and newsboys. And if you have not faith enough to pray for that and call for that you had better get out of our ranks and join the other side, for you are the unbelievers who make the wheels of the Lord's chariot drag heavily. The great final battle between truth and error, the Armageddon, I think, will not be fought with swords and shells and guns, but with pens—quill pens, steel pens, gold pens, fountain pens and before that the pens must be converted. The great divinely honored weapon of the past has been the pen, and the most divinely honored weapon of the future will be the pen—prophet's pen, and evangelist's pen and apostle's pen, followed by editor's pen and author's pen and reporter's pen. God save the pen! The wing of the Apocalyptic angel will be the printed page. The printing press will roll ahead of Christ's chariot to clear the way.

"But," some one might ask, "would you make Sunday newspapers also a re-enforcement?" I have learned to take things as they are. I would like to see the much scoffed at old Puritan Sabbaths come back again. I do not think the modern Sunday will turn out any better men and women than were your grandfathers and grandmothers under the old-fashioned Sunday. To say nothing of other results, Sunday newspapers are killing editors, reporters, compositors and pressmen. Every man, woman and child is entitled to twenty-four hours of nothing to do. If the newspapers put on another set of hands that does not relieve the editorial and reportorial room of its cares and responsibilities. Our literary men die fast enough without killing them with Sunday work.

"All things are possible with God, and my faith is up until nothing in the way of religious victory would surprise me. All the newspaper printing presses of the earth are going to be the Lord's, and telegraph and telephone and type will yet announce nations born in a day. The first book ever printed was the Bible, by Faust and his son-in-law, Schoeffer, in 1460, and that consecration of type to the Holy Scriptures was a prophecy of the great mission of printing for the evangelization of all the nations. The father of the American printing press was a clergyman, Rev. Jesse Glover, and that was a prophecy of the religious use that the gospel ministry in this country were to make of the types.

The tendency of criticism in the theological seminaries is to file off from our young men all the sharp points and make them too smooth for any kind of execution. What we want, all of us, is more point, less humdrum. If we say the right thing in the right way, the press will be glad and echo and re-echo it. Sunday-school teachers, reformers, young men and old men in the ministry, what we all want if we are to make the printing press an ally in Christian work is that which the reporter spoken of suggested—points, sharp points, memorable points. But if the thing be dead when uttered by living voice it will be a hundredfold more dead when it is laid out in cold type.

That Providence intends the profession of reporters to have a mighty share in the world's redemption is suggested by the fact that Paul and Christ took a reporter along with them, and he reported their addresses and their acts.

Luke was a reporter, and he wrote not only the book of Luke, but the Acts of the Apostles, and without that reporter's work we would have known nothing of the Pentecost, and nothing of Stephen's martyrdom, and nothing of Tabitha's resurrection, and nothing of the jailing and unjailing of Paul and Silas, and nothing of the shipwreck at Melita.

Strike out the reporter's work from the Bible, and you kill a large part of the New Testament. It makes me think that in the future of the kingdom of God the reporters are to bear a mighty part.

About twenty-five years ago a representative of an important New York newspaper took his seat in my Brooklyn church one Sunday night about five pews from the front of the pulpit. He took out pencil and reporter's pad, resolved to caricature the whole scene. When the music began, he began, and with his pencil he derided that, and then derided the prayer, and then derided the reading of the Scriptures, and then began to deride the sermon. But, he says, for some reason his hand began to tremble, and he, rallying himself, sharpened his pencil and started again, but broke down again and put pencil and paper in his pocket and his head down on the front pew and began to pray. At the close of the service he came up and asked for the prayers of others, and gave his heart to God. And, though still engaged in newspaper work, he is an evangelist and preaches a half at his own expense and every Sunday afternoon preaches Jesus Christ to the people.

And the men of that profession are going to come in a body throughout the country. I know hundreds of them, and a more genial or highly educated class of men it would be hard to find; and though the tendency of their profession may be toward skepticism, an organized common sense gospel invitation would fetch them to the front of all Christian endeavor.

Men of the pencil and pen in all departments, you need the help of the Christian religion. In the day when people want to get their newspapers at two cents and are hoping for the time when they can get any of them at one cent, and as a consequence the attaches of the printing press are by the thousand crowded under the cylinders, you want God to take care of you and your families.

Some of your best work is as much unappreciated as was Milton's "Paradise Lost," for which the author received $25, and the immortal poem "Hohenlinden" of Thomas Campbell, when he first offered it for publication, and in the column called "Notices to Correspondents" appeared the words: "To T. C.—The lines commencing 'On Linden when the sun was low' are not up to our standard. Poetry is not T. C.'s forte."

O men of the pencil and pen, amid your unappreciated work you need encouragement, and you have it. Printers of all Christendom, editors, reporters, compositors, pressmen, publishers and readers of that which is printed, realize that you will not write yourselves down as good for nothing that debases body, mind or soul. In the name of God, by the laying on of the hands of Isaac Ditmas, ordain the printing press for righteousness and liberty and salvation. All of us with some influence that will help in the right direction, let us put our hands to the work, imploring God to hasten the consummation. In a ship with hundreds of passengers approaching the South American coast the man on the lookout neglected his work, and in a few minutes the ship would have been dashed to ruin on the rocks. But a cricket on board the vessel felt his pulse and saved all the passengers by a shrill call at the moment of peril, and the captain, knowing that half of the island slumbered the vessel in time to avoid an awful wreck. And so insignificant means may now do wonders, and the scratch of a pen may save the shipwreck of a soul.

Are you already for the signing of the contract, the treaty, the solemn treaty between journalism and evangelism? Let it be a Christian marriage of the pulpit and the printing press. The ordination of the former on my hand, the pen of the latter in my hand, it is appropriate that I publish the banns of such a marriage. Let them from this day be one in the magnificent work of the world's redemption.

THE SABBATH SCHOOL

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR MARCH 17.

Subject: Jesus and Pilate, Luke xxiii., 13-25—Golden Text, Luke xxiii. 5—Memory Verses, 20-24—Commentary on the Day's Lesson.

Introduction.—We left Jesus condemned by an irregular meeting of the Sanhedrin, hastily called together during the night, at the palace of the high priest. The Sanhedrin reassembled at daybreak (Matt. 27: 1; Mark 15: 1; Luke 22: 66-71), at their proper place of meeting in the council chamber near the temple gate. A formal vote was taken and Jesus was taken to the Roman court before Pilate for the approval of the sentence.

13. "And Pilate." His capital was at Cesarea, but it was his custom to go to Jerusalem at the times of the great festivals for the purpose of securing order. Writers speak of his corruption, his acts of insolence, his habit of insulting the people, his cruelty, his continual murders of people untried and uncondemned. The Jews naturally expected that he would willingly put Jesus to death without special inquiry into His guilt. Pilate greatly hated the Jews, but he was afraid of them lest they should report him to the emperor at Rome, which they did six years later, and he was deposed. "Called together." Pilate summons the rulers and the people and makes another strong appeal to them in order to get their consent to release Christ. Instead of calling them together he should have dispersed them as a riotous and seditious assembly.

14. "As one that perverteth." As one that has taught doctrines injurious to your religion, and also to the civil peace and the Roman Government. "Having examined." At the first trial he had heard all that could be brought against Him. "No fault." They had failed to prove a single charge.

15. "Nor yet Herod." Christ had traveled extensively in Galilee and yet Herod brings no charge that He had ever attempted to raise an insurrection among the Galileans. "He sent Him back unto us" (R. V.) This involved a distinct acquittal of our Lord from every political charge brought against Him. Had He in any way been guilty of (1) perverting the people, (2) forbidding to pay tribute, or (3) claiming to be a king, it would have been Herod's duty, and still more to his interest, to punish Him. His dismissal of the case was a deliberate avowal of His innocence. "Is done unto Him." "Nothing worthy of death hath been done by Him." (R. V.)

16. "Chastise Him." John says that Pilate took Jesus and scourged Him, but this was not done till a little later. The evangelists "make it clear that the scourging was inflicted as a separate punishment, in the hope that it would suffice, and not merely as the usual accompaniment of crucifixion." The scourge of leather thongs was loaded with lead or armed with spikes and bones, which lacerated the back, chest and face till the victim sometimes fell down before the judge a bleeding mass of torn flesh. Thus "He was wounded for our transgressions, He was bruised for our iniquities, the chastisement of our peace was upon Him, and by His stripes we are healed." "And release Him." Pilate hoped that when they saw Jesus scourged they would be satisfied, but not so; they were clamoring for His blood, and nothing short of death on a cross would satisfy them.

17. "Must release one." This verse is omitted in the Revised Version. But see the parallel accounts. This custom was in harmony with the nature of the feast and, however it originated, was so completely established that Pilate was obliged to attend to it.

18. "They cried out all together" (R. V.) The chief priest moved the people (Mark 15: 11); they were like a pack of bloodthirsty wolves. "Barabbas." An insurrectionist, a robber and a murderer. He was doubtly guilty of much worse crimes than they had charged against Jesus.

19. "Insurrection made in the city" (R. V.) He had a short time before this evidently been a ringleader in an outbreak in Jerusalem against the Roman Government.

20. "Willing to release Jesus." It was probably at this time, while the people were clamoring for His death so loudly that the messenger came from Pilate's wife (Matt. 27: 19), making the release of Jesus, and stating that she had just suffered many things in a dream because of Him.

21. "Crucify, crucify Him" (R. V.) Let Him die the most ignominious death possible.

22. "What evil hath He done?" How many and what various persons bear testimony to the innocence of the Holy One—Pilate, Herod, Pilate's wife, Judas Iscariot, the Thief on the cross, and the centurion at the crucifixion. "And let Him go." Pilate is laboring hard to release Him; he could have ended this whole matter with one word. It was at this juncture that Pilate asked, What shall I do then with Jesus, which is called Christ?

23. "Instant," insistent, urgent. "Prevailed." The result why He finally yielded seems to have been the one given in John 19: 12, "If thou let this man go, thou art not Caesar's friend: whosoever maketh himself a king speaketh against Caesar."

24. "Gave sentence." Before Pilate pronounced the sentence he took water and washed his hands publicly, thus expressing in deed what he uttered in words, "I am innocent of the blood of this just Person, see ye to it." Matt. 27: 24. Pilate then ascended the judgment seat, which was set up in a raised place in the open square, and delivers his final decree. Jesus is now mocked the third time, about 8 o'clock Friday morning, in the court of Pilate's palace. Matt. 27: 26-30; Mark 15: 15-19; John 19: 1-3. When Jesus is brought out before Deep Pilate makes one last effort to release Him. John 19: 4-13. Now he asks that he permit Jesus to be scourged, hoping that will satisfy them, but the cry is still, "Crucify Him," and He is taken back into the court and His own clothes are put upon Him.

25. "Fast hold." "Compelled." "Simon of Cyrene" (R. V.) Cyrene was a city situated in a province of the same name, north of Egypt on the Mediterranean Sea. There was a colony of Jews in Cyrene, and they had a synagogue in Jerusalem. Acts 6: 9. "Coming out of the country." They were taking Jesus out of the city, and they met this man. "Bear it after Jesus." He assisted Jesus, who evidently was exhausted. "Bear the kinder part from the foregoing."

A movement has been started in Virginia, and it had received the indorsement of several state legislatures, favoring the acquisition by the Federal government of the house at Yorktown, Virginia, the old Moore mansion, where Washington, Lafayette and Rochambeau received the surrender of Lord Cornwallis, which set closed the Revolutionary struggle for independence. The ground is historic, and the object is to preserve it as a public memorial of the event which transpired there.

EX-PRESIDENT Benjamin Harrison died at his home in Indianapolis Wednesday afternoon.

MARCH, after showing us a spell of wild windy weather, is now giving us a beautiful sample of Spring, and everyone is busy gardening and preparing for another crop.

CHANCERY Court convened on Monday morning with a very light docket and no cases of public importance. Chancellor Richard B. Kelly with his usual celerity disposed of the business in short order and court adjourned Tuesday.

THE Democratic county convention meets at Clanton to-day, and we believe will nominate Dr. H. W. Caffey as delegate from this county to the constitutional convention, and Hon. Tipton Mullins will be their choice to represent the Senatorial district.

AMONGST the Populists, who will hold their convention on the 25th inst., very little interest is being shown at present, but there is an under current at work which will probably liven things up by the time the convention meets. The two names most prominently mentioned for delegate are Hon. L. H. Reynolds and Circuit Clerk E. B. Deason.

AN estimate is being made by the cotton brokers of Texas as to the probable crop for the coming season, and said estimate as given out indicates that with even a half-way favorable season Texas, Indian Territory and Arkansas the cotton output will be at least one-third if not a half, larger than for the season just passed. From every section of the two states and the territory reports are that large quantities of new land are being broken to plant cotton. The high prices prevailing this past season has brought about the usual damaging result for the future, in that it has excited the farmers so that they are going to overplant, and it is estimated that cotton will drop to 5 cents ere the middle of the coming season, unless the season is an extremely bad one and the crop is curtailed by at least half.

H. 1010—to amend Sec. 1 of the charter of the town of Clanton.

S. 377—To prevent the running at large of stock in Beat 5, Chilton county.

CORRESPONDENCE

remarkable statement: "Voter knows as well as we do that Hon. L. B. Pounds was of as little service in the Legislature to the people of Chilton county as a notch on a stick." The Reflector fails to say why Mr. Pounds was of so little service to the people. Will the Reflector tell us why? It is not because Mr. Pounds was not at his post, it is not because he is not because he is not an intelligent man, it is not because he is not honest and faithful to the people that elected him.

What is it then? The Reflector leaves its readers to guess. It is a so-called Democratic organization that undertakes to teach the people that unless you vote for and work for the Democratic party you can't be heard. This is the meaning of the Reflector when it said "If Mr. 'Hunnicutt' had been elected instead of Pounds, this county would have fared much better." Let us see if, in the light of the recent history of the last Legislature, this is correct. The people of all parties met in mass meeting and publicly declared that they did not want stock law. Mr. Pounds stood by the publicly declared wishes of the people, and the act that put stock law on Beat five and a portion of Beat eight did not come from Pounds, but it originated in the Senate by a Democratic Senator, who was not elected by the votes of the people, but counted in by a Democratic board in Elmore county, and this same Democratic Senator had the aid of the "Hunnicutt" that was counted by the votes of the people. And yet the Reflector tells us that it would have been better for the people of Chilton county to have elected this man, who without authority of law, and with no other authority than that he was the nominee of the Democratic party, goes to Montgomery and in obedience to a partisan resolution passed by a Democratic convention, uses what influence he has, jointly with a Senator who was never elected by the votes of the people, to put upon a free white people a law that less than twenty voters in the Beat wanted. The Reflector's sight is much darker than we first thought.

ALABAMA SUNDAY-SCHOOL CONVENTION.

The Eighteenth annual convention of the Alabama Sunday-school Association will be held in the town of Talladega, Ala., Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday April 9-11. The basis of representation is as follows, to wit: Five delegates at large from each county, all ministers of the gospel, the superintendent and two delegates from each Sunday-school. The railroads of the state have granted reduced rates to delegates attending the convention. Each delegate desiring to obtain the reduced rate must purchase a ticket to Talladega at the regular tariff rate and at the same time procure from the ticket agent a certificate of the standard form. If through ticket can not be procured at the starting point, the person should purchase to the most convenient point at which such ticket can be obtained and there repurchase to Talladega, procuring a certificate from each agent from whom a ticket is purchased. Tickets for the return home will be sold at one-third the first class tariff fare to persons holding certificates properly signed by the officers of the convention. The delegates attending the convention will be entertained by the Sunday-school workers of Talladega. The delegates attending the convention should send their names to Rev. I. W. Newman, Talladega, Ala. chairman committee on Entertainment.

Mrs. C. E. VanDeusen, of Kibourn, Wis, was afflicted with stomach trouble and constipaton for a long time. Remarkable Cures of Rheumatism

From the Vindicator, Rutherfordton, NC

The editor of the Vindicator has had occasion to test the efficacy of Chamberlain's Pain Balm twice with the most remarkable results in each case. First, with rheumatism in the shoulder from which he suffered excruciating pain for ten days, which was relieved with two applications of Pain Balm, rubbing the parts affected and realizing instant benefit and entire relief in a very short time. Second, in rheumatism in thigh joint, almost prostrating him with severe pain, which was relieved by two applications, rubbing with the liniment on retiring at night and getting up free from pain. THE FOOTES ON TRIAL

For the Murder of Mrs Foote February 20th.

HOME FOR OLD VETERANS.

A $3,500,000 Shipbuilding Plant at Mobile.

TRIAL OF THE FOOTES.

Son Charged With Murder of His Mother—Father Accessory

The preliminary trial of Charles A. Foote and Arthur Foote, the latter charged with the murder of his mother, Mrs. Amanda Foote, on Feb. 20, at Bessemer, and the former, who was the woman's husband, charged with being an accessory, came up Monday before Justice William Jackson, at Bessemer. The case against the defendants is largely circumstantial, there being no eye witnesses to the alleged murder. A large number of witnesses have been subpoenaed and will testify at the hearing.

The murder of Mrs. Foote was one of the most shocking in the criminal annals of Jefferson county. She was found by her 12 year old daughter lying on the kitchen floor of her house, with her throat cut. The windpipe was cut in two places and the instrument of death, a caseknife, was found lying by her. The room gave evidence of a struggle, and that the woman was attacked while sitting in a chair, a dress on which she was working and her sewing materials having fallen to the floor where she was sitting.

At first it was thought to be a case of suicide, but the coroner's jury, after an investigation, brought in a verdict charging her son with the murder and her husband as being an accessory.

APPEAL FOR VETERANS' HOME

Board of Directors Issue an Address to the Public.

The following appeal on behalf of the proposed home for old Confederate veterans has been issued by the board of directors:

Birmingham, Ala., March 9, 1901.
To the Public:

The board of directors of the proposed home for old and needy confederate veterans and their families of the state of Alabama made an application to the last legislature for an appropriation to aid them in building this home, but they failed to get any assistance whatever from that body. Therefore, as this board has already received in donations, building material of all kinds nearly a sufficient quantity to build this home, and hoping for the continued generous aid of all charitably disposed citizens of Alabama towards these old veterans, have at last determined, with the aid of all these donations, to build this home somewhere in the state, regardless of the legislature and all other opponents to it. With this determination in view, the board of directors of this proposed home did at their last meeting on March 2, 1901, appoint the undersigned committee to advertise in all the papers of this state, calling on all persons who are favorable to it for donations in cash, material and also in the way of a suitable site for the location of this home. This site being open to any section desirable in Alabama, parties having any desirable locations, cash or building materials they can donate, they will confer a favor on these old veterans by communicating without delay with the undersigned committee:

C. F. ENSLEN, Chairman.
C. T. HUGHES,
H. F. BRIDEWELL.

A New Railroad.

Alabama is soon to have another railroad. It will be an independent line, seven miles in length. The articles of incorporation were issued from the office of the secretary of state this morning to William Blount, president; J. H. Ely, treasurer; Geo. B. Miles, secretary; B. L. Ely, Hugh Foster, Charles Jinks, E. Lee Blue, W. M. Ellis and P. F. Miles of Union Springs, for the building of the Union Springs and Northern railroad. The line is to extend from Union Springs to Fort Davis on the Seaboard Air Line.

Funds Are Ready to Build the Road to Brunswick.

The Brunswick and Birmingham railroad has filed a mortgage in favor of the Knickerbocker Trust Company of New York. The bonds are to run for fifty years, at five per cent interest, payable semi-annually in gold. The total amount is six and three quarter million dollars. These funds will be sufficient to build and equip the road all the way to Birmingham. Work is being vigorously pushed at the Brunswick end.

CAPTAIN OF REGULARS.

Mitchell of Alabama Promoted from Lieutenancy.

In a long list of nominations for the regular army which the president sent to the senate Saturday was that of Americus Mitchell, first lieutenant of infantry, to be captain.

Capt. Mitchell is an Alabamian and since December, 1899, has been in charge of the recruiting stations in this state, with headquarters in Birmingham. He has many friends here who will congratulate him on his advancement. Of the 450 captains of the infantry only three or four are as young as Mitchell. This popular and courteous officer was born in Russell county just thirty years ago and graduated from West Point in the class of 1895. Commissioned second lieutenant on leaving the academy he was promoted to the rank of first lieutenant. After serving with the Fifth infantry in Cuba for fifteen months he was detailed for recruiting work.

An Interesting Operation at St. Vincent's Hospital.

An operation of more than ordinary interest was performed at St. Vincent's Hospital, Birmingham, Friday morning under which the leg of a man 50 years of age was amputated with little inconvenience or pain to the patient, and without the use of chloriform or the usual anesthetics. The operation is known as spinal anesthesia, and has aroused deep interest among surgeons and in the medical profession generally, and Friday's operation, which was eminently successful, was the first that has been performed in the state of Alabama. The operation was performed by Dr. John D. S. Davis. The patient was suffering from cancer of the leg and was prepared for the operation by injecting an eighth of a grain of cocaine in the lost lumbar-interzertebral space. After waiting seven minutes, there was complete loss of all sensation in the lower extremities and a tourniquet was applied and the limb amputated without pain. During the entire proceedings the patient conversed with the surgeons, and left the room in splendid condition.

A Shipbuilding Plant at Mobile.

The Gulf Coast Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company will be organized in Mobile this week, says the New Orleans Picayune. It will have a capital stock of $3,500,000. The incorporators are: William Butler Duncan, chairman of the board of directors of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, and New York financier. W. D. Munson, of New York, president of the Monson Steamship Company, which operates coast lines of steamers and one system from Mobile to Cuban ports. E. L. Russell, president of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad. Robert C. Morris, of New Orleans, a promotor of southern enterprises. M. P. Levy, of New York, a substantial capitalist, is not one of the incorporators of the big shipbuilding concern, but he is interested in its success. He already has money in southern enterprises. There will be two plants. The shipbuilding yards, to cost about $2,500,000, will be located in Mobile. The dry docks, to cost in the range of $1,000,000, will be located in New Orleans. Iron and steel structures will be built at the shipyards.

The Dallas Manufacturing Company is preparing plans for a modern school building of brick, three stories high, to be erected at Dallas Mills and maintained at the expense of the company.

The Crotwells Brothers have moved their large sawmill from its former location near Brookwood to Coalburg, near which there is much fine timber.

Prominent Negro Dead.

Major Reuben R. Mims, colored, died Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock, after an illness of a few weeks. He was a member of the state military for the past seventeen years, being successively lieutenant and captain of the local Gilmer Rifles and then major of the colored battalion of the state troops, which position he held at the time of his death. He was grand master of the colored Grand Lodge of Masons of Alabama for the past nine years. He was connected with the postoffice department as route rider, railway mail clerk and local carrier since 1876.

$50,000 Fire in Mobile.

Fire Friday afternoon caused nearly $50,000 damage to the large hardware store of the Barney Cavanagh Hardware Company, on Commerce street, Mobile. A photographer taking pictures by flash light for a catalogue caused the fire. One of his flashes communicated to a lot of cotton collar pads close by. The entire upper portion of the building was gutted while the stock of the whole building was badly damaged by [illegible] The loss is covered by insurance.

DEWET IS SAFE.

The Intrepid Leader Is Again in His Own Country.

The London Times publishes the following from Aalekopf, March 8:

"General DeWet has escaped northward by a forced march with 400 men. His objective is believed to be the vicinity of Kroonstadt. Four other Boer leaders are still in the southwestern part of Orange river colony. Now that General DeWet is back in his own country it will be almost impossible to operate against him. Just as soon as he is pressed his commando dissolves to meet again a few days later. Only a few bands of Boers are now left in Cape Colony."

WHITE CONVICT BEAT TO DEATH.

Sensational Investigation is Being Made of North Carolina Prison.

An investigation is being made at Winston-Salem, N. C., into the cause of the death of a young white convict, Rand White, at the county chaingang last week. There is evidence of cruel treatment on the part of the guards. Testimony of witnesses examined show that White was brutally beaten on Tuesday with switches and a raw hide by Pink Fulton, one of the guards. The county physician, who made a post-mortem examination of the body, which was disinterred, testified that White had been terribly lacerated and bruised, and that the wounds were sufficient to produce death. The coroner's jury returned a verdict charging Fulton with being responsible for the death of the convict. Fulton was discharged from his position on Wednesday night. A warrant has been issued for his arrest, but so far the officers have not been able to locate him.

THE OHIO RISING.

More Than $1,000,000 Bushels of Coal Has Started South.

The Ohio is at coal boat stage. More than 1,000,000 bushels of coal started for southern points Sunday and fully 10,000,000 bushels are expected to follow on the present rise. Reports from up the river show rain and rivers rising at all points. The ice in the Allegheny, from Pittsburg to Coal City, is on the move. There is lots of ice in the Monongahela above pools Nos. 1 and 2, but as yet it has not broken up. Some river men think the rivers at Pittsburg will reach twenty-six feet, the flood mark, and others believe it will not go above twenty feet.

BUBONIC PLAGUE.

Report in Capetown Shows Total of 221 Deaths and 102 Cases.

Capetown, March 10.—The official report regarding the progress of the bubonic plague in Capetown since the outbreak shows a total of 221 deaths and 102 cases.

The Malays gathered today to oppose the removal of a Malay who had been attacked by the disease and of several persons who had come in contact with the victim. The police were overpowered and the persons who had come in contact with Malay made their escape. In the event of a repetition of this occurrence it will be necessary to employ an armed force to avert trouble.

Deputy Sheriff Killed.

Deputy Sheriff Holman, of Calvaras county, California, was shot and killed Sunday night at Wallace, in a pitched battle with two highwaymen. One of the latter is reported seriously wounded. Early Sunday evening two prominent residents of Wallace were held up and robbed by bandits. The affair being reported to the county officials Deputy Sheriff Holman, with a posse, went to Wallace to arrest the robbers. The latter resisted and a pistol fight ensued. Many shots were exchanged.

Court House Burned.

The court house at Lafayette, Macon county, Tenn., was destroyed by fire Sunday night, the county records for thirty years being consumed. The loss is $30,000.

Six masked men secured tools from a blacksmith shop early Sunday morning and broke into the West Toledo, O., post office, blew open the safe and secured $700.

SHOULD THE PRESIDENT DIE.

Legal Minds Would be Puzzled as to the Succession.

President McKinley's illness from grip, though not serious, has served to call attention to the situation that would arise in the event of his death. Under the Hoar law, passed a few years ago, the succession to the Presidency falls upon the Secretary of State in case of the death or inability of both the President and Vice President, then upon the Secretary of the Treasury, and so down through the cabinet, ending with the Secretary of Agriculture. There being no Vice President at present, the Secretary of State would become chief executive in case of the President's death. There is one interesting point in connection with the Presidential succession, however, that was the subject of much gossip and speculation among public men and politicans this week. It grows out of the question of who would be President on the 4th of March after the expiration of Mr. McKinley's present term. He has not yet been elected to his second term, however, and will not be until next Monday, when the electoral college will meet and count its vote, which will be officially counted, recorded and announced on the second Wednesday in February, the function taking place in the hall of the House of Representatives, the Senate and House sitting in joint session. On the 4th of March, at noon, William McKinley's term as President will expire, and if he were dead at that time there would be no Vice President to succeed him, as Theodore Roosevelt would not then have taken the oath of office. Moreover, should the President die before elected by the electoral college it is said by some constitutional experts that as a matter of fact there would be no vacancy in the Presidential office at noon on the 4th of March, their point being that that office not having been filled no vacancy could exist. The consensus of expert opinion seems to be that if the Secretary of State should be acting President on the 4th of March by reason of the death of the President during his present term the situation would be met by the swearing in of Theodore Roosevelt as Vice President promptly at noon, this act to be followed immediately by the administration to him of the oath of office of the President.

Bribing a trolley car conductor is the newest method of elopings when an irate parent is trying to catch the car and put an end to the proceedings. Recently on Long Island two lovers were on the car, and papa came chasing after it at top speed. He was gaining rapidly; the car was clowing down, the young man's fears were rising. With an inspiration worthy of the moment the young man flashed a bill out of his pocket, pressed into the conductor's hand, and he of the punch, who comprehended the situation in an instant, pulled the bell cord and away shot the car. The young man's father-in-law arrived in time to see the parson give the young people his blessing.

A Kiss That Cost a Life.

In Prescott, Wash., one day recently, Miss Ella Boone remarked at a party that she had never been kissed. Frank Sloan heard the remark, and a little later, while she was blindfolded, he kissed her in fun. She resented his action and, pulling a hatpin from her hat, stabbed him in the leg. The pin was broken off and blood-poisoning resulted. The next day the pain became so intense that Sloan went to the hospital in Walla Walla. An X-ray machine failed to locate any sign of the pin, and Sloan grew worse and died.

The Collecting of Perfumes.

In the collecting of perfumes two processes are employed. In one, the grease process, boxes with glass bottoms are prepared, the bottom being covered with pure grease, or suet, and the flowers gathered fresh every day during the season are laid on trays in the box, the grease being left to absorb their fragrance. In the oil process the place of grease is taken by cotton saturated with oil, the process being substantially the same.

How the World Grows.

In 1850 England was 33 days to India. Now it is about 17.

In 1850 New York was from six months from China by ship. Now it is 17 days by Vancouver and by ship to Shanghai.

In 1870 emigrants came to this country usually in about 40 days. They ran into storms and had to pump. Now they come in a comfort.

In 1845 the postage on a letter from New York to Wisconsin was 25. People wrote long letters in those days in a fine copperplate hand on paper—to get the worth of their money, but they wrote seldom.

Fifty years ago news from Europe reached America in two weeks. It comes in two minutes.

The biggest match factory in the world is the Vulcan match factory at Tidahalm, Sweden. It employs 1,200 men and manufactures daily 900 boxes of matches.

UNDER THE SNOW

Ghastly Truths Revealed on the Disappearance of Winter's White Mantle.

Deadly dangers lurk in the ground left bare by the departing snow. All Winter long there have been accumulating deadly disease germs.

These have been protected and kept alive by the covering of snow and now, with the first warm days, these death-bringing microbes are awakened by the rays of the sun, and as the ground dries they are carried to all corners of the community in the dust that is blown everywhere by the Spring winds.

The human body at this time is particularly susceptible to these germs, especially the germs of fevers. The system has been depleted by the foregoing Winter. The blood is sluggish and filled with impurities. The nerves have not recovered from the tension they have been under for the past months. The stomach, the bowels, the kidneys, the liver are all at their worst.

It is, therefore, not strange that these germs of disease find fertile ground in which to thrive, flourish and develop into deadly ills.

Spring is the time of year when one should fear an attack of fever, especially when the system is depleted, one should dread any severe illness. The vitality is at a low ebb. There is less power of resistance to throw off disease, and it is on this account that fatalities are so much greater during the Spring months than at any other time of the year.

There is but one way to ward off such dangers, and that is to fortify the human body so that it will become impregnable to the germs of prevailing disease.

To do this take Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. It will build you up quickly. It will replenish your waning appetite, it will give you restful nights of sleep, it will give vim and vigor to the nerves, it will dispel all existing poisons that have accumulated in the body by counteracting the effects of germs that may accumulate.

Following is an instance that illustrates the wonderful power of Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy.

Sheriff Jonas T. Stevens, of sheriff of Hyde Park, Vt., says: "I have used Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy especially as a blood purifier. I had a very severe itching on my arms, accompanied by a very bad itching, so severe that I could not sleep nights, causing me great inconvenience by the loss of sleep and itching. A friend advised me to try Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, which I did with the most satisfactory results, for the itching has entirely disappeared, and I now rest comfortably nights and none of my former misery from burning, itching sensations."

Remember Dr. Greene's advice will be given to any one desiring it absolutely free if they will write or call upon him at his office, 35 W. 14th st., New York City.

The superintendent had reprimanded a ten year old girl for disobedience [illegible] forcibly, but harmlessly, marched her to the front from the rear of the school room. Her dress caught in a [illegible] and was torn, and the girl returned to her mother that she had been [illegible] and abused. This evoked several [illegible] stories, and some of the school boys paraded the streets and were joined by many loafers and full grown men. The superintendent and [illegible] women who escorted him were [illegible] in the streets, and the Americans sought refuge in the Intendencia Building.

At 5 o'clock Governor Allen ordered the mayor to disperse the mob, notifying him that he should ask for government assistance if he was in need of it. The mayor, however, ignored the notification, although the city police were powerless.

At 5:30 p. m. the offices were closed. Martin C. Brumbaugh, the commissioner of education of Porto Rico, asked for protection of his office and [illegible]

The treasury clerk, who was one of the men who ejected rioters from the Intendencia, was attacked, stoned and disarmed by a mob.

The insular police were not called out until 6 o'clock p. m., when the firemen mentioned took the initiative without orders.

Meantime, the city police had fired about one hundred shots, mostly in the air, for there were no casualties. Several other Americans beside the treasury clerk were stoned from roofs and balconies.

Corporal Hiscock has been placed under arrest, and probably will be tried by courtmartial.

A GAY PROFESSOR.

Results Farmer's Wife and Lands in Jail in Consequence.

An Atlanta dispatch says: "Professor G. B. Bird, who has been conducting a flourishing village school at Cedar Grove, twelve miles from Atlanta, was brought to the city Friday night and locked up in a cell at the police barracks on the charge of inveigling the wife of Calvin B. Moore, a farmer of DeKalb county.

Bird is a young man and is highly connected in the state. He has owned up the whole affair and affirms everything which Mrs. Moore has told on him. He claims that at the time he induced Mrs. Moore he was mentally irresponsible on account of a dose of whisky and morphine which he had taken for neuralgia.

GIBSON ELECTED SENATOR.

Montana Legislature Elects Successor to Carter After Many Ballots.

A special from Helena, Mont., says: Half past 3 o'clock Friday morning, though the legislative clock testified that it was not yet midnight, Hon. Thomas Gibson, Democrat, of Great Falls, was elected United States senator for the term expiring March 4, 1905.

For almost the entire life of the legislature that body had been voting daily for a senator, but with no result. After taking a few votes Thursday morning without indication of result, the joint assembly took a recess until 12 o'clock, at which time began the session ending with the election of Mr. Gibson.

AMERICAN TROOPS QUELL A RIOT

Porto Ricans Try to Mob School Superintendent.

TROUBLE OVER TRIVIAL AFFAIR

Reprimand to a School Girl Aroused the Quick Tempered Foreigners.

A cable from San Juan, Porto Rico, says: A serious riot occurred here yesterday. At five o'clock in the afternoon a lieutenant and a corporal of artillery, named Hiscock, left their post without orders and crossed the plaza into a street where a crowd of people had assembled. There they fired a volley into the mob and rescued the superintendent Armstrong, who was surrounded by the mob in a house about a block from the plaza.

The place had been overrun by a riotous crowd of probably 1,500 persons, shouting "Down with the Americans."

The superintendent had reprimanded a school girl for disobedience, but the reprimand was harmless enough, marched out from the rear of the school. Her dress caught in a door and was torn, and the girl reported to her mother that she had been struck and abused. This evoked sensational stories, and some of the school boys paraded the streets and were joined by many loafers and full-grown men. The superintendent and officers who escorted him were pelted in the streets, and the Americans sought refuge in the Intendencia Building.

At five o'clock Governor Allen ordered the mayor to disperse the mob, notifying him that he should ask for government assistance if he was in need of it. The mayor, however, ignored his notification, although the city police were powerless.

At 5:30 p. m. the offices were closed, and Martin C. Brumbaugh, the commissioner of education of Porto Rico, asked for protection of his office and staff.

A treasury clerk, who was one of the men who ejected rioters from the intendencia, was attacked, stoned and disarmed by a mob.

The regular police were not called upon until 6 o'clock p. m., when the volunteer firemen mentioned took the initiative without orders.

Meantime, the city police had fired about one hundred shots, mostly in the air, for there were no casualties.

Several other Americans beside the treasury clerk were stoned from roofs and balconies.

Corporal Hiscock has been placed under arrest, and probably will be tried by courtmartial.

Insults Farmer's Wife and Lands in Jail in Consequence.

An Atlanta dispatch says: "Professor G. B. Ford, who has been conducting a flourishing village school at Cedar Grove, twelve miles from Atlanta, was brought to the city Friday night and locked up in a cell at the police barracks on the charge of insulting the wife of Calvin B. Moore, a farmer of DeKalb county.

Ford is a young men and is highly connected in the state. He has owned up the whole affair and affirms everything which Mrs. Moore has told on him. He claims that at the time he insulted Mrs. Moore he was mentally irresponsible on account of a dose of whisky and morphine which he had taken for neuralgia.

SENATORS GO HOME.

Extraordinary Session of Six Days Brought to a Close With All Work Finished.

A Washington special says: After proceedings lasting only six days, the extraordinary session of the senate was declared adjourned sine die at 1:55 p. m. Saturday. During the session practically no business except of an executive character, was transacted.

The session was called by the president in order that the senate might have an opportunity to confirm appointments made at the beginning of the new administration. The business accomplished, there was nothing further for the senate to do.

At the opening of Saturday's session the president pro tempore, Senator Frye, of Maine, was inducted into office, the oath being administered by Vice President Roosevelt. Through a committee of the senate the president informed the senate that he had no further communication to make. Without ceremony the session was then declared at an end. For a considerable time after final adjournment, many senators remained on the floor of the chamber exchanging farewells.

In his invocation the blind chaplain prayed that the fatherly care of the Almighty might be extended to the members of the senate about to separate and to all other departments and officials of the government."

At the conclusion of the reading of the journal, the oath of office was administered to Mr. Frye.

Mr. Simon, of Oregon, announced that his recently elected colleague, Mr. Mitchell, was present, and he requested that the oath of office be administered to him as a matter of privilege. On the arm of Mr. Simon Mr. Mitchell advanced to the vice president's desk. As they ascended the platform the galleries, recognizing Mr. Mitchell, cordially applauded him. The vice president sparply rebuked the spectators for the applause.

Mr. Morgan, chairman of the committee on inter-oceanic canals, asked unanimous consent that Mr. Mitchell be appointed to succeed his predecessor, Mr. McBride, as a member of that committee. He realized, he said, that it was an unusual request, but it was made because of the notable interest in canal legislation always manifested by Mr. Mitchell, who, like Mr. McBride, was an earnest and able advocate of the construction of the canal.

After the transaction of brief routine business, the resolution offered Friday by Mr. Hoar that a committee of two senators be appointed to wait upon the president of the United States and notify him that unless he might have some further business to transact, the senate was ready to adjourn without delay, was laid before the senate and adopted. The vice president appointed Senators Hoar and Cockrell as the committee.

On motion of Mr. Hale the senate at 12:23 went into executive session. At 1:52 the doors were opened for the final proceedings of the extraordinary session. They were very brief. The committee appointed to wait upon the president reported, through Mr. Hoar, that the president had informed the committee that he had no further business for the senate to transact.

Mr. Allison then moved, at 1:55 p. m., that the senate adjourn without day. Amid handclapping the vice president declared the motion carried, and his gavel fell, thus ending the session.

SEABOARD IS SCOOPED?

Report Has It That Belmont Secures Control of the Road.

It is stated in New York that August Belmont has acquired control of the Seaboard Air-Line and devised a close traffic arrangement with the Louisville and Nashville railroad.

In this new railroad enterprise Belmont & Co. represented a syndicate of Wall street bankers and the Rothschilds of England. The plan is said to have been completed the past week in a series of conferencrs at the offices of August Belmont and John Skelton Williams, of Richmond, Va., president of the Seaboard Air-Line.

It is told that the plan to acquire the Seaboard Air Line grew out of the knowledge that if the Louisville and Nashville did not get control of it at once its rival, the Southern railway, would do so. Therefore, in the purchase the Louisville and Nashville takes a big amount of the securities, and close connection will be established between the two systems.

ARE WATCHING RUSSIA.

United States and England Ready to Thwart Czar's Scheme.

A London Special says: A crisis has arisen in far eastern affairs, which in the opinion of the British government is graver almost than the troubles which originally turned the eyes of the world toward the orient. Secret negotiations are going on between the United States and Great Britain with a view to thwarting what both governments appear to consider a determined attempt on the part of Russia to plant herself permanently in one of the richest tracts of the Chinese empire.

NO "BLUFF" INTENDED.

Statement Published By London Paper Is Emphatically Denied.

A Washington Special says: An emphatic denial is given at the state department to a statement published in a London newspaper that the United States government has addressed a note "almost threatening in tone," to the Danish government, declaring that it will not permit a transfer of the Danish West Indies to any foreign paper.

Five Hundred Kinds of Trees.

With the light thrown on Philippine affairs by the American occupation comes a greater knowledge than was heretofore possessed of the many valuable products native to the soil. Under old laws forestry was almost unknown, and the most valuable rubber, gutta-percha and ylang-ylang tree were allowed to be cut down at will, says the Philadelphia North American. These old regulations are now changed, and licenses must now be taken out. Forestry Director Ahern estimates the total number of tree species in the archipelago at 500. There are no pure forests of any one species, but all grow together in one discriminate mass. The forest lands of the Philippines are estimated at from 20,000,000 to 40,000,000 acres—one-half of the islands area.—Chicago News.

The Ameer of Afghanistan has issued an order that all the young men throughout the country, who are not permanently employed at some occupation, are to join the army. It is believed by many that the dry climate of Southern Oklahoma and the southern district of Indian Territory is going to make all that section the home of the finest grades of cotton. During the season it has developed that the cotton grown in the Choctaw Nation was of an extra good fiber, grading above the average and in great demand for export.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address

"Mrs. Pinkham Saved me from an Operation."

Hospitals in our great cities are sad places to visit.

Three-fourths of the patients lying on those snow-white beds are women and girls.

Why should this be the case?

Because they have neglected themselves.

Every one of these patients in the hospital beds had plenty of warning in that bearing-down feeling, pain at the left or right of the womb, nervous exhaustion, pain in the small of the back. All of these things are indications of an unhealthy condition of the ovaries or womb.

What a terrifying thought! these poor souls are lying there on those hospital beds awaiting a fearful operation.

Do not drag along at home or in your place of employment until you are obliged to go to the hospital and submit to an examination and possible operation. Build up the female system, cure the derangements which have signified themselves by danger signals, and remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has saved thousands of women from the hospital. Read the letter here published with the full consent of the writer, and see how she escaped the knife by a faithful reliance on Mrs. Pinkham's advice and the consistent treatment of her medicines.

Mrs. Knapp tells of her Great Gratitude.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have received much benefit from using your Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash. After my child was born, blood poison set in, which left me with granulated inflammation of the womb and congested ovaries. I had suffered from suppressed and painful menstruation from a girl. The doctors told me the ovaries would have to be removed. I took treatment two years to escape an operation, but still remained in miserable health in both body and mind, expecting to part with my reason with each coming month. After using one bottle of the Compound, I became entirely rid of the trouble in my head. I continued to use your remedies until cured.

"The last nine months have been passed in perfect good health. This, I know, I owe entirely to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"My gratitude is great indeed to the one to whom so many women owe their health and happiness."—MRS. F. M. KNAPP, 1528 Kinnickinnie Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis.

Alabama Fertilizer the Standard.

Our most reckless competitor will only claim that what he is selling is "Just as good" as the celebrated ALABAMA FERTILIZER, but it is not so. For 21 years the ALABAMA has stood at the head of the fertilizer class. With cotton at current good prices it is more important than ever to use the best fertilizer. The ALABAMA is the standard of excellence, and only those whose interest dictate the statement assert otherwise.

Without extra cost to the consumer we ship all ALABAMA FERTILIZER in the CELEBRATED MUMMIA VEGETABLE FIBRE PRESERVED BAGS, which are acid and weather proof, thus avoiding any loss in handling. These bags, after thorough investigation and practical tests, have been indorsed by the Alabama Agricultural Department, who recommend their use by the farmers of our State. Steamer agents on certain water routes have given notice that they will only receive for shipment fertilizer sacked in these celebrated bags, thereby insuring both themselves and their consignees from loss in handling.

One of the exhibits of the recent Good Roads Procession which attracted the attention of all was a wagon drawn by six well fed oxen containing 24 bales of cotton produced on 9½ acres of land, made from Russell Improved big boll cotton by the use of ALABAMA FERTILIZER.

Customers Protected by Trade Mark.

The law requires every sack of fertilizer sold in the State to have the word ALABAMA branded on each sack offered for sale in the State.

To protect both ourselves and our customers we have our trade mark on every sack of ALABAMA FERTILIRER, we also tag each MUMMIA VEGETABLE FIBRE PRESERVED BAG. Our Trade Mark is copyrighted, the Bag is patented and we will prosecute any infringement on either. See that the Trade Mark and Tag are on each sack. Be certain to get what you pay for.

Pure high grade Acid Phosphate and Genuine German Kainit always on hand and sold at no higher price than other goods of the same grade.

A Testimonial From High Authority.

Captain S. B. Trapp, President of the Board of Inspectors of the Alabama Convict Bureau, who is well and favorably known throughout the South (particularly in Alabama), whose able management of the convict system of our State has met with the approval of all, himself a farmer of twenty years' experience, has the following words of commendation to say in regard to the Celebrated Alabama Fertilizer:

Executive Department of Alabama,
Convict Bureau,
Montgomery, Nov. 30, 1900.

I consider the ALABAMA FERTILIZER the best manufactured. I have raised and seen others raise large crops of cotton and corn by its use.

In my opinion the farmer who invests in it, will succeed in making larger crops of cotton and corn at less cost for fertilizers than one who buys and uses acid phosphate, kainit and cottonseed meal in any proportion or quantity whatsoever.

My conclusions are arrived at after an experience of twenty years in the use of fertilizers—during which long period I have tried many kinds of fertilizers.

The MUMMIA VEGETABLE FIBRE PRESERVED BAGS, in which the ALABAMA FERTILIZER is put up, is one of the greatest blessings to all, and none better than the farmer can appreciate and value the cessation of loss in wasting, rotting of bags and vexation by having to resack fertilizers put up in the ordinary bag. I have seen some Mummia Bags used two seasons, which is the strongest possible proof of their singular and superior merit.

S. B. TRAPP, President.

The Record of Alabama Fertilizer.

It has produced nearly four bales of cotton on one acre of poor sandy upland.
One hundred and thirty-two bushels of corn on one acre of poor sandy upland.
Two thousand and forty-one bushels of corn on twenty acres of poor upland.
Land and corn accurately surveyed and measured by competent disinterested and honorable men.
It is the oldest brand now sold in Alabama, and is just the same as it always has been. Every one of the 49 premiums given during a series of years, through the COMMERCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL ASSOCIATION, for the greatest yield of cotton and corn on a specified area of land, was awarded to farmers who used exclusively the ALABAMA FERTILIZER.

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Some of the Sights He Sees, and Some He Does Not.

Peach and pear trees blooming, the boys serenading, and the busy housewife hunting for signs of that little insect who goes "Creeping where no life should be"

are all infallible signs that Spring is at hand. At this time of the year the energetic housewife goes to work and turns the house inside out, rendering life a misery to the men folks. Did you ever notice that while "In the Spring the young man's fancy Lightly turns to thoughts of love,"

the thoughts of the housewife turn in another direction and she goes vigorously to work cleaning up. Like some politicians she goes on the still hunt and has a high old time generally.

Talking of politicians it begins to look as if some of our people have come to the conclusion that, no matter what party the politician may belong to, it is the results of his labors that effects them. In this county the Democratic convention jumped with all its might on Democratic Senator Oliver and Republican-Populist Representative Davis for passing a bill on the sly through the last Legislature providing for the removal of the court house from Columbiana to Calera. Calera wants to issue $100,000 bonds to build a new court house and the county commissioners say they won't find the money to pay the interest on them. So it looks as if the politicians and the people of Shelby have mightily fallen out.

As was anticipated, the Democratic convention last week nominated Dr. Coffey, and now it remains to be seen who the Populists will nominate on Monday next. It looked as if it was just a toss up between Reynolds and Deason, but there is a good deal of talk going on about nominating Judge Adams as delegate from Chilton; and if his name goes before the convention it would not be at all surprising to see him come in first. I am sorry that Tipton Mullins did not secure the nomination from this district, as my preference is always for a deserving Chilton man, but I wish him better luck next time.

Thorsby.

Thorsby held its first municipal election last Saturday and the following were duly elected; K. G. Cargre, Mayor; J. Rice, J. L. Ross, C. K. Helland, Ira E. Sartain and E. F. Mead, Aldermen. There are now three incorporated towns in Chilton, viz.: Clanton, Jemison and Thorsby.

Rev. Elmer Van Ness, who has been holding a revival meeting at Rockymount says in a letter to Mr. Clair Thornton, "Fire fell Sunday, Monday and Tuesday nights, about 18 converted and a few sanctified. I never saw the like before. Am now at Oak Grove, commenced last night. Come and help me if you can. God bless you." He will be at Vidia and other appointments as soon as possible.

Strikes A Rich Find.

"I was troubled for several years with chronic indigestion and nervous debility," writes F. J. Green of Worcester, N. H. "No remedy helped me until I began using Electric Bitters, which did me more good than all the medicine I ever used. They have also kept my wife in excellent health for years. She says Electric Bitters are just splendid for female troubles; that they are a grand tonic and invigorator for weak, run down women. No other medicine can take its place in our family." Try them. Editor Banner.—Please allow me a few words in the columns of the Banner in regard to the men suggested as delegate to the coming constitutional convention. I will say in behalf of Mr. E. B. Deason that I have been personally acquainted with him for several years, have been boys together, and have never found him to be anything but an honest and upright man in everything. I never in all my life knew him to do anything that was beneath the dignity of a gentleman. I know him to be a man of business and honest conviction and upright in principles and endowed with remarkable talent, and if elected will make a good delegate, one who can't be pulled around by the hair of the head by a dishonest principle

Editor Banner—Please allow me space in your paper to say that by the request of many of my masonic brethren, I will preach a sermon at Pleasant Grove church, five miles southwest of Jemison, on the Jemison and Randolph road, on the fifth Sunday in this month at 11 a.m.; my subject will be on the building of the Temple. Everybody invited, especially the Masons.

J. H. THOMAS.

Stanton, March 18, 1901

Editor Banner.—Will you kindly allow me space in your paper to express a few thoughts. We, the Populist voters of Beat 8, want the Hon. L. H. Reynolds to represent us at the constitutional convention. He is a man of energy, a man of ambition and a man of experience, one who knows what his people need.

A few words to the man that spoke of what the Reflector had to say about what the Hon. L. B. Pounds had done and what he had not done. He surely did want to tell the truth and did not know how else to get about it, only just to say the so-called Democrats do steal and act the rascal in general. He is the first one I ever saw that preached what they practice. Yes, Mr. Correspondent, you so-called Democrats did steal the votes from the Hon. L. H. Reynolds and gave them to Oliver and the world knows it. Now, gentlemen, if sound-minded, Christian-hearted people advocate such, I think things are getting a little too far. There is is always a hereafter in such cases. If it was just the Populist people you are doing so, it could be looked at in a different manner. You are finding it in your own advocates and followers. If the Populists don't go ahead and get stock law stopped, your own advocates will have to put with it and feed it. The common race of the so-called Democrats are worse than a notch on a stick, they are like a barrel in the middle of the sea, they have to go just as the tide goes. Mr. Correspondent, we agree that the act that was passed on Beat 5 and part of Beat 8 did not come from the Hon. L. B. Pounds, it came from the man that you so-called Democrats stole the votes for. Now, just see, you are fixing to have to feel those stolen votes.

No sooner than stock law was mentioned, some of your hot headed Democrats were the first ones to get up a petition against it, for instance. Old Mike over in West Chilton. I am as ever,

A VOTER.

To furnish the people of the world with bread, there than 2,200,000,000 bushels of wheat are consumed each year.

The Mojave and Colorado deserts which were once considered irreclaimable and valueless are proving to be wonderfully rich in minerals and an energetic and industrious population is now permanently established in them.

Chicago society women are accused of taking silverware and articles of table decoration home with them as souvenirs of notable occasions. But Chicago hopes its best society is rich enough not to mind about a few spoons and candlesticks.

The first Sunday school was established by Robert Raikes at Gloucester, England, in 1780. Now there are 110,000 Sunday schools in the United States, with 2,500,000 teachers and 9,000,000 pupils. A movement is on foot to employ paid teachers in the Sunday school.

A publication recently asked a great many of the most distinguished people of the world what was the "greatest menace" of the new century. There proved to be almost as many greatest menaces as there were answers. Either people are growing very original or this is to be a strenuous period.

These are evil times for the Russian aristocracy, which is becoming landless and indignant—poorer, indeed, than the proverbial Scotch laird. Most Russian nobles are too far removed in manners and morals, as well as in locality, to be available for American heiresses—except, of course, an occasional prince like Cantacuzene. Their prospects are correspondingly unfavorable.

Great Britain turned the century distinctly under a cloud. Her immediate embarrassments are considerable, but it is the future to which her leading statesmen and industrial authorities look with an apprehension which they do not conceal. They dread lest the conditions which carried England to the pitch of prosperity and greatness in the nineteenth century have so changed and are changing that a decline must set in.

Women are admitted with few restrictions to all but seven of the 23 more prominent colleges in the land. The college girl is now far more numerous here than in England, where the first really fruitful efforts were made in her behalf. Girton has only 115 students and Newnham 170, a scant roll as contrasted with Vassar's 700, Wellesley's 715 and Smith's 1131. The latter's attendance rivals that of the leading universities for men of a couple of decades ago.

Here is a problem for lawyers to solve. An Englishman, recently deceased, had three children, one son and two daughters, and he mentioned all of them in his will. The first clause is: "I leave my piano to Mary Elizabeth when Arthur has done with it." The other clause is: "To Susan Jane—she may take whatever Arthur wishes to give to her." There is no doubt of Arthur's standing in the document, but are Mary Elizabeth and Susan Jane beneficiaries under the will?

Experienced Arctic explorers seem to be favorably impressed by the new route to the North Pole which has been proposed (and will be followed if practicable) by Captain Bernier of Quebec. This daring adventurer has profited by the work of recent explorers, and will try to make use of the system of wireless telegraphy to keep in communication with the various sections of his expedition. It is believed that the discovery of the North Pole will be one of the early achievements of the new century.

America's command of the steel markets of the world, which only a year or two ago was regarded by Englishmen as extremely improbable, if not altogether impossible, is now calmly, if regretfully, admitted by the English newspapers as an existing fact. The London Telegraph regards it as certain that the United States will keep the lead in steel, and will increase it, and at the same time warns British manufacturers that they must be more willing to imitate the methods of their rivals if they cannot outstrip them in original invention.

JAMES AMBERSON A PARRICIDE.

Seventeen-Year-Old Son Kills His Father to Escape a Beating.

James Amberson, aged 17 years, shot and killed his father, M. L. Amberson, at Piedmont, twenty miles north of Anniston, about 10 o'clock Friday night. According to reliable reports, the elder Amberson persisted in getting drunk and cursing his family. While on a spree Friday night he advanced on his son with a hickory stick, intending to beat him. The son drew a pistol and shot his father in the groin. The man died in twenty minutes. At the time of the killing the younger Amberson was up stairs in the Amberson home at Piedmont. Coming up the stairs the father called out to his son that he was coming up to his room to beat him with a stick. The son warned him not to come, as he would shoot. The warning was not heeded, and when he opened the door of his son's room the latter shot him. Young Amberson bears a good reputation, and all of the family except the elder man were highly respected and well known. The younger man said he did not intend to kill his father, but wanted to shoot him in the leg. After the tragedy the boy surrendered himself to a deputy sheriff.

Birmingham's Musical Festival.

The dates of Birmingham's third annual Music Festival having been definitely settled—Tuesday, April 30th and Wednesday, May 1st—the management will loose no time in advertising it throughout Alabama and neighboring states. Benjamin Guckenberger, the director, had intended having the festival on May 2d and 3d and the Chicago Orchestra had been engaged originally for those dates; but in order to arrange his southern circuit with a view to making certain railroad connections the manager asked Mr. Guckenberger to allow his organization to come two days earlier, and the change was readily agreed to, especially when important concessions were made. The first contract was for five vocal artists in addition to the orchestra of seventy-five pieces, conducted by Theodore Thomas, but no artist was to sing but one night. The new contract provides that all artists shall sing both nights without extra charge and for still further good measure Mr. Thomas agrees to throw in a violin soloist and a violoncello soloist, each of whom is to be a distinguished virtuoso.

A Young Woman Burns to Death.

Mrs. Mary Morris, aged 23 years, was so badly burned at her home in Oxanna, ward five, of Anniston, Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock that death resulted Saturday morning at 4 o'clock. Mrs. Morris lost her eyesight about two years ago. She leaves a husband and one child. At the time of this awful accident Mrs. Morris had been left alone for several moments, a thing quite unusual. Her clothing became ignited from an open grate. Parts of her body were burned to a crisp and she endured agonizing sufferings.

Will Preach in Birmingham March 23 and 24.

Rev. F. B. Meyer, the noted evangelist of London, England, is in this country, and will include Birmingham in a tour of the principal cities.

Dr. Meyer is considered one of the greatest preachers and religious writers of the age, and was associated with the late Dwight L. Moody in the conduct of the Northfield school.

Dr. Meyer will preach in Birmingham March 23 and 24, and the local Pastors' Union is arranging for a great reception for the noted divine. Dr. Meyer will be accompanied by W. R. Moody, son of the late Dwight L. Moody.

Ordered 500 Cars.

The Choctaw, Oklahoma & Gulf Railroad has placed an order with the Southern Car and Foundry Company for 500 cars, which, added to the order for 500 given several weeks ago, makes a total of 1,000 cars to be built for that road by the Southern Car and Foundry Company. The Memphis plant of this company will be started in a few days.

Burglars Make a Big Haul.

Colonel James T. Pierce, president of the Black Diamond Coal and Iron Company, of Owensboro, Ky., who arrived in Birmingham Saturday afternoon to spend a few days with his brother-in-law, Dr. Robert Jones, was the victim of burglars Sunday morning, and every indication points to the fact that the work was done by experts.

Colonel Pierce was given a room on the ground floor of Dr. Jones' residence at No. 2204 Fourth avenue, and retired to bed about 12 o'clock Saturday night, and being tired from traveling soon fell asleep. About 4 o'clock Sunday morning he awoke with a terrible headache and noticed that certain papers in the room were in disorder, but on account of the pain in his head paid no special attention to the fact and went back to bed. After a time he again fell asleep and did not wake again until the maid called him for breakfast, when he discovered that his handsome gold watch, containing a miniature of his wife and valued at $500, was missing, and with it a diamond ring set in a Masonic emblem and $45 in money. He at once reported the fact to Dr. Jones, and an investigation developed the fact that the burglars had forced the window to the room, having previously attempted to enter the house by a rear window.

Cashier Robbed.

Cashier Stradford of the Western Railroad at Montgomery is short $500 as a result of the quick work of a thief. The cashier counted out the $500 in bills, and placing them in an envelope, he carefully sealed it, preparatory to placing it in the express office for shipment to the general office in Atlanta. There was no one in the office with the cashier at the time and he left the package on his desk near a window and stepped out into the hallway to call a porter by whom to send his valuable package to the express office. When the cashier returned the package and money were gone, and no trace of it has been found. The theory of the disappearance is that the window to the office was raised and the money package slipped out.

Silas P. Rather Dies Suddenly.

State Senator Silas P. Rather died suddenly at 3:10 Saturday afternoon at his home in Decatur. The Senator had been in ill health for many months, but took to his bed only Friday, and while it was generally known that his health was rapidly failing, yet his most intimate friends did not anticipate that he was so near to death's door. At his death bed were two physicians and several friends. The attending physicians say that death was due to heart failure.

Senator Rather was born at Somerville February 18, 1846, and Morgan County has been his constant home. He came from a family of lawyers, and his ancestors were among the earliest settlers of north Alabama.

J. W. Eubank Commits Suicide.

James Walker Eubank, of Birmingham, aged 25, ended his life Friday morning at 9:30 o'clock by sending a bullet from a 38 calibre pistol through his brain. He is said to have been despondent for some time over the condition of his health and the fact that he was temporarily out of employment, and that is supposed to have been the cause of the rash act.

Skilled Workmen Arrive.

A number of workingmen from Niles, Ohio, who will be worked in the Bessemer and Ensley districts, arrived Friday over the Alabama Great Southern railroad. There were twenty-four men in the party, and they will go to work in the puddling department of the Bessemer mills.

Ensley's Steel Mill.

Five of the furnaces at the steel mill have been in steady operation for the past six days, and a good record was made for the week. Wednesday one of the new mechanical gas producers was put into commission and on the day following the five furnaces turned out nearly 600 tons of steel, which surpasses all former records. Beginning next week the entire gas plant, including the two new producers, will be brought into service, and two additional furnaces put into commission, with the blooming mill running night and day.

Accidentally Shot His Brother.

John Butts was wounded in the face by a shotgun in the hands of his brother Thomas, while hunting near Ensley Saturday. The party was giving chase to a rabbit, which sought refuge in a hollow log, and a discharge of the gun, which was intended to go through the log, went wild of its mark, four shots lodging in the face of young Butts.

SIXTY MEN BURNED

Report that a Turpentine Camp is Destroyed.

Sixty Men Burn to Death in Alabama Turpentine Camp.

A dispatch from Mobile, Ala., dated March 15th, says: A crowd of citizens of this place are searching Baldwin county in an effort to find three negroes, who, in a spirit of revenge, are said to have burned a turpentine camp across the bay this morning, causing the death of sixty white men and negroes. Frank C. Prissler rowed to Mobile this morning, attired only in his underwear and suffering intensly from burns. He was the only person who escaped from the burning camp. He said:

"I was asleep this morning when a choking sensation and intense heat aroused me. The log shack in which the sixty negroes slept was on fire, as was a shed near by, filled with two hundred barrels of raw turpentine. The trees surrounding us were also burning.

"I yelled to the men as I ran, but none answered, and I am sure all perished. I made my way, barefooted, over live coals to the swamp, where I found a boat, and in this I rowed to the city. The camp was doubtless fired by three negros who were dischared yesterday. They threatened to obtain revenge."

GREAT INDUSTRY FOR DECATUR.

Improvements Will be Made in the Machine Works at That Place.

The Ivens Machine Works at New Decatur, which was built here in boom days by Ivens & Sons of New Orleans, and which was recently sold to Nashville parties for the sum of $10,000, is to become one of the most extensive machine works and foundries in the south and will add materially to the manufacturing interests of New Decatur. Extensive improvements have recently been made on the buildings and about the grounds, while considerable new machinery has been added to the machine shop, and more is to follow. The proprietors will also establish a brick factory here with a capacity of 30,000 brick a day. The brick plant and the foundry and machine shop will give employment to fully 300 men. The machine shop and foundry are now in operation, but at present are only employing a small force of men. The name of the plant has been changed to the North Alabama Engineering Company.

FIRES AT GADSDEN.

Home of Congressman Burnett Was Destroyed—Hotel Also Burned.

Gadsden suffered from fires Friday. Congressman John L. Burnett's house was destroyed, with a total loss of $1500. Nearly all the furniture was saved. The fire started from a defective flue. A stiff wind was blowing at the time, and neighboring houses had a narrow escape. A sixteen room two story hotel belonging to the Alabama Consolidated Coal and Iron Company was destroyed near the furnace. The house and contents were a total loss to the extent of $3000.

A congregational meeting was held by the members of the First Presbyterian church, at Selma, and by a unanimous vote a call was extended Rev. W. R. Laird, of Danville, Va., to fill the vacant pastorate of the church, which has not been filled since Rev. Russell Cecil went to Richmond, Va.

Narrow Escape.

Arthur Summers, a 16-year old lad, of Keener, found an empty flask, supposed to have nitro-glycerine in the bottom. He washed the same, and while drying the bottle it exploded, cutting an artery in his right arm. He was two miles from home, and fell exhausted on the doorstep from loss of blood. Fortunately a doctor was near and saved his life.

Alabama Town Burns.

The village of Comer, Barbour county, was almost wiped out by fire early Friday morning. Nine stores were destroyed. There was very little insurance.

JUSTIFIES WIFE BEATING.

A Judge Thinks When She Goes With Another Man a Trouncing Is All Right.

Cleveland, Ohio.—Police Justice Fiedler decided a man is justified under certain conditions in beating his wife. The case under consideration was that of George Hart, who found his wife in the company of another man. He proceeded to beat her insensible. Hart was arrested and was committed by Judge Fiedler, who said: "Morally, Hart, I think you are justified in beating your wife."

WOMAN KILLED BY HER PET DOG.

Little Animal Saw His Mistress in Pain and Severed Her Jugular Vein.

Mrs. Carrie Cobus, of New York, met death in a shocking manner Sunday night, being killed by her dog. Mrs. Cobus, her husband, son and her mother lived together. Mrs. Cobus was subject to fits. Her constant companion was a fox terrier of unusual intelligence. Mrs. Elizabeth Broadhead, Mrs. Cobus' mother, says her daughter went out into the kitchen about 7 o'clock. A few minutes later Mrs. Brodhead heard the dog barking excitedly. The mother ran out and found her daughter lying on the floor. She knew it was an epileptic attack and dashing a pitcher of water into her daughter's face she ran into the hall and screamed for help. Philip Rockefeller, living near by, heard her and ran to her assistance. They went into the room where Mrs. Cobus lay and there saw a horrifying spectacle. The dog, seeing his mistress in agony, appeared to have gone mad. It flew at the prostrate woman as she writhed on the floor and repeatedly attacked her, burying his teeth in her throat and severed the jugular vein. Rockefeller tried to tear the maddened dog away, but it clung to the dying woman with terrible tenacity. He finally flot the animal loose. It then attacked the mother and son, but they beat it off. A physician was summoned, but Mrs. Cobus had bled to death. The dog disappeared in the street.

HOSTILITIES MAY RESULT.

Russian Admiral Alexeff is Constandly Causing Trouble.

The Tien Tsin correspondent of the London Standard says: The railway dispute here is another of the attempts of the Russian admiral, Alexeff, to create trouble, and unless he is relieved there will be constant friction, which will eventually lead to hostilities. He loses no opportunity to thwart the English. Commenting upon its Tien Tsin advices, the Standard reminds Russia that "the British fleet is as potent as ever and Japan is burning to second the efforts of anyone ready to oppose the annexation of Manchuria," adding: "It is a painful task thus to be compelled even to hint at contingencies so vast and disturbing, but the perils of the moment are more likely to be overcome if it is thoroughly realized that we do not shrink from such action as would be best calculated to maintain our rights."

Russia Has Finally Thrown off Mask.

London, March 17.—Dr. Morrison wiring to the Times from Pekin, says: "Russia by her refusal to support the powers in their demands for the punishment of guilty officials has finally thrown off the mask. A plea for leniency is hardly serious coming from a power whose reprisals upon Chinese wer scarcely less than the acts of the Boxers themselves.

"Russia's action is only explicable as the fulfillment of a privat compact with Li Hung Chang to throw the concert overboard in return for concessions securing her separate interests."

Dr. Morrison protest energetically against any further sacrifices of British interest on the part of the powers to secure an outward union of action. He thinks that even France can hardly follow her ally in this instance.

Harvard and Yale have challenged Oxford and Cambridge for a regular set of track games to be held in New York during the early part of next July.

Woman and Five Children Burn.

Mrs. John Gauthier and her five children were burned to death Saturday night in their home at Little Cascapade, Quebec, by an explosion of coal oil. Mr. Gauthier tried to remove the stove, but finding it impossible to do so owing to the oil being in flames, he jumped from an upper window to get help and broke his leg. He then crawled to the next house, but everything was in flames before help could be had. His wife, who was sick in bed, and five children were burned to death.

Gordon's Sentence.

As had been generally expected, Governor Longino has commuted the sentence of John Gordon, the negro who was to have been hanged at Magnolia for a murder committed several months ago. A monster petition was presented to the governor asking a commutation to life sentence, and similar recommendation was made by the judge and district attorney.

BILL ARP'S LETTER

A Burst of Balmy Spring Arouses Cartow Man to Reflections.

GOES ROMCHALENTLY INTO POETRY

He Draws Inspiration From the Works of Many Writers, and Accordingly Is in a Happy Mood.

How inspiring is the earliest breath of spring when nature like a blushing maid is putting on her pantaloons and preparing to bang her silken hair. What harmonious feeling spring up in man's bosom and gush forth to all mankind. A balmy day fills all the chambers of the soul with music that is not heard and poetry that is not expressed. Spring is unlocking the flowers. I see crocus violets peeping from their leafy beds and jonquils lifting their yellow heads to catch the sunshine. What a contrast to man is the innocence and beauty of the flowers—what a contrast to cruelty and strife and selfishness.

The love of flowers is refining and draws a man nearer to woman and to heaven, and it is safe to say whatever a woman loves, a man had better love, or try to. Flowers, music and birds are given for our happiness. They are the extras of creation designed for our special pleasure. Providence would have withheld them if He had not loved us. Or He might have given us only the howling of the winds for music and buzzards for birds and dog fennel for flowers. The love of flowers is akin to the love of children.

Madam deStael said that music was the only thing upon the earth that we could find in heaven, for it was common to angels and to man, but she didn't know. If there are beautiful mansions and golden streets and gates of pearl and trees whose leaves are for the healing of the nations, why not flowers? Spencer in his "Farie Queen" says: "And is there care in heaven and love in heavenly spirits for the flowers?"

Wadsworth says:

"It is my faith that every flower that blooms Enjoys the air it breathes."

The more uncultered and unrefined a man is the less he cares for flowers and music and birds. Cowper says he would not number on his list of friends a man who would needlessly tread upon a worm. Shakespeare says the man who has no music in his soul is fit for treason, stratagems and spoils. Some years ago I was trying to sell a cottage home to a rough man who wanted to buy and I pointed out the beautiful trees that adorned the front yard. He turned away carelessly and said: "I don't care anything about them sort of things. If I buy your house you reckoned add ary cent for blossoms." The poet says: "The humblest flower that blooms gives thought too deep for tears." But there are folks who care no more for a beautiful flower than an ugly weed.

"A Primrose by the river's brim
A yellow primrose was to him,
And it was nothing more."

The poets in all ages have paid tribute to the flowers. One of the most beautiful poems ever written is the "Ode to the Flowers," by Horace Smith. It is among the classics of old England.

"Your voiceless lips are living preachers,
Each cup a pulpit and each leaf a book,
* * * * *
Floral apostles that in dewy splendor
Weep without woe and blush without a crime."

Mrs. Hemans says:

"The flowers whisper the all fostering love
That clothed them into beauty."

Longfellow says:

"They teach us by persuasive reasons
How akin they are to human things.
* * * * *
Emblems of our coming resurrection,
Emblems of the bright and better land."

But Mrs. Hemans sings the most fascinating songs to flowers—when she tires of other subjects she takes a rest on flowers:

"Bring flowers—fresh flowers for the bride to wear,
They were born to blush in her shining hair;
* * * * *
"Bring flowers—pale flowers o er the bier to shed,
A crown for the brow of the early dead.
* * * * *
"Bring flowers to the shrine where we kneel in prayer,
They are nature's offering—their place is there.
* * * * *
"Bring flowers to the captive's lonely cell,
They have tales of the joyous woods to tell."

Shakespeare had a great heart for flowers, and he knew them like a botanist. There is not a common or familiar one that he does not bring to pleasant use in some of his plays. How pathetically he laments the death of Imogen:

"With fairest flowers I'll sweeten thy sad grave.
Thou shalt not lack the flower that's like thy face,
Pale primrose—nor the azur'd harebell like thy veins—nor the leaf of eglantine that exhaled not thy breath."

There was a long time ago a ballad about two lovers for whom two flowers were named, Margaret and Sweet William. We have margarets among the flowers now, and sweet williams are very common. What became of the lovers is quaintly told in the old-time verses:

"Margaret was buried in the lower chancel,
And William in the higher;

BILL ARP'S LETTER

Advent of Balmy Spring Arouses Bartow Man to Reflections.

DROPS NONCHALENTLY INTO POETRY

Some Inspiration From the Works of Many Writers, and Accordingly Is in a Happy Mood.

How my soul is the earliest breath of spring when nature like a blushing maid is putting on her pantalets and preparing to hang her silken hair. What a warm and gushy feeling spring up in me when I scent the first bloom and gush forth to all mankind! A balmy day fills all the chambers of the soul with music that is not poetry and poetry that is not expressed. My soul is admiring the flowers. "With fairest flowers I'll sweeten thy sad grave
Thou shalt not lack the flowers that's like thy face,

There was a long time ago a ballad about two lovers for whom two flowers were named, Margaret and Sweet William. We have margarets among the flowers now, and sweet williams are very common. What became of the lovers is quaintly told in the old-time verses:

"Margaret was buried in the lower chancel,
And William in the higher;
Out of her breast there sprang a rosebush,
And out of his a briar.
"They grew till they grew to the church top,
And then they could grow no higher;
And there they tied a true lover's knot
Which made all people admire."

As stern and solemn as was Moses, the lawgiver, he was not unmindful of the beauty of flowers, for when he planned the first sanctuary that was set up in the wilderness he directed that his cunning workmen should ornament the golden candlesticks with carvings of flowers—open flowers. When Solomon designed his magnificent temple the molten brass was ornamented with representations of flowers, and so was the cedar carved with figures of open flowers. The Bible makes mention of flowers, but not by name, except the lily and the rose. "I am the rose of Sharon and the lily of the valley." "Consider the lilies how they grow. They toil not—neither do they spin, but Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these."

I notice in a late New York paper that the culture and sale of flowers has largely increased in that city; that 40 years ago the sale amounted to only sixty thousand dollars a year and that for the year just passed the sale of roses alone was nearly six millions, and that it was not uncommon for a millionaire to spend ten thousand dollars for flowers for a single entertainment. This is a good sign, and may be help to save Sodom—I mean Gotham—from destruction. I wish that all our public schools would encourage the pupils to study flowers.

There is a little simple botany that even a child can understand, and it will tell them why the kingly house of the Plantagenets took its name from a flower—the Scotch broom (planta genestha) with which Henry II had himself scourged for a heinous crime. And why the geranium means a cranes-bill and eglantine a needle and nasturtium a nose twister, etc. The origin of the names of flowers is a funny book to me.

These school boys and girls keep me pretty busy answering their questions and doing their perplexing sums, and most of them inclose stamps in their letters. I will conclude this letter by giving them a sum:

A man sold a sow and pigs for $18. He received as much for nine-tenths of a pig as he did for one-tenth of the sow. How many pigs did she have?—BILL ARP in Atlanta Constitution.

Many inventions designed to expedite the speed of communication by telegraph or telephone lie mouldring in the model room of the patent office. Out of the ruck of devices there have been taken here and there one which has been applied to conditions of public service; but for the most part these inventions have been permitted to rest in obscurity and almost unused. Powerful corporations have brought them up, and being practically the only customers for such articles, have been enabled to consign them to oblivion. The announcement that the Pupin device, patented last summer, has been purchased and is to be utilized by the Bell Telephone company stamps this new invention as a rarity in the field of electrical intercommunication. Should it realize the glowing promises made in its behalf by electrical experts the entire system of world intercourse by wire would be eventually transformed.

Minnesota is one of the State which are constructing new capitol buildings of elaborate design and large cost. The Minnesota capitol is to be built of white marble, to be ornamented with sculpture and to cost $2,000,000. When completed it will bear some resemblance to the Treasury Department building at Washington, but will have a very much finer approach and besides a picturesque dome with six supporting figures of marble, each nine feet high. The State capital of Minnesota is St. Paul.

It is evident that the fast selling books of no particular literary merit, but with the elements of popularity, have changed the standards of acceptance in the leading publishing houses. Most of the new novels that are being put on the market now could not have secured a second reading two years ago. They are simply the publishers' dice, thrown in the hope that a luck number will be turned.

Australian papers are offering prizes for the best designs for a national flag to commemorate the new era inaugurated by the Commonwealth. The most valuable is a check for $250, offered by the Australian Review of Reviews, and in this competition the six Australian Premiers are to be the judges.

Sam Lewis, late of London, may have been a heartless Shylock while he lived, but his will is certainly a benevolent document, with its bequests of $4,750,000 to charities and hospitals, nearly half of it to "provide dwellings for the poor of all creeds."

Lord Rosebery wants the "nation of shopkeepers" to send its young men abroad to learn how to keep shop. Talk about sending coals to Newcastle!

QUEER INSURANCE CLAIMS.

One Wanted Damages For Black Eye Received at a Peace Meeting.

The other day one of the best known English accident insurance companies received a claim for $50. The insurer had received a blow in the eye which compelled him to stay in a dark room for a month. In the column "cause of accident" were written the sardonic words "Went to a peace meeting."

The unusual candor with which some of the insured write is amusing. In a recent case, in which a client had suffered from a broken collar bone, there appeared under the heading "cause of accident," "Do not know (intoxicated)."

Some clients imagine that if they do not send a minutely detailed account of the accident they will receive no compensation. It is only in this way that one can account for this statement "I had words with my wife. She came toward me with a shovel, and in leaving the room I tripped over the mat and sprained my ankle."

Here is a claim for injured feelings: "I was returning from business yesterday, when my brother-in-law entered the train. He called me an idle rogue, and by doing so degraded me before all the passengers. Can I recover damages from your company?"

A well known American insurance company once received a claim from a woman whose husband was insured against total disablement. She said: "My husband is quite unable to write. He had a serious fall last week, and the doctor says he will never be able to work again." Doctor's and magistrate's certificates to this effect were inclosed. As the certificates were somewhat curiously worded, the company made inquiries and found that their highly respectable client had been lynched.

Many of the genuine claims are exceedingly comic. "Bitten by an ader" (sic), and "knelt on by a bull," show the curious accidents that happen to country people.

"Trapped finger in a cash till" is decidedly suggestive.

Some of the domestic accidents have their lighter side. One cannot but be amused at the hard working housewife who claims damages because a clothespeg fell from the line and struck her in the eye. We can imagine, also, that it was a youthful husband, who, full of anxiety to see his charming young wife, caught hold of an insecure door knob, which gave way and precipitated him headlong down a flight of steps. Half a dozen accidents a years are caused by coal "exploding" in the fire.

Either painters have a more reprehensible habit of dropping their paint pots on passers-by, or else insured people spend the bulk of their time under painters' ladders. Insurance companies always regard claims for damages done by paint with a little suspicion.

Surely the gentleman who put the lighted end of his cigar in his mouth never expected to get compensation?

A servant girl, carrying a tray, fell down stairs and broke her leg. She was uninsured, and, of course, got nothing, but in her fall she burst open the door of a room in which a man was shaving. In his fright he gashed his chin badly and his claim for compensation was paid.—London Mail.

Where Newspapers Don't Discuss Politics

It is in Russia and Turkey, of all European States, that the press censorship is most rigorously exercised. The newspapers of Russia, for instance, are forbidden to discuss political affairs, which causes an absence of "leading articles" (or editorials), and so concern themselves mainly with literary or scientific matters; foreign books and periodicals entering the country are frequently mutilated by the authorities, portions of even such a work as an encyclopaedia being occasionally blocked out.

The censorship in Turkey has been honored by the ridicule of Mark Twain in "The Innocents Abroad:" "Imagine," he says, "the Grand Vizier, in solemn council with the magnates of the realm, spelling his way through the hated newspapers, and finally delivering his profound decision. This thing means mischief; it is too darkly, too suspiciously inoffensive; suppress it; warn the publishers that we cannot have this sort of thing; put the editor in prison." There are not more than 50,000 newspaper readers in all Turkey, according to an interesting article by Frederic Whyte, writing on "Journalism in Turkey" in Sell's World's Press, and the newspaper editor has to contend with the most severe and illogical censorship, of which Mark Twain's gibe is but a slight exaggeration.—"New" Lippincott.

Teeth Came Out First.

"I—I think I must have made a mistake," said the man who stood in the door of the dental parlors and looked about him.

"Perhaps so," replied the dentist, who was sharpening up a gum-cutting lancet.

"My wife, you know, has been teasing me for the last five years to get my photograph taken, and this morning I finally set out to have it done."

"And got in the wrong shop," said the dentist.

"I see this is no photograph gallery."

"No."

"But a dental parlor?"

"Yes."

"Well, I've made a mistake, but I'm glad of it. Here, let me sit down and have three teeth yanked out, and I'll put the old photo off for another five years."—Chicago News.

A Canadian Iron Field.

A new iron ore field has just been opened at Michipicoten, Ontario, which it is thought may flood the lake market next year. The ore is described as a brown hematite, more like the Southern ores than the Lake Superior hematite.

REV DR. TALMAGE

DISCOURSE BY THE EMINENT DIVINE LAST SUNDAY.

Subject: The Ministry of Tears — If Our Misfortunes Are Borne in the Right Spirit They May Prove to Be Advantageous—Soul Chastened by Sorrow.

NEW YORK CITY. — A vast audience crowded the Academy of Music in this city to hear Dr. Talmage. Discoursing on "The Ministry of Tears" he put forth the misfortunes of life in a cheerful light, showing that if they were borne in the right spirit they might prove to be advantageous. His text was Rev. vii. 17, "And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes."

What a spectacle a few weeks ago when the nations were in tears! Queen Victoria ascended from the highest throne on earth to a throne in heaven. The prayer more often offered than any prayer for the last sixty-four years had been answered, and God did save the Queen. All round the world the bells were tolling, and the minute guns were booming at the obsequies of the most honored woman of many centuries. As near four years ago the English and American nations shook hands in congratulation at the Queen's jubilee so in these times two nations shook hands in mournful sympathy at the Queen's departure. No people outside Great Britain so deeply felt that mighty grief as our people. The cradles of many of our ancestors were rocked in Great Britain. Those ancestors played in childhood on the banks of the Tweed, or the Thames or the Shannon. Take from our veins the English blood, or the Welsh blood, or the Irish blood, or the Scotch blood, and the stream of our life would be a mere shallow. There are over there bone of our bone, and flesh of our flesh. It is our Wilberforce, our Coleridge, our De Quincey, our Robert Burns, our John Wesley, our John Knox, our Thomas Chalmers, our Walter Scott, our Bishop Charnock, our Latimer, our Ridley, our Robert Emmet, our Daniel O'Connell, our Havelock, our Ruskin, our Gladstone, our good and great and glorious Victoria.

The language in which we offered the English nation our condolence is the same language in which John Bunyan dreamed and Milton sang and Shakespeare dramatized and Richard Baxter prayed and George Whitefield thundered. The Prince of Wales, now King, paid reverential visit to Washington's tomb at Mount Vernon, and Longfellow's statue adorns Westminster Abbey, and Abraham Lincoln in bronze looks down upon Scotland's capital. It was natural that these two nations be in tears. But I am not going to speak of national tears, but of individual tears and Bible tears.

Riding across a Western prairie, wild flowers up to the hub of the carriage wheel and while a long distance from any shelter, there came a sudden shower, and while the rain was falling in torrents the sun was shining as brightly as I ever saw it shine, and I thought what a beautiful spectacle is this! So the tears of the Bible are not midnight storm, but rain on passed prairies in God's sweet and golden sunlight.

You remember that bottle which David labeled as containing tears and Mary's tears and Paul's tears and Christ's tears and the harvest of joy that is to spring from the sowing of tears. God mixes them; God rounds them; God shows them where to fall; God exhales them. A census is taken of them, and there is a record as to the moment when they are born and as to the place of their grave.

Tears of bad men are not kept. Alexander in his sorrow had the hair clipped from his horses and mules and made a great ado about his grief, but in all the vases of heaven there is not one of Alexander's tears. I speak of the tears of God's children. Alas, me, they are falling all the time!

In summer you sometimes hear the growling thunder, and you see there is a storm miles away, but you know from the drift of the clouds that it will not come anywhere near you; so, though it may be all bright around about you, there is a shower of trouble somewhere all the time. Tears, tears!

What is the use of them, anyhow? Why not substitute laughter? Why not make this a world where all the people are well and eternal strangers to pains and aches? What is the use of an eastern storm when we might have a perpetual nor'wester? Why, when a family is put together, not have them all stay, or, if they must be transplanted to make other homes, then have them all live, the family record telling a story of marriages and births, but of no deaths? Why not have the harvests chase each other without fatiguing toil? Why the hard pillow, the hard crust, the hard struggle? It is easy enough to explain a smile or a success or a congratulation, but come now and bring all your dictionaries and all your philosophies and all your religions and help me explain a tear. A chemist will tell you that it is made up of salt and lime and other component parts, but he misses the chief ingredients—the acid of a soured life, the viperine sting of a bitter memory, the fragments of a broken heart. I will tell you what a tear is. It is agony in solution. Hear, then, while I discourse of the ministry of tears or the practical uses of sorrow:

First, it is the design of trouble to keep this world from being too attractive. Something must be done to make us willing to quit this existence. If it were not for trouble, this world would be a good enough heaven for us. You and I would be willing to take a lease of this life for a hundred million years if there were no trouble. The earth, cushioned and upholstered and pillared and chandeliered at such expense, no story of other worlds could enchant us. We would say: "Let well enough alone. If you want to die and have your body disintegrated in the dust and your soul go out on a celestial adventure, then you can go, but this world is good enough for me." You might as well go to a man who has just entered the Louvre at Paris and tell him to hasten off to the picture galleries of Venice or Florence. "Why," he would say, "what is the use of my going there? There are Rembrandts and Rubenses and Titians here that I have not looked at yet." No man wants to go out of this world or out of any house until he has a better house.

To cure this wish to stay here God must somehow create a disgust for our surroundings. How shall He do it? He cannot afford to efface His horizon, or to tear off a fiery panel from the sunset, or to subtract an anther from the water lily, or to banish the pungent aroma from the mignonette, or to drag the robes of the morning in mire.

You cannot expect a Christopher Wren to mar his St. Paul's cathedral, or a Michael Angelo to dash out his own "Last Judgment," or a Handel to discord his "Israel in Egypt," and you cannot expect God to spoil the architecture and music of His own world. How, then, are we to be made willing to leave? Here is where trouble comes in.

After a man has had a good deal of trouble he says: "Well, I am ready to go. If there is a house somewhere whose roof does not leak, I would like to live there. If there is an atmosphere somewhere that does not distress the lungs, I would like to breathe it. If there is a society somewhere where there is no tittle tattle, I would like to live there. If there is a home circle somewhere where I can find my lost friends, I would like to go there." He used to read the first part of the Bible chiefly. Why has he changed Genesis for Revelation? Ah, he used to be anxious chiefly to know how the world was made and all about its geological construction. Now he is chiefly anxious to know how the next world was made, and how it looks and who live there, and how they dress. He reads Revelation ten times now where he reads Genesis once. The old story, "In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth," does not thrill him half as the other story, "I saw a new heaven and a new earth."

The old man's hand trembles as he turns over this apocalyptical leaf, and he has to take out his handkerchief to wipe his spectacles. The book of Revelation is a prospectus now of the country into which he is soon to immigrate, the country in which he has lots already laid out and avenues opened and mansions built.

It is trouble, my friends, that makes us feel our dependence upon God. We do not know our own weakness or God's strength until the last plank breaks. It is contemptible in us that only when there is nothing else to take hold of we catch hold of God. Why, do you know who the Lord is? He is not an autocrat seated far up in a palace, from which He emerges once a year, preceded by heralds swinging swords to clear the way. No. He is a father, willing at our call to stand by us in every cross and predicament of life. I tell you what some of you business men make me think of. A man is unfortunate in his business. He has to raise a good deal of money and raise it quickly. He borrows on word and note all he can borrow. After a while he puts a mortgage on his house; after a while he puts a second mortgage on his house. Then he puts a lien on his furniture, then he makes over his life insurance, then he assigns all his property, then he goes to his father-in-law and asks for help. Well, having failed everywhere, completely failed, he gets down on his knees and says: "O Lord, I have tried everybody and everything, now help me out of this financial trouble!" He makes God the last resort instead of the first resort.

A young man goes off from home to earn his fortune. He goes with his mother's consent and benediction. She has large wealth, but he wants to make his own fortune. He goes far away, falls sick and gets out of money. He sends for the hotel keeper where he is staying, asking for lenience, and the answer he gets is, "If you do not pay up Saturday night you'll be removed to the hospital." The young man sends to a comrade in the same building, no help. He writes to a banker who was a friend of his deceased father; no relief. Saturday night comes, and he is moved to the hospital. Getting here, he is frenzied with grief, and he borrows a sheet of paper and a postage stamp, and he sits down, and he writes home. "Dear mother, I am sick unto death. Come." It is twenty minutes of 10 o'clock when she gets the letter. At 10 o'clock the train starts. She is five minutes from the depot. She gets there in time to have five minutes to spare. She wonders why the train that can go forty miles an hour cannot go eighty miles an hour. She rushes into the hospital. She says: "My son, what does all this mean? Why did you not send for me? You sent to everybody but me. You knew I would and could help you. Is this the reward I get for my kindness to you always?" She bundles him up, takes him home and gets him well very soon.

Now, some of you treat God just as that young man treated his mother. When you get into a financial perplexity you call on the banker, you call on the broker, you call on your creditors, you call on your lawyer for legal counsel, you call upon everybody, and when you cannot get any help then you go to God. You say, "O Lord, I come to Thee! Help me now out of my perplexity." And the Lord comes, though it is in the eleventh hour. He says, "Why did you not send for Me before? As one whom his mother comforteth so will I comfort you." It is to throw us back upon God that we have this ministry of tears.

Your troubles are educational. I go into the office of a lapidary, an artificer in precious stones, and I see him at work on one precious stone for a few minutes, and he puts it aside finished. I see him take up another precious stone, and he works on that all the afternoon, and I come in the next day and still find him working on it, and he is at work on it all the week. I say to him, "Why did you put only twenty minutes' work on that one precious stone and put a whole week on this other?" "Oh," he says, "that one upon which I put only twenty minutes' work is of but little worth, and I soon got through with it. But this precious stone upon which I have put such prolonged and careful work is of vast value, and it is to flash in a king's coronet." So God lets one man go through life with only a little cutting of misfortune, for he does not amount to much, he is a small soul and of comparatively little value, but this other is of great worth, and it is cut of pain, and cut of bereavement, and cut of persecution, and cut of all kinds of trouble, and through many years, and I ask, "Dear Lord, why all this prolonged and severe process?" and God says: "This soul is of infinite value, and it is to flash in a king's coronet. He shall be Mine in the day when I make up My jewels."

You know, on a well-spread table the food becomes more delicate at the last. I have fed you to-day with the bread of consolation. Let the table now be cleared, and let us set on the chalice of heaven. Let the King's cupbearers come in. "Oh," says some critic in the audience, "the Bible contradicts itself. It intimates again and again that there are to be no tears in heaven, and if there be no tears in heaven how is it possible that God will wipe any away?" I answer, "Have you never seen a child crying one moment and laughing the next and while she was laughing you saw the tears still on her face?" And perhaps you stopped her in the very midst of her resumed glee and wiped off those delayed tears. So I think after the heavenly raptures have come upon us there may be the mark of some earthly grief, and while these tears are glittering in the light of the jasper sea God will wipe them away. How well He can do that!

Friends, if we could get any appreciation of what God has in reserve for us, it would make us so homesick we would be unfit for our every-day work. Professor Leonard, formerly of Iowa University, put in my hands a meteoric stone, a stone thrown off from some other world to this. How suggestive it was to me! And I have to tell you the best representations we have of heaven are only aerolites flung off from that world which rolls on, bearing the multitude of the redeemed. We analyze these aerolites and find them crystallizations of tears. No wonder, flung off from heaven! "God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes."

Have you any appreciation of the good and glorious times your friends are having in heaven? How different it is when they get news there of a Christian's death from what it is here! It is the difference between embarkation and coming into port.

Everything depends upon which side of the river you stand when you hear of a Christian's death. If you stand on this side of the river, you mourn that they go; if you stand on the other side of the river you rejoice that they come.

Do you not this moment catch a glimpse of the towers? Do you not hear a note of the eternal harmony? Some of you may remember the old Crystal Palace in this city of New York. I came in from my country home a verdant lad and heard in that Crystal Palace the first great music I had ever heard. Jullien gave a concert there, and there were 2000 voices and 3000 players upon instruments, and I was mightily impressed with the fact that Jullien controlled the harmony with the motion of his hand and foot, beating time with the one and emphasizing with the other. To me it was overwhelming. But all that was tame compared with the scene and the sound when the ransomed shall come from the east, and the west, and the north, and the south, and sit down in the kingdom of God, myriads above myriads, galleries above galleries, and Christ will rise, and all heaven will rise with Him, and with His wounded hand and wounded foot He will conduct that harmony. "Like the voice of many waters, like the voice of mighty thunderings, worthy is the Lamb that was slain to receive riches and honor and glory and power, world without end."

THE SABBATH SCHOOL

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR MARCH 24.

Subject: Jesus Crucified and Buried. Luke xxiii., 33-55—Golden Text, 2 Cor. v., 5—Memory Verses, 46, 47—Commentary on the Day's Lesson.

35. "Derided Him." The crowd mocked Him from 9 till 12 o'clock. But there were also friendly watchers at the cross (John 19: 25-27). Jesus was not wholly deserted in this sad hour. The women were last at the cross and first at the grave. The three Marys were there: Mary the mother of Jesus, Mary, the wife of Cleopas, and Mary Magdalene, with several other friends (v. 49). "Save Himself." They thought that if Jesus were the Messiah, surely He could deliver Himself from the Roman cross.

36. "Vinegar." It was about the time of the mid-day meal of the soldiers, and they in mockery offered Him their sour wine to drink with them. The soldiers pretend to treat Jesus as a king, to whom the festive cup is presented. The first drink of vinegar and gall Jesus refused but this, unmixed with any drug, was accepted.

38. "A superscription." The white tablet nailed upon the cross, above the head of the victim, to declare the crime for which He was crucified. It was a common custom to affix a label to the cross giving a statement of the crime for which the person suffered. "Was written." Pilate wrote this superscription evidently in derision. "King of the Jews." The words are somewhat different in the different gospels, probably because some of the writers copied from one language and some from another. The truth was proclaimed in jest; Jesus is in fact a "King with many crowns."

39. "Railed on Him." The two thieves crucified with Him may have belonged to the band with Barabbas; they evidently knew something about the Christ. One mocked, the other prayed.

40. "Dost thou not fear God?" What ever the reckless crowd may do, thou art near death; does this have no effect upon you?

41. "We—justly." He is a true penitent, confessing his sins. "Nothing amiss." He may have heard and seen much of Jesus at the trial. It is more than likely that at various times he may have joined the crowd where Jesus was speaking, and have known of His miracles.

42. "Lord." The very use of the word implies faith. "Thy kingdom." He thus recognized Christ as a real King. His prayer shows that he believed that Jesus was the Son of God, that He had power to save, and that they would continue to exist in a future state.

43. "To-day." This was the second saying of Christ on the cross. This verse is a strong proof of the immortality of the soul. "Paradise." This is a word of Persian origin, denoting a beautiful park garden or orchard. It designates the abode of the righteous in the unseen world, the home of repose and joy beyond the grave.

44. "The sixth hour"—Noon. Christ's third saying on the cross was spoken just before this to His mother and to John: "Woman, behold thy Son." "Behold Thy mother." John 19: 26, 27. Jesus in the midst of His sufferings was thinking of others, and while on the cross made provision for His mother. "Darkness." This darkness continued three hours, from noon till 3 o'clock. "Over the whole land" (R. V.) Of Palestine. This darkness was typical of the moral blackness that filled the land. During the darkness occurred Christ's fourth utterance on the cross: "My God, My God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?" Matt. 27: 46. The fifth saying was: "I thirst."

45. "The veil—was rent." The great veil of the temple that hung between the Holy Place and the Holy of Holies, forty cubits (sixty feet) long, and twenty (thirty feet) wide, of the thickness of the palm of the hand, and wrought in seventy-two squares, which were joined together.

46. "With a loud voice." As it were the triumphant note of a conqueror. What He said first at this time is recorded in John 19: 30, and was His sixth saying on the cross: "It is finished." "Father," etc. This was His seventh saying. "The word 'Father' shows that His soul has recovered full serenity." Not long before this when struggling in the darkness He called to His "God;" now the darkness is gone and He sees His Father's face. "I commend My spirit." I deposit My soul in Thy hands. Here is another proof of the immortality of the soul, and of its separate existence after death. "Gave up the ghost." He dismissed the spirit. He Himself willingly gave up that life which it was impossible for man to take away; He thus became not a forced sacrifice, but a free-will offering for sin.

47. "The centurion." The Roman officer who had charge of the crucifixion. "Glorified God." When he saw "what was done" he acknowledged that God Himself was showing His approval of Jesus. "A righteous man." An innocent man. According to Matthew he confessed Jesus to be the Son of God.

48. "Smote their breasts." In token of alarm and penitence. They were to some extent penitent for their actions. Awe and consternation seized upon the Jews.

49. "All his acquaintance." They beheld him with the deepest sorrow over their irrevocable loss, which was not yet softened by the joyful hope of the resurrection.

50. "A councilor" (R. V.). That is, he was a member of the Sanhedrin. He was also a rich man.

51. "Had not consented." He had either voted against their action in the council, or, what is far more probable, had absented himself and taken no part in the proceedings. "Arimathaea." Some identify this with Rama in Benjamin, or Rama in Ephraim, the birthplace of Samuel. The form of the name is more like the latter. "Himself waited." He was a secret disciple (John 19: 38), and "waited for the manifestation of the Messiah's kingdom."

52. "Went to Pilate." He went in boldly. It took great courage to do this. He had been a secret disciple and afraid of public sentiment, but he is fearless now. I regard Joseph as one of the noblest characters referred to in the New Testament; he befriended Christ in this hour of awful darkness when even the disciples forsook Him and fled.

53. "He took it down." Joseph was assisted by Nicodemus (John 19: 39-42); they wrapped the body in linen with spices, and placed it in a new sepulchre, in a garden near by Calvary. Isa. 53: 9.

The instructor in physical culture at the Jefferson Medical college says that the physical training of the new century will have for its main object the increase of the exercisor's vitality and the purifying of his blood. It is encouraging to find a professional teacher of gymnastics who sees a higher use of his pulley weights and parallel bars than the building up of a man's biceps at the expense of his strength.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

FOR DELEGATE FROM CHILTON COUNTY:

DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE:

H. W. CAFFEY.

CHILTON Populists will hold Beat meetings next Saturday to elect delegates to the County Convention to be held at Clanton on Monday.

GOVERNOR Samford did the correct thing in pardoning nineteen men who had been sent to the coal mines from Butler county in, to put it mildly, a very irregular way.

THE Blocton Messenger is the title of a new weekly to be commenced at Blocton by Mr. George W. Price, formerly of the Bessemer Herald-Journal. We hope it will have a successful career.

THE Democratic county convention last Thursday elected John C. Dennis, chairman, and Thos. Hudson, secretary. Dr. H. W. Caffey was unanimously nominated as delegate from this county to the constitutional convention, and Tipton Mullins was unanimously endorsed as a candidate from this district. Delegates to the State convention were elected as follows: A. C Smith, J. O. Middleton, T. J. Traywick, H. B. Oliver and F. B Baldwin. Delegates to the Senatorial convention were: J. C. Dennis, T. U. Crumpton, T. A. Curry, R. H. Martin and J. Bice.

THE State convention of the Democratic party was held at Montgomery on Tuesday, put out a full ticket, adopted a comprehensive platform and adjourned sine die the same night.

The four nominees from the State at large are John B. Knox, of Anniston; W. C. Oates, of Montgomery; Frank S. White and Robert J. Lowe, both of Birmingham.

From the Fourth Congressional district the two nominees are Watkins M. Vaughan, of Selma, and L. W. Grant, of Anniston.

From the Fifteenth Senatorial District, John H. Parker, of Elmore, secured the nomination, after a hotly contested fight with Tipton Mullins, of Chilton, and E. S. Lyman, of Shelby.

THE COTTON CROP.

The following extract from a recent circular of a well-known New York firm of cotton brokers explains itself and is worthy of the best consideration of our farmers:

"You will see by reference to the daily market reports that cotton is selling now for delivery next December at about 7¼ cents. This low price, in spite of the short stocks of the world, is directly due to the claim that the South is going to plant this year the largest acreage in its history; that the farmers will put every acre they can into cotton, and that next year there will be such a superabundance of cotton that prices must decline very much lower. There is already talk of a 15,000,000 bale crop! We believe that the scarcity of corn and its high price in the South will be an inducement to the farmers to plant more grain, and that if the matter was properly laid before them a sentiment could be created, in view of the very great decline recently in cotton, (We believe this would be distinctly to the advantage of the Southern States; that nothing would contribute more to the maintenance and continuance of the prosperity of that section than to raise another fair cotton crop and sell it around 10 cents a pound."

Reduction in Taxation.

After July 1, 1901, there will be no internal revenue stamps required upon bank checks, certificates of deposit, promissory notes, money orders, bills of lading for export, express receipts, telephone messages, miscellaneous bonds, except bonds of indemnity; conveyances, unless amount runs above $2500; telegraph messages, insurance policies, leases, manifests, powers of attorney, protests, warehouse receipts, proprietary medicines, chewing-gum, perfumery and cosmetics and a few other things.

A WONDERFUL INVENTION.

They cure dandruff, hair falling, headache, etc., yet costs the same as an ordinary comb—Dr. White's Electric Comb. The only patented Comb in the world. Remarkable Cures of Rheumatism

From the Vindicator, Rutherfordton, N.C.

The editor of the Vindicator has had occasion to test the efficacy of Chamberlain's Pain Balm twice with the most remarkable results in each case. First, with rheumatism in the shoulder from which he suffered excruciating pain for ten days, which was relieved with two applications of Pain Balm, rubbing the parts afflicted and realizing instant benefit and entire relief, in a very short time second, in rheumatism in thigh joint, almost prostrating him with severe pain, which was relieved by two applications, rubbing with the liniment on retiring at night and getting up free from pain. For sale by Clanton Drug Co, and D. I. Deramus, Verbena

OUR COAL SUPPLY.

Our Bituminous Fields the Most Extensive in the World.

The 194,000 square miles of coal fields belonging to the United States give it a supply averaging one square mile of coal field to each 15 square miles of territory. The meaning of this may be seen when it is remembered that the ration for Great Britain is 1 to 20 and for France 1 to 200. With the exception of anthracite coal beds covering 500 square miles in eastern Pennsylvania, but averaging 60 feet in thickness, and excepting also one or two small patches of coal in Colorado and New Mexico, the above figures refer to bituminous or soft coal. The eastern portion of the United States contains five great coal beds: First, the Appalachian field, extending from the northern boundary of Pennsylvania to central Alabama; second, the Illinois-Indiana field, which extends into northwestern Kentucky; third, a field 150 miles wide extending southward from central Iowa, covering Indian Territory and sending one arm across Arkansas and another in central Texas; fourth, a line of strata in Texas from the northeastern corner of the state to the Rio Grande river; fifth, the central Michigan field. The western fields do not lie in large continuous sheets, but constitute small, isolated pockets averaging 25 miles in width and 50 miles in length. Such beds may be found throughout the entire Rocky mountain region from Montana to New Mexico, numbering in all 45 distinct beds in Colorado, Wyoming and the two states mentioned. To the west of this group of detached fields we find Idaho, having four small beds, Washington four, and California five.

FUEL FROM SAWDUST.

Austrian Firm Makes a Profitable Business of It.

The increasing scarcity and dearness of the ordinary kinds of fuel are leading European manufacturers to the consideration of various new products and combinations which may serve in place of coal and wood. The American consul at Coburg reports that sawdust is being used extensively in that country for fuel purposes. The sawdust is impregnated with a mixture of tar and heated to the proper temperature. It is then passed over a plate of iron heated by steam from which a screw conveyor takes it to a press, where it is made into bricks of the required size. One American family produced last year over 7,000,000 of these bricks, costing about 16 cents a thousand, and selling at from 95 cents to $1. This suggests the question why the dust turned out in such vast quantities by the great sawmills of our lumbering regions, most of which now goes to waste, might not be converted into a salable product for both domestic and foreign use. If compressed into hard bricks, as in the American process, the difficulty of transportation raised by the bulkiness of the sawdust would be largely eliminated.

The late Charles Keene, the artist of Punch, used to describe with great delight the method of a certain man whom he called "a pothouse Ruskin." This person was sitting with a friend in an inn parlor and was haranguing the other man on matters in general. Finally the friend ventured mildly to interpose an objection. The speaker drew himself up with much dignity. "I ain't a-arguing with you," said he, "I'm a-telling you."

The first savings bank established in the United States was in Philadelphia, which opened Dec. 2, 1816. It is said that the first deposit made in this bank was the sum of three shillings, handed over the counter by a boy. This bank was entitled "The Savings Fund Society of Philadelphia."

THE DUTY OF MOTHERS.

What suffering frequently results from a mother's ignorance; or more frequently from a mother's neglect to properly instruct her daughter!

Tradition says "woman must suffer," and young women are so taught. There is a little truth and a great deal of exaggeration in this. If a young woman suffers severely she needs treatment, and her mother should see that she gets it.

Many mothers hesitate to take their daughters to a physician for examination; but no mother need hesitate to write freely about her daughter or herself to Mrs. Pinkham and secure the most efficient advice without charge. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass.

Mrs. August Pfalzgraf, of South Byron, Wis., mother of the young lady whose portrait we here publish, wrote Mrs. Pinkham in January, 1899, saying her daughter had suffered for two years with irregular menstruation—had headache all the time, and pain in her side, feet swell, and was generally miserable. Mrs. Pinkham promptly replied with advice, and under date of March, 1899, the mother writes again that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured her daughter of all pains and irregularity.

Nothing in the world equals Mrs. Pinkham's great medicine for regulating woman's peculiar monthly troubles.

BRITISH BAYONETS CONFRONT RUSSIANS

The Dispute at Tien Tsin Grows More Ominous,

QUESTION OF PROPERTY RIGHTS

A Pekin Dispatch Says Germans Loot a Town---What our Representative Is Doing.

Advices from Tien Tsin, China, state that the British and Russians are disputing over the limits of railway property in the Russian concession, and the guards of the two nations are in close proximity to each other.

The British have been strongly reenforced and trouble is imminent unless the Russians retire.

The Russians are now intrenching in the disputed territory. A company of the Hong Kong regiment, with fixed bayonets, is in front, while two companies of the Madras Pioneers, under the command of Major Johnson, are held in reserve.

Both the Russians and the British are awaiting instructions from their governments.

FRICTION AN ADMITTED FACT.

A London special says: A question in the house of commons Friday, in regard to the news from Tien Tsin announcing friction between the Russians and British there elicited a confirmation from Lord George Hamilton, the secretary of state for India, who said Russia had claimed the land in dispute by virtue of a concession alleged to have been granted by China since the disturbances commenced. The authorities on the spot were dealing with the matter. The government had not sent special instructions, as, throughout the Chinese operations, the Britist officers had shown a spirit of excessive conciliation.

LOOTED BY GERMANS.

A cablegram from Pekin says: It was reported at the United States legation by Rev. W. S. Ament, of the local staff of the American board of foreign missions, that the Germans had visited the prosperous market town of Nau Ming, sixty miles from Pekin, and completely looted it, and that they had also ransacked and desecrated a native Christian chapel and despoiled women of their trinkets, even taking rings out of their ears and generally ill-treating the natives.

The attitude of M. de Giers regarding further punishments is delaying the demand of the ministers of the powers upon the Chinese and the matter has been referred to the home governments. Mr. Rockhill, the American special commissioner, says that practically he is in favor of drawing a clean sheet over additional executions, but that certain high officials throughout the provinces are guily of most barbarous crimes and that it is generally recognized that these must be punished if only as a warning to others.

In every case where leniency was possible Mr. Rockhill has advocated it, but he has felt that in a few cases leniency was out of the question. He said M. de Giers had virtually agreed to certain additional punishments, but that the change in his attitude is presumably attributable to Russia's annoyance at the interference of the others in the Manchuria affair.

At the latest meeting of the ministers, M. de Giers vehemently declared that he would rather see his right hand cut off than consent to further decapitations.

As regards questions of indemnity, individual American claims, Mr. Rockhill says, under the agreement agreed upon by the ministers, will be paid in almost every case. The arrangement he considers satisfactory and fair to both Chinese and foreigners.

FOR OBSTRUCTING SIDEWALK

Mrs. Nation Arrested in Kansas City And Ordered to Leave Town.

Mrs. Carrie Nation, who has been visiting in Kansas City for a few days, was arrested in Union avenue near the union depot Friday for obstructing the sidewalk where she had stopped to harangue a crowd. She was released on her promise to depart on the next train for Topeka.

GRIGGS' SUCCESSOR?

Philadelphia Man Said to Be Slated For Attorney General.

A report is in circulation in Philadelphia that John G. Johnson, a leading member of the Philadelphia bar and one of the most prominent lawyers in the country, has been offered the portfolio of attorney general in President McKinley's cabinet to succeed Attorney General Griggs.

When asked if he had been offered such a position in President McKinley's cabinet he would not say. "I do not want my refusal to answer the question, however, to be construed as a denial that the position has been offered me."

A PLETHORA OF GOLD.

Accumulation of Yellow Metal By Uncle Sam Breaks all Records.

A Washington special says: On Friday the gross gold in the treasury amounted to $482,913,023, Compared with $416,218,209 at the same period last year. The day's figures break all records. The increase in the gold holdings of the department during the year has been $66,694,814.

WAR IS STILL ON.

Armistice Between Lord Kitchener And General Botha Seems to Be Ineffective.

A dispatch from Lord Kitchener, issued at London Friday morning, is so studiously silent upon the subject of the peace negotiations that it leads to the conclusion that nothing has yet been accomplished of a sufficiently definite character to justify lending official support to the view that the war is over. Nor do General French's movements indicate a cessation of hostilities, although possibly, as no date is given, his captures were made previous to the granting of the armistice.

Lord Kitchener's dispatch, which is dated at Pretoria, reports as follows:

"Dewet has reached Senekal on his northward progress.

"French, in addition to his previous successes, reports forty-six Boers killed or wounded, 146 taken prisoners and surrendered, with 200 rifles, 3,700 rounds of ammunition, 2,400 horses, 2,500 cattle and 400 wagons and carts, besides mules and trek oxen.

"Methuen has arrived at Warrenton from Klerksdorp, bringing in prisoners and cattle.

"The weather is wet, delaying the movements of the columns."

A dispatch from Pretoria, after noting General Dewet's arrival at Senekal, Orange River Colony, says that though he has only a small following, Dewet is nearing a district where he is likely to receive considerable reinforcements and probably intends to pick up roving bands of republicans who are ever present in the Dornberg and Koranna districts.

General French, the dispatch adds, had been detained by swollen drifts in the Piet Retief district, but is now able to move again.

Dispatches from Bloemfontein, Orange River Colony, state that prisoners who have lately been released by General Dewet say they think he is a madman. They aver that the terrible fatigue he has undergone, his anxieties and the intensity of his feelings have unhinged his mind. Apart from this view of General Dewet's mental state some of his peculiarities are that he rarely sleeps within the bounds of the camp. He seeks his rest outside, with a few trusted followers. Thus, the orderlies of his subordinate commanders are frequently unable to find him to receive orders. His secrecy is extreme. He absolutely imparts his plans to no one.

General Dewet repudiates the peace negotiations which are going on. He has declared openly to the men under his command that no terms except independence will satisfy him. A recent utterance attributed to General Dewet is that after the British he hated the Transvaalers.

The whereabouts of General Dewet during the last two or three days is unknown, nor is it known whether President Steyn is with him.

AMENDMENT DON'T GO.

Cuban Committee on Foreign Relations Will So Report.

A special from Havana says: The committee on foreign relations held another private meeting Friday afternoon. Senor De Quesada, one of the members, says the committee agreed unanimously that the Platt amendment in its present form could not be accepted and that a report to this effect will be submitted to the constitutional convention. He also asserts that the committee is assured of the support of twenty-eight delegates.

Monday the committee will meet again, when individual opinions on the question will be filed, to be incorporated later into the final report. The intention of the committee is not to make a final report for some time, but Senor de Quesada declares that this delay will not weaken the determination of its members not to accept the Platt amendment as it stands.

Admiral Dewey Goes to Aiken.

Aiken, S. C., is preparing for Admiral Dewey. Information was received there Friday that the admiral's physicians had ordered him south, and he has chosen Aiken as his resting place.

Alabama Town Burned.

The village of Comer, Ala., was almost totally destroyed by fire Friday morning at 4 o'clock. Nine store houses went up in flames, and only a small portion of the stocks were saved.

CAUGHT IN BURNING CAR.

Four Members of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" Troupe Roasted to Death.

At Olive, a station forty-five miles west of Missoula, Montana, Saturday, a special car containing the Ed Davis "Uncle Tom's Cabin" Company, was burned, four members of the company losing their lives—three musicians and the company's cook.

The car was attached to the regular eastbound train due to arrive in Missoula at 9:30. Shortly after leaving Plains the car was discovered to be on fire in the sleeping apartment, and before the alarm could be given the whole car was in flames.

VOTES AT FANCY PRICES.

Money Flowed Freely While Election Was in Progress in Savannah.

In the election at Savannah, Ga., Friday, Major Thomas Screven defeated Captain Henry McAlpin for ordinary by a majority of 384 and Thomas F. Thompson defeated Hon. David Wells for tax collector by 788.

The election was hotly contested from start to finish and money was spent freely on both sides, votes ranging in price from $5 to $15 each

HARRISON'S BODY IS LAID TO REST

Funeral Services Simple But Impressive.

VAST THRONGS IN ATTENDANCE

At Capital Building Remains Lay In State and Were Viewed By Many Thousands.

Surrounded by fully 15,000 of his fellow citizens, the remains of Benjamin Harrison were interred in the family lot in Crown Hill cemetery at Indianapolis Sunday. Close by the grave were the members of his family. President McKinley and other visitors of distinction and the more intimate friends of General Harrison. Back a distance of fifty yards, behind ropes, guarded zealously by a large force of police, stood with uncovered heads the great multitude who knew him not so well as did they who stood beside the freshly upturned earth, but who honored him and admired him quite as much.

It is doubtful if any public man, at least in this generation, has been borne to his last resting place among so many manifestations of respect. Of passionate grief there was little outside the members of his family, but the tribute of respect was universal. It came from all alike—from those of his own political faith and from those who differed with him concerning what is best for the nation's good; from men who have been his lifelong friends and from those who knew him merely by sight and to whom he had never spoken. If came from women and children, from white and black, from all conditions and kinds of people. There was no exception anywhere to the expression that the nation had lost one of its most able men and the greatest man of his generation in his own state.

By the grave stood the chief magistrate of the nation, and behind the ropes were the street arabs of General Harrison's city; every grade of human life in America, between the two, was represented in the crowd, and among them all there was but the one feeling, that a man had died who was honest at all times with himself and others, and whose ability and character were such as the nation could ill afford to lose.

The weather, like that of Saturday, was splendid—bright sunlight, the warm breath of spring in every breeze, and yet in the air a touch of winter that brought the blood to the cheek and a sparkle to the eye.

The services at the church and grave were simple in the extreme, all in most excellent taste, and, like the proceedings Saturday, there was an utter absence of friction in everything that was done. All was well ordered and well performed.

REMAINS LAY IN STATE.

On Saturday beneath a canopy of black placed in the rotunda of the capitol building, the casket covered with the silken folds of the stars and stripes surrounded by thousands of blossoms, while over all swung the great battle flag that flew from the warship Indiana during a naval battle off Santiago, the body of ex-President Harrison lay in state for nine hours.

During that time fully 50,000 persons passed by the coffin to take a last look at the distinguished dead, and when, at 10 o'clock the capitol doors were finally closed and the people told that no more could enter, there were several thousand more waiting patiently in line. The body lay in state from 1:10 in the afternoon until 10 o'clock Saturday night, and not once during the hours was there a break or halt in the lines which passed rapidly by on the right and left of the casket.

It was Indiana's day with her dead, and most touchingly was the esteem and honor in which General Harrison was held by his fellow-citizens revealed. In front of the Harrison home, along the streets through which the remains were borne on their way to and from the statehouse, in the lines that stretched at times a half mile from the doors of the capitol building, men, women and childred stood for hours waiting their opportunity to pay a tribute of respect to the dead.

SUICIDE'S STRANGE REQUEST.

Body of a "Land Lubber" Is Consigned to Bosom of Atlantic.

A Brunswick, Ga., dispatch says: The body of J. R. B. Danforth, at his own request found after he had slain himself, was consigned to the roaring billows of the Atlantic, the unusual, peculiar and unique ceremony being witnessed by many of the relatives and friends of the dead man. It seems a bit strange that a "land lubber" would prefer to be buried in the sea, but this was the last request of Mr. Danforth, and his wife agreed to it.

Charles A. Johnson Arrested.

Columbus, O., March 17.—Charles A. Johnson, cashier of the First National Bank of Niles, Mich., was arrested at Columbus, O., Sunday on a charge of wrecking that institution. He was placed in the emergency hospital at the police station because of his physical condition.

If, as Jefferson said, "that is the best government which governs least," she is the wisest queen who queens it least.

BONI AVENGED.

Count Castellane Fights a Duel With Editor Roday's and ComesOut Victor.

A paris dispatch says: In the duel fought Saturday between Count Boni de Castellane and M. de Rodays, the latter was wounded in the thigh.

M. de Rodays, whose wound was in the lower fleshy part of the thigh, bled abundantly, but he is not seriously injured.

The determination to exclude the curious from witnessing the duel was well kept. Only the witnesses and the necessary attendants were spectators of the meeting, so zealously was secrecy maintained in regard to the meeting place.

Count de Dion having measured off twenty-five paces, requested M. de Rodays and Count Boni to take their alloted places. Both principals were dressed in black frock coats.

The usual words of warning and explanations were given, the Count de Dion counted three and then said "Fire."

Scarcely had the word been uttered than M. de Rodays was seen to totter and fall.

The witnesses hastened to his side, and were obliged to carry him to one of the dressing rooms, where the doctor gave him immediate care.

Count Boni, after inquiring into the character of the wound, left the spot, accompanied by his witnesses. Shortly afterwards M. de Rodays was taken to his residence in a carriage.

The doctor said M. de Roday's wound is not of a disquieting nature, and that, though the bullet had not yet been extracted, M. de Rodays will be well in ten days. Count Boni was not touched.

The duel was carried out with the utmost correctness, and every step of the proceedings was marked by absolute calmness and courtesy on both sides, which, if anything, enhanced its dramatic effect.

WILL REDEEM STAMPS.

Treasury Officials Make Statement Regarding New War Revenue Act.

The treasury officials at Washington are actively making preparations to carry into effect the war revenue reduction act which becomes operative on July 1, 1901, and with a view to giving the public all information on the subject possible at this time the internal revenue bureau has issued the following statement:

"All documentary and proprietary revenue stamps in the hands of purchasers on and after July 1, 1901, will be redeemed by the government under the provisions of the act of May 12, 1900.

"Such stamps should be presented for redemption by the owners thereof to the collector of internal revenue from whom they were purchased, who will supply the applicant with necessary forms and instructions for the preparations of his claim. It is probable that regulations will be prepared and issued providing for the reduction of imprinted documentary stamps without requiring the destruction of the checks or drafts on which they are imprinted."

WOMAN VICTIM OF MOB.

Negro Accused of Purloining Money Meets Horrible Death.

A dispatch Nashville, from Tenn., says: Ballie Brutchfield, a negro woman, was lynched by unknown men Friday night, the only cause being that she was suspected of having taken the money out of a pocketbook which was lost recently by a neighbor.

The pocketbook had come into possession of the woman's brother and a mob undertook to lynch him several nights ago, but he broke away and escaped in the darkness. Friday night the men visited the woman, and after tying her hands behind her, took her to the bridge over Lick creek. Here she was shot through the head and her lifeless body thrown into the stream, from which it was recovered Saturday.

The coroner returned the usual verdict of death at the hands of unknown parties. The amount of money in the pocketbook was $120.

Fatality at Pittsburg Fire.

During the progress of a fire at Pittsburg, Pa., Sunday, one man lost his life and three others were badly hurt. The property loss will be fully $250,000, well insured.

Increase in Desertions.

London, March 16.—The Daily Mail reports an enormous increase in the number of desertions at Aldershot. It attributes this condition of things to the inadequate pay and to resentment in view of the fact that the Yeomanry gets five shillings per day and the Cavalry only one shilling.

Chinese Claims.

London, March 15.—The British government has issued a public invitation to societies and others having claims against China, to present them at the foreign office.

New $30,000 Building at Birmingham.

The Earle estate has awarded to A. J. Krebs & Co. the contract for the erection of a three-story building at First avenue and Eighteenth street, Birmingham, to cost $30,000. The building will be of brick, with stone front, after plans drawn by Wheeler & Son. The walls are to be of sufficient thickness to support three additional stories.

A SLAVE OF TOBACCO.

Love of the Weed One of the Weaknesses of the Great Carlyle.

As is well known, Thomas Carlyle, the great Scottish essayist and historian, was a slave to tobacco. In his home, his study or out of doors, he was seldom seen without his pipe, and he smoked the strongest tobacco he could procure. During the last part of his life he was a sufferer from insomnia, and his friend, Sir Charles Gavan Duffy, once suggested to him that one who suffered so much from sleeplessness and indigestion ought not to smoke so constantly. Carlyle replied that he had once given up smoking for an entire year at the instance of a doctor, who assured him that his only ailment was too much tobacco. At the end of the year he was walking one evening in the country, so weary that he was hardly able to crawl from tree to tree, when he suddenly determined that whatever was amiss with him "that fellow at least did not understand it," and he returned to tobacco and smoked afterward without let or hindrance. In his latter days he used a clay pipe made in Dublin and known as the "Repeal." He was unable to renew the supply and Sir Charles Duffy assured him that these pipes were strictly reserved for believers in Irish nationality and promised him a supply if he qualified in the ordinary manner. Carlyle never qualified.

THE HEAD OF THE HOUSE.

Woman Declared to Be in a Decision of a Federal Court.

The ancient and venerable question first raised in Adam's day, and discussed with more or less vigor by that gentleman's descendants ever since, as to who is the head of the house, the man or the woman, has been settled, it may be hoped finally, by Judge Purnell of the United States circuit court. The point came up in a case in Virginia, where a woman, a storekeeper, endeavored to take advantage of the bankruptcy law, but had her petition denied by a lower court on the ground that she was married and living with her husband, she was not the head of the house. Judge Purnell reversed this decision and rendered an opinion to the effect that a married woman living with or apart from her husband is the head of the household in the legal sense of the term. As this decision is rendered in a federal court, it applies, of course, to the whole country, and all American women from Puget Sound to Calais may rejoice that their status has been fixed beyond further dispute. Husbands and other masculine usurpers may now step down and out.

A MEXICAN WASH-DAY.

A Novel Scene Which Interests Travelers.

To the American woman, accustomed to washing her clothes in a tub in her kitchen or shed and hanging them out on the line to dry, the sight of a number of them at work is novel and interesting. The Mexicans have many queer ways of doing things, and this is one of them. No washing is done in the houses. Once a week—and sometimes once a month—according to the cleanliness of the family, the woman of the house or her grown up daughters, or her servants, if she is rich, take their soiled linen down to the canal, where the wash tanks of stone are built. The cleansing process is not up to American standards of tidiness. There is little rubbing and the Mexican woman has no reason to complain of backache, as has her American cousin, after her day's work is done. She simply dips her clothes a few times into the canal, then slaps them on the stones and hangs them on the rafters of the canvas-covered roof that protects their heads from the sun's rays.

begins in the bowels. It's the unclean places that breed infectious epidemics, and it's the unclean body—unclean inside—that "catches" the disease. A person whose stomach and bowels are kept clean and whose liver is lively, and blood pure, is safe against yellow fever, or any other of the dreadful diseases that desolate our beautiful land. Some of the cleanest people outside are filthiest inside, and they are the ones who not only "catch" the infections, but endanger the lives of all their friends and relatives. There's only one certain way of keeping clean inside so as to prevent disease and that is to take CASCARETS. Perfect disinfectant and bowel strengtheners. All diseases are

When your bowels don't move regularly you are getting sick. Constipation kills more people than all other diseases together. It is a starter for the chronic ailments and long years of suffering that come afterwards. No matter what ails you, start taking CASCARETS to-day, for you will never get well and be well all the time until you put your bowels right. Take our advice; start with CASCARETS to-day, under an absolute guarantee to cure or money refunded.

GUARANTEED TO CURE. Five years ago the first box of CASCARETS was sold. Now 5 boxes are sold to every one box of any similar medicine in the world. This is absolute proof of great merit, and our best testimonial. We have faith enough to sell CASCARETS absolutely guaranteed to cure or money refunded. Go buy today, two 50c boxes, give them a fair, honest trial, as per simple directions, and if you are not satisfied, after using one 50c box, return the unused 50c box and the empty box to us by mail, or the druggist from whom you purchased it, and get your money back for both boxes. Take our advice—no matter what ails you—start to-day. Health will quickly follow and you will bless the day you first started the use of CASCARETS. Book free by mail. Alabama Fertilizer the Standard.

Our most reckless competitor will only claim that what he is selling is "Just as good" as the celebrated ALABAMA FERTILIZER, but it is not so. For 21 years the ALABAMA has stood at the head of the fertilizer class. With cotton at current good prices it is more important than ever to use the best fertilizer. The ALABAMA is the standard of excellence, and only those whose interest dictate the statement assert otherwise.

Without extra cost to the consumer we ship all ALABAMA FERTILIZER in the CELEBRATED MUMMIA VEGETABLE FIBRE PRESERVED BAGS, which are acid and weather proof, thus avoiding any loss in handling. These bags, after thorough investigation and practical tests, have been indorsed by the Alabama Agricultural Department, who recommend their use by the farmers of our State. Steamer agents on certain water routes have given notice that they will only receive for shipment fertilizer sacked in these celebrated bags, thereby insuring both themselves and their consignees from loss in handling.

One of the exhibits of the recent Good Roads Procession which attracted the attention of all was a wagon drawn by six well fed oxen containing 9½ bales of cotton produced on 9½ acres of land, made from Russell Improved big boll cotton by the use of ALABAMA FERTILIZER.

Customers Protected by Trade Mark.

The law requires every sack of fertilizer sold in the State to have the word ALABAMA branded on each sack offered for sale in the State.

To protect both ourselves and our customers we have our trade mark on every sack of ALABAMA FERTILIZER, we also tag each MUMMIA VEGETABLE FIBRE PRESERVED BAG. Our Trade Mark is copyrighted, the Bag is patented and we will prosecute any infringement on either. See that the Trade Mark and Tag are on each sack. Be certain to get what you pay for.

Pure high grade Acid Phosphate and Genuine German Kainit always on hand and sold at no higher price than other goods of the same grade.

A Testimonial From High Authority.

Captain S. B. Trapp, President of the Board of Inspectors of the Alabama Convict Bureau, who is well and favorably known throughout the South (particularly in Alabama), whose able management of the convict system of our State has met with the approval of all, himself a farmer of twenty years experience, has the following words of commendation to say in regard to the Celebrated Alabama Fertilizer:

Executive Department of Alabama,
Convict Bureau.
Montgomery, Nov. 30, 1900.

I consider the ALABAMA FERTILIZER the best manufactured. I have raised and seen others raise large crops of cotton and corn by its use.

In my opinion the farmer who invests in it, will succeed in making larger crops of cotton and corn at less cost for fertilizers than one who buys and uses acid phosphate, kainit and cottonseed meal in any proportion or quantity whatsoever.

My conclusions are arrived at after an experience of twenty years in the use of fertilizers—during which long period I have tried many kinds of fertilizers.

The MUMMIA VEGETABLE FIBRE PRESERVED BAGS, in which the ALABAMA FERTILIZER is put up, is one of the greatest blessings to all, and none better than the farmer can appreciate and value the cessation of loss in wasting, rotting of bags and vexation by having to reweigh fertilizers put up in the ordinary bag. I have seen some Mummia Bags used two seasons, which is the strongest possible proof of their singular and superior merit.

S. B. TRAPP, President.

The Record of Alabama Fertilizer.

It has produced nearly four bales of cotton on one acre of poor sandy upland.
One hundred and thirty-two bushels of corn on one acre of poor sandy upland.
Two thousand and forty-one bushels of corn on twenty acres of poor upland.
Land and corn accurately surveyed and measured by competent disinterested and honorable men.
It is the oldest brand now sold in Alabama, and is just the same as it always has been. Every one of the 49 premiums given during a series of years, through the COMMERCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL ASSOCIATION, for the greatest yield of cotton and corn on a specified area of land, was awarded to farmers who used exclusively the ALABAMA FERTILIZER.

EVERY FAMILY IN THE SOUTH SHOULD PLANT PECAN TREES.

The Pecan tree not only bears one of the most delicious nuts, but it is one of the most ornamental trees that grows in the South, and makes as fine a shade tree as the Elm or Maple and no family ought to be without a few trees. It would pay the town authorities to do as the French authorities do, plant nut bearing trees on the sidewalks and get a revenue therefrom. A scrap that would fill my vest pocket planted on the sidewalks of comparatively small cost, would in ten years get an annual return of at least $500.00 and each year there would be an increase until the income would reach from three to five thousand dollars annually. Enough to more than pay all taxes of an ordinary size town. The trees do well planted in cotton and corn fields, and farmers can cultivate the land in crops of corn and cotton until the trees get to bearing and after they commence bearing a farmer with ten to twenty acres has a small fortune in his Pecan grove and doesn't need to plant cotton and corn. The tree is hardy and stands the cold weather anywhere south of Mason and Dixon. At Pinebluff North Carolina, there is a company that makes a specialty of growing the young trees for sale, and we advise the town authorities, and all readers of our paper, to write the Pinebluff Grove & Pecan Company, Pinebluff, N. C., for circulars.

Editor Banner—Please allow me space in the columns of your valuable paper to state to the public that I was present on the 16th inst. at a conference of the Anti-Missionary Baptists, held at Cross River church. A charge was preferred against the Rev. J. M. Dykes, for marrying a woman who had been previously married, but had been divorced from her husband under the laws of Alabama. After the evidence, or statements, in justification of Mr. Dykes, were presented to the body and duly considered by it, he was acquitted of the charge by unanimous consent.

I desire to say, in behalf of Mr. Dykes, that I have known him for more than twenty-five years and have ever found him to be an honest, hightoned Christian gentleman, and he has done more for his church than any man under my knowledge. I am truly glad that his church found no fault in him.

Clanton, March 24, 1901

Editor Banner—Please allow me space in your valuable paper for a few words of thanks to the good people of Chilton and my community for their liberality in helping me and sharing my loss in a fire I had last November. I fear I have contracted a debt of gratitude that I will never be able to pay; I can only remember them in petitioning to the Father and ask Him to bless them. I do thank them for their goodness and kindness to me. I have an accurate list of all that helped me, and I expect to keep it so I can remember them later. We should read the 15-16 verses of the 2d chapter of the book of James and consider its teachings in regard to helping our neighbor and fellowman.

For fear this finds its way to the waste basket, I will close still thanking my friends.

W. J. CALLWAY.

A Good Cough Medicine for Children. — "I have no hesitancy in recommending Chamberlain's Cough Remedy", says F. P. Morgan, a well known and popular baker, of Petersburg, Va. "We have given it to our children when troubled with bad coughs, also whooping cough, and it has always given perfect satisfaction. It was recommended to me by a druggist as the best cough medicine for children as it contained no opium or other harmful drug." Sold by Clanton Drug Co, and D. I. Deramus, Verbena.

Burwell, March 25, 1901

Editor Banner.—Please allow me space in your paper to say a few words. I noticed the following in the Chilton Reflector last week. "Another fraud perpetrated by employes or members of the last Legislature was developed last week in the Uniontown dispensary bill. It was whispered around as coming from a saloon keeper that instead of becoming operative on January 1st, 1902, the law would not go into effect until 1904. The city sent its attorney to Montgomery to investigate the matter, and he found that the names of two of the commissioners named in the bill had been changed in the typewritten copy; 1902 had been erased and 1904 substituted. This is an outrage that ought to be ferretted out at any cost and the perpetrators punished to the extent of the law. It seems to us that the courts ought to have the power to rectify this outrage." Now, Mr. Editor, there has been as great an outrage committed on the people of Chilton as that was, viz, in running the stock law on the people in Beat five that did not want want it, and the last beat in the county that needed a stock law, and the Reflector has not said any word against it. Will the Reflector help ferret this outrage out of his own county? Nay, I presume he will advise us to vote for the Democratic nominee, otherwise we will be punished. Respectfully,

M. C. WILLIAMS.

Verbena.

Mr. D. D. Bulger, of Rockford, was in town on business last Friday.

Mr. Will Pierson of Wadsworth was among friends here Saturday.

Mr. H. A. J. Harris, of Clanton, was in the city Thursday of last week.

Uncle Uriah Darden, of Hanover, was circulating among friends here last week.

The social whirl has about reached its zenith in Verbena.

Mr. Jasper Goss, of Burwell, was visiting here Saturday.

We are glad to note the improved condition of Mr. Alvin Driver, who has been suffering with la grippe.

Mr. G. Sims visited Clanton Friday.

The Sunday-schools and prayer-meetings are progressing nicely at this place. More anon, DELTA.

Collins Chapel.

Editor Banner.—Our school at Collins Chapel is still progressing nicely and our Prof. R. A. Rasco is still hustling us and more so now because the school is one and a-half months longer and we want to have a nice close and plenty of good speakers to entertain us. There are several out this week.

Mr. John Mims has been planting corn this week, and they wish they had not planted any the second day for it was pretty cool and this weather cooled them off and they are not so warm now. I suppose that is why it is raining now, they heated the air and caused it to rain, so now may be we will have some nice weather so you can apply to those for corn another year.

A SCHOOL BOY.

Macedonia.

Farmers in this section have been very busy the past week planting corn; though it seems that winter is still here.

Prof. John Martin has vacated his school at this place. During his vacation he intends going to school at Jemison. He will go from home, eight miles, on a wheel.

Mrs. Sallie Smith was quite sick part of last week; she is much better at this writing, however.

Aunt Peggy Glass, who had lived out her four score of years, after two month's suffering, passed away the 15th inst., and was laid to rest at the Macedonia cemetery the 17th inst. Aunt Peggy was loved by all, and we believe our loss is heaven's gain, so we grieve not as those that have no hope.

We see in The Music Teacher and Home Magazine the announcement of the S. N. M. I. to be held at Clanton this summer. Prof. Showalter is a great teacher. I had the pleasure of attending one session of this famous school, and visited one other session. All that are seeking to know more of music, vocal or instrumental, should take advantage of this grand opportunity. Mr. S. is a fine vocalist and Miss Tennie a fine pianist as well as a sweet singer.

J. C. VEAZEY.

Strikes A Rich Find. — "I was troubled for several years with chronic indigestion and nervous debility," writes F. J. Green of Lancaster, N. H. "No remedy helped me until I began using Electric Bitters, which did me more good than all the medicine I ever used. They have also kept my wife in excellent health for years. She says Electric Bitters are just splendid for female troubles; that they are a grand tonic and invigorator for weak, run down women. No other medicine can take its place in our family." Try them. Only 50c. Satisfaction guaranteed by Clanton, Drug Co.

CLANTON, - - - ALABAMA.

It must be confessed that, at the present price of those vehicles, the man who insists on buying an automobile is bent on running through with his money.

The muster roll of one of the companies of Concord Minute Men, once offered to the town of Concord for $25, was sold in Boston the other day for 10 times that amount.

The length of a generation is usually considered 30 to 35 years. A statistician has recently worked out records of eight generations in New England starting with 1637 and he finds the average length just about 33 1-3 years, making three generations to the century. It is conceded that for other races or countries the figures might be different.

The Italian army has made an effort to recover its military prestige in China. The other day the commanding officer reported a brilliant victory over the rebels. On investigation it was found that he had fallen in with a body of Chinese soldiers, who ran away at once. They were pursued with great dash and gallantry and cut to pieces. Hence the laurels.

The experiment is to be made by the Chicago school authorities in establishing a full commercial school for boys, to take the place of a high school, will be watched with interest by educators everywhere. Persons who believe a practical business education is more useful than the knowledge of Latin and Greek look to the Chicago public business school to vindicate their theory.

The frightful losses of life and property from the oil fires in Russia and the destruction caused by the explosion of hundreds of cases of dynamite in a famous Mexican mine show the dangers which humanity holds in check by frail barriers easily broken. The possibilities of ruin from burning oil mines and oil fields and from the concentration of explosives of power truly volcanic are almost illimitable.

A nation that is fettered by having one man in every 80 a soldier cannot hope to keep industrial and commercial pace with one that is free, having only one in 800 a soldier. It is to a reform of their own domestic systems that European powers would best look for relief and for prosperity, and not to mere antagonism against the successful rival whose success is in great part due to the fact that it has avoided the evils which they have cherished, observes the New York Tribune.

The New York Sun rules that we may continue to call the frock coat a Prince Albert if we choose to do so, for the good and sufficient reason that this garment was not named after Albert Edward, but after his father, Prince Albert, who died forty years ago. When Lord Raglan died the garment named after him retained his name. So also of the Cardigan, the Havelock, the Spencer and the Talma. There are still Wellington boots and Blucher boots. The curious thing about the Prince Albert coat is that the term is never used in England. It is simply a frock coat over there.

Pennsylvania is a wonderful state. Its manufacturing interests are diversified and cover every article of human consumption from the raw to the manufactured. In this state, power and transmission reaches over 1600 good, live, wide-awake, growing concerns of a rating, according to the best commercial agencies of $25,000 or over. They are all users of machinery, and the constant orders for supplies must be something marvelous. Did you ever stop to think that in Pennsylvania there are nearly as many factories as are contained in that part of the United States lying west of the Mississippi river?

Here is a heartrending tale. A year ago a demoiselle in Paris won first prize in a much heralded beauty contest. A dressmaker, scenting advertisement, paid the lady thirty thousand francs a year to wear his costumes exclusively. A rival dressmaker with envy in his heart offered her another salary on condition that she should circulate the statement that, while she wore the gowns of the first, it was only for the sake of the salary, and down deep in her soul she preferred the gowns of the second. She succumb to the temptation and now there is a lawsuit on and she bids fair to get neither payment. This is a hard world!

DISASTROUS CYCLONE,

Twenty Persons' Killed and Forty Injured.

Tornado Sweeps Southern Section of Birmingham.

Hundreds of Houses Torn Into Fragments and Much Other Property Destroyed.

A fearful tornado, in all the fury of its pent-up rage, swept down upon the southern section of Birmingham shortly before 10 o'clock Monday morning and in its ruthless course up the valley left death and destruction in its wake. The frowning storm king summoned all the wrath at his command and with an awful grinding roar tore hundreds of houses into fragments and claimed twenty human lives, the price of his unwelcome visit.

Twenty persons were crushed and killed by the flying debris and scores of men, women and children were mangled beneath the wreckage, which was strewn from east to west for a distance of more than two miles.

It is estimated that 500 houses were destroyed and damaged, entailing a property loss of between $300,000 and $500,000.

Among the dead are Dr. G. C. Chapman, one of the most prominent physicians of the city, and the wife and child of Hon. R. J. Lowe, chairman of the state democratic executive committee.

The fearful catastrophe has cast a gloom over the entire city, but willing hands have set to work to relieve the suffering and distress that sends up its pitiful cry from the pathway of the storm.

The following is the list of the dead and injured, reported to a late hour Tuesday night:

The Dead.

Dr. G. C. Chapman, Mrs. Robert J. Lowe, infant child of Mrs. Lowe, J. Alexander, merchant, corner avenue J and Twenty-fourth street; little daughter of Mr. B. B. Hudson, F. Myro, colored, collector Union Mutual Association of Mobile; Carrie Hudson, colored; Maggie Blevins, colored; Carrie Henry, colored; Lizzie Goodloe, colored; F. Steadmire, school girl, colored; Lizzie Green, colored; unknown negro cook for B. B. Hudson; unknown carpenter, struck by flying timber, unknown negro, Pratt City; John Gardner, Irondale; three negro children, Irondale.

Fatally Injured.

Mrs. R. H. Thomas, Mrs. W. H. Thomas, Mrs. D. D. McLaughlin, Mrs. J. Furguson, Mrs. Mylum, Prof. Grambs' mother-in-law; Carrie Elin, colored, W. P. Dickinson, medical student, concusion of brain.

A terrific rain storm followed the wind and greatly retarded the work of relief, which was immediately begun by an army of volunteer rescuers.

Path of the Storm.

The storm struck the city in the extreme southwestern corner and plowed its way eastward, leaving a path 150 feet wide through the entire southern section, extending from Green Springs on the left to Avondale on the east. It continued its course onward until its fury was spent in the mountain beyond Irondale.

The morning dawned cloudy and sultry and grew more threatening as the day advanced. Clouds began to gather, and shortly after 9 o'clock sharp lightning flashed from the southwest. The air became heavy and stifling, and it was evident that a storm was brewing, but no one dreamed that it would burst with such fury upon the city a few minutes later. The velocity of the wind began to increase, and suddenly from out of the overcast sky the funnel-shaped cloud made its descent, and, hugging close to the earth, passed through the city in leaps and bounds, leaving death and desolation in its pathway.

The altitude of the cyclone was not more than seventy-five feet. The negro shanties and cottages in the lowlands in the path of the storm were the principal sufferers. The larger residences on the higher ground suffered but slightly. The large trees on the hillside of the St. Vincent's Hospital were torn up by the roots, and large masses of stone were twisted out of the ground, and broken and scattered all over the driveways of the entrance to the institution.

Like a Rubber Ball.

From Eighth to Tenth street the wind devil bounded like a rubber ball and when it again descended it struck a two-story house occupied by Joseph Bucchelhner and almost razed it to the ground.

Onward the wind sped in its fury, demolishing trees and fences, until it reached Eleventh street, where it swept through a small pine grove, tearing the trees up by the roots and hurling them through the air like arrows. Beyond the grove the storm cloud swooped down upon a negro settlement and the frail cabins were crushed like egg shells, not one being left in the pathway of the tornado. Eastward the storm swept, cutting its way through another strip of woods, striking the Second Presbyterian Church at the corner of Avenue H and Fifteenth street, almost demolishing the structure. The pews were piled on the top of the debris, a small oak table which was used in the rostrum being deposited on the topmost point of the wreckage.

The storm then struck the more thickly settled residence portion of the city, and its work of destruction increased. It left the two blocks bounded by Eighteenth and Twentieth streets and Humbolt and Avenue H a total wreck. With a few exceptions all of the houses in that territory were buried to the ground and the scene now presented is one of complete desolation.

A Sad Fatality.

One of the saddest fatalities of the day was the death of the little 4-year-old child of B. B. Hudson, near Nineteenth street and Humbolt avenue. Mrs. Hudson, accompanied by another child, had gone to the city at the time of the storm, leaving the younger child at home with the negro cook. Both were killed among the falling timbers of the house.

In crossing Twentieth street the terrific wind snapped the big poles of the Bell Telephone Campany as if they were pipe stems, and they fell to the street below taking heavy cables with them, and seriously impairing the telephone communication for a large section of the South Highlands. This fact prevented the anxious head of many a family living in that district from communicating with their home, and the consequence was that great numbers of distracted husbands and fathers were soon hurrying to the Highlands to see what misfortune, if any, had happened to their loved ones.

The wind here seemed to veer upward and for a space of a block did but little damage.

Destruction on Brown's Hill.

Brown's Hill lay in the path of the storm, and within two or three blocks nearly a hundred houses were demolished and several lives lost and a number of persons more or less seriously injured. The houses in that part of town were mostly one-story cottages and went down with the first gust of wind, burying their occupants under the wreckage. In its eccentric course the tornado seemed to strike that section with renewed force. A great many of these cottages were owned by their occupants, who lost everything in the world they possessed when their houses and their furniture were destroyed.

At Avondale.

After leaving Birmingham the storm struck Avondale at the extreme southern end, and fortunately did not pass through a very populous district. The residents of Faggot's Hill were the principal sufferers, though there were no deaths reported. Those injured were Miller Harbin, Mrs. Harbin and child, Mr. Flynn, Mrs. J. J. Hendon, Miss Jennie Sheldon, Mrs. Mann, Mr. and Mrs. Lowery, and others—less several injured.

There were about twelve houses destroyed, and the property damage is estimated at about $5,000.

Storm Visits Pratt City.

Pratt City, March 25.—Pratt City was visited this morning by the most serious and destructive cyclone in its history. About 7:15 o'clock dark and heavy clouds were seen scudding across the heavens from the southwest, and a few minutes later a rumbling, roaring sound heralded the approach of a most terrific storm. The first thing it struck in its path was the tipple and houses of mine No. 6. In a minute's time they were swept to destruction, so crippling the mine that it had to suspend operations. Thence in a northeasterly direction, it struck the West Highlands of Pratt City, and a three-room house was lifted off its pillars and set on the ground. It then demolished the colored church in that vicinity, leaving not a "stone upon a stone."

The cyclone seems here to have skipped about a half mile of a thickly populated locality, and descending in the heart of the city, blew the steeple off the Southern Methodist church, and otherwise so seriously injuring it that it is considered a total loss, and will have to be rebuilt anew; tore the roof from the new high school building; uncovered one mileon, I. Benfeld's dry goods store, the Birmingham Southern depot and T. C. I. colliery; jumped the north side of First street, and alighting on the drift track, wrecked innumerable negro houses and left desolation in its wake. There is one negro reported dead and another negro injured. Nearly every church in town was damaged. Besides the Southern Methodist, which was so badly wrecked, the First Presbyterian was twisted nearly off its pillars; St. James A. M. E. church lost its steeple Rising Star Baptist church was badly injured; and three other colored churches on the drift track were more or less seriously damaged. The loss will run up into the thousands.

At Irondale.

After leaving Gate City, the storm struck Irondale, a mile or two farther on, shortly after 10 o'clock, and very nearly demolished that prosperous little town. There were four killed, and the total property damage is estimated at about $18,000.

The dead are George Gardner and three unknown negro children.

PORTO RICANS NEED CASH.

Business Men and Farmers of Island Anxious to Secure a Loan.

The chamber of commerce of San Juan has called a mass meeting of the principal planters, bankers, agriculturists and merchants with a view to agreeing upon some feasible plan for the relief of financial depression. The outcome of the meeting will probably be a petition to Governor Allen to call an extra session of the legislature and to authorize a loan of from $3,000,000 to $5,000,000 for the benefit of agriculture.

Merciful to Drunkards.

Police Judge L. W. Wachenheimer, of Toledo, Ohio, has decided that drunkenness is a disease and not a crime. Prisoners charged with that offense appearing before him are discharged and the costs remitted.

Many Kansas Women Will Vote.

The heaviest registration of women on record in Kansas has been recorded for the spring election. At most places the issue is "wet" and "dry" and a lively contest is expected.

STEAMSHIP RUNS ON ROCKS.

The Styria, Cotton Laden, Strikes a Reef Off Florida Coast.

The steamship Styria, cotton laden, from New Orleans to Trieste and Vienna, went on the rocks Friday at French reef, forty miles south of Miami, Fla. It is reported that she is bilged. Word was sent to Key West for pumps and wreckers went immediately to the scene.

Regiments Start For Home.

A Manila special says: The United States army transport Grant sailed for San Francisco Saturday with the Twenty-eight and Thirty-second infantry volunteers.

CUBAN MAIL RATES.

After April 1st Domestic Postage and Classification Will Be Effective.

Postmaster General Smith, in accordance with a decision arrived at by the cabinet has issued the following order:

Postmasters are informed that on and after April 1, next, the United States domestic rates of postage and classification shall apply to all mail matter passing between the United States and Cuba. Notices of this change should be displayed in postoffices' corridors and given to the public press when accepted as a news item.

MARTIAL LAW IN MARSEILLES.

Troops Are Necessary to Hold Great Army of Strikers in Check.

Advices from Marseilles, France, state that the center of the town is occupied by troops. Detachments of cavalry patrol the chief thoroughfares and the infantry guard various points and is massed at the docks, where 1,200 dock laborers are working.

All gathering of strikers are immediately dispersed. The few hacks and street cars running are strongly protected by gendarmes.

The number of strikers of other trades in sympathy with the dock laborers has increased.

Selling Their Cotton.

The planters in Madison county who have been holding their cotton for an increase in price to 10 cents, have apparently abandoned hope of getting higher prices, and are selling their cotton at below 8 cents. The number of bales received at Huntsville during the past week shows a corresponding sharp increase over the number received during four preceding weeks. The Madison county planters are preparing to plant a large acreage in cotton.

A Missouri man has invented a self-feeding furnace. Now, if he can only devise some means of furnishing the coal with which to feed the furnace, without cost to the owner, he will have achieved a reputation through the dim vistas of time, even into eternity.

EXPEDITION IS OFF TO GET AGUINALDO

General Funston May Capture Insurgent Leader.

HIS HIDING PLACE IS REVEALED

Kansan Starts Out On Perilous Undertaking With Small Party of Picked Men and Scouts.

A Manila special says: General Funston is now engaged in a daring project which promises to be the greatest and most romantic achievement of his eventful career.

In January, from his hiding place in the province of Isabella, Aguinaldo wrote letters anathematizing the subchiefs who had taken the oath of allegiance to the United States. Later Aguinaldo ordered certain insurgent forces in southern Luzon to join him at a rendezvous in Isabella province. The rebel officer entrusted with these orders secretly negotiated with the Americans.

On securing necessary information, General Funston planned Aguinaldo's capture and with General MacArthur's authorization proceeded two weeks ago to make the attempt. General Funston, with Sergeant Major Harris, Captain Newton, of the Thirty-fourth infantry; Lieutenant Admire, of the Twenty-second infantry; Lieutenant Mitchell, of the Fortieth infantry; six veteran scouts and a company of native scouts, all picked men, embarked on the gunboat Vicksburg and were landed on a remote beach above Baler.

It was arranged that Aguinaldo's emissary with the native scouts should pass themselves off as insurgent troops, who, having captured General Funston and others were taking them as prisoners to Aguinaldo. At the right time, when brought before Aguinaldo, General Funston was to give a signal, when the tables were to be turned and Aguinaldo was to be seized.

Six days' march into the interior was contemplated. Treachery was considered possible, but every precaution was taken. The troops in New Vizcaya and New Ecija and the gunboats Vicksburg and Albany were to co-operate with General Funston's force.

SO MANY TROOPS NOT NEEDED.

It was stated at the war department Saturday that if the favorable conditions of the past continue the number of troops necessary in the Philippines will not be as great as has been anticipated. This view of the case will not cause any cessation in enlistments, nor will any determination be reached until full and accurate information has been received from Manila.

A special to the New York Press from Washington says:

Advices from the Philippines are so encouraging for peace that the war department is considering the advisability of reducing the garrisons in the archipelago. The reorganized army will be recruited to full strength of 100,000 men, but it is believed that future requirements will not compel the administration to maintain this maximum.

About 30,000 regulars will be entitled to their discharges in the current year. It is proposed to let these soldiers return to their homes and fill their places. Thus the army can be reduced to 70,000 men in a perfectly natural way without interfering with its discipline of effectiveness.

CONVENTION SEEMS CERTAIN.

Tennessee May Have Chance to Adopt New State Charter.

A Nashville dispatch says: The advocates of a constitutional convention were temporarily discomfited a few days ago by the killing of a bill which provided for the calling of a convention to draft a new state charter.

The advocates were undaunted, however, and have been zealously at work to induce the Democrats to champion the measure.

Their efforts were rewarded Friday by the action of the joint caucus in voting to support a bill providing for the submission of the question to the electorate.

There were sufficient votes in the caucus to insure the passage of such a bill by the legislature.

A Miner Killed.

R. M. McDonald, a white miner, was killed at Blossburg Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock, being run over by a train on the Southern railroad. McDonald was walking along the track and the train which killed him backed upon him. He was horribly mutilated, both legs and both arms being cut off and his head mashed.

A Tuscaloosa dispatch says that capitalists who have been in that city several days for the purpose of investigating Tuscaloosa as a suitable location for a box factory, have decided to locate there, and establish such an enterprise.

Dr. Laird Declines.

The congregation of the Broad Street Presbyterian church, Selma, was much disappointed Saturday morning when a letter came from Rev. W. R. Laird, of Danville, Va., declining the call to the pastorate of the Selma church. A suitable successor to the beloved Dr. Cecil, who has gone to Richmond, Va., has been hard to secure and when Dr. Laird was found it was universally agreed that the right man had been selected.

A REMARKABLE AMERICAN.

A Busy Doctor, Who Raised Public Works.

The late Dr. William Pepper of Philadelphia is the subject of a biographical sketch contributed to the Cosmopolitan by Francis Newton Thorpe, which reveals a character and career long known throughout America.

In Philadelphia a bronze statue was unveiled, December 20, 189[illegible], to the memory of William Pepper [illegible] amid the creations of his genius marks the culmination of his work. Thirty years ago this was a plowed field, part of the farm. Today it overlooks the [illegible] some 25 in number, of the [illegible] of Pennsylvania, the academy of about 3000 students and [illegible] nothing is the University hospital, Free Museum of Science and [illegible] the permanent buildings of the Philadelphia Commercial museum.

Dr. Pepper was the son of a physician the celebrated "elder Pepper," he is called, to distinguish him from his son. The father pursued medical studies together with Wendell Holmes in Paris. American students rarely were [illegible]. On his return to Philadelphia he became professor of the [illegible] practice of medicine in the [illegible] acquired an extensive practice [illegible] died in 1864, at the early age [illegible] few months before the father [illegible] the son was graduated in medicine [illegible] the University of Pennsylvania.

Great physicians are rare [illegible] Is the man who also is at the same time equally great as man [illegible] as educator, and as public [illegible]. Such a man the son became. [illegible] at the age of 27, he [illegible] University hospital, and [illegible] out to raise an endowment [illegible] $750,000. In less than four [illegible] secured more than half a million [illegible] including two appropriations [illegible] each from the legislature. The hospital was formally opened in [illegible] creation was necessitated by the removal of the university from its site, where the postoffice now stands. No such task had before been [illegible] by a citizen of Philadelphia and [illegible] performance gave Dr. Pepper [illegible] among the first men of the city. At some 30 years of action his public account stood something like [illegible].

Institutions founded: the University hospital, the Commercial museum and the Philadelphia free library. Institutions re-organized and improved: the improvement of the city water supply, and an entire change in the attitude of the public mind toward education and the ideals of life. To carry out these plans, Dr. Pepper raised above $10,000,000 and secured about 100 acres of land from the municipality, lying near the heart of Philadelphia. To the execution of this task he gave the service of one of the most acute and at the same time most practical minds ever vouchsafed to man. To this service of his genius he added the personal gift of nearly half a million dollars, which he earned in the practice of an exacting profession. It may be doubted whether any other American has run a like career.

His sudden death, of angina pectoris, at Pleasantown, Cal., August 26, 189[illegible], occurred just as he had completed the first week of his 56th year. He had sought rest and health too late. His physicians said of him that at least he had the heart of a man of 50. He had literally worked himself out. A brave man, endowed with genius, a unique man, delicately aggressive, incapable of wronging his fellows, inspired with lofty ideals for the health, welfare, and happiness of his fellow men, and treating little minds as loving parents treat mischievous children—this man had gone, and left behind him, as Disraeli said of the Great Duke, "the contemplation of a character."

Secreting Money.

An Englishman at home carries his money in his right hand trousers pocket, gold, silver and coppers all mixed up together.

The American usually carries a wad of bills in a pocketbook, the long narrow ones in which the bills lie straight being the most characteristic.

The Frenchman uses a plain leather purse.

The German prefers an embroidered and beaded silk affair, the gift of some Gretchen.

The South American capitalist carries his money snugly in a money belt.

The Italian of the poorer classes ties his small fortune in a brightly colored bandanna, which he secretes about his person in some mysterious manner.

The Russian feels more secure when he has his money tucked away in his boots or perhaps in the lining of his clothes.

An Old New England Custom.

We know from Shakespeare's plays that the different roomsin English inns had names. This was also the custom in New England. The star chamber, rose and sun chamber, blue chamber, Jerusalem chamber, were some of these. Many taverns of revolutionary days and some of colonial times are still standing. A few have even been taverns since first built; others have served many other uses. A well-preserved old house, built in 1690 in Salisbury, Mass., was originally known as the Red Horse tavern, but has acquired greater fame as the Wayside Inn of Longfellow's Tales. Its tap room, with raftered ceiling and cage-like bar with swinging gate, is a picturesque room, and is one of the few old tap rooms left unaltered in New England.

Row Man Makes Brief Visit to Land of Flowers.

THE TRIP WAS A PLEASANT CHANGE

Returns Home and Ruminates Over the Royal Treatment Received at the Hands of the Floridians.

I had a pleasant visit to Florida, and have just returned. The railroads make it so easy for you now that everybody and everybody's wife can travel if he has the money. I left home one morning after early breakfast, and was in Jacksonville that night to supper with my son and his family, 415 miles in the direct route, and traveled over parts of three states. It was a daylight trip and I had opportunity to notice the changes that latitude makes in vegetation. The route to Florida is a star line from Atlanta and the west. It includes the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis, the Western and Atlantic, the Central of Georgia, the Georgia and Florida Southern to Valdosta and the Atlantic, Valdosta and Western to Jacksonville, the prettiest, cleanest and best regulated city in the south.

All of them first-class roads, with Pullman cars and dining cars and sleepers that run all the way through. They don't even tarry at Jacksonville but keep on and on to the jumping off place, if you wish to go there. That new road between Jacksonville and Valdosta has made this speed and comfort possible, for it has done away with the elbows at Tifton and Way[illegible]. The great Plant system has no[illegible] two after you get on it, but it is a long ways from Atlanta and the west. The new road was just what our people wanted. It is first class in all respects, and makes its 110 miles in less than three hours. I like these bright Florida railroads, they don't shake you about like our roads [illegible] the mountains, and they just glide along like a snake in the grass. These mountain roads swing an oil [illegible] around the curves and strain his back and loins and diaphragm and [illegible] and make him sore and stiff two or three days after he gets [illegible]. I can hardly navigate now, but yet my wife wants me to plant lettuce and beans and okra and [illegible] among the roses right away. Before all this, the cook has quit, and I got to get up by sunrise and fire the stove and put on the coffee and [illegible] and then call her to get up and [illegible] the rest of the breakfast. I used to make the biscuits, but I have struck oil; I don't believe that a man's [illegible] old horny hands were intended to mix up flour and milk and lard in [illegible] dough.

My old friend Judge Hillyer and Judge Underwood were once walking along a side street in New York, and as they passed a bakery they saw the bakers through the [illegible], and they were treading dough in long troughs with their feet. Judge Hillyer said: "Do you reckon their feet are clean?" "Well, yes," Underwood, "I reckon they are this time; they have been treading dough while." But I don't care a [illegible] about the cook quitting. I believe in self-maintenance. I believe every household should be raised to their own work when it is necessary—and I am proud to say that my wife and my children have never had a cook to stay against her will. [illegible] are easy; let her go and rest if she wants to. The fact is, it suits me very well, for the cooking is better the things are cleaner and it saves money—we get along on less victuals [illegible] can dine out with our children [illegible] day or two. We can use bakers' bread and make toast and bake Irish potatoes and fry eggs and get along without a cook.

But I was thinking about Florida—Florida that Ponce de Leon found [illegible] years before the Pilgrims found [illegible] South or John Smith found Jamestown. Fair Florida—the Eldorado of the continent. It has been hidden all these years, but has been found. Never saw the like of northern tourists at the hotels at Jacksonville are [illegible], it takes several columns of their papers to give their names. The men are fairly good-looking, but the women look tired and prematurely old. Northern women cannot compare with southern women in beauty and refinement of manners. I have known this for fifty years. They have to work too hard; poor things, I [illegible] for them. They have got [illegible] but money.

I walked round the St. James and Windsor and never saw a beautiful woman; they are masculine and [illegible], and not an angel among them. New England or New York or any of the cold, icy states won't produce fairies or sylphs or angelic creatures. They have to come as far south as Philadelphia and Baltimore to find a beautiful woman, and they are scarce there. You don't find them in [illegible] until you get down to Charleston and Savannah. Down here where they are nearly all good-looking graceful and, as David Harum [illegible], are coupled well and stand up on their pasture joints and [illegible] like a deer. This is their fortune, not only from heredity but climate, but because our men are chivalric to their wives and sisters and do not work them so [illegible].

A recent number of a New York paper gave our long-haired philanthropists fearfully in earnest about the poor negroes, but you never hear them regulating the toil of a woman in a retail store. She rises at Hartow Man Makes Brief Visit to Land of Flowers.

THE TRIP WAS A PLEASANT CHANGE

Leaves Home and Nominates Over the Royal Treatment Received at the Hands of the Floridians.

I had a pleasant call to Florida, and have just returned. The railroads make it so easy for you now that even a veteran can travel if he has the money. I left home one morning after my breakfast, and was in Jacksonville that night to supper with my boy and his family, 415 miles in thirteen hours, and traveled over parts of four states. It includes the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis, the Western and Atlantic, the Central to Macon, the Georgia and Florida Southern to Valdosta and the Atlantic, Valdosta and Western to Jacksonville, the prettiest, cleanest and best regulated city in the south.

All of them first-class roads, with parlor cars and dining cars and sleepers that run all the way through. They don't even tarry at Jacksonville, but keep on and on to the jumping off place, if you wish to go there. That new road between Jacksonville and Valdosta has made this speed and comfort possible, for it has done away with the elbows at Tifton and Waycross. I like these fast trains on railroads; they don't shake like our roads in the mountains, and they just scare a snake in the grass. These locomotives swing an old man around the curves and strain his heart and diaphragm and bruise a rattlesnake him sore and stiff for two or three days after he gets off. I can hardly navigate now, but my wife wants me to plant the cotton and beans and okra and corn among the roses right away. Besides all this, the cook has quit, and I have to get up early sunrise and fire the stove and put on the coffee and bacon and then call her to get up and cook the rest of the breakfast. I used to raise the biscuits, but I have struck a trail. I don't believe that a man's rough old horny hands were intended to mix spoil or and milk and lard in decent dough.

My old friend Judge Hillyer and old Judge Underwood were once walking along a side street in New York, and as they passed a bakery they saw the bakers through the windows, and they were treading dough in the long troughs with their feet. Judge Hillyer said: "Do you reckon their feet are clean?" "Well, yes," said Underwood, "I reckon they are this time; they have been treading dough while." I have been to this for fifty years. They have to work too hard; poor things, I am sorry for them. They have got no money.

I was around the St. James and Duval and never saw a beautiful woman. They are masculine and have an angel among them. In New York or any of the northern states won't produce such angelic creatures. You have to come as far south as Louisville and Baltimore to find a beautiful woman, and they are scarce there. You don't find them in Atlanta and Savannah. Down here where they are nearly all good-looking and graceful and, as David Harum said, are coupled well and stand up square on their pasture joints and look like a deer. This is their inherited formation, not only from heredity and climate, but because our men are more chivalric to their wives and daughters and do not work them so hard.

A recent number of a New York paper says our long-haired philanthropists are fearfully in earnest about the southern negroes, but you never hear them regulating the toil of a woman work in a retail store. She rises at 5 o'clock every morning, cooks her own breakfast and spends a nickel for car fare; she attends to all receipts and shipments, she keeps the books and balances the cash; she is not allowed one second for luncheon, and never eats in the middle of the day. She does not go home till after 7 and on Saturday nights till after 12 o'clock. Her salary is $7 a week. She is bright and interesting, and of good family. For her $7 a week she labors never less than ninety and often one hundred hours, and this is about 8 cents an hour. There is no hope for this girl except in matrimony, and the right man will not find her.

And yet these northern philanthropists will skip over them all and, like Ogden & Co., make a tour down south to see how the negro is getting on—the best contented race upon the earth.

From Jacksonville I dropped down to High Springs, where the good ladies of the New Century Club were calling me. I had a delightful time—an ovation of young maids and matrons and old veterans whose gray hairs and care-worn faces reminded me of the passing years and the passing of the old soldiers of the confederacy. These veterans will soon all be gone, for—

"Time cuts down all,
Both great and small,
Except a pensioned soldier;
They do not die,
But multiply
As fast as they grow older."

We have but 70,000 left now, all told; but they have nearly a million up north on the pension rolls.

High Springs is on a boom of improvement. The Plant system has its largest hospital there, and its most extensive shops, except those in Savannah. Everybody is busy and everybody seems contented and happy. I was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Gracy, whose beautiful home and lovely little children made me feel at home. Wherever I find little children I have no fear, and I do as I please, and eat with my knife and drink coffee out of my saucer if I want to. The good-looking mayor was selected to introduce me to the audience, but not being used to such performances, forget his little speech and began with, "Now I lay me down to sleep," and so they had to get the preacher to take his place. I shall not soon forget the kindness of those good people of High Springs, and especially the cordial greeting I received from the twenty-one ladies of the New Century club. The Scriptures tell us that the time will come when seven women shall lay hold of one man, but I was captured by three times seven and maintained myself well considering my antiquity.

In a thorough "Beetles" spirit Rudyard Kipling tackles the evils of British railroad traffic in the Fortnightly Review. His irritation at many old crusted abuses, the unpunctual trains, the overcrowded carriages, the confusion at stations and the maddening time tables is expressed in the form of an Arabian Nights tale. He suggests first that every one who has a grievance against the railroad management should write to each director personally and keep on writing till the directors become distracted. Next he proposes that billboards be erected by the side of the tracks and covered with sarcastic placards in large letters and, finally, that when by accident a train arrives on time the public should overwhelm the company with mock applause. It is an amusing bit of fooling.

Clarence Mackay has ordered in Paris a $17,000 automobile "to beat anything in America." American inventors and manufacturers may have something to say about this.

REV. DR. TALMAGE.

DISCOURSE BY THE EMINENT DIVINE LAST SUNDAY.

Subject: Good Influences—The Mission of the "Writer's Inkhorn"—How It Makes For the World's Betterment—The Inkstand of the World's Evangelization.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—In a new way and from a peculiar text Dr. Talmage discourses of good influences brought to bear for the world's improvement. The text is Ezekiel ix. 2, "And one man among them was clothed with linen, with a writer's inkhorn by his side."

The poem from which my text is taken is epic, lyric, dramatic, weird and overpowering. It is more than Homeric or Dantesque. No one ever had such divine dreams as Ezekiel. In a vision this prophet had seen wrathful angels, destroying angels, each with a sword, but in my text he sees a merciful angel with an inkhorn. The receptacle for the ink in olden time was made out of the horn of a cow or a ram or a roebuck, as now it is made out of metal or glass, and therefore was called the inkhorn, as now we say inkstand. We have all spoken of the power of the sword, of the power of wealth, of the power of office, of the power of social influence, but to-day I speak of the power for good or evil in the inkstand. It is upon your tables, holding a black or blue or red liquid. It is a fortress, an armory, a gateway, a ransom or a demolition. "You mistake," says some one. "It is the pen that has the power." No, my friend. What is the influence of a dry pen? Pass it up and down a sheet of paper, and it leaves no mark. It expresses no opinion. It gives no warning. It spreads no intelligence. It is the liquid which the pen dips out of the inkstand that does the work. Here and there a celebrated pen, with which a Declaration of Independence or a Magna Charta or a treaty was signed has been kept in literary museum or national archives, but for the most part the pens, whether, as of old, made out of reed or later of wing of bird or still later of metallic substance, have disappeared, while the liquid which the pens took from the inkstand remains in scroll, which, if put together, would be large enough to enwrap the round world. For practical, for moral, for religious, for eternal purposes, I speak of the mission of "the writer's inkhorn."

First, I mention that which is purely domestic. The inkstand is in every household. It awaits the opportunity to express affection or condolence or advice. Father uses it; mother uses it; the sons and daughters use it. It tells the home news; it announces the marriage, the birth, the departure, the accident, the last sickness, the death. That home inkstand what a mission it has already executed, and what other missions will it yet fulfill! May it stand off from all insincerity and all querulousness. Let it tell only that which it would be well to read after the hand that wrote it and the hand that received it can write no more. Dip out of that inkstand only that which is paternal, maternal, final, sisterly, brotherly. Sacred let it be, not to what are sometimes called the "household gods," but to the one and the only God who "setteth the solitary in families." Dip out of it solace for parents on the descending grade of years and encouragement for those who are climbing the steeps.

The carvers and glass blowers are ever busy making more ornate and skillful bowls for the ink, but not one of them will be so sacred as the old fashioned inkstand out of which was dipped the liquid for the making of the family record on the blank leaves in the Bible between the Old and the New Testaments, not so many leaves now blank as before recent years made birthday or mortuary insertions. From that home inkstand the child dips out material for those large and awkward letters that one always makes when learning to write, and from it are taken the trembling letters that show the wrinkled hand is gradually forgetting its cunning.

Oh, ye who have with recent years set homes of your own, out of the new home inkstand write often to the old folks, if they be still living. A letter means more to them than to us, who are amid the activities of life and to whom postal correspondence is more than we can manage. They await the coming of the letter. Undertake no great thing in life without their advice. Old people for counsel; young people for action. Even though through decadence they may be incompetent to give valuable opinions on important affairs, compliment them by asking their counsel. It will do them good; it will make their last days exhilarant. Make that home inkstand a source of rejuvenescence to those who are near the terminus of the earthly journey. Domestic correspondence is not attended to at once. The newspaper, joining with the telegraph, bears the tidings of all the neighborhood, but swiftest revolving wheel of modern printing press and quickest flash along the electric wires can never do the sympathetic work of the home inkstand. As the merciful angel of my text appeared before the brazen altar with the inkhorn at his side in Ezekiel's vision, so let the angel of filial kindness appear at the altars of the old homestead.

Furthermore, the inkstand of the business man has its mission. Between now and the hour of your demise, O commercial man, O professional man, there will not be a day when you cannot dip from the inkhorn a message that will influence temporal and eternal destiny. There is a rash young man running into wild speculation, and with as much ink as you can put on the pen at one time you may save him from the Niagara rapids of a ruined life. On the next street there is a young man started in business who through lack of patronage or mistake in purchase of goods or want of adaptation is on the brink of collapse. One line of ink from your pen will save him from being an underling all his life and start him on a career that will win him a fortune which will enable him to become an endower of libraries, an opener of art galleries and builder of churches.

The most largely successful and useful men of our time once wore an old coat because they could not afford a new one, and got wages less than that which they pay their cook or butler. It will be a mighty thing if out of your inkstand you can dip a man's earthly and everlasting fortune. Dip out of that inkstand not one word of disheartenment. People have enough burdens to carry without your adding one ounce to the heft. From your inkstand put not one blot on an honest ambition. Keep all the whole of your factory spinning rays of sunshine. If you are a Christian man, put into your business letters an adroit, moral, religious suggestion that will keep the receiver thinking after he has left the counting room for his home and far on into the night when he lies upon a wakeful pillow. To-morrow morning at 11 o'clock, as you begin to answer your letters, you will have on the nib of your pen enough ink to save a soul from death and hide a multitude of sins.

Furthermore, great are the responsibilities of the author's inkhorn. All the people, or nearly all the people, read, and that which they read decides their morals or immorals, their prosperity or failure, their faith or their unbelief, their purity or corruption, their heaven or hell. Show me any man's library, great or small, and after examining the books, finding those with leaves uncut, but displayed for sake of the binding, and those worn with frequent perusal, and without ever seeing the man or knowing his name, I will tell you his likes and his dislikes, his morals, good or bad or indifferent, his qualifications for business or artistic or professional or mechanical life. The best index to any man's character is the book he prefers above all others. Oh, the power of a book for good or evil!

Abraham Lincoln in early life read Paine's "Age of Reason," and it so influenced him that he wrote an essay against Christianity. But afterward some Christian books came into his hands and gloriously changed his mind and made him a most ardent friend of the Bible and a man of prayer. A letter in Mr. Lincoln's own handwriting is in my house, the letter in response to some resolutions passed by a Methodist conference, saying: "In response to your address allow me to attest the accuracy of its historical statements, indorse the sentiments it expresses and thank you in the nation's name for the core promise it gives. Nobly sustained as the Government has been by all the churches, I would utter nothing which might in the least appear invidious against any. Yet without this it may fairly be said that the Methodist Episcopal Church, not less devoted than the best, is by its great numbers the most important of all. It is no fault in others that the Methodist church sends more soldiers to the field, more nurses to the hospital and more prayers to heaven than any. God bless the Methodist church, bless all the churches, and blessed be God, who in this, our great trial, giveth us the churches."

What a great thing it was that the Christian books which Mr. Lincoln read obliterated from his mind the infidel literature! William Carey became a missionary by reading "The Voyages of Captain Cook." John Wesley's life was shaped by reading Jeremy Taylor's "Holy Living and Dying." There are books in your library or lying on your parlor table or secreted in some place by your child that will decide for two worlds, this and the next, the character of its reader.

When a bad book is printed, you do well to blame the publisher, but most of all blame the author. The malaria rose from his inkstand; the poison that caused the moral or spiritual death dropped in the fluid from the tin of his pen. The manufacturer of that ink could tell you that it is made of tannin and salt of iron and nut galls and green vitriol, but many an author has dipped from his inkstand hypercriticism and malevolence and slander and salaciousness, as from a fountain of death.

Among the most important are the editorial and reportorial inkstands. The thick ink on the printer's roller is different from the ink into which the writer dips his pen and is compounded of linseed oil and lampblack and made thick by boiling or burning. But the editorial and reportorial pens are responsible for that which the printer's ink roller impresses upon the flying sheets. Where one man reads a book, 500 men read a newspaper. What change of opinion in regard to the printing press since the day when the great Addison wrote concerning it, "One cannot but be sorry that such a pernicious machine is erected among them," and when, under the reign of Charles II., only one newspaper, the London Gazette, was allowed to be printed, and that only on Mondays and Thursdays! Not until the judgment day, when the forces which have influenced the world shall be compared and announced, will be known the power of the modern newspaper.

Thomas Guthrie dipped into it and brought up "The Gospel In Ezekiel." John Cumming dipped into it and brought up "The Apocalypse." Oh! the opulence of Christian literature! Oh, the mighty streams of evangelistic power that have poured from the writer's inkhorn that appeared in Ezekiel's vision!

While you recognize the distinguished ones who have dipped into the inkstand of the world's evangelization do not forget that there are hundreds of thousands of unknown men and women who are engaged in inconspicuous ways doing the same thing. How many anxious mothers writing to the boys in town! How many sisters writing encouragement to brothers far away! How many invalids bolstered up in bed, the inkhorn on the stand at their side, writing letters of condolence to those worse off than themselves! They are flying all the time kind words, gospel words, helpful words, saving words.

Call the evangelistic inkhorn into service in the early morning, when you feel well, and you are grateful for the protection during your sleeping hours, and write before you retire at close of day to those who all night long will be saying, "Would to God it were morning!" How many bruised and disappointed and wronged souls of earth would be glad to get a letter from you! Stir up that consolatory inkhorn.

All Christendom has been waiting for great revivals of religion to start from the pulpit and prayer meetings. I now suggest that the greatest revival of all time may start from a concerted and organized movement through the inkhorns of all Christendom, each writer dipping from the inkhorn nearest him a letter of gospel invitation, gospel hope, gospel warning, gospel instruction. The ink is all ready on a hundred thousand tables, and beside it are the implements with which to dip it out. Why not through such process have millions of souls brought to God before next summer? By letter you could make the invitation more effective than by word of mouth. The invitation from your lips may be argued back, may evoke querulous reply, may be answered by a joke, but a good, warm, gospel letter, written in prayer, and started with prayer, and followed by prayer, will be read over and over again and cannot be answered in a frivolous way.

Within arm's reach of where you sit there may be a fluid that you may put on wing with message of light and love. Oh, for the swift flying angel of mercy which Ezekiel saw in vision "with a writer's inkhorn by his side."

The other angels spoken of in my text were destroying angels, and each had what the Bible calls a "slaughter weapon" in his hand. It was a lance or a battleax or a sword. God hasten the time when the last lance shall be shivered, and the last battleax dulled, and the last sword sheathed, and the angel of the text, who Matthew Henry says was the Lord Jesus Christ, shall from the full inkhorn of His mercy give a saving call to all nations. That day may be far off, but it is helpful to think of its coming.

As Dr. Raleigh declared that when thirty-six miles at sea off the coast of New England the cattle on board the ship as well as himself scented the clover on the New England hills, so we amid all the tossing waves of the world's controversies inhale the redolence of the white lilies of universal peace.

If our Bible is true—and no other book that was ever printed is as true as that book, which Moses began and John finished—then the time will come when all the weapons of cruelty will stop, and the inkhorns of evangelization will have their way. In the museums of the world the carbine and the cannon and the bomb will be kept as curiosities, and children will be incredulous as parents tell them that civilized nations once employed such instruments of death, and more incredulous when told by their parents that the army that killed the most men was considered the most glorious army. The red horse of carnage that St. John saw in vision and the black horse of famine and the pale horse of death will be stabled, and the white horse of prosperity and peace mounted by the King of Kings, will lead the great army with banners. Through the convicting, converting, sanctifying power of the Eternal Spirit may we all march in that procession! Hail, thou Mighty Rider of the white horse in the final triumph! Sweep down and sweep by, thou Angel of the New Covenant, with the inkhorn of the world's evangelization! "The mountains and the hills shall break forth into singing, and all the trees of the field shall clap their hands. Instead of the thorn shall come up the fir tree, and instead of the brier shall come up the myrtle tree, and it shall be to the Lord for a name, for an everlasting sign that shall not be cut off."

THE SABBATH SCHOOL

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR MARCH 31.

Review of the First Quarter, Isaiah liii. 1-12 — Golden Text, He is Despised and Rejected of Men, Isaiah liii., 3—Summary of the Twelve Lessons.

Introduction.—The lessons this quarter embrace but six days in the life of Christ; from Saturday evening, April 1, when He was anointed by Mary at Simon's house, to Friday afternoon, April 7, when He died on the cross and was buried by Joseph. But what great and stirring events have occurred in that short space of time!

Lesson 1. Topic: Honoring Christ. Place: Bethany. It is six days before the Passover, and Jesus is at the house of Simon, the leper. While sitting at meat Mary anoints the head and feet of Christ, using a pound of very precious ointment, valued at about $50. The disciples are indignant, and think it should have been sold and given to the poor. Jesus rebukes them, and commends the woman very highly. Judas agrees to betray Jesus for thirty pieces of silver, or $16.96.

2. Topic: Christ announced as King. Place: Jerusalem. Jesus and His disciples journeying toward Jerusalem; two disciples sent to Bethphage to secure a colt; the colt is brought to Jesus; the disciples spread their garments on the animal and set Jesus thereon; the prophecy in Zech. 9: 9 is fulfilled; a great multitude shout "Hosanna!" and spread garments and strew branches in the way; Jesus cleanses the temple; children praise Him.

3. Topic: Christ confirming the faith of the Gentiles. Place: Jerusalem. The Greeks at the Passover desire to see Jesus. Andrew and Philip tell Jesus; Jesus teaches the people; tells of His death and the glory to follow. As a grain of wheat must die before it bears fruit, so Christ must die in order to save the world. Christ is troubled in soul; God spake from heaven.

4. Topic: The great commandment. Place: Jerusalem. Jesus still in the temple. The Herodians, Sadducees and Pharisees ask Him hard questions, testing Him. All are silenced. The great commandment is given by Christ. We should love God supremely. Sin, the world and the self life must all be renounced. We should love our neighbor. Christ questions the Pharisees: How is Christ both the son of David and also David's Lord?

5. Topic: The duty of watching. Place: Mount of Olives. The subjects of Christ's kingdom are likened to ten virgins. Christ is the Bridegroom, and the oil represents the grace of God. The foolish virgins had the lamp of profession, but lacked oil—true spiritual life. They endeavored to make good their preparation at the last moment, but it was too late. The wise are the true Christians who not only had a profession, but the love of God in the soul.

6. Topic: The duty and reward of faithfulness. Place: Mount of Olives. The talents are given and the master takes his journey. Two servants make a large gain, the third buries his talent. The master's return, though delayed, is certain. So Christ will surely come again. Two servants come to their master and bring the talents given them and as many more. They are commended and rewarded. The idle servant has no increase, but hard sayings and excuses. He is cast into outer darkness.

7. Topic: Christ our Passover. Place: Jerusalem. It was Thursday; Jesus sent Peter and John to Jerusalem to prepare the passover supper; they found a large upper room where they made ready; in the evening Jesus sat at the table with His disciples; He told them that one of them should betray Him; they were sorrowful and every one asked, "Lord, is it I?" Jesus said it would have been better for that man never to have been born; He then told Judas that He was the one; Judas left; Jesus eats His last supper with the remaining eleven.

8. Topic: The sufferings of Christ. Place: Gethsemane. Jesus and eleven disciples enter the garden; eight are left near the entrance; Peter, James and John go with Him into the garden. Jesus agonizes in prayer; His sweat is like blood; He prays for strength; an angel is sent; three times He asks His disciples to watch with Him; three times He finds them sleeping. We should watch and pray.

9. Topic: The arrest of Christ. Place: Gethsemane. It was in the middle of the night; Judas and a band of Roman soldiers came to arrest Jesus; they have torches and weapons. What a picture is Judas of a fallen human being! For years he had listened to the teachings of his Divine Master. He had seen the multitudes fed, sea calmed, and the dead raised. He could not help but know that Jesus was the Son of God; and yet, for a few paltry pieces of silver he enters the quiet retreat of the Saviour and covers His face with kisses as a sign to the officers that He is the one they are seeking. What hypocrisy! To what depths can a fallen man descend! Jesus shows Himself to them; they fall backwards to the ground; Jesus asks that His disciples be permitted to go their way; Peter cuts off the servant's ear; Jesus tells Peter to put up his sword, and heals the ear; Jesus arrested, bound and taken away.

10. Topic: The accusations against Christ. Place: The palace of Caiaphas. Jesus is sent from Annas to Caiaphas the high priest; Peter follows afar off and thrice denies the Saviour; the Sanhedrin is hastily summoned; false witnesses are sought and are found with difficulty; at last two testify that He said He could destroy the temple and build it in three days; Jesus is silent; Caiaphas asks Him if He is the Christ; Jesus replies that He is; Caiaphas rent his clothes; Jesus is condemned to death.

11. Topic: Pilate seeking to release Jesus. Place: Pilate's judgment hall. Jesus is taken to Pilate, the governor, who investigates the charges and finds them false; Jesus is sent to Herod, who finds no fault with Christ. Pilate calls the people together and desires to release Christ; they demand that He be crucified; three times Pilate urges His release; they demand the release of Barabbas, a murderer; Pilate yields; washes his hands.

12. Topic: Closing scenes in Christ's earthly life. Place: Mount Calvary. Christ on the cross; mocked by the soldiers; vinegar offered; the superscription; the two thieves crucified with Christ; one railed on Jesus, the other confessed his sins and asked to be remembered in Christ's kingdom; the prayer answered; darkness from 12 till 3 o'clock; Jesus cried with a loud voice and died; the centurion's testimony; Joseph begged the body of Jesus; wrapped It in linen and laid It in a new sepulchre.

At a meeting of the committee appointed at a mass meeting of citizens of Washington for the purpose of presenting Admiral Schley with a modest home, held tonight, it was reported that about $6,000 has been contributed to the fund. It is expected that by April 15th, $15,000 will have been raised, and this will be used to purchase a home in the suburbs of Washington to be presented to the admiral on his arrival in this country about April 20th.

ISLANDS PAID FOR.

Treasury Warrant For $100,000 Is Turned Over to Spanish Minister at Washington.

At Washington Saturday the Spanish minister, Duke D'Arcos received from Secretary Hay a treasury warrant for $100,000 and the United States received the final cession of "any and all islands in the Philippine archipelago lying outside of the line described in article 3 of the treaty of peace between Spain and the United States of December 19, 1898."

At the same time a protocol was signed by Mr. Hay and Duke D'Arcos exchanging ratifications of the treaty of cession. The specific purpose of the transaction is to add the islands of Cagayan-Sulu and Sibitu to the possessions of the United States.

The ceremony attending the exchange of the ratifications and the payment of the $100,000 warrant was an interesting one. The Duke D'Arcos arrived at the state department by appointment at 10 o'clock. He had with him the Spanish version of the treaty, handsomely engrossed and bearing the signature of the queen regent of Spain and the Spanish royal seal.

Mr. Hay joined the minister in the diplomatic room. The officials long in charge of the execution of treaties and ratifications were called in. The American text of the treaty bearing the signature of President McKinley, was handed Mr. Hay and he in turn presented Duke D'Arcos with the ratification executed by President McKinley. The treaties in each case were handsomely bound, that of Spain being in red, with the royal arms in gold, while America's was bound in dark blue, bearing the national coat of arms. A brief protocol was then signed. It recited the formalities of ratification of the treaty signed at Washington November 7th, 1900, providing for the cession of any and all islands of the Philippine archipelago, etc.

The treasury warrant for $100,000 had been prepared in advance and was handed to the Spanish minister. There was an exchange of felicitations over the close of the transaction, and the Duke D'Arcos departed with his $100,000 warrant and the ratified treaty.

THE KOREA LAUNCHED.

Largest Steamer Ever Built on This Side Floated at Newport News.

The Pacific Mail liner Korea, the largest vessel ever built for the American merchant marine service, was launched at the yard of the Newport News, Va., Ship Building Company Saturday. A crowd of 20,000 people witnessed the event. Miss Katharine Winthrop Tweed, daughter of the president of the Pacific Mail Company, christened the Korea.

The Korea is the largest steam vessel ever built on this side of the Atlantic. With a length 572 feet 4 inches and a beam of 63 feet, she will displace 18,600 tons on a draught of 27 feet. Some idea of the size of the Korea may be derived from the fact that from the top to the bottom of the bare hull is a distance of forty feet, while the distance around the rail is nearly a quarter of a mile.

She is to be fitted with engines of 18,000 horse-power, sufficient to propel her at a speed of from 18 to 20 knots. The Korea will accommodate 1,400 passengers, of whom 200 will be first cabin passengers. She is designed for the Pacific Mail Steamship Co. to ply between San Francisco and Hong Kong.

Just as the Korea slipped down the ways, George Bannaster, a colored man among the employees gathered about the vessel, was struck by one of the falling props and received injuries from which he died within a few hours.

RESPONSIBILITY IS PLACED.

Blame of the Rio De Janeiro Wreck Laid on Captain and Pilot.

Captains O. F. Bolles and J. K. Bulger, United States inspectors of hulls and boilers, have handed down their decision at San Francisco on the responsibility for the wreck of the City of Rio De Janeiro February 22d at entrance of the Golden Gate. Their decision places the blame for the wreck upon the late Captain Ward and Pilot Jordan. The pilot being a state officer, is not under the jurisdiction of the United States inspectors and they have no power to punish him.

China Is Relenting.

A dispatch to the Cologne Gazette (Berlin) from Pekin, dated Thursday, March 21, says an imperial decree in accordance with article 10 of the peace conditions has been placarded on the walls of Pekin threatening all anti-foreign societies with punishment.

Big Blaze in Milwaukee.

Fire at Milwaukee Friday night completely wiped out the big piano establishment of William Boehling & Sons, on Broadway, and wrought further destruction to adjoining property, entailing a loss close to $300,000, fully covered by insurance.

A Washington dispatch dated March 23, says: It was stated at the war department today that if the favorable conditions of the past month continue, the number of troops necessary in the Philippines will not be as great as has been anticipated. This view of the case will not cause any cession in enlistments nor will any determination be reached until full and accurate information has been received from Manila.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

FOR DELEGATE FROM CHILTON COUNTY:

DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE:

H. W. CAFFEY.

POPULIST NOMINEE:

L. H. REYNOLDS.

THREE weeks from next Tuesday and the people of Alabama will have to decide the momentous question of Constitutional Convention or no Convention. Two ballots will be provided—the first will be for the voter to say whether he wishes a Constitutional Convention to be held or not, and on the second he will vote for such men as he prefers to represent him in the Convention, providing that a majority of the voters decide that the Convention shall be held.

THE BANNER never seeks to dodge any question, and on this particular issue we wish to state unequivocally that we are opposed to the proposed convention and hope there will be a large majority against it. We do not believe there is any necessity for a radical change in the Constitution of the State, and if any alteration is needed it could best be accomplished by specific amendments.

We do not believe it is right or proper that the Constitution of the State should be framed by any one particular political party, but if it should be expedient for the State to adopt a new Constitution it should be framed by, not one political party alone, but by members of all political parties. A constitution should be prepared by patriots, not by partisans.

It is evident from the indifference displayed in the recent Democratic primaries that the mass of the people are not troubling themselves about a new Constitution, and the inference is that at the election on April 23, they will vote against it.

At the same time it is the duty of every voter to vote for the candidates he thinks will best represent him in the convention should it be held. So far as Chilton is concerned it appears highly probable there will be only one opposition candidate for the voter to vote for.

Every voter will have the privilege of voting for one delegate from Chilton county, one delegate from each Senatorial District, two delegates from each Congressional District, and four from the State at large.

In the Senatorial District, the Congressional District, and from the State at large, it seems there will be only Democratic nominees to vote for. In Chilton county the voter has his choice between Dr. H. W. Caffey the Democratic nominee, and Hon L. H. Reynolds, the Populist nominee. Both are good men, and as we understand them, both hold very similar views on this Constitutional convention question. If Dr. Caffey is elected from Chilton it appears to us, at this time, there will be an unanimous Democratic Convention. If Mr. Reynolds is elected it seems that at all events the Democratic party will have at least an opposition of one. We cannot see any signs of another oppositon candidate being elected anywhere in the State, although it is quite possible some of the Democratic nominees may be opposed to any alteration of the present Constitution.

Not a solitary voter should stay at home on this election day. Every man should turn out and vote one way or the other, but we believe you cannot do wrong in voting "No Convention."

ON Monday the Populist convention was held at the court house at Clanton. The convention was called to order by L. B. Pounds, and Judge Adams was elected temporary chairman, E. B. Deason, secretary and J. D. Collins, assistant secretary. On motion the temporary organization was made the permanent organization, and the convention got down to business.

Judge Adams made a short speech in which he said this was the most important convention and election the county had ever held or possibly would ever hold, as in it was involved the privilege of free men to the right of suffrage. He then offered the following resolution, which was unanimously carried by a rising vote:

Whereas, the Democrats of the State have called a constitutional convention, and whereas the election of a delegate from this county has been called for April 23, 1901, be it therefore

Resolved: By the People's Party in convention assembled at the court house at Clanton, that we are opposed to said constitutional convention, and we urge all patriotic citizens to go to the polls and vote against the constitutional convention, and for the nominee of this convention.

The next order of business was the nomination of a delegate to the constitutional convention. The name of E. B. Deason was first submitted to the convention, but at the request of Mr. Deason it was withdrawn.

Judge Adams was next put in nomination and the Judge made a short address requesting that his name be withdrawn, which was done.

L. H. Reynolds was then put in nomination by several of the delegates and he was unanimously nominated.

Mrs. C. E. VanDensen, of Kibourn, Wis, was afflicted with stomach trouble and constipaton for a long time. She says, "I have tried many preparations but none have done me the good that Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets have." These Tablets are for sale at Clanton Drug Co. and D. I. Remarkable Cures of Rheumatism

From the Vindicator, Rutherfordton, N.C.

The editor of the Vindicator has had occasion to test the efficacy of Chamberlain's Pain Balm twice with the most remarkable results in each case. First with rheumatism in the shoulder from which he suffered excruciating pain for ten days, which was relieved with two applications of Pain Balm, rubbing the parts afflicted and realizing instant benefit and entire relief in a very short time. Second, in rheumatism in thigh joint, almost prostrating him with severe pain, which was relieved by two applications, rubbing with the liniment on retiring at night and getting up free from pain. KITCHENER'S TERMS TO BOER LEADER

Correspondence Between Generals Given Out.

ENGLAND DEMANDS TOO MUCH

Interesting Story of British General's Proposals and Rejection of Same By the Boers.

A London special says: The preliminary papers giving details of the negotiations between the commander in chief, General Botha, and Lord Kitchener, commanding the British forces in South Africa, issued Friday morning, began with a telegram from Sir Alfred Milner to Colonial Secretary Chamberlain. The dispatch is dated Pretoria, February 22d, and states that Mrs. General Botha had returned from a meeting with her husband bringing a letter in reply to Sir Alfred Milner's verbal message offering to meet General Botha as a means of ending the war on the express understanding that he would not discuss the question of independence of the Transvaal and the Orange river colony.

Mrs. Botha assured Sir Alfred that the letter was written with that point clearly understood. General Botha referred the matter to his generals and it was stated that the meeting would probably take place at Middleburg.

Mr. Chamberlain replied that he was glad to hear of General Botha's desire to treat and hoped it was genuine.

"He will find us," said the colonial secretary, "anxious to meet him on all points affecting his individual position."

On February 27th, Sir Alfred Milner cabled Lord Kitchener informing him that General Botha had written that he would be in Pretoria at 10 o'clock a. m., February 28th.

A dispatch from Lord Kitchener to the war office, dated Pretoria, February 28th, reports a long interview with General Botha, who showed very good feeling and seemed anxious for peace. He asked for information which, he said, he would submit to his government, the generals and the people. If they agreed he would visit the Orange river colony and get them to agree.

Lord Kitchener arranged to communicate Botha's views to the government. All that he said was qualified by being subject to confirmation by the home government. On March 5 Sir Alfred Milner cabled Lord Kitchener suggesting the following replies to General Botha:

"I beg to inform you that on the cessation of hostilities and the complete surrender of arms, ammunition, cannon and munitions in the hands of burghers in the field at government depots or elsewhere his majesty's government is prepared at once to grant amnesty in the Transvaal and Orange river colony for all bona fide acts of war during the hostilities, as well as move the governments of Cape Coloney and Natal to similar action qualified by the disfranchisement of any British subjects implicated in the war. The military prisoners at St. Helena, Ceylon and elsewhere, on complete surrender, shall be brought back to their country. Military law shall at once be replaced by a civil administration, but it is the desire of his majesty's government as soon as circumstances will permit to establish a representative government. On the cessation of hostilities a high court, independent of the executive, shall be established to administer the law. Church property, trusts and orphan funds shall be respe.. English and Dutch languages shall be taught in the public schools and used in the law courts.

"Legal debts of the estate to the amount of £1,000,000 shall be paid, even if contracted during hostilities, to the extent a creditor proves he has given values. The government does not intend to extend the franchise to Kaffirs in the Transvaal and Orange River colony before a represented government is granted."

The conditions regarding assistance to the farmers, firearms, etc., are the same as those in Lord Kitchener's replies to General Botha. Sir Alfred Milner says that he agrees to the above except as to the desires for modification regarding British subjects in Cape Colony and Natal in the Boer army, who, if they returned to those colonies, will be liable to be dealt with under the laws of those colonies passed to meet circumstances arising in war. He asked:

"While I am willing to concede much in order to strengthen General Botha in inducing the people to submit, amnesty for the rebels is not, in my opinion, a point which his majesty's government can afford to concede. I think it would have a deplorable effect upon Cape Colony and Natal to obtain peace by such a concession."

NINE-YEAR MYSTERY CLEARED.

Bones of Missing Ohio Man Found in Florida and Identified.

The skeleton of James Tod arrived at Warren, O., Saturday and a mystery was cleared away. Nine years ago James Tod, of Warren, a nephew of War Governor Tod, disappeared from Dayton, O. One day the past week his skeleton was found near Spruce creek, in Florida, and was identified by gold fillings in his teeth, a watch and a ring of keys.

CZAR IS GUARDED.

Life of Russian Ruler Is Constantly in Danger of Being Cut Short.

The St. Petersburg correspondent of The Cologne Volks Zeitung (Berlin) under date of March 17th, forwards by mail news to the effect that there is evidence in St. Petersburg of the existence of plots against the authorities. He asserts that sums of money are being distributed to the factory hands in St. Petersburg and vicinity to induce them to join the disaffected students. It has not been learned whence this money comes, but indications point to high sources about the court. The fact is, the correspondent continues, the secret police no longer trust even the highest entourage of the czar.

New precautions for the protection of the czar's life have been taken, namely, a mechanism which allow no one to open the doors of the room in which the czar happens at the moment to be. The czar now has five desks in his study, which he uses one after the other; the walls of the walls of the czar's study and bedroom are lined with steel armor. The correspondent finds that evidence of the plots was general.

Orders were recently given to keep all the troops in St. Petersburg ready. Sundsy the police were distributed in force on all the main streets of the city. The military commander of St. Petersburg, M. Kleigels, received a number of warnings.

The Berliner Tageblatt points a special dispatch from St. Petersburg by way of Lemberg, to the effect that the Karpovitch investigation has revealed a great plot, similar to the nihilistic conspiracy, with Kieff as a center, the main branch at Odessa and ramifications extending to the lowest strata of society. The plan was to make an attempt on the life of the czar, who was thereupon removed to Gratchinia.

WAR ON VAGRANTS.

Atlanta Police Make Big Raid On Negro Dives and Poolrooms.

A dispatch from Atlanta, Ga., says: The police carried out a simultaneous raid on all the negro dives and poolrooms in that city Friday and one hundred and fourteen negroes were arrested and locked up on the charge of idling and loitering. A large majority of the arrests occurred during the morning.

It was the biggest raid of the kind ever made by the Atlanta police, and it was the outcome of the recent determination of the mayor and the police authorities to rid the city of the loafers and vagrants by putting as many of them as possible in the chaingang.

Simultaneously the negro rool rooms in the city were surrounded by the police and the raids made. All the patrol wagons were run out and the negroes hauled to the police barracks and locked up. A few negroes who were not vagrants, but who were caught in bad company, were arrested, and these were afterwards released, but the big majority were the very class the police were after, and they will be tried and sentenced by the recorder.

DEADLOCK STILL ON.

Nebraska Republican Legislators Unable To Elect Senators.

A dispatch from Lincoln, Nebraska, says: Fifty-four Republicans went into caucus Friday night again in an effort to end the long term senatorial deadlock. Balloting up to 11 o clock was without material change. The feature of the joint convention ballot at noon Friday was the gain of D. E. Thompson of one vote, that of State Senator Crounse, heretofore one of the strongest of Mr. Thompson's opponents. The proceedings bordered on the sensational. Mr. Crounse said Mr. Thompson was not his choice for the short term, but he believed it a duty he owed his constituents to end the deadlock if he could.

FLORIDA NEWSPAPER MEN

Adjourn At Miami to Meet Next Year In Pensacola.

The Florida Press Association adjourned at Miami Friday to meet next year at Pensacola.

The new officers are B. B. Tatum, of Miami Metropolis, president; E. W. Peabody, of The Times-Union and Citizen, vice-president; T. J. Appleyard, of Sanford Chronicle, secretary, and Phillip Isaacs, of The Fort Myers Press, treasurer.

It is a fact of disagreeable significance that one out of every 300 people living in New York state is an inmate of either a private or public hospital for the insane. We seem to be living in a too cerebral age.

KILLED HER SIX CHILDREN.

While in a Fit of Insanity, then cut Her Own Throat.

A Colbrook, Mass., dispatch says: Mrs. Lizzie Naramore, while in a fit of insanity Thursday, killed her six children at her home near this town and then tried to take her own life. The children ranged from 10 years to a baby of ten months, and their lives were taken by their mother with a club and an ax. The woman then tried to cut her throat with a razor. When discovered she was in the bed with the bodies of four of her dead children, the other two lying in another bed.

The woman's husband left his home at the usual hour to go to his work at a saw mill and at that time his wife did not attract his attention by acting strangely.

The discovery of the crime was made shortly after noon by a groceryman who went to deliver goods at the house. The groceryman returned to the village and told what had been done.

A party then visited the Naramore house, and the mutilated bodies of the six children were found. Mrs. Naramore who was alive, was very weak from the loss of blood. She was removed to the village and late last night the physicians were confident she would survive.

During the evening a number of neighbors were told by Mrs. Naramore how she killed her six children. She said she killed them in different rooms and as she killed one child the body was placed on a bed.

Will Demand an Apology.

News has been received from Gibralter that the armored cruiser New York arrived there Friday. She will proceed to Tangier to demand the settlement of the claims of the United States government against Morocco. The New York will convey Mr. Gummere, United States consul-general from Tangier, to the seaport of Mazagan, whence he will travel overland to Morocco City, the political capital of Morocco, there to demand from the sultan of Morocco an apology for an apparent discourtesy to the United States, committed by the sultan's grand vizier and his minister of foreign affairs. At the same time Mr. Gummere will require the sultan to pay all claims long pending against the government of Morocco.

$200,000 000 Indemnity.

A Washington dispatch regarding the amount of indemnity to be asked from China says that the sum of $200,000,000, which our government considers the maximum that should be levied upon the Chinese as a tax represents absolutely the limit of China's ability, according to the calculations of the officials best informed as to the resources of China.

The United States fixed upon the sum of $25,000,000 as a suitable indemnity to be claimed, notwithstanding officials of various departments are satisfied that this sum will only provide for the payment of a certain percentage of the items claimed, because it was felt that this was as much as we would claim proportionately of the total of $200,000,000.

Warning to Foreigners.

A dispatch to the Cologne Gazette from Pekin dated Thursday, March 21st, says an imperial decree in accordance with article 10 of the peace conditions, has been placarded on the walls of Pekin threatening all anti-foreign societies with punishment.

Caucus Favors New Constitution

A dispatch from Nashville, Tenn., says: The advocates of a Constitutional Convention were temporarily discomfitted a few days ago by the killing of a bill which provided for the calling of a convention to draft a new State charter. The advocates were undaunted, however, and have been zealously at work to induce the Democratic caucus to champion the measure. Their efforts were rewarded Friday by the action of the joint caucus in voting to support a bill providing for the submission of the question to the electoral. There were sufficient votes in the caucus to insure the passage of such a bill by the Legislature.

LIFE TERM FOR MRS. DIXON.

Woman Who Murdered Her Husband Is Shown Mercy By Jury.

In the trial at Wrightsville, Ga., of Mrs. Sarah Dixon for the murder of her husband, G. E. Dixon, the jury found a verdict of guilty and recommended a sentence of life imprisonment.

Mrs. Dixon's confederate, Jerry Walden, was convicted at the last September term of the superior court and received a life sentence.

MORE INSURGENTS SURRENDER.

Four Officers and Fifty-Three Men Give Up Their Guns.

Manila, March 24.—In the province of Cavite, four insurgent officers and fifty-three men, with fifty-six rifles, have surrendered to Lieutenant Colonel Frank D. Baldwin of the Fourth United States Infantry, and one insurgent officer and twelve men, with sixteen rifles, to Col. W. S. Schuyler of the Forty-sixth Volunteer Infantry.

May Get Part of $149,000,000 Estate.

The Atlanta Constitution says: It is probable that Clarence E. Moore his sister, Mrs. Lollie Bell Wylie, and his mother, Mrs. Augusta Moore, all residents of Atlanta, are heirs to a portion of a fortune of $149,000,000. A few days ago Mrs. Wylie saw in a Chicago paper an article stating that Frank Moore, of Watseka, Ills., had fallen heir to a part of an English fortune of $149,000,000. In the article was mentioned the name of Harris, who was also an heir to the same fortune. The estate had been left by an ancestor named Moore, from whom the Atlanta Moores are descended.

Mrs. Nation Hooted.

Mrs. Nation meet a very cool reception at Atchison, Kas., Saturday evening. She attempted to address a large crowd in the barroom of the Byram hotel, when she was hooted repeatedly by the mob. The bartender mounted the bar three times in an effort to restore order and to enable Mrs. Nation to receive a respectful hearing. Mrs. Nation, after trying to talk for some time, gave it up and in custody of the six policemen she went out on the street. Here she tried to enter another saloon, but was stopped by the chief of police with the remark that she had better go to her lodgings. She took his advice and was removed by the police from the crowd which had gathered.

Saturated Her Clothing With Oil and Set Fire to It.

Early Saturday morning Miss Eliza Burrus, a young lady of prominence in Murfreesboro, Tenn., died. Later developments show a distressing case of suicide. Miss Burrus saturated her clothing with coal oil and set fire to them. She had been deeply distressed over the loss of a position as teacher in a school here and recently had made two attempts to end her life, timely interference saving her. The third attempt proved successful, however, the body of the unfortunate girl being found in the parlor of her home, the flesh charred by her burning clothing. Curiously enough the flames were not communicated to the furnishings in the room. Brooding over misfortune it is said by friends h d unbalanced Miss Burrus' mind.

Mrs. Nation Alone.

According to a Topeka dispatch Mrs. Nation has dissolved partnership with Nick Chiles, the negro publisher. She will hereafter endeavor to edit and have printed her paper, "The Smasher's Mail," without his assistance. The trouble grew out of the suppression by Chiles of an editorial written by Mrs. Nation scoring District Judge Hazen, before whom she had appeared a number of time.

One of the features of the entertainment to be accorded the gifted members of the association will be a reception at the residence of Mayor and Mrs. W. G. Cochrane on Thursday evening, April 11.

WHERE DOGS ARE SAFE.

Death of Charleston Canine Causes Negro's Conviction In Court.

At Charleston, S. C., Friday, Martin Grimball, a negro, was convicted for malicious mischief in the judicial court, the charge against him being that he had killed a pet dog belonging to Judge Reed. Under a recent decision of the supreme court a dog is rated as property, and as such the owner can seek the aid of the law in his protection.

The Banner City for Big Policemen.

The largest aggregation of fat policemen in the world is to be found on the Chicago police force. A majority of the members of the force, including officers, have grown in weight much beyond the maximum limit set down in the "physical test" of the civil service examination. According to the test, as shown by its graduations in heights and minimum and maximum measurements, the average weight of the 2,843 men on the police pay rolls should be 182 pounds. Instead of this the average is found to be 210 pounds. Some of the men are more in excess than others, but hypothetically Chicago is protected by policemen who are interfered with in the discharge of their duties by a large quantity of superfluous flesh. The aggregate weight of the entire force is 596,99. pounds.

Sleuth's Opinion of a Portrait.

A little while ago an exhibition of historical portraits was held in London for the aid of some charity. These portraits were guarded by detectives. Toward the end of the exhibition one of these detectives went to a member of the committee and desired to know "who was the female" in a picture he pointed out. "Why do you ask?" his listener inquired, interested and amused. "Because, sir," said the detective, "that female is what we would call, in Scotland Yard, 'a high class criminal.'" The portrait was of Mary Queen of Scots!

Nervous Prostration.

A Noted Boston Woman Describes its Symptoms and Terrors. The Severe Cases Cured by Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

ADELE WILLIAMSON.

"I am so nervous! no one ever suffered as I do! There isn't a well inch in my body. I honestly believe my bowels are diseased, my chest pains me so, but I have no cough. I am so weak at my stomach, and have indigestion terribly, palpitation of the heart; am losing flesh; and this headache and backache nearly kills me, and yesterday I had hysterics.

"There is a weight in the lower part of my bowels, bearing down all the time, with pains in my groins and thighs. I can't sleep, walk, or sit, and blue—oh goodness! I am simply the most miserable of women."

This is a most vivid description of a woman suffering from nervous prostration, caused by inflammation or some other diseased condition of the womb.

No woman should allow herself to reach such a perfect state of misery when there is no need of it. Read about Miss Williamson's case and how she was cured.

Two Bad Cases of Nervous Prostration Cured

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM;—I was suffering such tortures from nervous prostration that life was a burden. I could not sleep at all, and was too weak to walk across the floor. My heart was affected so that often I could not lie down at all without almost suffocating. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it worked like magic. I feel that your medicine has been of inestimable benefit to me."

MISS ADELE WILLIAMSON,
196 N. Boulevard, Atlanta, Ga.

"I had nervous prostration terribly, caused by female weakness. I suffered everything; was unable to sleep, or work. After a while I was induced to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I really began to improve on taking the first bottle. I continued to take the medicine, and am better in every way, and feel like a different person. I am simply a well woman."

THE PLATFORM.

In the experience of thirty years, the very necessary facility to the negro for the exercise of the ballot, it has been demonstrated, as a race, he is incapable of government and the intelligence of the power of voting. We, in the interest of both races in Alabama, we favor the holding of a constitutional convention for the purpose of regulating the right to vote to perpetuate the rule of the white race in Alabama:

The democratic party of the state of Alabama, in convention assembled, endorses the act to provide for the holding of a constitutional convention to revise and amend the constitution of the state, approved March 11th, 1900, and favor the adoption of all the provisions of said act.

That the convention shall submit all questions of suffrage so as to conflict with the constitution of the United States, and for the best interests of the tax-payers of the state of Alabama.

That there shall be inserted in the constitution a provision limiting the rate of taxation by the state, counties and municipalities, and that the rate of taxation shall not exceed that fixed by the present constitution, but a lower rate shall be preferable.

That the constitution framed by said convention shall be submitted to the qualified electors of the state for ratification or rejection.

That we pledge our faith and the faith of Alabama not to do-

TO BE HEEDED NOW.

In the Spring You Are Always Run Down.

This Will Tell You Just What To Do For Yourself.

And Just Why You Should Follow Exactly This Plan.

In the spring everybody needs to think about taking a spring medicine. Not only is this a common practice, but a very necessary and healthful one. It is a fact which physicians acknowledge and the people recognize generally, that a spring tonic taken during the months of March, April and May is more conducive to the restoration of health in cases of those who are sick than any other course of treatment that could possibly be adopted.

In the spring there are a great many and important changes going on in the body. Perfect health cannot be maintained while the system is clogged and the organs sluggish, and the person has a languid and weakened feeling, with more or less nervousness and debility. Therefore everybody should take a good spring remedy.

The best spring medicine, indorsed and recommended by physicians, druggists and the people, is Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. In proof of this, thousands of testimonials are being constantly published in the papers. The following is from Mrs. Etta Sumner of Goodells, Mich.

Mrs. Etta Sumner.

"I have been afflicted," she says, "with nervous debility for a year. My nerves were completely prostrated, and I suffered at the slightest excitement, with great headache. At times I was entirely overcome by this disease. I would stay in the house alone, and dread the sight of my own people. My entire nervous system was shattered, and my life was a worriment and burden to me. I was advised to try Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and while on the first bottle began to recover. My friends were very much surprised.

"Before I had finished the second bottle, I could sleep with a quiet mind, and eat with ready and refreshing appetite. I have taken three bottles and am entirely cured of all my sufferings. I cannot speak half highly enough of it. I cheerfully and earnestly recommend it to every one afflicted with disease. What gives people absolute confidence in it, is its being the discovery of one of our best known and most successful physicians.

Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is, indeed, the greatest of all spring medicines, for it makes the sick well and strong.

Dr. Greene, of 35 W. 14th St., New York City, has the largest practice in the world, and this grand medical discovery is the result of his vast experience. The great reputation of Dr. Greene is a guarantee that his medicine will cure, and the fact that he can be consulted by anyone, at any time free of charge, personally or by letter, gives absolute assurance of cure to all.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS is the one important magazine in the world giving in its pictures, its text, in its contributed articles, editorials and departments, a comprehensive, timely record of the world's current history. Not the enumeration of mere bare facts, but a comprehensive picture of the month, its activities, its notable personalities, and notable utterances. The best informed men and women in the world find it indispensable.

There are many readers in your locality who have yet to learn of its usefulness. We wish to establish active agents in every city and township in the country. We will pay liberally for energetic effort in the subscription field. Leisure moments can be utilized with substantial increase of income. Make a list of the persons in your locality who should have the "Review of Reviews," and send to us for special terms, sample copies, and working outfit. Then solicit their subscriptions. It is a compliment to approach a person with a subscription proposition for the "Review of Reviews," and consequently orders are easily secured. This is the active subscription season. Make application at once, naming your references.

EVERY FAMILY IN THE SOUTH SHOULD PLANT PECAN TREES.

The Pecan tree not only bears one of the most delicious nuts, but it is one of the most lovely trees that grows in the South, and makes as fine a shade tree as the Elm or Maple and no family ought to be without a few trees. It would pay the town authorities to do as the French authorities do, plant nut bearing trees on the sidewalks and get a revenue therefrom. A town that would this year put out a thousand trees on the sidewalks at comparatively small cost, would in ten years get an annual return of at least $500 00 and each year there would be an increase until the income would reach from three to five thousand dollars annually. Enough to more than pay all taxes of an ordinary size town. The trees do well planted in cotton and corn fields, and farmers can cultivate the lands in crops of corn and cotton until the trees get to bearing and after they commence bearing a farmer with ten to twenty acres has a small fortune in his Pecan grove and dont need to plant cotton and corn. The tree is hardy and stands the cold weather anywhere south of Mary and. At Pinebluff North Carolina, there is a company that makes a specialty of growing the young trees for sale, and we advise the town authorities, and all readers of our paper, to write the Pinebluff Grove & Pecan Company, Pinebluff, N. C., for circulars.

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY
Take Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. E. W. Grove's signature is on each box. 25c.

Lily, March 25, 1901

Editor Banner.—I wish every farmer who makes cotton would read W. G. Raul's letter in last week's Constitution and practice or take the advice made in this letter. It is strange indeed that so few farmers will have any business methods in farming. Cotton has declined from 10½ cents in Sept. to 7¼ cents in March. This decline is said to be caused by preparations for a monster crop for 1901, and unless some disaster to cut off the crop what can we expect but 5 cents cotton when it has made this decline before any seed has been planted? 5 cent cotton to pay for 10 cent meat and 50 cent corn seems like a downhill business when we can raise it all at home for less money. If we can't make our farms self-sustaining why not quit the business and try something else? Why not cut off a few acres of intended cotton land now and plant in corn, peas, potatoes, etc? Raise all the hogs we can and fatten for pork in the fall. This would surely be more profitable than 5 cent cotton to buy 10 cent bacon.

Why not start the ball to rolling here in Chilton and do it this season? If the merchant should overstock his store with a certain line of goods that cost him 7c, knowing that he would have to sell at 5c. to dispose of this line of goods we would pronounce him insane. That is exactly what we are doing when we are making preparations for an over-production of cotton.

Let each farmer ask himself the question, why do I wish to run cotton down to 5 cents when I can more easily get 10 cents with the proper management, and fill my corn crib, barn and smokehouse besides?

Some farmers argue that they are compelled to plant a large number of acres in cotton let the price be what it may. This I consider a poor argument and the fellow that will do it should appeal to his good wife and say to her, I am a failure and cannot fulfill the marriage vow that I pledged you, and I want to quit making slaves of you and the children, and quit eating this western meat and bread; so take charge now, good wife, and commandest thou me what to do and I will do it; and if your wife fails to take charge then throw heads and tails for a better business, for you can't worst yourself, for you certainly have the tail end of the farming business.

Respectfully, B. H. JONES.

As the hot weather of summer is approaching, this paper will constantly keep before its readers TEETHINA, a remedy which, where known, is being universally used to prevent and counteract the effects of warm weather upon small children, and it is hoped that all mothers of this community will keep their children in a healthy condition by giving it, for it costs only 25 cents at druggists; or mail 25 cents to C. J. Moffett, M. D., St. Louis, Mo.

Our community was made sad on the 29th of last month by the death of one of our dearest friends, Leola Driver, wife of Anderson Driver. She leaves an infant baby and two little orphaned sisters. There was a large sorrowing crowd of friends and relatives went with her to the last resting place in the Eiland's cemetery. She was loved by all who knew her. We left her body there to rest, and hope her soul is numbered with the blessed. The bereaved ones have our deepest sympathy. A FRIEND.

Died at Thorsby on Tuesday the infant child of Mr. and Mrs. D. N. Riggins, only a few weeks old.

Miss Lillie Holt, an accomplished young lady of Montgomery, who has taught a most successful school at Center Point, left for her home to-day. Miss Lillie made many friends while here and we regret to see her leave.

Mr. Joe Atkinson visited Mr. C. D. Lobbe several days ago. Bob seemed very much pleased upon his return. Wonder what is the matter?

All the farmers are busy getting ready to plant corn.

There was a very enjoyable dance given at Mr. P. M. Grimes' home several nights ago; every one seems to have had a pleasant time.

A SUB-CRIBER.

Why don't you dress a wound with Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic instead of that old greasy salve or ointment? It will prevent or remove inflammation and soreness and heal it much quicker and is so much cleaner and more pleasant. Only 50 cts a bottle by druggists.

Messrs. Jesse Hayes, J. L. Baker and James Barrett, made a business trip to Clanton through the rain Monday; I think politics rushed them out.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Baker visited her brother, Mr. Frank Price, Tuesday.

Mrs. A. P. Price, accompanied by her granddaughter, Miss Thuela Baker, visited her daughter, Mrs. Newt Waller, the latter part of last week.

The S. S. convention held here Sunday was a grand success; it was attended by the largest crowd that has been at Cedar Grove for some time.

Rev. A. L. Pattillo, of Verbena, preached an interesting and instructive sermon here last Wednesday night to a large congregation. He will preach again Wednesday night of the 2d of April.

We are reliably informed that the reason Mr. Harvey Wilson looked so "long faced" Sunday was his spicy had given him the "G. B. in box car letters." We can feel for Harvey but can't quite reach him.

We have heard several making enquiry as to who "Old Patch" was, and we wish to inform them that if they know the moss-backed sager, who walked and followed a wagon twenty miles to see the hind wheels run over the fore wheels, as they were the smallest (the fore wheels) and tried to bring a charge against his brother in the church who went to Montgomery last August and came back and reported seeing them making ice, for lying; they are fairly well acquainted with the brother.

THORSBY, ALA.

Thorsby, Ala., March 28, 1901

One more victim of the irregularities in the Enrolling Clerk's Office(!)

The citizens of this thriving little burg had several difficulties to overcome in getting their town incorporated at the late session of the General Assembly. But with a little hard work they succeeded in getting their charter through. One of the objects of incorporating was to obtain power to issue bonds for public improvements, principally fire protection, and the bill gave the city of Thorsby the power to bond itself for $5,000 for that purpose. But the Enrolling Clerk is blamed for dropping out one zero, thus reducing the figure to $500! That blunder knocks Thorsby out of the proposed improvements until next session of the General Assembly, which, we hope, will be more fortunate in the choice of some of its clerks.

K. G. FARGHR.

The record of the Thorsby charter bill officially known as House bill No. 732, shows that the bill was introduced by Representative Pounds. The original bill as drawn by Mr. Pounds, limited bond issues by the town of Thorsby to "five thousand dollars." The engrossed bill is exactly the same as the original bill and reads, "five thousand dollars." The enrolled bill reads "five hundred dollars." The enrolled copy of a bill goes to the Governor for his approval consequently the bill reading "five hundred dollars" became a law.—Advertiser.

CLANTON, - - - ALABAMA.

Some confiding British financiers have come over here to look after the alleged rights of the minority stockholders in certain corporations. These must be desperately ignorant Englishmen to imagine that minority stockholders in America have any rights whatever.

Farmers should encourage the establishment of canning factories near at hand, even if they have to invest somewhat in the stock in order to get them started. There is profit in growing fruit and vegetables when there is a market close at hand. Co-operative establishments, owned by the men who are to grow the products, should pay well if properly managed, states the American Cultivator.

Interest is added to the Pacific cable project by the announcement that Germany is planning to lay a cable of her own across that ocean, to serve the needs of her extensive empire and of her vast and increasing commerce. It should be constantly kept in mind, however, that the United States has most need of such a cable, and has incomparably the best route along which to lay it. We hope it will ere long be added that the United States is first in the field to perform the task.

A new industry has developed abroad, having its origin in an American custom. Straw hats are now made for horses. Our humane truck drivers have been wont to protect their horses' heads from the scorching rays of the sun by a coarse harvest straw, with two holes cut in the brim for the equine ears. This idea, it is said has been adopted in England. A hat has been made especially adapted to that purpose, and over 10,000 of them sold last summer. This season preparations have been on foot for a great increase in such sales. Why not introduce them here, where the idea originated? queries the Dry Goods Economist.

The sentencing of political offenders in Russia to service in the army is not a new thing. The new feature is the application of this form of punishment to intractable and incendiary students at the universities. For many years it has been a practice to withdraw political convicts from the Siberian mines on account of good conduct and allow them to serve out their time in the army. Care has been taken, however, to keep such men in regiments which have been assigned to severe duties at places remote from the more settled districts. Dostoevsky, the novelist, who was sent over the frozen road to "the icy roof of the world" just after he had achieved fame as a writer and was subsequently transferred to the military service, found the latter hardly less painful than the work in the mines. The students manage to keep the police in a state of agitation, and the general strike in the schools last year was so annoying that it was resolved to get rid of the leaders by condemning them to the ranks of the army.

While two boys were skating recently on Crum Creek, in Swarthmore, Penn., they heard a cry for help, and, hastening to the place from which it came, they found a girl of their own age who had broken through the ice and was in desperate peril. One of the boys instantly leaped into the water and swam to the girl's assistance, while his companion remained at the edge of the ice, ready to do what he could when the rescue had been effected. The boy in the water reached the girl, and after a long struggle brought her almost within reach of the other boy. The motions of the latter caused the ice to break under him, and he, too, fell into the water. Then a terrible question assailed the first boy. He knew that the second boy, who was his most intimate friend, could not swim. His own strength was almost exhausted, and he could not save both the girl, whose name he hardly knew, and his closest friend. He had to choose, and did choose—the friend. Leaving the girl, he swam to the boy and held him above the surface until they were both pulled out by other boys who at last reached the scene. The girl's dead body was recovered several hours later. The boy who could have saved her at the expense of his friend's life is half mad with doubt as to whether his conduct was right or wrong. The question is not a simple one. Many considerations have to be taken into the account, among them, that the boy to whom the alternative was presented was only 16 years old.

FREDDIE FUNSTON GETS HIS REWARD

President Includes Him In Promotion List.

KANSAN BRIGADIER GENERAL

Among Officers Advanced Are Many Southerners—All Are in Regular Army.

The following important army appointments were announced at the white house Saturday night:

To be major general United States army:

Brigadier General Lloyd Wheaton, vice Miles promoted lieutenant general.

To be brigadier generals in the regular army:

Colonel Jacob H. Smith, Seventeenth United States infantry, brigadier general volunteers, vice Dagett, retired.

Brigadier general, Frederick Funston, United States volunteers, vice Wheaton, promoted.

The announcement of these appointments was made after a conference between the president, Secretary Root and Adjutant General Corbin, and at the same time the long expected list of appointments of majors and captains in the quartermaster's and commissary departments and chaplains was made known.

All of these appointments are in the regular army, under the recent act of congress enlarging and reorganizing the army and without exception the staff appointees are from volunteer officers.

The chief interest, however, centered in the three high appointments of a major general and two brigadiers, and more particularly in the selection of General Funston after his gallant exploit in capturing Aguinaldo.

Following the announcement General Corbin sent the following to General MacArthur:

"WASHINGTON, March 30.—MacArthur, Manila.—The following appointments made: Wheaton, major general. Smith and Funston, brigadiers general. Secretary of war joins me in congratulations to all.

CORBIN."

Among the other appointments were the following:

To be captains and assistant quartermasters:

W. M. Coulling, Virginia; W. B. Barker, Mississippi; A. W. Butt, Georgia; H. L. Pettus, Alabama; L. F. Garrard, Jr., Georgia; K. J. Hampton, Kentucky; B. Frank Cheatham, Tennessee; Frederick W. Cole, Florida; Charles T. Baker, South Carolina.

To be captain and assistant commissary of subsistence:

H. G. Cole, Georgia; T. B. Hacker, Tennessee.

To be chaplains:

John M. Moose, Mississippi; Charles T. Wright, Georgia; A. A. Pruden, North Carolina.

The promotion of General Funston shows that President McKinley has not been influenced by the disposition on the part of what is known as the regular army combine to discount the importance of Funston's sensational achievement.

The fact that a volunteer officer, without the assistance of the regular army, has been able to locate and make a captive of this notorious Filipino is not relished by the regulars. Funston is not popular with the regular army combine, which was demonstrated by the stubborn opposition to every effort that had been made to promote him. He was urged for promotion to the rank of brigadier general, but he was without sufficient military or political influence to obtain the recognition which many persons claim he was entitled to.

END OF WAR NEAR.

Island of Mindanao Pacified and Many Rebels Surrender.

An important dispatch was received at the war department Friday from Gen. MacArthur at Minila. It did not refer to Aguinaldo or Funston, but in the opinion of the war department officials it went far to support the prediction made by General MacArthur in a previous dispatch relating to those two leaders, to the effect that the end of the rebellion is near. It chronicles the surrenderof a considerable additional number of rebels and military arms, and the important featnre of it is that the surrender marks the stamping out of the insurrection in Mindanao.

PLEADS FOR LOYALTY

Emperor William Makes Some Highly Sensational Remarks to His Soldiers.

A special from Berlin says: The conservative German papers do not discuss Emperor William's speech to the Alexander Grenadier regiment at their new barracks Thursday, but the liberal papers generally comment on his majesty's utterances, emphasizing the statement that the emperor is ill-informed concerning the character of the March (1848) revolution in Berlin. The National Zeitung expresses its inability to comprehend what current events induced the emperor to refer to the revolution of 1848, and says that it does not see any signs of his majesty needing a body guard.

The Vossiche Zeitung is also unable to see any occasion for the emperor's words, since nobody in Berlin is thinking of revolution, and his majesty's predecessors repeatedly recognized the loyalty of Berlin's population.

The Vowaerts cites a number of previous speeches of the emperor, exhorting the soldiers to fight for him when necessary, and claims that it has authentic information that his words were literally as follows:

"If the city of Berlin should again impudently and disobediently rise against the king, as in 1848, then, my Grenadiers it will be your duty, with the points of your bayonets, to annihilate the impudent and disobedient."

The Tageblatt is amazed and asks what has occurred to justify the emperor's words. It points out that the revolution of 1848 was not directed against the Hohenzollern dynasty and appeals "from the ill-informed emperor to the rightly informed."

According to The Kleine Journal, Emperor William, during a toast last evening, said:

"Attempts have been made to disturb the cordial friendship between Russia and Germany. It is certainly not my fault if such attempts have temporarily proved successful."

The Berliner Tageblatt, which confirms this statement, asserts that the emperor made a speech, when replying to a toast to himself, in which he went deeply into politics, and especially the Russo-German relations and his own relations with the chief of the Emperor Alexander Grenadier regiment, namely, Emperor Nicholas.

In the Prussian house of lords Friday, after Count Ziethen had saddled the socialists and anarchists of Bremen with the offense of instigating the attack upon the emperor, Dr. Studt, minister of public worship and education, stigmatized the attempt as "due to the demoralization of youth," and promised that public education would be so changed as to "inculcate a fear of God and respect for authority."

The Hanover Courier says: "There is method in the fiction that the Bremen attempt was a deliberate, murderous assault. The conservatives, under all conditions, wish to make capital out of the attempt. The pessimistic views of the emperor explain themselves in the light of authentic information that his majesty's entourage are assiduously at work to convince him that the attempt was a deliberate crime, although the Bremen court has not found the slightest confirmation of such a theory."

The Berliner Neueste Nachrichten approves the emperor's sentiments on the ground that "socialists and anarchists constantly teach hatred of the kaiser."

The Cologne Gazette blames the emperor for "throwing a new firebrand into party strife," declaring that there is no disposition anywhere to revolt.

The Kreuz Zeitung considers the kaiser's words regarding revolution as "timely and appropriate."

The Tageliche Rundeschau regrets that the emperor dropped "words which will have a disastrous effect upon those hitherto loyal," and expresses a hope that he will not commit "faults which on former occasions have led to revolutions."

The Berliner Post approves his majesty's utterances, "because the socialists are known enemies, whose programme could only be realized through bloodshed and revolution."

Buck Leaves On 15th.

Minister Buck, of Georgia, expects to return to Japan on the 15th of April. At the state department the report circulated to the effect that he might be transferred to some other station is denied.

The President's Trip.

Washington, March 30.—The President's trip to the Pacific coast is to be in no sense a speech-making tour, it being the President's desire, as far as possible, to avoid addressing the crowds which will congregate at the various places at which he will stop. Some set speeches are already arranged for, but the President will make no rear platform speeches. Another feature of the trip will be the substitution of a drive through a city for a public reception. The trip will be so arranged that there will be no traveling on Sunday.

Road Brought $1,500,000.

Monroe, La., March 30.—A million and a half of dollars was the price offered and accepted at the mortgage sale of the Vicksburg, Shreveport & Pacific railroad today at noon. There was only the one bid made by Harry Hall, attorney for the Queen & Crescent system, and their assistants. The sale occurred at noon in front of the Monroe depot and was only a matter of legal routine.

SCANDAL AMONG OFFICERS.

Reported Frauds in Commissary Department.

Manila, March 31.—Interest in the capture and fate of Aguinaldo is well nigh overshadowed in Manila by sensational developments, present and prospective, of frauds in the commissary department. How widely these extend has not yet been ascertained, but enough is already known to justify the belief that they are far-reaching.

Captain Frederick J. Barrows, of the Thirtieth Volunteer Infantry, quartermaster of the department of Southern Luzon, together with seven commissary sergeants, several civilian clerks, a prominent government contractor, the assistant manager of the Hotel Oriente, the proprietors of three of the largest bakeries in Manila, a number of store keepers and other persons have been arrested. The investigation has scarcely begun, but thousands of sacks of flour, a quantity of bacon and wagon loads of other goods, all bearing government markss have been found in the possession of unauthorized persons.

It is alleged that the contractor in question, who has been doing a business approximating $100,000 a month, has spent huge sums in entertaining officers.

A prominent commissary officer is accused of leading a scandalously immoral life.

It is asserted that large quantities of stores have been lost or stolen in transit, and also that there is a shortage in the commissary department.

New scandals are developing daily. Illicit transactions have been traced back to June, 1900, and it is possible that there are others of earlier date.

The exorbitant tariff on provisions makes the surreptitious sale of commissary supplies immensely profitable.

It is understood other United States officers may be arrested.

Lieut. Philip K. Sweet, of the Forty-sixth Volunteer Infantry, is prosecuting the investigation under the direction of Colonel Wilder, chief of police.

DIED TO SAVE HIS MEN.

Fire on the Gunboat Petrel Causes Death of Commander.

Cavite, March 21.—At 7 o'clock this morning a fire was discovered in the sailroom of the United States gunboat Petrel, Lieutenant Commander Jesse Mims Roper commanding. The sailroom is a small compartment adjoining the magazine. The heat was intense, the smoke suffocating and the flames difficult to extinguish.

Lieutenant Commander Roper was the first to descend into the hold, but he was forced te return to the deck. Others then went down. Seaman Patrick Toner was prostrated and about to perish, when Lieutenan Commander Roper endeavored to rescue him and was suffocated in the attempt.

Lieutenat Josiah Sutts McKean succeeded in bringing the body of Lieutenant Cammander Roper to the deck. Twenty-two of the crew were prostrated—Toner, Evans, Faherty, Larsen, Kessler, Cahey, Burton, Smith, Sullivan and Forbson seriously, but all will recover.

The contents of the sail room were destroyed, but the damage to the gunboat was slight. The origin of the fire has not been ascertained, possibly it was a case of spontaneous combustion.

NO MINERS' STRIKE.

Committee Decides Not to Start Contest With Coal Operators.

A special from Wilkesbarre, Pa., says: The threatened strike of 143,000 miners in the hard coal region will not take place. At a meeting of the executive committee of the United Mine Workers of the three anthracite districts, held Friday, it was decided that the men should continue at work.

This committee was given arbitrary power by the general convention of miners, held at Hazelton in the forepart of the month, to declare a strike if the circumstances warranted it.

Henderson Is Granted New Trial.

Dallas, Tex., March 30.—H. C. Henderson, who accuses himself of kidnaping young Cudahy at Omaha, was today granted a new trial in both of the cases in which he was recently convicted and given terms aggregating thirteen years. Motions to this effect were granted because of defects in the indictments. It has been arranged to have him reindicted early next week and tried again next Thursday.

AGUINALDO A PRISONER

General Funston Captures the Insurgent Leader.

DARING PLAN IS SUCCESSFUL

The Filipino Chief Brought to Manila by the Intrepid Volunteer Soldier on Board the Gunboat Vicksburg—Was Surprised in His Hiding Place in the Province of Isabella, Island of Luzon.

Manila.—General Frederick Funston's daring project for the capture of General Emilio Aguinaldo in his hiding place in the province of Isabela, island of Luzon, has proved completely successful.

Aguinaldo was captured there March 23.

The United States gunboat Vicksburg, Commander E. B. Barry, with General Funston and Aguinaldo on board, arrived here Thursday morning.

Several reports have been received from time to time during the course of the campaign in the Philippines that Aguinaldo was dead, and several efforts have been made to capture him, but up to the present time it was not known certainly whether he was alive or dead.

Early in the war there was a story that he had been shot while crossing a river, and his body had been seen floating away. Late in 1899 Major Peyton C. March, of the Thirty-third Infantry, conducted a long search for him through the Benguet Mountains, but finally abandoned the pursuit, and in May last it was reported that the Filipino leader, driven into the woods by Major March's command, had been slain by the savage Igorrotes. Within a few weeks, however, he was said to be personally organizing a large army in the north.

GENERAL FUNSTON'S CAREER.

The Adventurous Little Kansan a Fighting Soldier of Fortune.

General Frederick Funston is a fighting soldier of fortune. He was born in Ohio in 1866, and was reared on a farm near Iola, Kan., where his father removed when he was [illegible] years old. He attended the University at Lawrence, but left [illegible] finishing his sophomore year.

Mr. Funston was employed on a newspaper at Fort Smith, Ark., [illegible] was not very profitable. He then went on a botanical expedition to Death Valley in the following [illegible] and later to Chilkoot Pass in Alaska. At the head of the Yukon he built a canoe, in which he went down to the Klondike country, where Dawson City is now situated.

General Funston two years [illegible] made arrangements with the Cuban Junta to enlist as a lieutenant [illegible] in the Army of Liberation, joining a filibustering expedition and landing in Camaguey in August of 1896. He became second in command in charge of artillery to W. Dana Osgood, and [illegible] much hard fighting. Osgood was killed by a Spanish bullet, and Funston assumed command. At Bayamo he led a cavalry charge with [illegible] mounted Cubans attacking 2500 Spanish infantry. At Las Tunas Funston was shot and had his horse killed under him. The horse fell on him. Although Funston was badly wounded he crept to the headquarters and protested against the execution of [illegible] ty Cuban guerillas, who were captured, fighting under the Spanish flag.

Funston returned to New York in 1898. When war with Spain was declared Funston at once offered his services to President McKinley. He was commissioned colonel of the Twentieth Kansas, and was afterwards offered a position on General [illegible] staff, because of his knowledge of Cuba.

Funston fought through the Spanish war and then returned to Kansas, later going to California, where he was married. Six hours later he sailed with his regiment for Manila.

The Kansas soldiers who had written home about General Funston told of how, although suffering from a lame leg, he slept on the firing line and how he led the charges. He went with his regiment when it entered into Caloocan and was the first American soldier to enter Malolos. He was the first American officer to cross the river at Calumpit.

General Funston was charged in May, 1900, with summarily executing two natives in the Province of Batabales. It developed that General Funston caught the natives in the act of murdering bound Macabebe scouts, and his action in view of the circumstances was considered justifiable.

Killed Himself With Dynamite.

Samuel Hagerty, a prosperous farmer, at Payne, Ohio, took a quantity of dynamite and went to the field announcing his intention to blast stumps. Later a violent explosion alarmed his neighbors, and on investigation they found a few scattered remnants of the man. An inquest developed the fact that he had placed the explosive under a large stump, sat thereon, and deliberately lighted the fuse.

Germany Confiscates American Fruit.

Advices from Consul-General Guenther at Frankfort, Germany, state that under the German law dried fruits which have been treated with sulphur are considered injurious to health and are subject to confiscation. In several instances this actually has taken place.

Australia's Big Wheat Crop.

It is officially estimated that the wheat yield of Australia will reach 17,700,576 bushels, or an increase of 2,552,625 upon last year's yield.

Seal Catch Close to 400,000.

Sealing steamers which have arrived at St. Johns, N. F., report that the other ships have from 20,000 to 25,000 seals each aboard. The complete success of the season is assured. The whole catch is likely to approach 400,000, being the largest in twenty years.

China Did Not Sign Agreement.

China had not signed the agreement with Russia respecting Manchuria within the time set for its acceptance or rejection.

[illegible] ARP'S LETTER

He Delights to Receive Inspiration From the Apocrypha.

QUOTATIONS FROM STRANGE BOOK.

[illegible] Government For the Country Can Only Be Brought About and Maintained by Through Family Influences.

The family is the most important institution upon the earth. It is the foundation of the world. Its influences are more than that of kings, emperors and cabinets. Parents and children are around the hearthstone in families, make up communities, and they make states and nations and choose their rulers. As the family goes, so is the government good or bad. Single unmarried men are generally individuals and feel a great liberty outside of their individual comfort and welfare. But parents are concerned for their children. They live for them and would die for them. Consequently we want good government that will protect them. But not every family who feels this concern.

From my window I see the homes of many neighbors and can count on my fingers those whose presence is a safe guard to the community, and the rest are of but little consequence. If they were to move away it would not add to nor detract. So it is in all communities. The few protect the many. So it is in church and state. Twenty members of our legislature control its legislation. Ten members of an average church membership give the church its character. Sodom was destroyed because ten good men could not be found. If all men were good we would have no need of courts or prisons. But for every church that is set on a hill there is a jail in the valley.

I hear the preacher calling and the bell tolling from the one, and imagine I hear the devil calling from the other, and he cries out as the sergeants did in the old muster language, "Oh, yes! Oh, yes! All who belong to Captain Satan's company parade here." And the people are going and coming all the time some to one call and more to the other. But as the devil can't be heard afar off, he goes about calling, and even invades the sanctuary and calls aloud while the preacher is preaching.

"He never erects a house of prayer but what the devil builds a pulpit there. It will be found upon examination that the devil has the largest congregation."

His pulpit is always at the rear end where the young people love to sit, and I can tell how popular he is by the number who sit there.

I was ruminating about this family institution and its great importance in the world because I have been reading about it in the Apocrypha, which is one of our family Bibles. I heard a preacher say once that a Bible without the Apocrypha in it should not stay in the house. Well, it took 1,826 years to exclude it from the Protestant Bible, and most of it is in the Roman Catholic Bible yet.

What is called a sacred canon was not established until the sixteenth century, and for centuries before that almost every great theologian had his own catalogue of inspired books as he believed them. For 300 years only one of Paul's epistles were admitted. The Book of St. James and the Revelation of St. John were excluded. So were Esther and Daniel and Jonah in the Old Testament. Luther tried to have Hebrews, and James, and Jude, and the Revelations of St. John excluded, but failed. But all differences of opinion seem to have been harmonized at the council of Trent by all Christians and the Apocrypha was left in, not as an inspired part, but to be read for religious instruction. In 1826 it was excluded from the Protestant Bible, but it remains in many of the old time family Bibles and is in one of mine.

I dare to peruse it sometimes, especially "The Wisdom of Jesus the Son of Sirach," which is called Ecclesiasticus, which has fifty chapters and is as full of maxims and morals and instruction for the family as are the Proverbs of Solomon. Addison says that if this book had been left in the canon, or if it had the name of some great Greek philosopher, it would have commanded the admiration of mankind. To my mind it is the condensation of wisdom for family government. It is as pointed and pungent as anything that Solomon ever wrote. This Jesus was a better man than Solomon. He lived and wrote 300 years after Malachi, the last of the prophets. In the close of his narrative concerning Moses and the prophets he says of Solomon: "By his body he was brought into subjection and didst stain his honor and pollute his seed so as to bring wrath upon his children, and his kingdom was divided."

I never did have a profound admiration for a man who said, "Rejoice, O young man, in the wife of thy youth and be thou always ravished with her love," and then goes off and married 300 wives and takes 700 concubines. His precepts were good, but his example was bad, very bad. My doctrine has always been that a man has no more right to two wives than a woman has to two husbands. Let him stand by his marriage vows. This is the injunction of Jesus, the son of Sirach. As a sample of his wisdom let me quote:

LL ARP'S LETTER

Delights to Receive Inspiration From the Apocrypha.

TATIONS FROM STRANGE BOOK.

Government For the Country Can Be Brought About and Maintained Through Family Influences.

he family is the most important institution upon the earth. It is the foundation of the world. Its influences is greater than that of kings, emperors and dictators. Parents and children are around it like hallelujahs in a choir. Families, as units, make up communities, and they make states and nations and choose their rulers. As the family is the government—good laws are unnecessary. Unmarried men are apt to be wild and feel no great interest in the welfare of their individual comfort and welfare. But parents are concerned for their children, love them and would die for them, consequently we want good government that will protect them. But not every family who feels this concern.

In my walk now I see the homes of my neighbors and can count on my fingers those whose presence is a safeguard to the community, and the rest of little consequence. If they should move away it would not add to nor detract. So it is in all communities. Few are the many. So it is in our state. Twenty members of our legislature control its legislation. Twenty members of an average church govern the church. Samson was destroyed because Delilah could not be found. If men were good we would have no need for constables or prisons. But for a city that is set on a hill there must be a valley.

I am now recalling and the contrast of the one, and imagine the difference in living from the other, when I look at the servants did their language, "Oh, yes! Mr. Who being to Captain Jinks's grand parade here." And people are going and coming all the time, to one call and more to follow. But as the devil can't be everywhere he goes about calling, and leaves the sanctuary and church while the preacher is preaching.

We have a house of prayer and a pulpit there, and upon examination find it is the largest congregation."

The pulpit is always at the rear end where the young people love to sit, and you can tell how popular he is by the number who sit there.

I was ruminating about this family institution and its great importance in the world because I have been reading about it in the Apocrypha, which is one of our family Bibles. I heard a preacher say once that a Bible with the Apocrypha in it should not stay in his house. Well, it took 1,826 years to exclude it from the Protestant Bible, and most of it is in the Roman Catholic Bible yet.

What is called a sacred canon was not established until the sixteenth century, and for centuries before that many of the great theologian had his own catalogue of inspired books as he believed them. For 300 years only ten of Paul's epistles were admitted. The Book of St. James and the Revelation of St. John were excluded. So were Esther and Daniel and Jonah in the Old Testament. Luther tried to have Hebrews, and James, and Jude, and Revelations of St. John excluded, but failed. But all differences of opinion seem to have been harmonized at the council of Trent by all Christians and the Apocrypha was left in, not as an inspired part, but to be read for religious instruction. In 1826 it was excluded from the Protestant Bible, but it remains in many of the old time family Bibles and is in one of mine.

I dare to peruse it sometimes, especially "The Wisdom of Jesus the Son of Sirach," which is called Ecclesiasticus, which has fifty chapters and is as full of maxims and morals and instruction for the family as are the Proverbs of Solomon. Addison says that if this book had been left in the canon, or if it had the name of some great Greek philosopher, it would have commanded the admiration of mankind. To my mind it is the condensation of wisdom for family government. It is as pointed and pungent as anything that Solomon ever wrote. This Jesus was a better man than Solomon. He lived and wrote 300 years after Malachi, the last of the prophets. In the close of his narrative concerning Moses and the prophets he says of Solomon: "By his body he was brought into subjection and didst stain his honor and pollute his seed and brought wrath upon his children, and his kingdom was divided."

I never did have a profound admiration for a man who said, "Rejoice, oh, young man, in the wife of thy youth, and be thou always ravished with her love," and then goes off and marries 300 wives and takes 700 concubines. His precepts were good, but his example was bad, very bad. My doctrine has always been that a man has no more right to two wives than a woman has to two husbands. Let him stand by his marriage vows. This is the injunction of Jesus, the son of Sirach. As a sample of his wisdom let me quote:

"A man that breaketh his wedlock, saying, 'Who seeth me; am I not compassed about with darkness,' he forgetteth that the eyes of the Lord are ten thousand times brighter than the sun."

"Blessed is he who hath a virtuous wife, for the number of his days shall be doubled."

"A silent and loving woman is a gift from the Lord."

"A fool will peep in at the door of the house, but he that is well nurtured will stand without."

"Do not banquet upon borrowed money."

"Commend not a man for his outward appearance, for many kings have sat down upon the ground, and one that was never thought of hath worn the crown."

"A friend cannot be known in prosperity, and an enemy cannot be hid in adversity."

"Use not much the company of a woman who is a singer lest thou be captured with her voice."

"Rejoice not over thine enemy when he is dead."

"Lend not to who is higher than thyself, but if thou lendest count it lost."

"Sit not down with the wife of another man in thine arms, for it will bring thee to destruction."

"My son, help thy father in his old age and thou shalt have joy in thine own children."

"Have no fellowship with those who are mightier and richer than thyself, for how can the earthen kettle and the pot agree?"

"When a rich man speaketh every man holdeth his tongue and extol it to the clouds, but if a poor man speak, they say, 'What fellow is this?'"

"Build not a house with another man's money, for it is like gathering stones for the tomb of thy burial."

"A thief is better than a common liar."

"Accustom not thy mouth to swearing nor to the naming of the Holy One."

"Against him that is niggard of his meat his neighbors shall murmur."

"Keep a sure watch over a shameless daughter lest she make thee a laughing-stock and a byword in the city and a reproach among thy people."

Whether this book be inspired or not, it is full of devotion to God and gratitude for His goodness. The Old Testament Hebrews canon was made up and closed before this Jesus lived, or perhaps Ecclesiasticus would have been embraced in it. It is certainly entitled to as much consideration as Solomon's Song, for there is not a vulgar or lascivious expression in it.

This much about the Apocrypha will answer some inquiries I have received, two of them from preachers. I have a long letter from my old friend, Bishop Turner, concerning that recent publication of William Hannibal Thomas; that bill of indictment against negroes of his own race. He denounces Thomas. His opinion is that some learned white man wrote the book and paid Thomas for the use of his name. He says this is the opinion of those in South Carolina who know this scapegallows. He says, "I am well acquainted with him; knew him during the war in front of Richmond, where some southern hero shot off one of his arms, and it is a pity he did not shoot his head off. He is now receiving an exhorbitant pension from the United States government. If there ever was money paid to a dog, it is paid to him. If the white people of the south knew half as much about his rascality and villainy as he has told me, they would seek his blood. If our preachers are so bad as he represents them, what did he stop for and join the party of the devil? He was one of the preachers of my church and will be until hell opens her arms to receive him," etc., etc.

I have been following Bishop Turner's course ever since the war, and have never known aught against him as a man or a Christian. In the year 1866, when our people at Rome were under the oppression of a Spanish captain, one De la Mesa, Bishop Turner acted as a mediator and tried to make our condition more tolerable. He made a speech at Reese's Spring, near Rome, that we all commended, and did his utmost to prevent that Spaniard from exercising his foul domination and tyranny. Ever since then his pen and voice has been for peace between the races. I am pleased to speak of him as "my friend."—BILL ARP, in Atlanta Constitution.

A few champions of the American trotter are uncomfortable because the number of pacers bred in this country has made remarkable gains in comparison with the total of trotters. But, after all, what's the harm? If American breeders and buyers of fast animals used in light harness prefer the pacer to the trotter, any effort to balk their preferences will surely be futile. Let them have their way without lamentations or protests. If the pacer in the long run does not justify his predominance, the trotter will surely come to his own again in due time, remarks the New York Tribune.

It appears from President Eliot's report of last year's work at Harvard that boys enter college a trifle younger than they did a generation ago, and few of them proportionally are now prepared by private tutors. The number entering from public schools is steadily increasing. Dr. Eliot thinks that the excellence of the preparatory schools ought still further to reduce the average age of entrance. "There is no good reason why nine-tenths of all the boys who mean to go to Harvard College should not be fully prepared for admission at eighteen years of age," he says.

SHEEP-EATING PARROTS.

Their Efforts to Get at the Kidneys of the Living Animals.

A group has just been mounted in the Smithsonian Institution which represents vividly one of the most extraordinary instances of animal life that have ever come under the observation of man.

It appears that during a recent winter in New Zealand the herders of the numerous flocks of sheep in that country noticed that many of the animals were afflicted with wounds in the back or loins, sometimes severe and occasionally so much so as to prove fatal. The cause of these wounds was a mystery until a shepherd one day saw a kea, or mountain parrot, clinging to the wool of a sheep and picking at a sore on its flank. A close watch was instituted and the birds were again many times caught in the act of wounding the sheep, the object being evidently to reach the fat surrounding the kidneys. The origin of the habit was subsequently revealed. During summer the keas inhabit the higher portions of the mountain districts, and when the severe weather destroys, or the heavy snows cover their supply of food they descend to lower levels where the climate is more mild and food less scarce. During the winter referred to they descended lower than usual, as far, indeed, as the plains inhabited by the sheep-raisers, and finding their natural food scarce are attracted by the pressed carcasses of sheep hung upon meat gallows. Alighting upon these they found the flesh to their liking and particularly the fat surrounding the kidneys.

"No other conclusion seems more plausible," says a scientist in connection with the Smithsonian Institution, "than that these birds possessed sufficient intelligence to recognize in the living sheep, the source of this food supply, and therefore, in the absence of slaughtered meat they avail themselves of the living bodies. Recent discoveries in natural history reveal nothing stranger or more startling than the change of this parrot from an originally purely vegetable diet, consisting of honey-producing flowers, fruits and berries, to one of flesh—not dead flesh merely, but the substance of living animals. This is, indeed, a most remarkable instance of acquired taste."

The group in the museum of the Smithsonian Institution represents faithfully a sheep attacked by two of the keas, or meat-eating parrots. The latter are mounted upon the victim's back and engaged in tearing the flesh with their powerful beaks. The keas resemble the ordinary type of the Mexican parrot with the exception that they are somewhat larger and their plumage is darker, and variegated with brown.—Washington Times.

Mountain Falls Into Sea.

A Vancouver (B. C.) special runs: The whole crest of a mountain over a mile in circumference slipped into Loughborough inlet, 100 miles from Vancouver, a few days ago.

The great slide was the result of an earthquake and the resulting shock of the falling mountain top was felt for a long distance. At this part of the coast the mountains rise almost perpendicularly from the water for 700 or 800 feet. The mountain which fell was composed of a crag which overhung the shore, and a great slice of it sheered off into the bay.

The break extended back over 500 feet from the shore. Giant trees and rocks were swept away, as if they had been toothpicks. Instead of crumbling as it fell, the huge mass of rock and earth turned over and flung itself far out into the bay, forming a small tidal wave.

REV. DR. TALMAGE.

DISCOURSE BY THE EMINENT DIVINE LAST SUNDAY.

Subject: Revivals a Benefit — Lessons Drawn From Famous Religious Awakenings — The Most Useful Christians Are Those Converted Early in Life.

(Copyright 1901.)

WASHINGTON, D. C.—This discourse of Dr. Talmage is most pertinent at this time, when a widespread effort for religious awakening is being made; text, Luke v. 6, "They inclosed a great multitude of fishes, and their net brake."

Simon and his comrades had experienced the night before what fishermen call "poor luck." Christ steps on board the fishing smack and tells the sailors to pull away from the beach and directs them again to sink the net. Sure enough, very soon the net is full of fishes, and the sailors begin to haul in. So large a school of fishes was taken that the hardy men begin to look red in the face as they pull, and hardly have they begun to rejoice at their success when snap goes a thread of the net, and snap goes another thread, so there is danger not only of losing the fish, but of losing the net.

Without much care as to how much the boat tilts or how much water is splashed on deck the fishermen rush about gathering up the broken meshes of the net. Out yonder there is a ship dancing on the waves, and they hail it: "Ship ahoy! Bear down this way!" The ship comes, and both boats, both fishing smacks, are filled with the floundering treasures.

"Ah," says some one, "how much better it would have been if they had staid on shore and fished with a hook and line and taken one at a time instead of having this great excitement and the boat almost upset and the net broken and having to call for help and getting sopping wet with the sea!"

The church is the boat, the gospel is the net, society is the sea, and a great revival is a whole school brought in at one sweep of the net. I have admiration for that man who goes out with a hook and line to fish. I admire the way he unwinds the reel and adjusts the bait and drops the hook in a quiet place on a still afternoon and here catches one and there one, but I like also a big boat and swift oars and stout sails and a stiff breeze and a great multitude of souls brought—so great a multitude that you have to get help to draw it ashore, straining the net to the utmost until it breaks here and there, letting a few escape, but bringing the great multitude into eternal safety.

In other words, I believe in revivals. The great work of saving men began with 3000 people joining the church in one day, and it will close with forty or a hundred million people saved in twenty-four hours when nations shall be born in a day. But there are objections to revivals. People are opposed to them because the net might get broken, and if by the pressure of souls it does not get broken, then they take their own penknives and slit the net. "They inclosed a great multitude of fishes, and the net brake."

It is sometimes opposed to revivals of religion that those who come into the church at such times do not hold out. As long as there is a gale of blessing they have their sails up, but as soon as strong winds stop blowing then they drop into a dead calm. But what are the facts in the case? In all our churches the vast majority of the useful people are those who are brought in under great awakenings, and they hold out. Who are the prominent men in the United States in churches, in prayer meetings, in Sabbath-schools? For the most part they are the product of great awakenings.

I have noticed that those who are brought into the kingdom of God through revivals have more persistence and more determination in the Christian life than those who come in under a low state of religion. People born in an icehouse may live, but they will never get over the cold they caught in the icehouse.

A cannon ball depends upon the impulse with which it starts for how far it shall go and how swiftly, and the greater the revival force with which a soul is started the more far-reaching and far-resounding will be the execution.

But it is sometimes objected to revivals that there is so much excitement that people mistake hysteria for religion. We admit that in every revival of religion there is either a suppressed or a demonstrated excitement. Indeed, if a man can go out of a state of condemnation into a state of acceptance with God or see others go without any agitation of soul he is in an unhealthy, morbid state and is as repulsive and absurd as a man who should boast he saw a child snatched out from under a horse's hoofs and felt no agitation, or saw a man rescued from the fourth story of a house on fire and felt no acceleration of the pulses.

Salvation from sin and death and hell into life and peace and heaven forever is such a tremendous thing that if a man tells me he can look on it without any agitation I doubt his Christianity.

The fact is that sometimes excitement is the most important possible thing. In case of resuscitation from drowning or freezing, the one idea is to excite animation. Before conversion we are dead. It is the business of the church to revive, arouse, awaken, resuscitate, startle into life.

Excitement is bad or good, according to what it makes us do. If it makes us do that which is bad, it is bad excitement, but if it makes us agitated about our eternal welfare, if it makes us pray, if it make us attend upon Christian service, if it make us cry unto God for mercy, then it is good excitement.

It is sometimes said that during revivals of religion great multitudes of children and young people are brought into the church, and they do not know what they are about. It has been my observation that the earlier people come into the kingdom of God the more useful they are. Robert Hall, the prince of preachers, was converted at twelve years of age. It is likely he knew what he was about. Matthew Henry, the commentator, who did more than any man of his century for increasing the interest in the study of the Scriptures, was converted at eleven years of age; Isabella Graham, immortal in the Christian church, was converted at ten years of age; Dr. Watts, whose hymns will be sung all down the ages, was converted at nine years of age; Jonathan Edwards, perhaps the mightiest intellect that the American pulpit ever produced, was converted at seven years of age, and that father and mother take an awful responsibility when they tell their child at seven years of age, "You are too young to be a Christian," or, "You are too young to connect yourself with the church." That is a mistake as long as eternity.

If during a revival two persons present themselves as candidates for the church, and the one is ten years of age and the other is forty years of age, I will have more confidence in the profession of religion of the one ten years of age than the one forty years of age. Why? The one who professes at forty years of age has forty years of impulse in the wrong direction to correct; the child has only ten years in the wrong direction to correct. Four times ten are forty. Four times the religious prospect for the lad that comes into the kingdom of God and into the church at ten years of age than the man at forty.

I am very apt to look upon revivals as connected with certain men who fostered them. People who in this day do not like revivals nevertheless have not words to express their admiration for the revivalists of the past, for they were revivalists—Jonathan Edwards, John Wesley, George Whitefield, Fletcher, Griffin, Davies, Osborne, Knox, Nettleton, Moody and many others whose names come to my mind. The strength of their intellect and the holiness of their lives make me think they would not have had anything to do with that which was spasmodical. Oh, it is easy to talk against revivals.

A man said to Mr. Dawson: "I like your sermons very much, but the after meetings I despise. When the prayer meeting begins, I always go up in the gallery and look down, and I am disgusted." "Well," said Mr. Dawson, "the reason is you go on the top of your neighbor's house and look down his chimney to examine his fire, and of course you only get the smoke in your eyes. Why don't you come in the door and sit down and warm?"

Oh, I am afraid to say anything against revivals of religion or against anything that looks like them, because I think it may be a sin against the Holy Ghost, and you know the Bible says that a sin against the Holy Ghost shall never be forgiven neither in this world nor the world to come. Now, if you are a painter, and I speak against your pictures, do I not speak against you? If you are an architect and I speak against a building you put up, do I not speak against you? If a revival be the work of the Holy Ghost and I speak against that revival, do I not speak against the Holy Ghost? And whoso speaketh against the Holy Ghost, says the Bible, he shall never be forgiven neither in this world nor in the world to come. I think sometimes people have made a fatal mistake in this direction.

Many of you know the history of Aaron Burr. He was one of the most brilliant men of his day. I suppose this country never produced a stronger intellect. He was capable of doing anything good and great for his country or for the church of God had he been rightly disposed, but his name is associated with treason against the United States government, which he tried to overthrow, and with libertinism and immorality. Do you know where Aaron Burr started on the downward road? It was when he was in college and he became anxious about his soul and was about to put himself under the influences of a revival, and a minister of religion said: "Don't go there, Aaron; don't go there. That's a place of wildfire and great excitement. No religion about that. Don't go there." He tarried away.

And who is responsible for his ruin for this world and his everlasting ruin in the world to come? Was it the minister who warned him against that revival?

When I speak of excitement in revivals, I do not mean temporary derangement of the nerves, I do not mean the absurd things of which we have read as transpiring sometimes in the church of Christ, but I mean an intelligent, intense, all absorbing agitation of body, mind and soul in the work of spiritual escape and spiritual rescue.

Now I come to the real, genuine cause of objection to revivals—that is, the coldness of the objector. It is the secret and hidden but unmistakable cause in every case, a low state of religion in the heart. Wide awake, consecrated, useful Christians are never afraid of revivals. It is the spiritually dead who are afraid of having their sepulcher molested. The chief agents of the devil during a great awakening are always unconverted professors of religion.

As soon as Christ's work begins they begin to gossip against it and take a pail of water and try to put out this spark of religious influence, and they try to put out another spark. Do they succeed? As well when Chicago was on fire might some one have gone out with a garden water pot trying to extinguish it. The difficulty is that when a revival begins in a church it begins at so many points that while you have doused one anxious soul with a pail of cold water there are 500 other anxious souls on fire.

Oh, how much better it would be to lay hold of the chariot of Christ's gospel and help pull it on rather than fling ourselves in front of the wheels, trying to block their progress. We will not stop the chariot, but we ourselves will be ground to powder.

Aroused pulpits will make aroused pews; pulpits aflame will make pews aflame. Everybody believes in a revival in trade, everybody likes a revival in literature, everybody likes a revival in art, yet a great multitude cannot understand a revival in matters of religion. Depend upon it, where you find a man antagonistic to revivals, whether he be in pulpit or pew, he needs to be regenerated by the grace of God.

I could prove to a demonstration that without revivals this world will never be converted and that in 100 or 200 years without revivals Christianity will be practically extinct. It is a matter of astounding arithmetic. In each of our modern generations there are at least 32,000,000 children. Now add 32,000,000 to the world's population and then have only 100,000 or 200,000 converted every year, and how long before the world will be saved? Never—absolutely never!

During our Civil War the President of the United States made proclamation for 75,000 troops. Some of you remember the big stir. But the King of the universe to-day asks for 1,200,000,000 more troops than are enlisted, and we want it done softly, imperceptibly, no excitement, one by one. You are a dry goods merchant on a large scale, and I am a merchant on a small scale, and I come to you and want to buy a thousand yards of cloth. Do you say: "Thank you. I'll sell you a thousand yards of cloth, but I'll sell you twenty yards to-day and twenty to-morrow, and twenty the next day, and if it takes me six months I'll sell you the whole thousand yards; you will want as long as that to examine the goods, and I'll want as long as that to examine the credit, and, besides, that, a thousand yards of cloth are too much to sell all at once?" No, you do not say that. You take me into the counting room, and in ten minutes the whole transaction is consummated. The fact is, we cannot afford to be fools in anything but religion.

That very merchant who on Saturday afternoon sold me the thousand yards of cloth at one stroke the next Sabbath in church will stroke his beard and wonder whether it would not be better for a thousand souls to come straggling along for ten years instead of bolting in at one service.

We talk a good deal about the good times that are coming and about the world's redemption. How long before they will come? There is a man who says 500 years; here is a man who says 200 years; here is some one more confident who says in fifty years. What, fifty years? Do you propose to let two generations pass off the stage before the world is converted? Suppose by prolongation of human life at the end of the next fifty years you should walk the length of Pennsylvania avenue, Washington, or the length of Broadway, New York—in all those walks you would not find one person that you recognize. Why? All dead or so changed you would not know them. In other words, if you postpone the redemption of this world for fifty years you admit that the majority of the two whole generations shall go off the stage unblessed and unsaved. I tell you, the church of Jesus Christ cannot consent to it. We must pray and toil and have the revival spirit, and we must struggle to have the whole world saved before the men and women now in middle life pass.

"Oh," you say, "it is too vast an enterprise to be conducted in so short a time!" Do you know how long it would take to save the whole world if each man would bring another? It would take ten years. By a calculation in compound interest each man bringing another, and that one another, and that one another, in ten years the whole earth would be saved—1911. Before the organs in our churches are worn out they ought to sound the grand march of the whole earth saved. If the world is not saved in the next ten years, it will be the fault of the church of Christ. But it will all depend upon the revival spirit. The kink and line fishing will not do it.

THE SABBATH SCHOOL

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR APRIL 7.

Subject: The Resurrection of Jesus, Luke xxiv., 1-12.—Golden Text, 1 Cor. xv., 20.—Memory Verses, 6-7.—Commentary on the Day's Lesson.

1. "The first day of the week." Christ was in the tomb part of Friday, all day Saturday and part of Sunday, which was called three days according to Jewish reckoning. He arose very early in the morning on the first day of the week. The manner of the reuniting of Christ's soul and body in His resurrection is a mystery, one of the secret things that does not belong to us. The first company of women were three: Mary Magdalene, Mary the mother of James, and Salome, the mother of the beloved disciple, John. They began their journey to the sepulcher before dawn, reaching the place at sunrise. At the appearance of the angel the Roman guards were so frightened that they fell as dead men, and it would seem that they fled from the tomb before the women came. "Very early in the morning." They came at the earliest moment after their Sabbath. They probably left their homes in different parts of the city at different times, some of them reaching the tomb at sunrise. So, in our service of love for Christ, we ought to come early in the morning of life before we have wasted our energies in sin. "Bringing the spices." Powdered aromatic substances and fluid perfumes appear to have been used in laying out the dead body for burial. They proposed to apply these spices to His body to keep it from putrefaction, which is another proof that they did not expect Him to rise again.

2. "The stone rolled away." As the women journeyed they questioned who should roll away the stone, but when they reached the tomb they discovered the stone was rolled away. The tomb was cut in the side of a rock, like a cave, large enough for several persons to enter. The entrance was protected by a stone, sometimes round, like a large millstone, rolled in front of the opening. The difficulty was a serious one, for the stone was very large (Mark 16: 4); covering an aperture of at least three or four feet in height and two or three in breadth, and it would take two or three men to move it. Sometimes duty seems impossible, but as we go on obediently the difficulty vanishes, as it did before these women.

3. "They entered in." Mary Magdalene seems to have been in advance of the rest and only looked in (John 20: 1); the others entered. "Found not the body." The linen grave clothes were there, but the tomb could not hold Christ. The empty grave was the boundary line between the old dispensation and the new. The sublimest expectations of the Old Testament were now fulfilled in the resurrection of Christ.

4. "Much perplexed." They did not know what to do or where to go. Their thought was, "They have taken away the Lord, and we know not where they have laid Him." "Two men." Angels, Matt. 28: 5. Matthew speaks of but one, the one who did the speaking, and Mark speaks of him as a young man. "Shining garments." Matthew says his countenance was like lightning and his raiment white as snow. The raiment was emblematical of the glad tidings which the angels came to announce, and also of purity and fellowship with God. Rev. 3: 4, 5.

5. "They were afraid." It is no wonder that the women were afraid. Matthew says that through fear the keepers "did shake and became as dead men." "They." The angels. "Said." "Why seek ye the living among the dead?" It admits of doubt whether the Greek expression here would not have been more literally rendered, "the living one"—the great source of life, the life of the world.

6. "He is—risen." He was crucified, but is risen. Instead of anointing Him as dead they may rejoice in His being alive from the dead. Death hath no more dominion over Him. The resurrection morn was a time of gladness to the disciples of Jesus. It brought (1) joy, (2) victory, (3) faith, (4) hope. It is the true comfort of all believers. How mournfully do the women go to the tomb, but how joyfully do they return. The risen Christ is the remedy for every trouble; His resurrection is the pledge of ours. But that which causes rejoicing on the part of some will bring consternation and despair to others. The proofs of the resurrection are ample. 1. He appeared frequently at different times and places to many. 2. The apostles believed it so fully that they based their hope of eternal life upon it. 3. They were completely transformed after the resurrection and attested their faith by their own death. 4. The very existence of the Christian church and its power for good in the world. 5. The spiritual life put in the hearts of His people (Rom. 8: 11)—the fact that He saves men and makes His promises good to them proves conclusively that Christ is alive from the dead. "Remember." Call to mind what you have forgotten in your sorrow over His death. "In Galilee." This was their home (chap. 23: 55), and nearly a year before He had told of His coming death.

7. "Saying." See chap. 9: 22, 44, 45; 18: 31—33; Matt. 16: 21. "Rise again." Jesus had tried to impress them with this truth in order to comfort them in the hour of their great sorrow, but they failed to comprehend its meaning.

9. "Returned from the sepulchre." Matthew says the angel told them to go quickly and tell His disciples that He was risen, and that they departed quickly with fear and great joy, and did run to bring the disciples word.

10. "Mary Magdalene." She was a native of Magdala, a town on the Sea of Galilee, and was foremost among the honorable women who ministered unto Christ and His disciples, being especially devoted to Christ for His mercy in casting out from her seven evil spirits. Luke 8: 2, 3. There is no evidence that she was ever a bad character. "Joanna." Wife of Chuza, the steward of Herod Antipas (chap. 8: 3), and hence a woman of some influence and wealth. "Mary, the mother of James." Called James the Less to distinguish him from James, the brother of John. She was the wife of Alpheus (compare Mark 3: 18), who seems also to have been called Cleophas. John 19: 25.

11. "Believed them not." They thought they must surely be mistaken; they could not understand or comprehend their words.

12. "Then arose Peter." John went with Him and reached the sepulchre first. John 20: 2, 3. They heard the story from Mary Magdalene, before the women returned. "The linen clothes." This was the fine linen in which Joseph of Arimathea wrapped the body. This small circumstance is no mean proof of the resurrection of our Lord. Had the body been stolen away all that was wrapped about it would have been taken with it.

A very successful New Yorker in an address to young men referred to "clergymen with the two 'ways'—a very small income and a very large family." The small income still wins the minister's seat—the average for American clergymen being $600—but the large family is a thing of the past. The ministerial family is somewhat remarkable nowadays if it includes more than three children—usually two sons and one daughter.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

FOR DELEGATE FROM CHILTON COUNTY:

DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE:

H. W. CAFFEY.

POPULIST NOMINEE:

L. H. REYNOLDS.

DELINQUENT taxpayers' attention is called to page 8 of this issue.

Did you ever see such weather for the month of April?

WE have crowded all we possibly could into this issue, and must ask the indulgence of those correspondents whose communications do not appear. We really couldn't help it.

THE Eighteenth Annual Convention of the Alabama State Sunday-school Association will be commenced at Talladega, April 9 and last three days.

A SESSION of the Southern Normal Musical Institute will be held at Clanton, under the direction of Prof. A. J. Showalter, commencing July 22, and continuing twenty days, closing with a concert on the evening of August 13. Rev. F. M. Woods is President of the committee, and Mr. E. B. Deason, secretary. It promises to be a very important session for the lovers of music.

W. POWELL Hale will give an entertainment at the court house Friday night for the benefit of the cemetery. He comes highly recommended and an enjoyable evening is in prospect. Admission 25c and 15c. Tickets can be had at Clanton Drug Store.

GENERAL Funston is the hero of the hour. His remarkable capture of Aguinaldo is one of the proudest achievements of any soldier of any time.

THE Constitutional convention is apparently not worrying the people of Chilton much, but perhaps they will get more interested after awhile. But the election is only two weeks from next Tuesday.

FREE Silver—300 pounds of silver dollars was the weight of money received by Supt. Moore for the payment of teachers.

Clanton is to have a big circus under mammoth tents Saturday, April 13. Bill posters in a special advance car were busy Tuesday putting up brilliant paper in Clanton and the surrounding country for Sells & Gray's United Shows, one of the greatest circus combinations in America. The show requires between twenty and thirty cars for its transportation, carrying a big animal collection, 200 horses and 200 performers. There will be a big street parade on the morning of the show.

In a recent letter addressed to the United Confederate Veterans, Commanding General J. B. Gordon has officially set apart May 30th as the day on which proper and special tribute will be offered to the memory of the great cavalry leader, Lieut.-General Nathan Bedford Forrest; the day to be known as "Forrest Day," and the parade arranged for that date, which will be the third day of the Reunion, to be especially formed with the view of celebrating the victories of the dashing cavalryman.

Randolph.

Mr. E. G. Cofer, who recently lost his gin house and mill by fire, is preparing to rebuild.

Mrs. Honeycutt, of Clear Creek, has been visiting her son, ex Judge Honeycutt. We know it is a great pleasure to the Judge to have his mother visit him in her extreme old age.

Rev. Mr. Smitherman, of Brierfield, filled his regular appointment at Pleasant Grove on the 24th inst.

Mr. J. W. Wright is erecting a nice new residence.

Miss Tempie Smitherman, of Jemison, visited here last week.

Prof. J. N. Dennis has moved to Jemison.

Mrs. Will Cofer has been quite sick.

Rev. J. H. Thomas filled his appointment at Pleasant Grove last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Franklin, of Thorsby, visited here last week.

THE LEGEND OF THE EASTER RABBIT

THE wonderful rabbit which lays the red, white and blue Easter eggs is one of the oldest of historic characters. In fact, wise men who have tried to trace the story to its source have gone back far beyond the earliest beginnings of written history only to find its big, woolly ears sticking up through the mists of tradition and superstition.

But the strangest thing about the Easter rabbit is that you will find him in every part of the world in Africa and Asia as well as in Europe and America and if he is not laying Easter eggs he is doing something equally remarkable and noteworthy.

People who think the rabbit only a timid, stupid and commonplace member of society are entirely mistaken. They ought to read the volumes that have been written about him. And as for the children! Mother Goose may be more familiar where English is spoken, but the Easter rabbit is known to the little one in every language.

Not even the greatest students have ever been able to learn how it happens that the rabbit lays Easter eggs. All they know is that little children and particularly little children in Germany, make, as their grandfathers did before them, warm nests of hay during Easter week, in which they find on Easter morning a lot of beautiful colored eggs, laid there, of course, by the Easter rabbit. Sometimes the Easter rabbit even leaves a little candy or china image of himself behind him in the midst of the eggs, by way of a card. But really no proof is needed. Years before the oldest man can remember it was always said that the rabbit laid the Easter eggs, and there is no more reason to doubt it now than there was then.

In St. Louis the shop windows are now crowded with Easter rabbits, and the Easter cards as often as not show the Easter rabbit's picture. Ask somebody why it is a rabbit instead of a woodchuck or any other animal. You will find nobody that can tell you. Nobody knows. All they can do is to make shrewd guesses at it.

Going back behind the first books men have found that the rabbit was regarded as a sacred animal by widely scattered people all over the world. Even the American Indians, who had never, so far as we know, heard of Easter, had their feast of the Great Hare, or rabbit, and in the sixth century after Christ, before the early inhabitants of what is now England had been Christianized, the hare or rabbit is said to have been sacred to Ostara, the goddess of dawn and of spring.

Among the natives of South Africa there has been for centuries and still is a story which connects the rabbit with Easter in a curious way. The spots on the surface of the moon form, as these natives say, the perfect image of a rabbit. And as the moon sets or dies and rises again every thirty days, it sent the rabbit to take its message to the children of men.

"Go," said the moon to the rabbit; "go and say to men that, even as I die and rise again, so shall they also die and rise again."

But the rabbit was wicked, and did not carry the message straight.

"The moon says," the rabbit told the South African natives, "that even as I die and do not rise again so shall you also die and not rise again."

When the rabbit came back and told what he had done, the moon was naturally angry, and struck at him with a hatchet. The blow struck the rabbit and split its upper lip. People who doubt the story are asked to notice that the rabbit's lip is split to this day. And besides having its lip split the rabbit was much frightened at the moon's anger, so that it ran away and hid in a hole in the ground, and has been timid ever since.

Going over to Asia we find that the rabbit still holds its place as a sacred animal. In China and all the other countries where the religion of Buddha prevails, the story runs that the great Buddha himself was at one time terribly hungry, and wandered up and down on the surface of the earth looking for something to eat, but found nothing. Finally the rabbit saw the hungry god and felt sorry for him. Going up close, so that Buddha could not fail to see him, the rabbit laid down at his feet.

"Eat me," said the rabbit to Buddha.

But the Chinese divinity was not to be outdone in generosity. Instead of eating the rabbit he transported it up to the moon, and there to this day the little Chinese children can see it. Against the bright face of the moon they can make out a tall cassia tree, with a spreading top. Under this tree sits the rabbit on its haunches, pounding continually in a mortar from which is made the water of life. Perhaps if our children will look carefully at the moon they, too, may be able to make out the shape of the rabbit which lays the Easter eggs.

And to-day in China at the time of the celebration of the great moon festival, which corresponds in season to Easter in Christian lands, the figure of the rabbit is stamped on the moon cakes, which relatives and friends exchange among each other in the place of Easter cards.

In certain parts of England, even at the present time, much more is made of the Easter hare than in this country. In Leicestershire, for instance, there is a custom still in vogue called "the Easter hare pie scramble." So many years ago that everybody has forgotten it a certain plat of ground was given to the rector of the parish perpetually on the condition that each year on Easter Monday he and his successor shoul contribute two hares or rabbit pies and a quantity of ale to be scrambled for by the villagers. As late at 1892 the "hare pie scramble" was observed as a great festival, all the villagers turning out to march in procession behind the men carrying the hare pies, cut up into fragments. When they reached a spot known traditionally as "Hare Pie Bank" the sacks were emptied and all the crowd engaged in a fight or scramble for the pies, which are supposed to guarantee good luck to the possessor for the ensuing year.

So the children who credit the Easter rabbit with laying the Easter eggs are simply following a tradition so old that no man knows its beginning. And in every corner of the globe other little children, white, black, yellow or red are, in one way or another, paying allegiance to the same tradition.

Street car conductors are never beautiful. In fact, they are not even passing fare.

An Easter Pie.

Many and quaint are the devices for Easter that are got up to amuse children.

One of the newest designs is prepared in the following manner:

A deep tin pie plate is lined with crape paper. Any color may be used, but pink or yellow is the most effective.

Set the plate on a piece of paper cut round, but much larger than the plate. Fold the paper upright, pinching it in to make it set flatly against the sides of the tin. Tie a ribbon of same shade as paper tightly around to hold paper in place. Allow enough ribbon to tie in two good-sized bows on either side of plate.

Then count as many little square or round boxes as there are children; fill with bon bons or favors, and to the top of box fasten by glueing or sewing a small chicken or bird. These may be got at any Japanese store in various colors; yellow cotton chicks or blackbirds. Place these in bottom of pan at regular intervals.

Over these lay a piece of Chinese tissue paper matching the crape paper. Where the chicks' heads come gently break the paper and pull the heads through.

Then fasten the edges of the paper to the pan with glue, allowing the crape paper to come above it and hide the join.

With the thumb and finger gently press out the folds around the edge of crape paper, allowing it to flare in ruffle fashion.

Around the head of each chick tie a satin ribbon matching the paper in color, allowing an end a half yard in length to lie over the side, to which end is attached a bow knot.

This pie is intended to be served at Easter breakfast, and each child pulls a chick out by means of the ribbon attached. The pie is set in the center of the table.

An Easter Dinner.

For an Easter dinner no color scheme can be more chaste and suitable than green and white. The fragrant lilies and hyacinths with masses of green are beautiful if one may have them; if not, a most artistic table can be had with the use of ferns alone. These range in price from five to ten cents per dozen, the best results being obtained with the long, slender varieties. Arrange a low, graceful centrepiece, and then at each place with two extra long ferns outline a wreath large enough to show outside the plate when placed. Curve the ferns symmetrically, crossing the stems at the bottom in style similar to the conventional empire wreath, and pin them flat invisibly to the tablecloth. A simple white place-card may be put in the centre of the wreath. This decoration is novel and the effect is very charming.

Easter Orange Bag.

This pretty Easter gift is made of shirred tissue paper, cut in fan shape. The pieces are bunched at one end and tied tightly with narrow white ribbon. A dozen tangarines are laid in this, then the ends are bunched and daintily tied with a golden cord.

Easter in the New Century.

In the century just begun there will be 5217 Sundays. In that which we have hardly yet learned to speak of as the last Easter Sunday has occurred once on its earliest possible date—March 22, 1818—but this will not recur till the twenty-third century. The earliest Easter in the new century will be March 23, 1913. Easter Sunday will fall once on its latest day—April 25, in 1943. This also occurred once in the century just passed—in 1866. Ascension Day is pratically always in May, but on three occasions in the past century it occurred in June, and in the new century this will happen four times.—Newcastle Chronicle.

Hot Cross Buns.

"How many people are aware that the hot cross bun of Good Friday dates back thousands of years—to the very dawn of the human race?" writes S. P. Butler in the Woman's Home Companion, discussing "The Antiquity of Sacred Cakes." "Like many another rite or symbolism which figured in the religious ceremonies of the heathen world, it was adopted and invested with a holier meaning by the followers of the new faith. Buns known by that self-same name were used in the worship of the queen of heaven, Ishtar, or Astarte, as early as the days of Cecrops, founder of Athens, 1500 B. C."

A German Plan.

If the wind is in the east on Easter Sunday it is considered in Germany to be a wise plan to draw water and wash in it, for then the wind cannot do any harm to the bather during the remainder of the year.

Painting Easter Eggs.

These clever artists are busily engaged in decorating eggs for their Easter celebration. The picture was reproduced from a postal card recently received by the Free Press from Berlin.

BIG INCREASE OF RECEIPTS.

New Industries for Alabama--A. S. Vaughan Kills Himself.--Other State News.

BIRMINGHAM MAN SUICIDES

Chas. Momm, of Washington Patent Office, Kills Himself While Despondent.

A Washington dispatch says: Chas. Momm, first assistant examiner in the patent office, while temporarily deranged by suffering from an abscess in his head caused by the grip, committed suicide by shooting himself in the head Friday morning. He was born in Prussia, and after graduating from a college in New Jersey, came to Birmingham, where he entered the shops of the Hardie-Tynes Foundry & Machine Works. He was soon made foreman of the works because of his skill and commanded a salary several hundred dollars in excess of that he received as patent examiner. The work in the shops was too severe, and he went to Washington to rest.

Mystic Shriners to Meet.

The annual meeting of the Ancient Arabic Order of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine will be held in Tuskaloosa this year, and the indications are that there will be a large attendance from all over the state. The meeting will be held on May 7th. There is but one Temple in the state, Zamora Temple, of Birmingham, but members from any part of the state can join. These meetings are held annually, the day preceding the Grand Commandery meeting of the Knights Templar, which will be held in Tuskaloosa on May 8th and 9th.

New Rolling Mill Plant Has Begun Operations.

The new rolling mill plant in Anniston, owned by the Anniston Rolling Mill Company, began operations Saturday morning. A force of about twenty-five men was put on in the puddling furnaces, muck mill and forging departments. The bar mill will start up Monday, when fifty skilled men will be added. The plant is situated in West Anniston. Orders are now booked for immediate delivery, and the industry will be run to its greatest capacity.

New Industries.

Alber & Byrne, of Birmingham, have been engaged to prepare plans and specifications and to superintend the construction of a waterworks system at Phoenix City. Bonds to the amount of $25,000, authorized by the legislature, will be issued to pay for building the waterworks system.

H. Hobler has applied for a franchise to build an electric light plant and waterworks system at Sheffield.

The Coffee Cotton Mill, the construction of which was begun some time ago, will be completed. Work was suspended several weeks ago on account of financial troubles of the contractors. The stockholders have taken the matter in hand now, however, and will push to construction and completion.

Accident at Bessemer.

Robert Hale, a little colored boy, about nine years old, fell from the dummy in Bessemer, Friday, while attempting to steal a ride. He fell from the cars, the wheels passing over him, crushing his head and killing him instantly.

A gang of twenty-five negroes were sent from Birmingham to Ironton, Ala., Friday morning to work in one of the furnaces at that point. The furnace will give employment to a hundred or more hands. The furnace went into blast Saturday.

Another Convict Given His Liberty.

Mike Feely, an old Irishman, with honesty stamped upon his face, was released from Pratt mines Thursday on a pardon issued by Governor Samford, after serving three months and fifteen days of a six-months' sentence imposed upon him by the officials of Butler county. The old fellow is another victim of the fee-seeking officials and tells a tale similar to that told by the seventeen men pardoned some time ago.

Tutwiler Coal, Coke & Iron Co. Increase Its Stock.

The Tutwiler Coal, Coke and Iron Company has filed a declaration in probate court at Birmingham increasing its capital stock from $50,000 to $1,000,000. The increase was voted by a stockholders' meeting March 25, 1901, at the office of Wolf, Underwood and Thach. The value of each share of stock was increased from $25 to $100. The board of directors were authorized to make a increase of stock at its pleasure, to be paid for in money, labor or property, such labor and property to be suitable for the business and purposes of the company, or to open book subscriptions to the capital stock increased, such subscriptions payable in money with the privilege to the subscriber of paying the same in labor or property at its reasonable value. The properties of this company consist of coal lands and coke ovens in Jefferson county and pig iron furnace and coke ovens near Birmingham, and iron ore mines in Talladega county.

S. A. Vaughan Kills Himself.

Samuel A. Vaughan, a section hand and time agent at Blytch, killed himself at his home at 6 o'clock Thursday morning. From letters left, despondency was the cause of his rash act. The deceased had a wife and children. At 5:30 he went into a room where his wife was sleeping and woke her up, inquired affectionately how she was, she having been sick the day before, and went back to bed. His wife did not suspect his intentions, and went back to sleep. An hour later she was awakened by a shot and rushing into his room, she found him lying on the bed with a terrible wound in his head, the pistol lying by him. He died seconds later.

Revenue Receipts of Jefferson County.

The revenue receipts of Jefferson county for the past three months indicate how rapidly the volume of business is growing. The receipts for the whole of last year were about $[illegible], while the receipts for the first three months of this year were $10[illegible], showing an increase over the receipts of last year's receipts of $11[illegible] in round numbers. The receipts for the remainder of this year will be amount no bigger, although the greater part of the revenue has been collected.

Got $4,122 of Teachers' Money.

The safe of the Southern Express Company at Reform was robbed Thursday night of more than $[illegible]. The money stolen was sent to the teachers of Pickens county. The money was sent to pay third quarter payment. The money was sent by the Treasurer consisting of two bags of silver containing $[illegible] each and $2,122.49 in currency was turned over to the Express company at Montgomery Wednesday and was sent to Reform via the M. & O. Thursday.

New Bank To Open.

The Steel City Bank, organized by R. R. Stobert and others, will open for business early in April. It will be located in the handsome building corner avenue E and fourteenth street, and be fully equipped to do a banking business in all its branches.

The twenty-second annual session of the Congregational Sunday School Association of Alabama convenes Saturday night in Birmingham at the First Congregational church, corner avenue and Twenty-fifth street.

The date of the State Convention of the Travelers' Protective Association has been changed from April 25 and 26th to April 26th and 27th. The meeting will be held in Birmingham. According to the original program a big delegation will go from Birmingham. All the delegates who have married are expected to take their wives and a "huge" time is anticipated. A number of social pleasures will characterize the convention, one being a trip to Cahaba.

Queer Sunday Sect.

Perth is the birthplace of a new religious sect, the members of which call themselves "Slaves of Christ." They teach that the earth is flat and rests on three whales and that in the middle of the ocean there is a gigantic cheese which grows at sunset. Railways, telegraphs and telephones are attributed to anti-Christ.

WOMEN MUST SLEEP.

Avoid Nervous Prostration.

When you are thoroughly sick what is the first thing your physician? He tells the nervous system, he deadens pain and you sleep well. Opiates are what is the cause of the trouble comes in pitying the nervous prostration. It came to you slowly in the beginning. You did not alarmed and when you awoke night after night fairly burned in the [illegible] you tossed in nervous [illegible], praying for sleep.

Mrs. A. Hartley

You ought to have known that when you ceased to be regular in your habits and you grew irritable without cause that there was serious [illegible] at work.

You ought to know that indigestion, constipation, womb displacements, nervousness, headache, and backache shake the nerves wild with pain and you cannot sleep.

Mrs. Hartley of 521 W. Congress St., Chicago, Ill., whose portrait we publish, suffered all these agonies, and her entire cure is attributed by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; her case will be a warning to others, and her cure carry conviction to the minds of every suffering woman of the unfailing efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Belfast Loses Picturesque Figure.

In the death of Professor MacMillan, professor of modern history and literature, Belfast, Ireland, has lost what was doubtless its most picturesque figure. He was six feet three or four inches tall, fair and ruddy complexion, hair prematurely white, with distinguished features, and a singularly noble head and brow. The man was as remarkable as his looks. He had been deprived of his father at an early age, and unaided and alone fought his way through college, and finally attained to a proud place among the scholars of his day.

EYE SALVE

JAPS ARE READY TO DRUB RUSSIA

Seems That Bloody Clash Is Near at Hand.

ACTIVITY AT NAVAL STATIONS

Washington Officials Doubt That Hostilities Will Begin, Notwithstanding Contrary Reports.

Advices from Yokohama, Japan, are to the effect that the feeling that there can be no peace in the orient, save by administering a drubbing to Russia, is growing stronger. It is almost the unanimous voice of the native press that if the powers do not take measures to curb Russian aggression, Japan must undertake the task alone. Coupled with the strong undercurrent of public opinion is the evidence that the government is preparing for the emergency with the utmost possible dilligence. Unceasing activity at the various naval stations and yards is reported. The nation is evidently gathering its resources and energies for the struggle.

The Yokohama newspapers say it is proposed to relieve the Japanese troops in the Chinese province of Pe-Chi-Li by a force 50 per cent stronger.

Although May is the usual month in which the relief of the force at Seoul takes place, the relief of the troops there will take place immediately. Three officers of the headquarters staff will also proceed to Korea. These movements, with the usual activity at the arsenals, is taken to point to the adoption of a strong policy by Japan.

A dispatch received in St. Petersburg from Vladivostock, dated Tuesday, March 26th, says that a conspiracy on the part of the Korean minister of justice and General Tchu-Sei-Men to bring foreign troops to Seoul was betrayed to the Korean cabinet. The object of the conspirators, the dispatch adds, was to cause the downfall of the ministry. The principal plotters have been deported.

THINK WAR IMPROBABLE.

A Washington special says: State department officials are not as much exercised over the probability of war between Japan and Russia as might be indicated from the published reports from the far east. It is asserted in diplomatic circles that Russia has much to lose and little to gain by going to war with Japan.

A high authority on Japanese affairs said that there is but little danger of a war between Japan and Russia while the present government of Japan exists. In the first place, it is conceded that Japan has a navy far superior to that of Russia, and in case of hostilities between these two countries Russia would be at a disadvantage. Manchuria would probably be the battleground in the event of such a war. In that event Russia would have but one base of supplies in that vicinity, which is Port Arthur. Japan would at once seize that point and render Russia destitute of a naval station or any haven of refuge for her warships.

In addition to this consideration, the present government of Japan is inclined to be pro-Russian in its policy, and for that reason neither the Japanese nor Russian representatives in this country anticipate war in the near future.

There was a report in circulation a few days ago that all the naval and military attaches of the Japanese government in this country and in other countries had been hastily summoned back to man Japanese warships in anticipation of early hostilities with Russia. This statement was promptly denied at the Japanese legation.

Young Women

The entry into womanhood is a critical time for a girl. Little menstrual disorders started at that time soon grow into fatal complications. That female troubles are filling graveyards proves this. Wine of Cardui establishes a painless and natural menstrual flow. When once this important function is started right, a healthy life will usually follow. Many women, young and old, owe their lives to Wine of Cardui. There is nothing like it to give women freedom from pain and to fit young women for every duty of life. $1.00 bottles at druggists.

Miss Della M. Strayer, Tully, Kans. "I have suffered untold pain at menstrual periods for a long time, was nervous, had no appetite, and lost interest in everything, in fact was miserable. I have taken four bottles of Wine of Cardui, with Thedford's Black-Draught, when needed, and to-day I am entirely cured. I cannot express the thanks I feel for what you have done for me."

A Double Barrelled Still.

A mammoth still, a double-barreled affair, is the result of a successful raid made by a posse of officers, led by Deputy Marshal Dudley. The still is the best equipped affair ever captured in Chilton county. The still was a double barreled arrangement with two receptacles, one holding fifty gallons and one sixteen. A regulation furnace with a correct smoke stack was another part of the still.

The raid was made four miles east of Clanton. Will Minor, the alleged proprietor of the still, was arrested without trouble at his home nearby and carried to Montgomery. A log well filled with good mountain water was part of the furnishings of the house. Minor said that he found the jug alongside the road. Commissioner Baltzell required a $300 bond, which he made. Some of the equipments of his excellent moonshine making establishment were brought down as exhibits in the case.

Recaptured.

Annie Young, a negro woman wanted in Chilton county was arrested last Thursday on Herron street by Sheriff Kilgore of Chilton and Sheriff Walker of Montgomery. The woman is a tigress in strength and fearless. The two sheriffs experienced great difficulty in landing her in jail. She fought until she had been landed in the cell.

In Chilton county she made herself famous by an escape from a sheriff five years ago. She was being carried from Montgomery to Clanton by sheriff Moore of Chilton county and went back to get a drink of water with her baby in her arms and spring from the platform to the ground although the train was going at full speed. She made good her escape and enjoyed freedom until last week.

An Invitation.

To Hon. L. B. Pounds, Chm. Pop. Exec. Com. Chilton county:

The question of holding a Constitutional Convention is before the people of Alabama and the Campaign for and against the same is being waged over the entire State. Inasmuch as the questions involved in the reformation of the Constitution are common to the whole State, and since 55 out of 56 of the candidates to be voted for in the election in this county are to be voted for throughout the State, we have decided to ask you for a division of time at the several appointments already made by your party speakers in Chilton county for the discussion of these questions, you to forward any speakers you may have, and we to have the same privilege, time to be divided equally to hours, opening and closing speeches to alternate daily. If you accept this, we will advertise

Thorsby, Ala., April 1, 1901

Editor Banner.—With careful observation, I have, so far failed to find a single advocate of a constitutional convention. Are we, is true, Southern patriotic citizens, going to vote down the convention. May the Almighty God forbid that we should forget what the old Confederates fought so bravely for in the days of 60-65. Did not the old Confederates fight to keep the infernal negro out of politics? Why then, should we not as sons of the Confederates disfranchise the negro. The opponents of a convention have but one plank on which to stand, and that is the 15th amendment to the constitution of the U. S. Can we not disfranchise the negro and not the white man, certainly we can, how? Simply by putting in the educationally qualifications, and also by letting the Confederates and their descendants vote regardless of educational qualification. That will take in the entire illiterate population of whites. Now, dear readers, do you not plainly see that the opponents of a convention are only the illogical demagogues of Alabama. Are we disposed to be of those having ears hear not, and having eyes see not the things which so nearly concern our temporal salvation. Gentlemen, vote in the interest of your wives and children, get the brute out of politics.

Thorsby, April 8, 1901

Editor Banner—I promised some time ago to give the people of Chilton county a more extended account of the stock law, etc., but space would not allow me to attempt to mention in detail all that occured in the matter, which is really necessary that the blame may properly be attached to those who are guilty of forcing those measures upon the people so much against the wishes of a vast majority, so in as brief a manner as possible I will state that I am profoundly convinced that the corrupt use of money accelerated the interest of those who championed the passage of the measure, and then under the infamous method adopted by the Democratic party to grant right of way to any measure espoused by the defeated candidate which invites men under such a precedent to put through the most vicious legislation, their only object being mercinary aggrandisement, hiding their methods by appealing to party prejudice, as was fully demonstrated in the acts of the last legislature, for Chilton county was the fifth victim in this line. Now, in making these charges I am fully aware of their gravity, yet I have called no names, and will let "the hit dog yelp."

Now, as to the strained and painful attempt of the so-called "Reflector" (which name is a misnomer). It seems that it should be called "Reflection" for its position in regard to a defeated candidate to have a voice in legislating for a people who have said that they did not need his service in that line, and as to the allusion to myself as amounting to no more than "a notch on a stick" reminds me of the story of the gnat on the bull's horn. You see I feel the weight of such remarks from such a source so slightly, so my little gnat when you have rested sufficiently you may buzz again, but you will find yourself in the condition of Pat when he thought he knew what bulldoging meant, but when he took hint by the horns and had been tossed over the stile he said oh! and faith the d—n buste was not doing at all, at all! So my dear Reflector, when you incline that you can bamboozle the people of Chilton county by such rot, you will begin to learn that they generally do their own thinking and act accordingly.

Now, a few words in regard to the constitutional convention. When the whole subject canvassed from all standpoints we find the gist of the whole matter is to perpetually entrench the Democratic party in power, and this has been the leading incentive throughout the South while they make a hobby of the negro vote. It is in reality that independent element of white men that they dread, and seek to disarm them by constitutional law, from the full right of franchise, in other words they seek to legalize fraud, and any man who is simple enough to believe that they are only after the "negro in the wood pile," ought to have a free pass to heaven, for being t—l.

I am sorry to learn of the death of Mrs. Letty Childress, wife of Chas. Childress. She leaves a husband, several children and many friends to mourn her loss.

Mr. Editor, I think if you would visit our community you could secure a long list of subscribers to the Banner, as the friends of those (the up to-date farmer) who take it race with them to the office in order to get it first, and if they are successful they cleave to it until the bonds of friendship are stretched to their capacity before giving it up.

OLD PATCH.

Concord.

Again the death angel has visited our community, and this time taken from the home of Mr. E. J. Mims his wife, and taken home the spirit of one of our Christian sisters and tender, affectionate mothers. After a lingering illness, death claimed for its own the mortal spirit of sister Mims on the 3rd of April about 12 m. and her soul returned to the God who gave it.

Sister Mims suffered for some time before death relieved her, yet she was not heard to murmur or complain but seemed perfectly resigned to the will of the Master. Knowing as she did that God worketh all things for good to those who love and obey Him. Sister Mims leaves behind her a husband and thirteen children to grieve over her absence but they sorrow not as those who have no hope, for they have the blessed assurance that their loss is her eternal gain, and if they hold out faithful to the end they too will soon meet wife and mother in that home of bliss where sickness, sorrow nor death can ever enter. Children, grieve not for your departed loved ones, but follow in their footprints, that when your summons comes you too may be ready and leave this world as they did without a struggle. How sweetly comes death to a christian when the spirit takes its flight back to the Father who gave it. The body of sister Mims was laid to rest in Walnut creek cemetery to await the resurrection morn when soul and body will be reunited in that celestial city prepared for those who are faithful here on earth. May we all be able say farewell dear friends, we will soon come.

Burwell, April 8, 1901

Editor Banner.—The old time way to make a tortoise crawl was to put fire on his back, so we applied the coal to the Maplesville tortoise and here he comes with his excuses and explanations. The turtle says being a perfect stranger in the county when the bill was being agitated for stock law in Beat 5 we had no idea of the condition of affairs there, therefore could not discuss the matter; and in the next breath says he invited a free discussion through his columns. He, the turtle, then goes on to point out to us, the people of Beat 5, what our duty is, says we ought to have sent influential citizens to Montgomery to work against it. We thank the turtle for his advice, but thought that the great honest Democratic body of legislators with long petitions of overwhelming majorities of citizens from Beat 5 would be sufficient. But we failed. As there was no money to accompany our petitions it was not Democratic policy to notice them. No, brother, we do not boast of being a member of the great Democratic party that perpetrates such damnable legislation on the people as you and I have pointed out. He says "we still claim that Chilton made a mistake in sending as representative a man who has no weight whatever in the legislature." But he fails to give any explanation why he should have not had any weight, only leaves the inference that the great Democratic party had so decreed that if the people did not elect a Democrat from Chilton county that the defeated Democratic candidate should be counselled. Then he goes on and says why not indorse Dr. Caffey, etc. And he feels an interest in the county of his adoption. Now, my brother we feel the same interest and will send L. H. Reynolds, another man that will look after the interests of his people. It may be a spirit of dare devil wrecklessness that prompts the people to elect a man like the Hon. L. H. Reynolds who has served two terms in the General Assembly of Alabama with credit to himself and honor to his people. Chilton county may be the only place that the Populite party is in existence, but we will hold the fort as Davy Crocket did, and after the constitutional convention you will remember the Alamo and San Jacinto.

It is pointed out that kings are not bad insurance risks. The average of life of the English monarchs since the Norman conquest has been about 50 years—almost as high as that of the general run of business men who work hard, eat and drink a great deal, and take no exercise.

It is worth while to reflect that Mr. Carnegie's million a month for public libraries means more than books for the many. It means work and wages for those who must put up the library buildings and for those who print, publish and distribute books. Breadth is a pronounced dimension of this giving.

In respect to her ability to support her population without foreign commerce Great Britain is the worst off of any country in the world. She is distinctly worse off than Germany, which is one of her commercial rivals, and of course worse off than the United States, the inhabitants of which can live without any commerce whatever.

Now that economic evolution is extending town privileges to the remotest outlying districts, and abolishing isolation, it is possible to make country life socially satisfying to woman. The farm of the future can be rendered a centre of thought, of social life, and of good cheer. Conversation can be carried on more freely, and good neighborhood established more easily than in town life, observes the New York Independent.

The Massachusetts Woman's Suffrage association celebrated the 32nd year of its career with the opening of the new century. The association felicitates itself on the fact that during the period the right of full suffrage has been granted to the sex in four states in the Union, in the Isle of Man, in New Zealand, and in South and West Australia; that the right to a liberal use of the suffrage has been granted in England, Scotland, Wales, Ireland and Canada, and a limited use of it in 25 of the United States, in Sweden, Norway, Iceland, Finland, Russia, Prussia, Westphalia, Schleswig-Holstein, Saxony, Brunswick, Austria and Croatia.

Some practical suggestions for the reformation of drunkards are made in a recent report by the Massachusetts commissioner of prisons. That the drunkard is any less a drunkard after the payment of his fine, or the serving of his jail sentence, no one pretends, and in this particular the purpose of punishment, which is the prevention of crime, is not realised. The change suggested by the commissioner is the commitment of a common drunkard for an indefinite period, and his employment is gainful labor for the state. To the latter end a way was provided by an enactment of the legislature in 1898 which authorized the governor and council to purchase or otherwise take in any parcel of waste and unused land, not exceeding 1000 acres in area, and to establish on the land a temporary industrial camp for prisoners, who shall be employed in reclaiming and improving the land.

An educational feature in Wisconsin next summer will be the opening of a summer school at the State university for apprentices and artisans. It will be for the benefit of machinists, carpenters, or sheet-metal workers; stationary, marine, or locomotive engineers; shop foremen and superintendents; superintendents of water works, electric light plants, power stations, factories, large office and store buildings in cities; and for the young men who wish to qualify themselves for such positions. For these employments the full four years' professional courses in engineering are not required, and yet to satisfy the present demands upon this class of men it is necessary for them to obtain considerable theoretical and practical knowledge not commonly taught in any of the public schools. For the present this instruction can be given during the summer months only, as during the college year the shops and laboratories are filled with the regular students; but it is the expectation, if the demand is sufficient, to organize this new work into a separate school.

Facts that came to light after the suicide of a young Russian in London the other day give some idea of the misery involved in sweat-shop labor. The unfortunate youth was paid thirty-seven cents a dozen for "finishing" shoes, a process that comprises nearly half the work of making the shoe.

LIVE WASINGTON NOTES.

P. C. Knox Has Accepted the Post of Attorney General.

HOBSON'S WRECK BLOWN UP AT SANTIAGO.

The President Regards Russia's Act as Another Proof of Desire for Harmony. Allen Continues Governor of Porto Rico.

Governor Allen, of Porto Rico, after an hour's conference with the President, announced that he would return to Porto Rico about May 1st, and will continue as Governor of the island at the request of the President.

Osborn Deignan, who the President last week appointed a boatswain, is one of the sailors who accompanied Naval Constructor Hobson on the famous Merrimac expedition into Santiago bay while the harbor was being blockaded by the American fleet. It was the desire of the President to reward Deignan for his bravery on that occasion by appointing him a naval cadet at Annapolis, but it was found that he was not eligible.

In the cabinet the President made the first announcement that Mr. Knox had accepted the post of attorney general. His commission was signed immediately after the President had informed his advisers of their new colleague's acceptance.

The first of the new type of 5-inch naval guns, designed for cruisers of the Denver class, was tested at the Indian Head proving ground with very satisfactory results. A projectile weighing 50 pounds was fired with a powder charge of 26 pounds. The energy obtained is sufficient to pierce seven inches of Krupp armor at the muzzle and five inches of Krupp armor at 2,000 yards.

The determination of the Russian government not to press to a conclusion the negotiations begun some time ago with the Chinese government in regard to Manchuria has naturally given great gratification to the government of the United States. The President is understood to recognize in this act of the Czar another proof of his sincere regard for harmony with the powers now engaged in negotiations in China and his determination to do nothing to deter the speedy and satisfactory conclusion of these negotiations.

Important developments in the Oberlin M. Carter case are likely to occur within a few days. Carter is now serving a sentence of five years' imprisonment in the government penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kas., charged with gigantic swindling operations against the government. Up to the time he was convicted, Carter was under the jurisdiction and was prosecuted by the War Department. Since then the civil authorities of the govrnment, acting through the Department of Justice have been quietly but vigorously and relentlessly tracing step by step the money Carter stole, and now have the great bulk of it located and are about ready to recover it and turn it back into the Treasury.

A special from Santiago De Cuba says that the wreck of the collier Merrimac, which was sunk at the entrance to the harbor by Lieut. R. P. Hobson and his little band of volunteers during the blockade was blown up with dynamite last Saturday.

The Navy Department recently supplied to Lord Pauncefote a photograph of the beautiful bronze tablet which it was about to place upon the house in Santiago occupied by the late Frederick W. Ramsden, the British Consul, who exerted himself so benevolently in aid of the American residents and prisoners during the siege. The State Department has just received a letter of acknowledgment from the British Embassy.

J. D. Taylor, a prominent citizen of this city, has received a letter from his son, Lieut. James D. Taylor, Jr., of the Twenty-fourth United States Infantry, which shows that the young man, with kindness and cigars, won over seven Filipinos and secured the information which enabled General Funston to capture Aguinaldo. In a modest, matter-of-fact way, the lieutenant tells his father about his acknowledgement of his services.

The news that comes from Pekin of the great popularity of Major General Chaffee among the foreigners there, of the enthusiastic way in which the information that he had been elevated to a major general in the American regular army and of the satisfaction his promotion has given the private soldiers in the army who remember that he rose from the ranks is particularly gratifying to the President and the War Department. The President, Secretary of War and General Corbin have had the greatest confidence in General Chaffee. They have been entirely satisfied with his work in China.

Nothing has been received by the officials of the Marine Hospital service regarding the sickness believed to be bubonic plague, of a student in the Ann Arbor, Mich., University. The appearance of the plague in the interior would be a matter of some surprise to the officials of the service, as that sickness is more apt to manifest itself at the seaport cities.

"CRUCIFIXION OF CUBA."

Cartoon Representing Cuban Soldier Crucified Between Two Thieves.

The Discusion, of Havana, has been suppressed by order of Governor General Wood, and its offices have been closed and sealed.

This action was due to the publication in the Discusion of an illustration having the title, the "Cuban Calvary," representing the Cuban public personified in a Cuban soldier being crucified between two thieves, General Wood being represented as one thief and President McKinley as the other, both being labelled with their names.

Senator Platt was represented as a Roman soldier, giving vinegar and gall in the form of the Platt amendment, while public opinion as Magdaline, was weeping at the foot of the cross. Below was the following inscription: "Destiny will not reserve for us a glorious resurrection."

Russia Has Broken Off Relations with China.

A Washington dispatch dated April 7th says: The administration is perplexed over a cable dispatch received yesterday from Mr. Squiers, now in charge of the American legation in Pekin. This dispatch, according to a publication today, said that "the Russian minister refuses to receive official communications from Chinese commissioners," which carried the inference that diplomatic relations between the two countries interested would be broken off. The officials are very reticent about the matter and decline to affirm or deny whether it is correctly stated. They will go only so far as to admit the receipt of a dispatch whose purport was not clearly understood, for which reason it was not given to the press for publication. Another cablegram which reached here today from Mr. Rockhill, the special commissioner of the United States, engaged in conducting the peace negotiations, made no reference to the matter.

The impression of the officials at the Russian embassy was that no special significance attached to the Squiers dispatch. According to them it simply meant that the Russians had discontinued further negotiations at this time on the Manchurian question alone, which for the time is held in abeyance.

Ghastly Story of Cannibalism.

The Singapore correspondent of the London Daily Express wires a ghastly story of cannibalism at sea brought to Singapore by two survivors of the Nova Scotian bark Angola, wrecked six day's sale from Manila, October 23 last. The correspondent says:

The survivors, Johnson, a Swede, and Marticorna, a Spaniard, assert that the Angola struck a reef. Two rafts were built. The smaller, bearing five men, disappeared. The other with twelve men, drifted forty days. The sailors ate barnacles, seaweed and finally their boots. On the twenty-fifth day two became insane and killed themselves. On the 26th a Frenchman killed the mate with an axe, drank his blood and tried to eat his brains, but was prevented by the others. Next day the Frenchman was killed while attempting to murder the captain. The survivors, all of whom were now insane, ate the Frenchman's body. Cannibalism continued until only Johnson and Marticorna remained of the crew. On the fortieth day the raft stranded on Subi or Flat Island in the Natuna group, northwest of Borneo. Johnson and Marticorna were awfully emaciated. Friendly Malays sent them by junk to Singapore.

The army is to have 30 dental surgeons. Some of the soldiers would appreciate a few chiropodists.

THE COAL MINERS GET AN ADVANCE.

Commission Appointed for Purchase of Western Florida—S. H. Buck to Become Postoffice Inspector—Sad Death of a Little Boy.

Mining Experts Have Discovered Four Seams of Fine Coal.

Experienced coal mining experts who have been prospecting on the lands of T. H. Aldrich, located in the vicinity of Bessemer, report the discovery of four seams of fine coal twenty feet thick altogether. The report makes some wonderful disclosures. The Pratt vein, about four and a half feet thick, was followed for several miles. Below this was discovered the Americus seam, from three to three and a half feet thick, and still below this the wonderful Blue Creek seam, over ten feet thick, five and a half feet without a parting. And still below this is the Black Creek seam. It is said to be the intention of Mr. Aldrich and associates to open up this property at once.

Hanged in Effigy.

Some parties at Daphne, Baldwin county, last week hanged in effigy Representative George H. Hoyle, of that county. The hanging was an expression of their disfavor at the action of Hoyle in having the county seat removed from Daphne to Bay Minette at the last session of the legislature. It is said that the hanging was done by irresponsible youths. A fight is being made in the courts to prevent the moving of the county seat, and work which has begun on a new court house at Bay Minette has been stopped pending the outcome of the legal battle.

The University Bulletin.

Volume one, No. 1, of the "University Bulletin," the quarterly publication which will hereafter be issued by the State University, has been issued and is a splendid pamphlet of sixty-three pages. It contains a number of splendid articles by one or two members of the faculty, the president and others. The Bulletin will be issued for the purpose of keeping its friends in touch with the University and giving the public an idea of the work of the college.

Found a Skeleton.

While at work under a building on First avenue and Twenty-third street, Birmingham, occupied by J. P. Lind & Co., carpenters and builders, a nagro dug up the skeleton of a man. The skeleton fell to pieces when the negro's pick struck it. The skull was examined and there is no doubt but that it belonged to a white man. On the left side of the head is a large hole and there are evidences that the man died from the wound made in the side of the skull. Who he was or how he came to be buried there is not known. There are indications that the body has been under ground at that point many years, possibly thirty years, though some of the teeth in the skull show good preservation.

He Will Go Higher.

It is stated that S. H. Buck, a postal clerk on the Atlanta and Birmingham run on the Southern railway, has been appointed postoffice inspector and that he will receive his commission in a few days, if he has not already done so. Mr. Buck has been on the Atlanta and Birmingham run for no little time.

Miners' Strike Settled.

The strike at the Patterson mines at Blossburg, which commenced last Monday, because the men claimed that they were entitled to yardage in an entry which was being worked as a room by the company, has been declared off and all hands have returned to work. President Edward Flynn, of the Alabama District, United Mine Workers of America, was at Blossburg Friday, and it is stated that an amicable agreement was arrived at and the men were ordered to return to work. There were between 400 and 500 men affected through the strike.

Verdict for $7,000.

In the city court of Birmingham a verdict has been rendered for $7,000 in favor of the plaintiff in the case of Nannie Brooks, administratrix of B. F Brooks vs. the Alabama Great Southern Railroad company. The plaintiff sued for $25,000 damages for the death of her intestate, whom she alleges was run over by a train at Eppes, Ala., in February, 1900, both of his legs being cut off and death resulting later.

GEN "TIGE" ANDERSON DEAD.

Passes Away at His Home in Anniston

Gen. George T. Anderson, familiarly known as "Tige" Anderson, died at his home in Anniston Thursday and was buried at Edgement Cemetery Friday. There was a large attendance at the funeral, the Confederate Veterans attending in a body. Before he died General Anderson requested that he be buried in the coat in which he surrendered at Appomattox, and this request was complied with.

General Anderson was a brigade commander under General Longstreet in the civil war and was famed among the soldiers of the Virginia and Western armies for his courage and for his strong devotion to friends.

As a boy he enlisted from Newton county, Georgia, his birthplace, in the Georgia troops, who fought through the Mexican war.

At the beginning of the civil war General Anderson was one of the very first to enlist. He entered into the army of the Confederacy with the same dash and spirit that had characterized his conduct during the battles in Mexico, and was soon made a brigadier as a reward for personal bravery. It was not long before his fierce fighting and his daring earned for him the title of "Tige," and this remained with him during the war until it so fastened itself upon him that even after the hostilities had become a thing of the past, the title clung to the gallant hero.

In 1869 he moved to Atlanta, and was appointed to the head of the police department. The department at that time was small, but the pace was fast, and General Anderson kept up with it. Later he severed his connection with the Atlanta police department and went to Alabama.

After leaving Atlanta he went to Tuscaloosa where he engaged in the mercantile business. He moved to Anniston in 1888 and became chief of police, and was city clerk at the time of his death.

In alighting from a moving train in the union depot in Anniston a few years ago he fell and fractured his thigh, from which accident he never recovered, being forced to use crutches. The direct cause of his death, however, was a bladder trouble from which he has suffered for several years and which had caused him great trouble at various times.

Wages Went Up.

The wages of coal miners in the employ of the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad company, the Sloss-Sheffield Steel & Iron company and others of this district, have been advanced 2½ cents per ton for this month. The committee of miners from the Sloss-Sheffield Steele & Iron company met in Birmingham when the above conclusion was reached and promulgated as far as that company was concerned, the average price of pig iron being $10.59.

Sensational Arrests at Ensley.

Two highly sensational arrests were made at Ensley, the parties being J. A. Shivers, a well known young man, and Mrs. Daisy Smith, a young married woman. The parties are charged with stealing $800 worth of commissary checks from the Ensley Liquor Company. To add to the tragedy in the situation, the young man is said to have attempted to cut his throat when arrested, declaring that he preferred death to disgrace.

The offices of tax-collector and city treasurer of Ensley have been combined owing to the failure of the collector who was recently elected to make the required bond. The duties of both offices will be performed by Mr. Lee White, who was elected treasurer at the last election.

Child Ate Pills Containing Strychnine.

The little 3-year-old son of Mr. A. A. Feltus, of 2516 First avenue, Birmingham, ate sixty-seven pills containing belladonna and strychnia. The dose threw the child into convulsions and death resulted in a few hours despite the best efforts of several physicians.

Oneonta's waterworks system is now in operation, giving the town an abundance of fine spring water for all purposes. A stream can be thrown on the top of the highest building in the town.

Big Land Purchase.

A special from Selma to the Montgomery Advertiser says: "The sensation of the day has been the purchase by Colonel Abbott for Eastern men of the 3,000 acre farm of Dr. Brooks Thomas at Thomaston, the terminus of the Birmingham, Selma, & New Orleans railroad in Marengo county. The price paid for the 3,000 acres was $40,000, or $13.33 per acre.

...LL ARP'S LETTER

...ndrew Carnegie Praised F... Works of Philanthropy.

...ILLIAM OFFERS SOME SUGGESTIONS

By Libraries

...ppose it, Mr. F... credits down 5 per cent for this year. The banks know that are getting her rich. But I ... price of steel rails and ... of labor. We are but ... fellowmen and a ... enough for us.

If Mr. Carnegie had said that years ago, he would be a ... now about giving away his mo... He says it is a sin for a man ... rich, and as life is uncertain and ...ure, he seems to be in a hurry about getting rid of his millions. ... five millions he has settled upon his aged and indigent laborers is a benefaction that everybody commends.

The twenty five millions that he has given to the cities for public libraries is not especially commended by any body except those who received it. It is about on a par with Rockefeller's twenty five millions to the great universities. Neither gift reaches the masses of the people nor alleviates the condition of the poor. George Peabody's and Peter Cooper's charities are much more sensible and effectual. George Muller's life work, who, with not a dollar of capital to begin with, established orphanages in London in ... he had over 2,000 in charge when he died, and from year to year maintained and educated them, was a much grander charity than giving millions to colleges and libraries.

George Peabody's millions built blocks of good comfortable tenement houses for the laboring poor of London, houses that were furnished and equipped with every comfort and every safeguard for the health of the tenants. Besides that, he left a large fund for the promotion of education in the south. There are many charities more needed by the people than giving them a chance to read free books. The poor do not have time to read very much. A right hungry man can't hardly get religion, much less enjoy a story book. But still we commend Mr. Carnegie for his good intentions, and if he had given two or three thousand dollars to Cartersville, I would have said, "Mr. Carnegie, you are a big-hearted Scotchman, sure." I hope they will elect him mayor of New York.

The reason why the public praises Mr. Carnegie so is because the public is surprised. Such munificence is so uncommon that it is unexpected. The gift is really no act of generosity, for, as he says himself, it is a sin to keep and die rich. He got all his millions from the labor of the people, and now he is trying to pour some of it back in the jug. That is right honorable, for the ore was God's and the labor was the toil of his men. He ought to pour it back and give it to the toilers whose sweat earned the money. This is pure morality and common sense.

Every man has a moral right, and it is his duty to make sufficient profit on his labor to maintain himself and family in comfort, and even in luxury, and also to lay up something for his children and for old age and for the accidents of life; but beyond that the rights under a Christian civilization do not go. He then becomes a trustee for his fellowmen who are in need. Not that he should parcel out and distribute to each one his share; for it cannot be done, but he should make some investment that would insure the greatest good to the greatest number. Nevertheless, Mr. Carnegie is scattering his money. He is sowing wheat among the tares. He is giving largely to the wealthy cities who can provide their own libraries. He is scattering his money; I mean the millions, that has grown to be a burden. He has just finished a million dollar mansion in New York and has another in Scotland, and a few millions in reserve for contingencies. We hope that these small holdings will not interfere with his intention to die poor. So, there is no peculiar grace in the gifts of Carnegie or Rockefeller. They are a surprise, that's all, for not one in a hundred of the millionaires do such things. Most of them hold on and grab it up for their children to quarrel over. The Standard Oil Company has declared a dividend of twenty million for Rockefeller. He crushed out and absorbed all competing mills and still sells oil to the consumers at cents per gallon. Cheap, isn't it? He could sell it at 10 cents and make a hundred per cent. It is the common people, the masses, the toilers and the poor who buy the oil, and every gallon takes a nickel from them that ought not to be taken. God made the oil, and man gave the labor. Mr. Rockefeller had but little to do with it. Most of his millions really belong to God and the laborers. It is no sufficient answer that he has endowed a college. The children of the laborers are not in it. It's too far away and too high up.

Such colossal fortunes are becoming alarming. They endanger good government, for it is still a fact "that wealth and virtue are rarely found combined." Laws grind the poor and rich men make the laws. A graduated income tax would limit these great fortunes, but also, we will never get it. It is too late. The opportunity has passed, for rich men make the ing them, was a much greater work than giving millions to universities and libraries.

Mr. Carnegie's millions built comfortable tenement houses for the laboring poor of London. These houses were furnished and equipped with every comfort and every convenience for the health of the tenants. Besides that, he left a large fund for the promotion of education in Edinburgh. There are many charities far reached by the people than giving them a chance to read free books. The poor do not have time to read very much. A right hungry man can't hardly get religion, much less enjoy a story book. But still we commend Mr. Carnegie for his good intentions, and if he had given two or three thousand dollars to Cartersville, we would have said, "Mr. Carnegie, you are a big-hearted Scotchman, sir!" I hope they will elect him mayor of New York.

The reason why the public praises
Mr. Carnegie so is because the public is surprised. Such munificence is so uncommon that it is unexpected. The gift is really no act of generosity, for,
as he says himself, it is a sin to keep it and die rich. He got all his millions from the labor of the people, and now he is trying to pour some of it back in the jug. That is right and honorable, for the ore was God's and the labor was the toil of his men.
He ought to pour it back and give some to the toilers whose sweat earned the money. This is pure morality and common sense.

Every man has a moral right, and it is his duty to make sufficient profit from his labor to maintain himself and his family in comfort, and even in luxury, and also to lay up something for his children and for old age and for the accidents of life; but beyond that his rights under a Christian civilization do not go. He then becomes a trustee for his fellowmen who are in need. Not that he should parcel out and distribute to each one his share, for it cannot be done, but he should make some investment that would insure the greatest good to the greatest number. Nevertheless, Mr. Carnegie is scattering his money. He is sowing wheat among the tares. He is giving largely to the wealthy cities who can provide their own libraries.
He is scattering his money; I mean the surplus, that has grown to be a burden. He has just finished a million dollar mansion in New York and has another in Scotland, and a few millions in reserve for contingencies. We hope that these small holdings will not interfere with his intention to die poor.

No, there is no peculiar grace in the gifts of Carnegie or Rockefeller. They are a surprise, that's all, for not one in a hundred of the millionaires do such things. Most of them hold on and pile it up for their children to quarrel over. The Standard Oil Company has just declared a dividend of twenty million for Rockefeller. He crushed out and stifled all competing mills and still sells oil to the consumers at 5 cents per gallon. Cheap, isn't it?
But he can't sell it at 10 cents and make a hundred per cent. It is the common people, the masses, the toilers and the poor who buy the oil, and every gallon takes a nickel from them that ought not to be taken. God made the oil, and man gave the labor. Mr.
Rockefeller had but little to do with it.
Most of his millions really belong to God and the laborers. It is no sufficient answer that he has endowed a college. The children of the laborers are not in it. It's too far away and too high up.

These colossal fortunes are becoming alarming. They endanger good government, for it is still a fact "that riches and virtue are rarely found combined." Laws grind the poor and rich men make the laws. A graduated income tax would limit these great fortunes, but alas, we will never get it. It is too late. The opportunity has passed, for rich men make the laws. Millionaires control the United States senate and will resist any tax that limits or lessens their estates.

But it is wrong for us to envy the rich. In the economy of life and the pursuit of happiness it seems necessary to have rich men. They build ships, railroads, canals, telegraphs and telephones, cotton and woolen mills, reapers, mowers, flour mills and a thousand other plants that furnish us with food and clothing and add to the comfort of mankind. The world would make slow progress without them, but when they begin to unload their vast profits mankind will criticise the manner of it. Generally they unload it on their children, who never earned a dollar of it. Some of them would carry it all to heaven with them if they could. Many of them give a part of it to some church or charity as a kind of passport to heaven.

An old friend of mine who was pretty hard up borrowed $5 from me one morning to pay one of these darn little just debts, as he called them. He said his creditor was annoying him, but before he left my office a committee from the country called and asked us to help to build a country church.

I gave them a dollar, but my friend subscribed $5 and handed over the bill that I had loaned him. After they had left I asked him why he gave so much, and he said: "Well, I always give that much to help build a church. I do not belong to any, for I have not yet felt good enough to join, but I have lived in five counties and practiced my profession in fourteen, and I have helped to build country churches in all of them. It may be that death will catch me unawares before I do join the church and St. Peter will refuse me admission into the heavenly gate. But I will have one credential, for I can say: "St. Peter, I know I have not been a good man and am not fit to mingle with the saints, but I have got a little stock in every country church from Rabun's Gap to Tallapoosa—and maybe he will let me in—maybe so. Major, could you lend me another $5 without inconvenience?" Of course I did, for he was one friend whom I never refused. He did join the church and I believe he is in heaven now.

Charity is the greatest and most blessed of all virtues. As the poet says: "It is twice blessed. It blesseth him that gives and him that doth receive." But when a man with $100,000 income gives away $1,000 of it to ease his conscience and secure a passport to heaven, he makes a mistake. It will do neither. A man's standing in the community is determined more by his charity than anything else. How much does he give to the church and how much to the poor is discussed by his neighbors, and he is rated accordingly.

Not long ago I gave a problem to the young people. If a man sells a sow and pigs for $18 and gets as much for one-tenth of the sow as he did for nine-tenths of a pig, how many pigs did she have? I have received scores of answers—most of them making it nine pigs and some say ten pigs—one smart girl makes it seventy-two pigs and one smarter man proves that the sow had 1,791 pigs. Strange to say every answer is correct. Nine pigs gives $9 for the sow and 1 each for the pigs; seventy-two pigs gives $2 for the sow and 11 2-9 cents for a pig and it would take the seventy-two pigs to make the $16. Nine cents for the sow would give 1 cent for each pig, and therefore require 1,791 pigs to make up the $18. It is a see-saw sum. As the price of the sow goes down the number of the pigs goes up and any number is correct. Now, let me ask the school boys and girls to hold up a little on composition and speeches. Please excuse me for I have not the time. It would take every hour in the day to comply with all their requests.—BILL ARP in Atlanta Constitution.

REV. DR. TALMAGE.

DISCOURSE BY THE EMINENT DIVINE LAST SUNDAY.

Subject: The Sacrifices Made by Christ—What the Saving of All the Nations Cost the Messiah—Paying For the Clearance of Our Souls.

[Copyright 1901.]

WASHINGTON, D. C.—In this discourse Dr. Talmage shows the Messianic sacrifices for the saving of all nations and speaks of Gethsemane as it appeared to him; text I Corinthians vi, 20, "Ye are bought with a price."

Your friend takes you through his valuable house. You examine the arches, the frescoes, the grass plots, the fish ponds, the conservatories, the parks of deer, and you say within yourself or you say aloud "What did all this cost?" You see a costly diamond flashing in an earring, or you hear a costly dress rustling across the drawing room, or you see a high mettled span of horses harnessed with silver and gold, and you begin to make an estimate of the value.

The man who owns a large estate cannot instantly tell you all it is worth. He says, "I will estimate so much for the house, so much for the furniture, so much for laying out the grounds, so much for the stock, so much for the barn, so much for the equipage—adding up in all making this aggregate.

Well, my friends, I hear so much about our mansion in heaven, about its furniture and the grand surroundings, that I want to know how much it is all worth and what has actually been paid for it. I cannot complete in a month or a year the magnificent calculation, but before I get through to-day I hope to give you the figures. "Ye are bought with a price."

With some friends I went to the Tower of London to look at the crown jewels. We walked around, caught one glimpse of them, and, being in the procession, were compelled to pass out. I wish that I could take this audience into the tower of God's mercy and strength, that you might walk around just once at least and see the crown jewels of eternity, behold their brilliance and estimate their value. "Ye are bought with a price."

Now, if you have a large amount of money to pay, you do not pay it all at once, but you pay it by installments—so much the first of January, so much the first of April, so much the first of July, so much the first of October, until the entire amount is paid, and I have to tell this audience that "you have been bought with a price" and that that price was paid in different installments.

The first installment paid for the clearance of our souls was the ignominious birth of Christ in Bethlehem. Though we may never be carefully looked after afterward, our advent into the world is carefully guarded. We come into the world amid kindly attentions. Privacy and silence are afforded when God launches an immortal soul into the world. Even the roughest of men know enough to stand back. But I have to tell you that in the village on the side of the hill there was a very bedlam of uproar when Jesus was born. In a village capable of accommodating only a few hundred people many thousand people were crowded, and amid hostlers and muleteers and camel drivers yelling at stupid beasts of burden the Messiah appeared. No silence. No privacy. A better adapted place hath the eaglet in the eyrie, hath the whelp in the lions' lair. The exile of heaven lieth down upon straw. The first night out from the palace of heaven spent in an outhouse! One hour after laying aside the robes of heaven, dressed in a wrapper of coarse linen. One would have supposed that Christ would have made a more gradual descent, coming from heaven first to a half way world of great magnitude, then to Cæsar's palace, then to a merchant's castle in Galilee, then to a private home in Bethany, then to a fisherman's hut and last of all to a stable. No; it was one leap from the top to the bottom.

Let us open the door of the caravansary in Bethlehem and drive away the camels. Press on through the group of idlers and loungers. What, O Mary! No light? "No light," she says, "save that which comes in through the door." What, Mary, no food? "None," she says, "only that which was brought in the sack on the journey." Let the Bethlehem woman who has come in here with kindly attentions put back the covering from the Babe that we may look upon it. Look! Look! Uncover your head. Let us kneel. Let all voices be hushed. Son of Mary! Son of God! Child of a day! Monarch of eternity! In that eye the glance of a God. Omnipotence sheathed in that Babe's arm. That voice to be changed from the feeble plaint to the tone that shall wake the dead. Hosanna! Hosanna! Glory be to God that Jesus came from throne to manger, that we might rise from manger to throne and that all the gates are open and that the door of heaven, that once swung this way to let Jesus out, now swings the other way to let us in. Let all the bellmen of heaven lay hold the rope and ring out the news: "Behold, I bring you glad tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For to-day is born in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord!"

The second installment paid for our soul's clearance was the scene in Quarantania, a mountainous region, full of caverns, where are to this day panthers and wild beasts of all sorts, so that you must now go there armed with knife or gun or pistol. It was there that Jesus went to think and to pray, and it was there that his monster of hell—more sly, more terrific than anything that prowled in that country—Satan himself met Christ.

The rose in the cheek of Christ—that Publius Lentullus in his letter to the Roman senate ascribed to Jesus—that rose had scattered its petals. Abstinence from food had thrown Him into emaciation.

A long abstinence from food recorded in profane history is that of the crew of the ship Juno. For twenty-three days they had nothing to eat. But this sufferer had fasted a month and ten days before He broke fast. Hunger must have agonized every fiber of the body and gnawed on the stomach with teeth of death. The thought of a morsel of bread or meat must have thrilled the body with something like ferocity.

Turn out a pack of men hungry as Christ was a-hungered, and if they had strength with one yell they would devour you as a kid. It was in that pang of hunger that Jesus was accosted and Satan said, "Now change these stones, which look like bread into an actual supply of bread." Had the temptation come to you and me under those circumstances we would have cried, "Bread it shall be!" and been almost impatient at the time taken for mastication. But Christ with one hand beat back the hunger and with the other hand beat back the monarch of darkness. Oh, ye tempted ones! Christ was tempted.

We are told that Napoleon ordered a coat of mail made, but was not quite certain that it was impenetrable, so he said to the manufacturer of the coat of mail, "Put it on now yourself and let us try it." And with shot after shot from his own pistol the emperor found out that it was just what it pretended to be—a good coat of mail. Then the man received a large reward.

I bless God that the same cost of mail that struck back the weapons of temptation from the head of Christ we may now all wear, for Jesus comes and says: "I have been tempted, and I know what it is to be tempted. Take this robe that defended Me and wear it for yourselves. I shall see you through all trials, and I shall see you through all temptations."

"But," says Satan still further to Jesus, "come, and I will show you something worth looking at, and after a half day's journey they came to Jerusalem and to the top of the temple. Just as one might go up in the tower of Antwerp and look off upon Belgium, so Satan brought Christ to the top of the temple. Some people at a great height feel dizzy and a strange disposition to jump, so Satan comes to Christ in that very crisis. Standing there at the top of the temple, they look off. A magnificent reach of country. Grainfields, vineyards, olive groves, forests and streams, cattle in the valley, flocks on the hills and villages and cities and realms. "Now," says Satan, "I'll make a bargain. Just jump off. I know it is a great way from the top of the temple to the valley, but if you are divine you can fly. Jump off. It won't hurt you. Angels will catch you. Your Father will hold you. Besides, I'll make you a large present if you will. I'll give you Asia Minor, I'll give you China, I'll give you Ethiopia. I'll give you Italy, I'll give you Spain, I'll give you Germany, I'll give you Britain. I'll give you all the world." What a temptation it must have been!

But I bless God that in the triumph over temptation Christ gives us the assurance that we also shall triumph. Having Himself been tempted, He is able to succor all those who are tempted.

In a violent storm at sea the mate told a boy—for the rigging had become entangled in the mast—to go up and right it. A gentleman standing on the deck said "Don't send that boy up. He will be dashed to death." The mate said, "I know what I am about." The boy raised his hat in recognition of the order and then rose hand over hand and went to work. And as he swung in the storm the passengers wrung their hands and expected to see him fall. The work done, he came down in safety, and a Christian man said to him, "Why did you go down in the forecastle before you went up?" "Ah!" said the boy, "I went down to pray. My mother always taught me, before I undertook anything great to pray." "What is that you have in your vest?" "Oh, that is the New Testament," he said. "I thought I would carry it with me if I really did go overboard." How well the boy was protected!

I care not how great the height or how vast the depth, with Christ within us and Christ beneath us and Christ above us and Christ all around us, nothing can befal us in the way of harm. Christ Himself having been in the tempest will deliver all those who put their trust in Him. Blessed be His glorious name forever!

Further I remark, the last great installment paid for our redemption was the demise of Christ. The world has seen many dark days. Many summers ago there was a very dark day when the sun was eclipsed. The fowl at noonday went to their perch, and we felt a gloom as we looked at the astronomical wonder. It was a dark day in London when the plague was at its height and the dead with uncovered faces were taken in open cars and dumped in the trenches. It was a dark day when the earth opened and Lisbon sank, but the darkest day since the creation of the world was when the carnage of Calvary was enacted.

It was about noon when the curtain began to be drawn. It was not the coming on of a night that soothes and refreshes; it was the swinging of a great gloom all around the heavens. God hung it. As when there is a dead one in the house you bow the shutters, or turn the lattice, so God in the afternoon shut the windows of the world. As it is appropriate to throw a black pall upon the coffin as it passes along, so it was appropriate that everything should be sombre that day as the great hearse of the earth rolled on bearing the corpse of the King. A man's last hours are ordinarily kept sacred. However you may have hated or caricatured a man, when you hear he is dying silence puts its hand on your line, and you would have a loathing for the man who could stand by a deathbed making faces and scoffing. But Christ in His last hour cannot be left alone. What! Pursuing Him yet after so long a pursuit? You have been drinking His tears. Do you want to drink His blood? They come up closely, so that notwithstanding the darkness they can glut their revenge with the contortions of His countenance. They examine His feet; they want to feel for themselves whether those feet are really spiked; they put out their hands and touch the spikes and bring them back wet with blood and wipe them on their garments.

Women stand there and weep, but can do no good. It is no place for the tender-hearted women. It wants a heart that crime has turned into granite. The waves of man's hatred and of hell's vengeance dash up against the mangled feet, and the hands of sin and pain and torture clutch for His holy heart. Had He not been thoroughly fastened to the cross they would have torn Him down and trampled Him with both feet. How the cavalry horses arched their necks and champed their bits and reared and snuffed at the blood! Had a Roman officer called out for a light his voice would not have been heard in the tumult, but louder than the clash of spears, and the wailing of womanhood, and the neighing of the chargers, and the bellowing of the crucifiers there comes a voice crashing through—loud, clear, overwhelming, terrific. It is the groaning of the dying Son of God! Look! What a scene! Look, world, at what you have done!

I lift the covering from the maltreated Christ to let you count the wounds and estimate the cost. Oh, when the nails went through Christ's right hand and through Christ's left hand, that bought both your hands with all their power to work and lift and write. When the nails went through Christ's right foot and Christ's left foot, that bought your feet, with all their power to walk or run or climb. When the thorn went into Christ's temple, that bought your brain, with all its power to think and plan. When the spear cleft Christ's side, that bought your heart, with all its power to love and repent and pray.

When the Atlantic cable was lost in 1865, do you remember that the Great Eastern and the Medway and the Albany went out to find it? Thirty times they sank the grapnel two and a half miles deep in water. After awhile they found the cable and brought it to the surface. No sooner had it been brought to the surface than they lifted a shout of exultation, but the cable slipped back again into the water and was lost. Then for two weeks more they swept the sea with the grappling hooks, and at last they found the cable, and they brought it up in silence. They fastened it this time. Then with great excitement they took one end of the cable to the electrician's room to see if there were really any life in it, and, when they saw a spark and knew that a message could be sent, then every hat was lifted, and the rockets flew, and the guns sounded until all the vessels on the expedition knew, and the continents were lashed together. Well, my friends, Sabbath after Sabbath gospel messengers have come searching down for your souls. We have swept the sea with the grappling hook of Christ's gospel. Again and again we have thought that you were at the surface, and we began to rejoice over your redemption, but at the moment of our gladness you sank back again into the world and back again into sin. To-day we come with the gospel searching for your soul. We apply the cross of Christ first to see whether there is any life left in you, while all around the people stand, looking to see whether the work will be done, and the angels of God bend down and witness, and, oh, if now we could see only one spark of love and hope and faith we would send up a shout that would be heard on the battlements of heaven, and two worlds would keep jubilee because communication is open between Christ and the soul and your nature that has been sunken in sin has been lifted into the light and the joy of the gospel.

THE SABBATH SCHOOL

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR APRIL 14.

Subject: Jesus Appears to Mary. John xx., 11-18.—Golden Text, Rev. i., 18.—Memory Verses, 16-18.—Commentary on the Day's Lesson.

11. "Mary." This was Mary Magdalene, out of whom the Lord had cast seven devils. The epithet "Magdalene," whatever may be its meaning, seems chosen for the express purpose of distinguishing her from all other Marys. "Stood without." Peter and John going (v. 10) commenced Mary's staying. To the grave she came before them, from the grave she went to tell them, to the grave she returns with them, at the grave she remains behind them. To stay while others stay is the world's love, to stay when all are gone is constant love. "Weeping." She had great love for her Lord. He had done much for her. "Stooped down." Because she was anxious to see whether she might not, after all, be mistaken about the absence of the body. She stooped because the top of the entrance was so low that she could not otherwise obtain a near view of the inside of the tomb. "The sepulchre." The sepulchre seems to have been a square room hewn out of a rock, partly above ground, its roof being as high as the top of the door, which formed its entrance.

12. "Two angels." Peter and John did not see the angels. The angels' presence showed the Divine hand and care. They were ministering spirits to comfort those who were in such great sorrow and need; and they gave explanation of what had been done, no one else being able. The supposed discrepancies in the number of angels seen is explained by Lessing. The whole grave, the whole region about the grave was invisibly swarming with angels. There were not only two angels, but many of them. Sometimes one appears and sometimes another, at different places and speaking different things. "In white." This was an emblem of purity. See Rev. 19: 8.

13. "Why weepest thou?" Are you quite sure that this empty tomb does not show that you ought to be rejoicing? "Taken away my Lord." While the other women were terrified Mary seems to have had no fear, so wholly was she taken up with her great desire of finding her Lord. She was ready to brave more heroically than ever all danger if only she might find the One she loved.

14. "Turned herself back." Still weeping she turned away from the angels. She turned to go again with the other women to Jerusalem, who had already departed, but she had not as yet gone so far as to be out of the garden. Mary was so absorbed in grief, and her eyes so dimmed with tears that she failed to recognize Christ; besides, she was not expecting to see Jesus alive, as she had no conception of His resurrection.

15. "Jesus saith unto her." This was His first appearance. He afterward appeared on this same day to the other women returning from sepulchre (Matt. 28: 9, 10), to Peter (Luke 24: 34), to two disciples going to Emmaus (Luke 24: 13-31), and to ten apostles. John 20: 19-25. "Why weepest thou?" She had cause sufficient to rejoice instead of to weep. "Whom seekest thou?" He seeks to comfort her in her great grief. "The gardener." And therefore a servant of Joseph of Arimathea, who owned the tomb, and who, of course, would be friendly. No other person would be likely to be there at so early an hour. "Have borne Him hence." Thinking that perhaps Joseph had ordered His body taken to some other place. "I will take Him away." She would see that it was done. She would be responsible for His removal to a proper place. To think that stranger hands had cared for Him when she had brought spices for that purpose was a bitter disappointment to her.

16. "Mary." Jesus stirred the affection of the weeping woman at His side by uttering her own name in tones that thrilled her to the heart and created the new, sublime conviction that He had risen as He had said. What transports of joy must have filled this woman's heart! Let it be remarked that Mary sought Jesus more fervently, and continued more affectionately attached to Him than any of the rest; therefore to her first Jesus is pleased to show Himself, and she is made the first herald of the gospel of a risen Saviour. "Rabbboni." My Master. "A whole world of emotion and devotion in a word." As Mary uttered the word she must have endeavored to fall down at the feet of her Lord, embracing them.

17. "Touch Me not." "Cling not to Me." The translation "touch Me not" gives a false impression; the verb does not mean to "touch," but to "hold on to" and "cling to." "I am not yet ascended." Mary appears to have held Him by the feet, and worshiped Him. Jesus says in effect: Spend no longer time with Me now; I am not going immediately to heaven; you will have several opportunities of seeing Me again; but go and tell My disciples that I am, by and by, to ascend to My Father and God, who is your Father and God also; therefore, let them take courage. Do not rest your new faith upon My corporeal life, but upon that spiritual life soon to be consummated with the Father. Then I shall receive your love, and we will resume our friendship. One touch through the Holy Ghost is worth far more than any bodily presence. To be satisfied with His being restored to life that she might be in His presence as before was to lose sight of the merits of His death. Henceforth He must be believed in and worshiped as God, for He was not to remain in a natural body. "Go to My brethren." First servants, then disciples, then friends; now, after the resurrection, brethren. This involves in itself eternal inheritance. "I ascend to My Father." I am clothing Myself with My eternal form; I have laid down My life that I might take it again, and use it for the highest blessedness of My brethren. "My Father—your Father—My God and your God." Father of Christ by nature and of men by grace. His God only in connection with us; our God only in connection with Him. His eternal consciousness of the Father's love dignified all His human relations with the Father, and became the true inspiration of all consciousness of God possessed by His disciples.

18. "Mary told the disciples." An apostle to the apostles. Mary was the first to see Jesus and the first to proclaim His resurrection. This special message was clearly given to the woman who held His feet. St. Mark tells us (chap. 16: 11) that the apostles could not believe what she said. They seem to have considered it as an effect of her troubled imagination. But they believed when they saw the Lord.

When a "community of interest" encounters the interest of the community, what is likely to happen? When Stephenson, the inventor of the locomotive, was asked by the Parliamentary committee what would happen if a cow got on the railroad track, he answered: "It wud be verra bad for the coo."

According to President G. Stanley Hall, of Clark University, the main thing in bringing up a boy is "to have a care, not so much for the activity of the child or his school training, but for the food he eats."

CLAY DEFIED SHERIFF.

Famous Kentuckian Imagined Vendetta Was After Him and Opened Fusilade.

A special from Lexington, Ky., says: With the cry, "The Vendetta!" on his lips, General Cassius Marcellus Clay, the famous abolitionist and duelist and former United States minister to Russia, Friday morning led his little bodyguard to battle against a sheriff's posse which had gone to Whitehall, his palatial mansion in Madison county, to serve papers upon the general in a civil case instituted against him by his daughter, Mary B. Clay. Many shots were fired on each side and the posse finally departed without accomplishing the purpose of its visit. It is reported that General Clay was wounded in the affray.

Friday's conflict was directly connected with the domestic woes of General Clay which have darkened the closing years of his life.

The principals in the battle were General Clay and two of his bodyguard, Bud Literell and Jim Bolin on one side, and Sheriff Colyer, Deputy Terrill and Frank Mason, of Madison county, on the other.

The writ which the sheriff sought to serve was one ordering the delivery of some furniture belonging to the general's daughter. The officers approached the house from the north, passing through the apple orchard. The general's Russian bulldog set up a barking and the officers stopped at the yard. The general's bodyguard promptly came to the door and the sheriff announced that he desired a personal interview with the master of Whitehall. General Clay in a few moments came to the door, revolver in hand.

"General Clay," said the sheriff, "we are here on a peaceful mission."

"You are on my property without leave and I will shoot you," replied the old man, who, almost blind, strained his eyes as if trying to make out the location of an enemy.

"Don't shoot, general, we are friends," shouted Sheriff Colyer.

"Spies!" he returned, and handing his pistol to one of his men, he took instead a repeating shotgun and cocked it.

Sheriff Colyer sought shelter behind a large oak tree near by and his deputies also hid themselves. All pulled their weapons.

"General Clay shrieked, "The Vendetta! The Vendetta!" and began firing in the direction from which he heard the voices.

The sheriff fired in return after the general had emptied the weapon and his deputies also fired, they say, not at the old man, but hoping to scare him into seeking shelter. Colyer was shooting wild also, not desiring to kill the old man, who, although doing his best to kill them, believed he was firing upon an enemy.

After emptying the shotgun General Clay tried his revolver, which would not fire. He then took from the hands of the other guard a rifle and began discharging it at the frightened sheriff and deputies. Exhausting his ammunition, General Clay sought retreat. He went into the room and putting up the iron bars, ordered his men to adjust the pistols, three large navy weapons, always kept lying on a dresser. He armed himself with a large bowie knife and butcher knife. Stationing himself at the side of the door, he awaited further attack.

After General Clay had retreated into his den Sheriff Colyer and his men left the yard. They found a negro boy, and sent him to the house to try to get General Clay to come out unarmed, and meet them, but in this they were not successful, and they returned without serving the process. Sheriff Colyer announced that he would wait a day or two before trying to serve the papers.

The trouble originated some months ago when General Clay, who had been left alone after his child-wife, Dora Richardson, ran away and left him, sent for Mary B. Clay, a daughter, to come and live with him. For some weeks they got along nicely and the veteran appeared to be satisfied. Two weeks ago he told his daughter to go to his family and secure their consent to release all claims on the property which he occupies. He wanted to give the property to Dora, the young divorced wife, who is now the wife of Riley Brock, and resides at Pinckard, in Woodford county, on property given her by the general.

The daughter went away according to orders and, returning a day or so later, was met at the door by the old man. His eyes were fiery. In his trembling hand he held a revolver grasped tightly. He demanded to know the result of the visit.

"It's all right," said the frightened daughter.

"All right, is it?" retorted the infuriated man. "You lie. I know you are deceiving me." Leveling his revolver at his daughter's head, he added:

"Leave my house and never come here again."

Miss Clay later on secured a writ of delivery for her furniture and placed the paper in the hands of Sheriff Colyer.

John Shepherd Arrested.

John Shepherd, a yellow negro, who claims that he works at Smith's mines south of Birmingham, was arrested by officer Hamilton on a charge of assault with intent to murder. It is charged that he is the negro who shot and seriously wounded Ed. Eaton, a motorman on the Powderly electric line a few months ago at Powderly.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

FOR DELEGATE FROM CHILTON COUNTY:

DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE:

H. W. CAFFEY.

POPULIST NOMINEE:

L. H. REYNOLDS.

ONE week from next Tuesday is election day, and every voter in the county should arrange to go to the polls and cast his vote. This is one election of a lifetime and no man should miss it.

FORTY-FOUR men, who had been sent to the coal mines from Butler county on the charge of illegally riding on trains and vagrancy, have been pardoned by Governor Samford. This is a terrible reflection on the "Justice" administered in Butler county.

Lovers of good government and purity in politics have a strong hope that with the adoption of a new Constitution such suffrage restrictions will be in force as will entirely remove all excuse for dirty election tricks, and that the time will come when our elections will be farely conducted, and the man who would debauch the ballot in any way will be both a legal and moral criminal in the eyes of the law and in the estimation of all good men. —Advertiser.

If we could only bring ourselves to the belief that such a "consumation devoutly to be wished" would be the result of the convention we would gladly join the Advertiser in supporting the convention, but as it is we are afraid of the results being otherwise.

As you read this, there are a hundred workmen on the bluffs of Memphis erecting a mammoth hall for the Confederate reunion May 28. It will be the largest one ever erected for a similar purpose. At a recent meeting of the General Executive Committee it was decided to build one for this special occasion, and graders, bricklayers and carpenters are now actively engaged in laying the foundations and raising the superstructure. The hall will be finished in ample time for the Reunion. It will have a seating capacity of 27,000 people, and will contain State headquarters for Arkansas, Tennessee, Louisiana, Kentucky, Missouri, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Florida, Alabama, Texas and Mississippi.

Saturday is show day in Clanton, Sells & Gray's United Shows, the biggest tented attraction that ever appeared here, and one of the greatest in America, with mammoth tents 200 horses and nearly 1000 people, will give two performances in Clanton that day and the town will probably be crowded with visitors. The show is worth coming miles to see; a dazzling street parade will be a feature Saturday morning.

TO COTTON GROWERS

As the time for cotton planting is at hand, I feel it my duty to again call your attention to the fact that an increased acreage means lower prices for your crop; increased acreage does not always indicate a larger crop, as it is liable to disasters, but these facts are not always appreciated until after the majority of our farmers are forced to put their cotton on the market. If we are to obtain fair and just prices for our staple, we must furnish the supply necessary for the world's consumption, but must not furnish more. A twelve million bale crop means very low price, while a nine million bale crop means fair and just prices. Alabama farmers should heed the lesson of their brother farmers in other States: Produce your own food supply, and have your cotton as a cash surplus.

How happy and independent is the farmer who owns his corn cribs and meat houses! There is not a farmer in Alabama who cannot raise sufficient corn, meat and forage for his own consumption besides having plenty of cotton to make him independent of the pernicious credit system. This, in my opinion, is the only solution of the problems that have so perplexed our farmers, and I would that every farmer in our beloved State could feel the importance of growing everything they eat.

Do not, by any means, neglect the corn, peas, sugar and ground pea crops—these are the essentials—then plant your surplus in cotton. Alabama, under this system, will soon become as a paradice compared with our present system, and our people will be happy and prosperous.

Trusting that my views will prove of interest, I am.

Fraternally yours,
ROBERT R. POOLE,
Commissioner of Agriculture.

MANY RAILWAYS POOL INTERESTS

A Big Combine Reported as In Contemplation.

ENGINEERED BY J. P. MORGAN

Object Said to Be Formation of Community of Interest Under One Control.

A Cincinnati special says: A gigantic amalgamation of four railroads, it is said, has just been effected. The roads are the Southern railway, the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton, the Chicago, Indianapolis and Louisville and the Cincinnati Southern. J. Pierpont Morgan is reported to have formed the combine.

This consolidation has been frequently agitated in connection with the pending renewal of a lease of the Cincinnati Southern to the Southern railway, but the officials of the two lines, deny that anything has yet been done that will warrant the announcement of consolidation.

There was no information obtainable at the Southern railway offices in Washington regarding the reported amalgation of railroad interests. All of the officials possibly competent to talk regarding the alleged deal are out of the city. All of the roads mentioned are on specially friendly relations.

The Cincinnati Southern is stated to be owned jointly by the Southern and the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton. The Monon road, otherwise the Chicago, Indianapolis and Cincinnati, is said to be closely identified with the Morgan interests and thus have close relations with the Southern. There is also a strong freight traffic relation between the Southern and the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton.

Reports that huge railroad combinations are in process of formation were widely circulated in New York. Detailed statements concerning the plan already published looking to the combination of all the great railway systems of the United States under the control of one company were given, but as a general thing prominent railroad officials and bankers declined to discuss the matter.

According to all accounts the enterprise involved the greatest combination of capital known in the history of finance. It was said the company would be formed under the laws of New Jersey for the purpose of conducting a general freight and transportation business throughout the United States; that the company would hold a controlling interest in all of the great railway systems and that the management of the roads would be vested in the controlling company.

According to the proposition, each road would preserve its identity and corporate existence, but the new company would control the affairs of all. By this policy it was claimed large sums of money could be saved as a result of economies in management and the stopping of rate cutting. The names of men like J. P. Morgan, William K. Vanderbilt, James J. Hill, Edward H. Harriman, George J. Gould, John D. Rockefeller, Jacob H. Schiff and Jas. Stillman were freely used.

One report stated that the first step in the proposed plan would be the securing of control of the stocks of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, the Erie, the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, and that provision would be made for the acquisition of other properties in the immediate future.

All that is aimed at, according to the best authority obtainable, is a community of interest. The close amalgamation of a community of interest basis was first brought about through the efforts of J. Pierpont Morgan. As a result of this close union of interest ruinous rate wars are already at an end, not so many high-priced officials are needed as before, and one can buy a ticket on any trunk line in almost any one of the large offices in the cities. However, that a single company will be formed under the New Jersey laws to take over all the railroads of the country is not considered seriously by well informed railway men.

FLORIDA LEGISLATURE.

Many Measures of General State Interest are Introduced.

A special from Tallahassee says: In the senate Friday a bill making radical changes in election law and a laborer's lien bill were introduced. In the house a bill for a method of assessing and collecting revenue; bills prohibiting railroads charging a passenger rate of over 3 cents a mile; prohibiting state attorneys and county solicitors from serving transportation companies as attorney, and a bill providing for jim crow cars were introduced. In both houses a bill for a uniform divorce law proposed for adoption in all the states was introduced.

Attempt to Murder Loubert.

A dispatch from Paris says that the French detectives were privately informed of a projected attempt to assassinate President Loubert during his coming trip. Extraordinary precautions have been taken everywhere and the usual police protection has been doubled. Outsiders have been excluded from the railroad stations.

LATEST STATE TOPICS.

A Fair Swindler.

A woman, rather fair to look upon and well dressed, registered at the Hotel Albert in Selma as Miss Cone. In the afternoon she went out to make some purchases and at the jewelry store of J. Hirchfield saw a ring that caught her fancy. She presented a check for $35 signed by M. J. Maurray and drawn on the First National Bank of New York. It was made payable to Cecil Everette and was endorsed by Cecil Everette. Mr. Hirchfield refused at first to take the check, but upon the identification of a young man at the hotel, decided to take it and gave the woman $7 in change. A telegram was sent in the afternoon to New York and an answer came that the check was worthless.

Large Sales of Land at Bessemer.

The Bessemer Land and Improvement Company in a recent statement issued, shows that since the recent election to the presidency of the company of Mr H. L. Badham sales of real estate aggregating $44,475 have been made. Most of these sales were of unimproved property bought by parties desiring to build homes thereon or houses for rental purposes. A few lots only were bought merely for speculation. Never before in the city's history has there been such a steady demand for real estate. The prices asked are reasonable and encourage people to make permanent investments.

E. B Joseph Mayor of Montgomery.

Court square and Dexter avenue, in Montgomery, were ablaze at midnight with bonfires and fireworks in celebration of the nomination by the Democrats of E. B. Joseph as mayor of the city Monday. The contest has been a listless one, Joseph having everything his way, but so decided was his majority that his friends took possession of the streets, and brass bands, bonfires and fireworks were evidences of their joy. The total vote polled was 2,418, Joseph receiving 1,477 and Clisby 941, giving Joseph a majority of 536. His majority was about 100 greater than was anticipated.

Bridges Guilty.

Jim Bridges, one of the three white prisoners taken to Huntsville last week to stand trial on the charge of robbing the safe at Normal, Ala., was convicted in the United States Court at that place on Saturday, the jury coming in late at night. Tom O'Dowd, another of the prisoners, was found not guilty of the Normal robbery, but he is being held for an alleged robbery in Kentucky. The case of Fred Segrin, the third member of the alleged gang, is yet to be tried.

A Miner Killed at Warner.

George Ward, a well known and well liked miner 40 years of age, was killed by a switch engine of the Southern Railway. Mr. Ward was coming to his home from Brookside and was walking on the track. While on a curve he was struck by the tender, the engine backing up, and ground under the wheels.

Failure at Athens.

The first failure in business circles in nearly two years took place this week in Athens, when the gorcery firm of Henderson and Company made an assignment, naming Mr. J. T. Christensen as assignee. The firm was composed of two very popular business men, and they sold too heavily on credit and failed to make their expected collections, and as a result they went to the wall. They will be able to settle dollar for dollar it is thought.

ABDUL ANSWERS BILL.

Old Turk Professes Great Piety and Humble Submission.

The sultan of Turkey, replying to Emperor William's telegram of congratulations upon his recent escape from harm during the recent earthquake in Constantinople, thanks the kaiser for his cordial sentiments, and adds:

"My attitude at the time of the earthquake was the result of a feeling of constant submission to the divine will; and I thank the Almighty, who is watching over my person and subjects and who preserved them from peril. I shall pray God ever to spare humanity from such calamities."

GREEN GOODS DEALERS

Arrested at Buffalo, N. Y., On Charge of Wholesale Swindling.

Two men and a woman who are said to have done such an extensive business in green goods that their monthyl expenditure for postage stamps represented $500, were arrested at Buffalo, N. Y., Saturday evening. They are W. A. Clark and his wife and brother, Lee L. Clark.

The inspectors say the gang has been operating in the vicinity for several months, some of their victims coming all the way from Texas.

GARDEN AND FARM

CULTIVATION OF CORN.

Run close to corn, one furrow only with a small plow three or four inches deep as soon as it is all up—may use turn plow with bar next to corn and let it stand as much as five days before filling. The corn will then have taken root downward, which will be out of the way of plowing and will stand drought better. After the first plowing plow shallow and don't throw too much dirt to corn at once. Keep grass down. Hoe when needed. Lay by clean when it begins to tassel. —The Epitomist.

KEEP THE COWS CLEAN.

The platform on which the cows stand should be at least six inches higher than the floor. This will give drop enough so that the cows can lie down without getting into the manure. But the cows will not keep clean if the platform on which they stand is not of the proper length. It should project not more than two inches beyond the cows' hind feet. It works well to have the front end of the platform one-half or three-fourths inches higher than the rear end, as this allows the urine to run off. It takes but little time to fix the stables in this way. If too low the platform can easily be raised by putting thicker pieces of timber underneath, and if too long a saw will shorten it.

After the stable is fixed, the cows in and the milking all done, the last thing to do before leaving them for the night is to clean out any manure that may have dropped since they were tied up, and then scatter some sawdust or other absorbent on the floor below the drop. This soaks up the urine and when a cow is lying down, her tail will not become wet. Upon going out to milk in the morning, cows stabled in this way will be clean, and one will not experience the unpleasantness of having a wet and dirty tail swung across the face.—L. O. Haskins, in New England Homestead.

WHEN TO PRUNE TREES.

The time to prune fruit trees is from February to April, or before the sap begins to flow. This will depend upon the climate. The wounds will then heal rapidly without leaving dead wood or scars. Much pruning may be saved by pinching and rubbing off superfluous sprouts during the growing season. The first pruning of a young tree is a very important process, for it is then that the future shape of the tree and the number of branches it will possess will be determined. Some trees will stand severe cutting back, ,but all trees should be pruned as to permit of abundant air and sunlight.

HENS AND STRAWBERRIES.

I wish to tell your many readers how I make hens and strawberries pay by turning the propensity of the hen to scratch to a good account. I have three different yards for the hens to run in. By being confined in one yard for a season they will destroy, by eating and scratching, every vestige of grass and weeds and will also fertilize the ground.

The next spring I set that yard to strawberries and put the hens into another yard to prepare that for strawberries. After this system is established with three yards one can set a new bed every year and spade up an old one, always having a bed in fruit bearing the second year from setting. By this plan all the strawberries cost is the weeding of the plants and picking of berries. By having the run of the yard, if it is a good-sized one, the hens will furnish eggs enough to pay their keeping.—N. B. White, in Boston Cultivator.

ENORMOUS PRODUCTION OF CARNATIONS.

From a rough computation I am inclined to think that there is perhaps $2,000,000 invested in carnation growing in the United States to-day and that there are probably employed in the production of carnation flowers something like 5,000 people. It is still more difficult to arrive at the value of the product produced, but the probable value of blooms and plants sold should be from three to four times the capital invested. There are about 2,500,000 young carnation plants and rooted cuttings sold each year, and florists produce an equal amount which they themselves use for growing and which are not sold. Of these plants, at least four-fifths are grown under glass during the winter time for cut flower purposes. Assuming that they produce an annual average of twenty flowers to the plant, would give 60,000,000 blooms produced each year.

What becomes of this enormous number of flowers is somewhat of a mystery. They are put to innumerable uses. The carnation is a flower that awakens the love of almost every person, and as the average carnation blooms are sold at much more reasonable prices than many other flowers, they come within reach of a larger class of people than do roses and orchids, consequently the consumption is larger. There is no use to which flowers may be put for which the carnation is not fitted. It lends itself to almost every scheme of decoration. Its delicious, clean, pungent, aromatic fragrance admits it to almost every sick room. It is unsurpassed for dinner or center table decorations. It is universally used in the making up of set pieces. It is also one of the best flowers for boutonnieres that the florist has at his command, and, finally its wide range of pleasing colors, its lasting qualities and fresh, rich, clove fragrance combine to make it one of the most popular, as well as one of the most sought for and profitable of florists' flowers.—C. W. Ward, in American Agriculturist.

WINTERING HORSES.

The average farm horse is worked too hard in summer and given too much idleness in winter. All through the planting and harvesting season his work is ceaseless and laborious, and then when snow and frost close the country roads the animal is shut up for most of the time in the stable. There are occasional drives with him when the sleighing is good or when the ground is frozen hard, but these drives are irregular and not the most conducive to the animal's best development. This wintering of horses is a problem that the breeder has to face as well as the farmer. He realizes the danger probably more than the man who has one or two farm horses to carry over. The breeder and trainer has enough horses to make it an object to give them regular daily exercise, and his men are employed for this special purpose. In this way the animals are kept in excellent condition through the winter, and in the spring they come out with fine, sleek coats, good, round bodies, and well-knit but not over-developed muscles.

Nearly every farmer has a few horses which he hopes to sell at a fair bargain when the market is good. He makes it a part of his business to breed a few colts every year for extra sales. Now a good many of these farm horses are nearly ruined through the unwise wintering which they get. It is not that the owner is not willing to do the best by them, but because he thinks that a good winter's rest will do them good. No animal needs such a long rest. They all do better with a fair amount of exercise. There should hardly be a day in winter that the horses do not have the freedom of a yard or field to run about in if it is impossible to drive them. Farm horses turned loose in this way will do much better than those stabled carefully all winter. It will harden and toughen them to come in contact with the fresh air, and their whole systems will be better for it in the spring. They will be prepared then to enter in the spring work with more vim and vitality than if stabled all winter. The feeding is also an important question with the horses in the winter. They cannot be put on a slim diet of hay and less grain without suffering therefrom. Let the diet be a fairly liberal one and then give them all the daily exercise they want.—William Conway, in American Cultivator.

LAWNS AND LAWN MAKING.

The best lawns I have seen are those composed of a single variety of grass. So long as the texture and color are good it makes but little difference what variety is used, presupposing the soil to have been properly and carefully prepared. For New England and regions near the coast, where the influence of the ocean winds may have some effect, Rhode Island bent and creeping bent are the best grasses to use. They require careful attention, however, more than Kentucky blue grass, and for general purposes I would recommend Kentucky blue grass. Lime is required in the soil to make it do its best. From experiments at some of the agricultural experiment stations Rhode Island bent and other bent grasses are not improved by the application of lime. Now, for a mixture I would recommend Kentucky blue grass, Italian rye grass and white clover. The Italian rye grass is introduced simply for immediate effect.

An ultimate lawn should consist of blue grass and white clover. Another mixture which may be recommended is Kentucky blue grass, crested dog's tail and white clover. In this case also Italian rye grass could be added if an immediate covering is desired. This mixture is good for somewhat shaded lawns. In New England and the middle states some of the fescues might be used for lawns, but their characters are not well understood, and it is difficult to secure seeds true to name owing to their close resemblance one to another. The creeping red fescue is a valuable seed for light or sandy soils, and sown thickly makes a good turf. For woodland parks I know of nothing better than crested dog's tail and various leaved fescue, Festuca heterophylla. I have seen beautiful lawns of Kentucky blue grass as far south as Atlanta, Ga., but ordinarily, at points so far south, Kentucky blue grass will not survive the hot summer months. Its place is taken by Bermuda grass, which stands any amount of hot sun, and remains beautifully green throughout the season, or St. Augustine grass or Charleston lawn grass, which is used for lawns in cities near the coast from Charleston southward. Poor and weedy lawns are the result of improper care or bad management, and, as stated above, an attractive lawn depends less upon the variety of grass than upon the preparation of the soil and subsequent care.—F. Lawson Scribner, in Orange Judd Farmer.

All the trains that reach the new Orleans station in the center of Paris, France, are brought there by electric power in tunnels. This is considered the ideal depot of the twentieth century.

What Would You Do?

Now if you should visit a Japanese house,
Where there isn't a sofa or chair,
And your hostess should say, "Take a seat, sir, I pray,"
Now where would you sit? tell me where.

And should they persuade you to stay there and dine,
Where knives, forks, and spoons are unknown,
Do you think that you could eat with chopsticks of wood?
And how might you pick up a bone?

And, then, should they take you a Japanese drive,
In a neat little "rickshaw" of blue,
And you found, in Japan, that your horse was a man,
Now what do you think you would do?

—Independent.

A Trifle Mixed.

At one of the public schools in Washington a portrait of George Washington was hung in the room of the infant class a few days ago, says the Chicago Record. On the morning of its appearance the teacher called attention to the gift and asked the children if they knew whom the picture represented.

"Washington," responded several.

"Who was Washington?"

A little hand was lifted from one of the front desks, and the teacher asked pleasantly:

"Who was he, Tommy?"

"Our father from the country," was the reply.

Bundy's Lunch Basket.

Bundy is a big, shaggy dog, with large, brown eyes, which are expressive and beautiful, but barring his eyes, it must be said that he is not handsome. He possesses attractions of another kind, however, which endear him to his master and cause the number of his friends to increase daily.

Bundy's owner lives in the mountains of western Maryland, where mining is the chief industry of the people. Mr. Anthony, his master, is connected with one of the coal companies operating in that region, and every morning walks about one mile to his work and back again in the evening. At noon every day it is Bundy's work to carry a basket containing a luncheon across the mountain to his master, and for a long time he has accomplished this duty with evident joy to himself and satisfaction to his owner.

One day some time ago Bundy appeared at the coal-weighing office, where his master works, at the usual hour, but minus the basket. Mr. Anthony was greatly perplexed and thought a circumstance so unusual betokened trouble of some kind at home. After a few questioning words with Bundy Mr. Anthony started for home, accompanied by the dog, who followed closely upon his master's heels, but seemed ill at ease. Upon reaching the house it was learned that Bundy had left that morning with his basket as usual, and was seen going up the side of the mountain and hurrying on until he was lost to view among the trees.

The mystery was now intensified, but no suspicion of wrongdoing had ever attached to Bundy's good name, and his master would not believe him guilty of unfaithfulness in this instance. A new basket was procured, the daily trips were resumed and Bundy's punctual regularity increased the belief in his innocence. The days and weeks passed on and the mystery still remained as deep as ever.

Perhaps as long as two months after the incident described one day late in the afternoon Bundy was seen approaching the house carrying the missing basket in his mouth. Slowly walking up to the kitchen door he dropped the basket and then quickly ran away hiding himself in the shadows under the big porch. The luncheon was found intact, just as it had been placed in the basket on the morning it was prepared for his master.

On the same day, up on the mountainside, just a little back from the path leading to the weighing office, a hole in the ground was found and the pile of leaves and earth freshly heaped by its side told the story of the missing basket.

Since the discovery Mr. Anthony loves the devoted dog more than ever, for he insists that Bundy has proved he has a conscience and that he obeys it, following its promptings even at the risk of disgrace and punishment.

A Snow Table.

It was snowing. Slowly and silently, but steadily, the snow was coming down. Four little faces looked out of the library window, waching it.

"Oh, dear, it is just too bad!" said Ted, the oldest. "I wish it would stop! It has snowed a lot now, and I want to make a snow man."

"But mamma won't let us go out until it does stop," said Frances, "so we might as well play with our dolls. Come on, Grace."

After they had gone, Ted and Harry still stood looking at the snow. It was hard to be shut in a whole day.

Mamma had an old table that she had used last winter for a flower table. It had a deep box on top, lined with zinc. This year papa had had a small conservatory built, so it wasn't in use. It stood on the piazza in front of the library window. The snow was fast piling itself upon the window-ledge and railing, and the table was nearly full of the soft, feathery stuff, when a bright thought came to Ted.

"Oh, say, if mamma would only let us go out on the piazza, we could have lots of fun! We could [illegible] table up in the corner where the [illegible] doesn't come, and have a snow [illegible] instead of a sand table, such [illegible] have in the nursery. We could [illegible] fine things out of the snow [illegible] just soft enough to mold [illegible]

Of course, the girls wanted [illegible] also, and as there were just [illegible] children and four corners to the [illegible] there was a corner for each [illegible]

Mamma said yes when they [illegible] her, and coats and hats were [illegible] on. Such fun as they had!

Ted made a beautiful part [illegible] corner, with a statue of [illegible] Grant—at least he said it was, [illegible] looked exactly like an ordinary [illegible] man, only very, very small.

Harry made a fort in his corner [illegible] had piles of cannon balls not [illegible] larger than big buttons. Frances [illegible] a house with the grounds around [illegible] laid out in winding drives and [illegible] ways.

Grace made a toboggan slide [illegible] had little toboggans made of [illegible] board for her tiny dolls.

They played a long while [illegible] going in once in a while to warm [illegible] fingers, for you can't mold things [illegible] gloves or mittens on. At last [illegible] had to go in. It was getting late [illegible] mamma was afraid they would [illegible] cold. The snow had stopped now [illegible] a fine rain was coming down.

"It will all be gone, and it did [illegible] so pretty! I wanted papa to see [illegible]" sighed Grace.

But the next morning when [illegible] went to look at their snow model [illegible] what do you think had happened? Why, the rain had frozen all [illegible] everything, and there were the [illegible] and fort, and house looking as if [illegible] were made of solid ice.

Papa was called to come and see [illegible] and he thought they had done wonderful things with their snow model. As the weather remained cold [illegible] the table was in the corner [illegible] from the sun, it lasted for some days.—Youth's Companion.

A Library of Foreign Treaties.

All of Uncle Sam's bargains [illegible] foreign governments are put into writing by both parties to the agreement [illegible] our state department writes up [illegible] document to be sent abroad [illegible] the czar, the shah or the other [illegible] to the transaction writes his [illegible] and sends it to Washington. The documents take a good deal of [illegible] ter from the nation issuing them [illegible] the state department library [illegible] many a curious manuscript.

For his part Uncle Sam is [illegible] to be plain and democratic in [illegible] matters. According to a writer in [illegible] Philadelphia Times, no attempt [illegible] made to elaborate copies of the [illegible] les which he sends to other countries. There are one or two clerks in [illegible] department who do very neat [illegible] work, and they copy the treaties on a very heavy quality of white [illegible] known as "treaty paper." Sometimes they make an artistic initial or [illegible] orative title, but usually they [illegible] to clean, readable lettering. The [illegible] ument is written on both sides of [illegible] paper, and around each page is [illegible] a double border of plain black [illegible] red lines. A cover is made of [illegible] same paper, and the whole is [illegible] at the side with silk ribbon. The great seal of state is not stamped [illegible] silver, as are some of the [illegible] seals, nor even in wax, but is imprinted on the last leaf of the treaty [illegible] The entire affair is not nearly [illegible] elaborate as one of the laws passed by congress, engrossed on parchment and sent to the president for his signature.

Some of the treaties received in [illegible] change for these simple documents [illegible] however, are both curious and [illegible] ble. Sweden's copy of the extradition treaty of 1899 is printed on parchment and bound in purple velvet [illegible] watered silk. Thompson's Eye Water

"I Followed Mrs. Pinkham's Advice and Now I am Well."

A woman is sick—some disease peculiar to her sex is fast developing in her system. She goes to her family physician and tells him a story, but not the whole story.

She hides her back something, loses her head, becomes agitated, forgets what she wants to say, and finally conceals what she thought to have told, and this completely mystifies the doctor.

Is it a wonder, therefore, that the doctor fails to cure the disease? Still we cannot blame the woman, for it is very embarrassing to detail some of the symptoms of her suffering, even to her family physician. This is the reason why hundreds of thousands of women are now in correspondence with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. To her they can give every symptom, so that when she is ready to advise them she is in possession of more facts from her correspondence with the patient than the physician can possibly obtain through a personal interview.

Following we publish a letter from a woman showing the result of a correspondence with Mrs. Pinkham. All such letters are considered absolutely confidential by Mrs. Pinkham, and are never published in any way or manner without the consent in writing of the patient; but hundreds of women are so grateful for the health which Mrs. Pinkham and her medicine have been able to restore to them that they not only consent to publishing their letters, but write asking that this be done in order that other women who suffer may be benefited by their experience.

Mrs. Ella Rice, Chelsea, Wis., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For two years I was troubled with falling and inflammation of the womb. I suffered very much with bearing-down pains, headache, backache, and was not able to do anything. What I endured no one knows but those who have suffered as I did. I could hardly drag myself across the floor. I doctored with the physicians of this town for three months and grew worse instead of better. My husband and friends wished me to write to you, but I had no faith in patent medicines. At last I became so bad that I concluded to ask your advice. I received an answer at once advising me to take your Vegetable Compound, and I did so. Before I had taken two bottles I felt better, and after I had taken five bottles there was no happier woman on earth, for I was well again. I know that your Vegetable Compound cured me, and I wish and advise every woman who suffers as I did to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Believe me always grateful for the recovery of my health." MRS. ELLA RICE, Chelsea, Wis.

$5000 REWARD Owing to the fact that some skeptical people have from time to time questioned the genuineness of the testimonial letters we are constantly publishing, we have deposited with the National City Bank, of Lynn, Mass., $5,000, which will be paid to any person who will show that the above testimonial is not genuine, or was published before obtaining the writer's special permission.—LYDIA E. HOLES IN COINS.

Three-Cent Pieces Will Have a Mark of Indicate Their Value.

The United States is about to begin the coinage of a 3-cent piece for use particularly in the west and southwest. It will be of nickel, about the size of a 5-cent piece, but in the center of it will be a hole about a quarter of an inch in diameter. This will enable one to distinguish it by the feel even in the dark. As is well known, only the gold coins are made on a basis of value equal to their denominations. The cent, for instance, is not worth, as metal, a fraction of that amount. The nickel is not either. All are stamped from blanks which the government buys by contract. Silver coins were originally of the same value as the metals, but silver has dropped so that a "cart wheel" dollar is only worth about 50 cents. Gold is worth cent for cent. With the beginning of the new year a new series of coinage began. All the old dies with 1900 on them were destroyed—that is, the face was. On New Year's day more than 1,200 of the dies were made useless; the faces were ground off them with an emery wheel. Ever since then brand-new dies have been used. These old dies were from all the various mints and the work of destroying their faces and reworking new ones was done at the Philadelphia mint.

Wages in the Navy.

A naval cadet at Annapolis receives $500 a year, beginning with the date of admission. Cadets after leaving the academy, when in service, other than on practice ship, receive $950 a year. Sea pay after that is: For ensign, first five years, $1,200, after that $1,400; lieutenant, junior grade, first five years, $1,800, after that $2,000; lieutenant, first five years, $2,400, after, $2,600; lieutenant commander, first five years, $2,800, after that $3,500; commander, $3,500; captain, $4,500; commodore, $5,000; rear admiral, $6,000; admiral, $13,000.

A Chinaman's Good Sermon.

The Chinese character is full of intellectual surprises. A convert to Christianity was called upon to give an illustration of the sacred Scripture, "Blessed are the pure in heart; for they shall see God." "You say that it is hard to worship a God who cannot be seen" said he, "and that you have no inward evidence of His actuality. A mirror from which all the quicksilver had dropped might as well complain that it could find no trace of the objects placed before it. Clean thoughts, clean affections, clean desires have the same function in human nature as the quicksilver on the back of the mirror. When the heart is filled once more with holy thoughts, the perfect image of God will again be seen there."

Young Women

The entry into womanhood is a critical time for a girl. Little menstrual disorders started at that time soon grow into fatal complications. That female troubles are filling graveyards proves this. Wine of Cardui establishes a painless and natural menstrual flow. When once this important function is started right, a healthy life will usually follow. Many women, young and old, owe their lives to Wine of Cardui. There is nothing like it to give women freedom from pain and to fit young women for every duty of life. $1.00 bottles at druggists.

Miss Delia M. Strayer, Tully, Kan.: "I have suffered untold pain at menstrual periods for a long time, was nervous, had no appetite, and lost interest in everything, in fact was miserable. I have taken four bottles of Wine of Cardui, with Thedford's Black-Draught, when needed, and to-day I am entirely cured. I cannot express the thanks I feel for what you have done for me."

To the people of Chilton county.

I am a candidate to represent your county in the approaching constitutional convention, on the following platform:

1. In the interest of both races, I favor the holding of a constitutional convention to regulate the right to vote, so as to secure purity in our elections, and enduring white supremacy.

2. This is to be accomplished without conflict with the constitution of the United States.

3. No white man is to be disfranchised, except for conviction of infamous crime, or fraud committed with the ballot.

4. No increase in present rate of taxation, but reduction of rate if practicable.

5. No change in present exemption laws.

6. Improvement and developement of present public school system of State, until all children within school limit, may obtain common English education.

7. Liberal pensions to old and disabled Confederate soldiers.

8. Constitution framed by the convention, to be submitted to the people for ratification or rejection.

H. W. CAFFEY.

Clanton, April 13, 1900

Editor Banner.—Please let me say a few words to the Populists of Chilton county. Gentlemen and fellow citizens, let me urge you all to turn out and vote against constitutional convention on the 23d inst. This election seems to be of but little concern to our people, while it is one of the greatest and most important we have seen since the war, and I ask why not give it some consideration and concern yourselves about it. The party that conceived this measure is working quietly in the ambush and have got speakers to go out all over the State to use their great powers to influence the plain people to vote for constitutional convention, as no white men will be disfranchised, making the negro a foot log to get across on. I will warn you voters of this wiley scheme, and ask you all not to give a chance to have your liberty cut off by voting for this constitutional convention. Why do not our legislators use their constitutional powers and make such changes as seem so much needed in our present constitution, and refer the amendments to the people for adoption or rejection, without a convention at a cost of a hundred thousand or more dollars to the taxpayers. The fact is they want to make a jim dandy, cracker-jack constitution for themselves and their kind, some seem to think, but will this be allowed. I invite all the Populists to go and vote against the convention and vote for L. H. Reynolds to represent us in the convention.

Yours respectfully,

L. T. VICKERS.

Kincheon.

Mr. M. M. Durbin states that on Friday morning, April 12, he witnessed the remarkable phenomena of a shower of bugs, resembling the Irish potatoe bug. He says it rained hard for about five minutes, until the ground was literally covered. The fall took place at Mr. George W. Tunnels' farm, two miles west of Kincheon, on the Montgomery road. There were other spectators besides Mr. Durbin.

Deathbed Repentance.

An Address

To the People of Chilton County:

The approaching election is one of the greatest importance, inasmuch as it involves the question of the qualification of voters in the future.

As chairman of the campaign committee of the People's Party, I respectfully urge the managers of election to be on hand early on the morning of April 23, 1901, and see to it that clerks who are competent are appointed, and that the election is properly and fairly conducted, and that all the blanks are properly filled and signed, and that the returns are made as the law directs.

Election conducted fairly and as the law directs will satisfy all honest people.

Jemison, April 15, 1901

Editor Banner.—I am sorry that I must appear in print again to defend myself, but some unreasonable liar is circulating the report that I have been sued or won't pay my debts, etc. I defy any man or company of men, to bring up a debt against me. Now, as to being sued in the bankrupt court, this is a bare face lie, and below find a letter written by the lawyers that have brought the suit which explains itself:

Montgomery, Ala., April 9, 1901

Hon. L. H. Reynolds,
Jemison, Ala.

Dear Sir.—Your letter of the 8th inst. was received this morning. In reply we will state that the litigation of the Jemison Mercantile matter does not effect you in the least, civilly or criminally. The case involves only civil questions and the object is to have the assets of the Jemison Mercantile Co. brought back into and administered by the court of bankruptcy. True, you were served with copy of the petition presented before Judge Bruce but that was merely formal, there is absolutely nothing in this case that is in the least discreditable to your character. You are at perfect liberty to use this communication in any manner you desire.

Yours truly,

Gordon & McDonald } Council
& John D. McNeel } in case

Now, I hope this will forever put to rest these liars. And I would say to my friends stand firm, we will carry this county by a larger majority than ever, notwithstanding the money the Democrats will use against me; but one fact has been clearly demonstrated to the politicians of this county that money will not change the results. The Democratic committee had money left last August that they could not find anyone to buy with. Yes, this is the most important election ever held in Alabama—a direct stroke at the liberties of the common people.

Yours truly,

L. H. REYNOLDS.

ATLANTA, GA., Nov. 7, 1899.

Dr. C. J. MOFFETT—Dear Sir: I cannot too strongly recommend your TEETHINA (Teething Powders) to mothers as one of the best medicines they can obtain for their debilitated and sickly infants. I have used it with very satisfactory results the past summer with my child, and while we heretofore lost a child or two from teething under other remedies, our present child, that has taken TEETHINA, is a fine, healthy boy. I am, very respectfully, A. P. Brown, M. D. (Brother of U. S. Senator and Ex-Gov. Joseph E. Brown.)

Longstreet.

Farmers are about done planting corn in this section and some are talking of planting cotton; I guess they have winter seed.

Rev. J. W. Alexander, of Calera, preached an interesting and instructive sermon here last Sunday to a very attentive congregation. Bro. Alexander preached here about three years ago, and we welcome him in our midst again.

Miss Rushia Marlar paid Longstreet a flying visit Sunday.

Messrs. Pattillo and Young attended service at Unity Sunday evening.

Some of the young ladies are very much mortified over some of Sundays happenings. X. Y. Z.

THORSBY, ALA.

Stanton, April 15, 1901

Editor Banner.—Please allow me space in your paper to express a few thoughts. Gentlemen, I have heard both sides of the convention discussed. I just want to say to start with that it is customary when you swap horses with a man you want to see the horse and have his master to recommend him so you can draw an idea of what you are going to get. So it is in the convention. We would like to know what the next one will be before we swap off the old one. Swapping with the modern Democrats is like swapping with the Egyptians—they bear watching. And provided we do swap it will be a good idea to send a man that understands their way of swapping. You claim that the new constitution is principally to disfranchise the negro. Now, how you are going to do it is the question. It can be very easily done by letting the poor white man go with him. Many of the Democratic leaders say it can be done by educational qualification excepting the Confederates and their descendants. Now, gentlemen, where you will find an uneducated negro you will find the same of a white man, and there is just a plenty of white men in Alabama to-day that are not descendants of the Confederates. It is a fact that every state in the Union that has had a convention has disfranchised the white man as well as the negro. Now, fellow citizens, is there any defect in the present constitution that the merchant, the lawyer, the farmer, the shopper, the professional man can't get along with? If so, it has taken you about as long to find it out as it did the Democrats to find out the negro was not competent for self-government or of voting. The proper thing to do with the negro is to colonize him and send him to his African home. He has been a curse ever since he was introduced here. S. R. LETCHER.

Poplar Springs.

Corn and cotton planting is the order of the day in this community now.

Prof. J. N. Goss of Jemison paid a flying visit to friends in this place Saturday.

Severel of our people went to the show Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Patterson visited Salem Sunday.

We are having a fine Sunday-school at Poplar Springs church, about seventy enrolled. We hope it will continue as it has begun; there is much interest shown and we think it will prove a great benefit to the community.

It is reported from good authority that the wedding bells will soon be ringing in this part of the country.

Some of our young folks attended preaching at Concord Sunday evening.

Rev. James Nobles preached at Bethel Sunday to a large congregation.

Success to the Banner and its readers. SAME AS BEFORE.

CLANTON, - - - ALABAMA.

The London Board of Trade Journal warns the British manufacturers that the report of a British commercial agent in the United States, shows that American boots and shoes are capturing markets where British goods ought to have a practical monopoly.

Consul Hayes at Rouen in a report to the state department, says that there is an open field throughout most of France for everything connected with the preparation of cold drinks. Ice-cream freezers, milk shakers, soda-water fountains, and refrigerators would find a ready sale if the people knew of the comfort to be derived from their use. Rouen, a city of over 150,000 people, has no ice factory, though a few people keep ice in their cellars.

England has hundreds of curates who are said to be nearly starving on their scant incomes. The average salary of a minister in our own land of prosperity is only $800—not more than the earnings of the better class of day laborers—and the limit of real usefulness, if not of earning capacity, is hardly 20 years. Preaching and teaching used to be the honorable ambition of American youth, but there is little incentive now, for the prizes at the top are not numerous.

Nearly two years ago the city of Duluth, Minn., municipalized its water and gas works at a cost of $1,250,000. Since then it has added enough to make the plant cost $2,150,000. It has reduced gas rates 40 percent, reduced water rates 50 percent, and has for the first time furnished pure water. The balance sheet just issued shows that the plants have earned all charges and established a surplus. The city now proposes to municipalize its electric light and telephone service.

The latest figures of the state superintendent of public instruction on New York's public schools are interesting. There are 11,931 schoolhouses in the entire state, valued at nearly $82,000,000. The average number of children in daily attendance is 857,000. The teachers employed in the state number 34,848, and the average annual salary of a teacher is $879 in the cities and $322 in the small country towns. The state's payments in salaries to teachers foot up over $19,000,000 a year, and its total expenditures for all educational purposes amount to $33,421,491.

The New York Independent asserts that the first proposition to establish free rural mail delivery came from John Wanamaker. He will be remembered for his sturdy defence of the intellectual rights of farmers long after he is forgotten as a successful merchant. The proposition was met at first with ridicule and astonishment. It had become a settled conviction that the rural districts did not require frequent mails; that the farmer had no need that called for a close association with the business life of the world. He wrote few letters; and he took few papers.

A plan for arbitration has been adopted in New Haven, Conn., which provides for co-operation in the creation of a board of arbitration by the chamber of commerce, the state business men's association, and the labor organizations. It would not be compulsory arbitration, of course, but the belief is that public sentiment would force a resort to arbitration by one party to a controversy if the other party favors that method of settlement. The proposition has received the endorsement of many employers of labor in New Haven, and has been favorably commented on by the wage-earners.

Tuberculosis, according to a statement issued at Ottawa by a conference arranged by the governor general, is accountable directly or indirectly for one-fifth of the deaths in the Dominion of Canada. This is a far heavier toll of mortality than ever was laid by pestilence upon any civilized community in modern times. The "organized methods" for lessening the spread of the disease, which Lord Minto's conference thought should be adopted as a matter of public and private duty, have proved heretofore on examination to be either ineffective or impossible in application. Medical science has done much to control or extirpate diseases due to extraneous conditions and influences; but in the presence of inexorable laws of heredity it is still powerless.

THE NEWS OF THE WEEK.

State Board Increases Assessed Values of Railroad Property.

DECREASE IN THE IRON INDUSTRY.

Fifty of North's Most Distinguished Citizens Will Come South This Month—Huntsville Expects Rural Free Delivery.

Shipments of Iron and Steel.

The shipments of pig iron from the Birmingham district in March of the present year show a decrase of nearly 7,000 tons as compared with the shipments in March 1900, but the the shipments from Alabama and Tennessee, the Sheffield district, coming under the latter classification were about 15,000 tons greater than in the corresponding month last year. The shipments of cast iron pipe have increased greatly.

Rural Mail Delivery.

The regular monthly meeting of the Chamber of Commerce in Huntsville, was held and in his opening speech President Pratt said that several industrial enterprises have representatives there looking for locations. Congressman William Richardson addressed the meeting and said he expected that within the next two weeks the Postal Department will order the rural free delivery service extended in Madison county.

Prominent Party to Visit Tuskegee

Robbert C. Ogden, partner of John Wanamaker, is to bring at his own expense a large and distinguished party of northern people to visit the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute on April 22 and 23. On April 22 the exercises in connection with the dedication of Dorothy Hall will take place, and Rev. E. Winchester Donald, rector of Trinity church, Boston, will deliver the principal adress. On April 23 there will be an industrial exhibition, and one of the speakers on this occasion will be Rev. Charles H. Parkhurst of New York.

Railroads Get Heavy Tax Raise.

The State Board of Assessment has completed its work, and the result shows a very material increase in the assessed value of railroad property in Alabama as compared with last year. The total assessed value of railroads is shown to be $50,742,457.23, an increase over the assessment for 1900 of $2,564,118.40. There seems to have been a general tendency in the board to increase assessments all along the line, the Southern and Alabama Great Southern railways coming in for the greatest increase. These lines are increased by more than $1,000,000. The Louisville and Nashville and the Central of Georgia are largely increased, but this is because of new lines built by those roads during the year.

Drank Wood Alcohol in Coffee.

A city prisoner died in Anniston under very strange circumstances. George A. Dane, white, was working out a sentence on the streets of the city. His wife brought his breakfast to him including a bottle of liquid supposed to have been coffee, but which it afterwards transpired, was coffee mixed with wood alcohol. The man drank it and went to work. Later he became very ill and was taken to his home, corner of Brown and Fourteenth streets, where he died. His wife claims she made the coffee in a skillet over a fire made with green wood, and thought possibly something may have been in the skillet that made her husband sick. A great deal of mystery surrounds the strange case and an investigation of the matter is now being made by the police.

Women Remove Hats.

Rev. Sam P. Jones is in Anniston and in the Auditorium has begun a big revival meeting that is to continue for ten days. Fully 2,300 people gathered in the large building to hear the noted evangelist, and hundreds stood in the aisles, while many were turned away at his first service. The first thing Sam P. Jones did was to make the women present take off their hats, and at the same time saying: "You can't come here and keep on those great big things and bother those sitting back of you. If you don't like it you can stay away."

Big Land Company.

Application was made this week to incorporate the Hand Land Company, in Escambia county. The capitol stock of the corporation is to be $100,000, the principal place of business at Bayminette and the company will do a general business in constructing, operating, devloping agricultural and manufacturing enterprises, the settlement of colonies and a general real estate business.

Teachers' Review School.

La Fayett College, now on a most perfect basis as a training college for teachers, will hold a summer school of pedagogy and review term for six weeks, begining on May 7th and, in view of the state board examination, July 1st, will offer provisions for instruction and study in all the branches of examination for third, second and first grade, or state life certificates. A large and able faculty of professors and instructors have been provided and the college and model school classes and departments being in progress, offer best opportunity for practical pedagogy, prepartory to real school work. Teachers desiring to secure railroad rates, one and one-third fare round trip, should get a certificate of the railroad agent from whom they purchase tickets. Boarding and all other expenses but $8 to $11 per month. Write the president, Dr. E. R. Eldridge, for further information. Care of LaFayette College, Alabama.

Girl Seriously Burned.

While playing in the yard, the little 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Sitason of South Decatur was seriously burned, and the attending physicians say her recovery is doubtful. Some trash was being burned in the yard. The little girl was playing around the fire, and her clothing caught on fire, spreading all over her body before it could be extinguished. The most serious burns are on her hips and chest. In attempting to extinguish the fire on the little girl's clothing, Mr. Sitason's sister-in-law, Mrs. Fred Schiltzer, was also seriously burned about the hands and arms

Reorganizing Woodstock Works.

The Woodstock Iron Works has just issued circular letters inviting all who desire to take stock in the company under a reorganzation of the concern that will take place in New York in a few weeks. Also inviting those who desire to make propositions to the company in regard to furnishing a working capitol to operate the furnace of the concern situated in Anniston. It is thought that the Woodstock people will soon make arrangements to put in blast the two iron making plants, which for several years have remained idle.

Extension of the Mobile and Ohio

It is learned through apparently reliable sources that the Tidewater branch of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, extending from Tuscaloosa to Tidewater, will be continued on to Brookwood, passing through Searless, the opening of the Central Iron and Coal Company's mines. The surveying party has been in the field for some time past. The building of this branch is necessary to the location of the furnace of the Central Iron and Coal Company in Tuscaloosa.

Craven Plant Leased.

The Gurley Handle Company has secured a five-year lease on the Ninninger Craven plant at Gurley, and will increase its capacity to a six-lathe mill. The copmany is building a large annex to the factory, and will have a largely increased capacity.

Spoke at Athens.

One of the ablest speeches that has been made in Athens during the constitutional canvass was amde by Hon. Tennent Lomax, of Montgomery, to a large and enthusiastic crowd at the court house.

Shingle and Lath Plant.

The Brewton Shingle and Lath Company is a new firm at Brewton. They are erecting a plant just north of the mill of Lovelace Bros., and will be ready as soon as the machinery arrives and is put in place to fill orders.

M. D. Mayer Dead.

Mr. M. Benjamin Mayer, managing editor of the Age-Herald, died Sunday morning after a severe attack of pneumonia. Mr. Mayer was afflicted with a cold on Friday April 5, and at 8 o'clock that evening went to his room where he has suffered intensely for eight days. The fearful malady spread throughout his system and though every device known to medical science was resorted to he could not be saved, and passed away at 2:40 o'clock Sunday morning. Mr. Mayer was 28 years of age and has for several years been quite prominent in journalistic circles.

Trade Mark Decision.

The United States Court of Appeals, in handing out a decision in the case of Hubert Brennen and Edward J. Bite against the Emery, Bird and Thayer Dry Goods Company, of Kansas City, appealed from the United States Circuit Court of the Western District of Missouri, decided that to be valid a trade mark must not be descriptive of the article to which the words or symbols are applied.

LATEST STATE TOPICS.

Laying the Mains.

The Birmingham Water Works Company is laying mains all over the city of Ensley for the new water works system which this company will install under a contract made with the city several months ago. Large forces of workmen are laying the principal mains along Nineteenth and Seventeenth streets at the intersection of the car line. The water which will be supplied by the new system will be the same as that used by the city of Birmingham and the rates will be reasonable.

Shot His Wife.

A negro shot and killed his wife at the Fossill mines, south of Powderly, about seven or eight miles from Birmingham. It seems that the woman was about to move her things from the house in which they had been living when he went up to her and deliberately, it is reported, riddled her with bullets. The negro then went to the dummy line and rode to a station two or three miles away, when he left the train, and has not been seen since.

Stabbed to Death.

Clarence McClain, an employee of the Birmingham rolling mill, was stabbed to death Saturday night near Benett's saloon on rolling mill hill, in the southwestern part of the city by Edward Merrick, another employee of the mill and his next door neighbor. The quarrel leading up to the fatal stabbing affray was a very trivial affair and started in the saloon. The bartender of the place separated the men, but it seems they got together again and across the street where the stabbing occurred.

Russellville Postoffice.

A warm fight is on between D. V. Sevier, Jr., and Hon. John T. Ezell as to who will be postmaster of Russellville, now a presidential office with an $1,100 salary and $200 allowance for clerk hire attached. Both gentlemen in the contest are republican leaders in the county. Mr. Ezell having been a delegate to the last two National Republican Convention. Mr. Sevier was apointed by President McKinley shortly after the latter's first inauguration.

Illicit stills.

Deputy Collector T. J. Kennamer reports the seizure and destruction of a fifteen gallon copper, still four miles south of Enterprise, Ala., said to belong to W. H. Ielner and J. J. Rogers. Also the destruction of a sixteen gallon still with other apparatus near Eta, in Coffee county, said to belong to S. Chancellor and E. Gilbert, both of whom were arrested. Deputy Collcetor W. C. Hanlin reports the seizure and destruction of 400 gallons of beer four miles southwest of Fort Payne, said to belong to Jake Rogers.

Boys Engage in a Fight.

The thirteen-year-old son of W. Stines, a well-to-do farmer, who lives a short distance from Riverside, became involved in a difficulty with a negro boy by the name of Moore. Blows passed and the Stines boy threw a rock at Moore, striking him in the forehead and fracturing his skull. The doctor thinks he will die.

New Bank Building.

The Bank of Scottsobro has let the contract for their new brick building to Messrs. Sublett and Matthews. The contractors are to have the building completed by the first of August. The work of making the brick and erecting the building will be done by home people, thus keeping the money paid at home.

Bloody Jacket.

A boy's jacket and four handkerchiefs have been found at the switch of the Southern railway at Warner, and there is suspicion of foul play. The jacket is matted with blood, and the handkerchiefs were also saturated. The jacket would fit a boy of about 13 years. No one is missing from the camp, and the whole affair is a mystery.

Stove Foundry Enlarges.

The Sheffield Stove Foundery Company is grading the ground on which to build another addition to the foundry. The capacity and force will be doubled and six new patterns of stoves will be manufactured.

Rushton Elected.

Ray Rushton was elected Alderman in Montgomery, third ward, over Burto H. Johnson by a vote of two to one. In the general primary a week ago Rushton and Johnson tied, each receiving 222 votes. In the run off Monday, Rushton received 229 and Johnson 118.

MAKING WILD ASSERTIONS.

Great Outcry Being Raised Against American Policy in Cuba.

A dispatch from the port of Spain, Trinadad, says: "Efforts are being made by the official press of Venezuela to create apprehension throughout Latin America that the United States is seeking to control the new world. A great outcry is being raised over the American policy in Cuba, which is cited as evcidence of far-reaching ambitions on the part of the United States. The most influential Caracas journal issued in mouring its edition announcing the capture of Aguinaldo. The Filipino leader was ranked among the greatest heroes of history and the American Policy in the Philippines bitterly assailed. News from Barceiona, Venezuela, is that the Venezuelan government definitely refused to make preparation in the case of the American consul, Mr. Baize, who was twice imprisoned, it is alleged, without cause and from whom large sums of money were extorted."

CHICAGO'S BOOKS IN BAD SHAPE.

Many Books of Record Have Been Destroyed.

Some time ago Haskins & Sells, public accountants, were engaged by the Merchants' Club of Chicago to make an examination of the acounting methods of the city of Chicago. There were issued by the firm a letter addressed to the Merchants' Club, which says in part that the accountants found the accounts of the city in a deplorable condition, due mainly to the survival of methods of control and record utterly inadequate to the requirments of one of the great cities of the modern world. The letter says that taxes to the amount of five hundred thousand dollars a year for the past decade have been released as loss and deficiency upon the mere word of the tax gatherers; that clerical errors such as posting hundreds of thousands of dollars, have remained uncorrected, and that books of record have been destroyed.

KIDNAPPER WILL TALK.

Henderson, in Dallas, Tex., Will Tell of Cudahy Affair.

Geo. W. Shields, county attorney of Dallas county, Nerbaska, of which Omaha is the county seat, arrived in Dallas from Omaha, and called on H. C. Henderson at the county jail in company with Sheriff Johnson. Henderson is the man who says he is guilty of the kidnapping of young Edward A. Cudahy in Omaha on the night of December 18, 1900. It is said that Henderson told Sheilds that he is the party wanted for the crime, but declined to go more into dtails until he had held a consultation with his attorneys. This consultation was held, and after it was over Henderson said to the sheriff that he was willing to tell the Nebraska attorney all he knew about the case.

Troops for Manila.

A cablegram has been received at the War Department announcing that the transports Indiana and Summer would leave Manila for Taku the last of this month or the first of next, to take the troops in China to Manila.

Eulogy for Canada.

General Sir Redvers Buller speaking at Plymouth England eulogized the assistance which Canada and Australia had rendered Great Britain in forming in South Africa a third English-speaking nation. "New nations are springing up around us," he said, "and must be allowed to do what is proper for themselves. Reasonable concessions must be granted to them. We must not repeat the error which lost us America. That first great child of the Empire was lost because a fine, growing, lusty boy was not given enough rope and was not allowed to think differently in small matters from his parents."

Big Rail Contract.

Private cable advices bring the news that the Glasgow, Scotland, municipal committee had recommended the awarding of a big contract to an American Steel Company for supplying 3,450 tons of rails and fish plates for the municipal street railway of Glasgow. The price for the rails will be $32 a ton and the fish plates $34 a ton.

[illegible], also recently promoted, is assigned to the Tenth Infantry.

The well known officers of the German military service, Capt. Kapherer of the Hussars, and Count Armin of the guard and corps, will arrive in Washington shortly and will be informally received with the German ambassador. Though not occupying the position of military attache, Captain Kapherer is the oldest officer of that rank in the famous guard of Hussars. He served at Potsdam and commanded the Emperor when he was Crown Prince.

The various interviews ascribed to Senator Loomis at San Juan have attracted much attention and the minister will probably be invited to explain some of his utterances if he is not able to make a broad denial of the accuracy of the interviews. Reflections upon the personal character of the President of Venezuela are not regarded as being according to official etiquette, and it is earnestly hoped that the minister will be able to repudiate these. Otherwise it will be manifestly impossible for his return to Venezuela even in the event that issues which led to his recall are more satisfactorily composed.

The prisoners pleaded not guilty, although admitting the killing, claiming their victims were "witches."

Senator Foraker of Ohio, chairman of the committee which deals with Porto Rican affairs, was in Washington this week and discussed conditions in Porto Rico from information received by him. He has many letters from the island and has been in constant correspondence with prominet men of Porto Rico, and says his information is contrary to that presented by the delegations which recently have visited the United States. The island, he says, is in a more prosperous condition than it has been for years, and has a better outlook than it has had in two hundred years. There is no part of the world where taxes are as light as they are in Porto Rico.

The legal proceedings to prevent the shipment of the mules purchased in this country to South Africa was an important matter discused by the cabinet this week, and the Attorney General was directed to make an investigation of the question and report to the cabinet. The views expressed were that where neutrality proceedings are inaugurated in the United States courts they should be brought in the name of the United States, an alleged violation of neutrality being a question affecting nations, not individuals. The mover of the proceedings in the New Orleans case is a man claiming to be a resident of South Africa, who contends that his interests are placed in jeopardy.

Wants to Return Saber.

An old Confederate cavalry saber, a relic of the civil war, which was taken from General Forrest's chief of staff at the battle of Selma, Ala., by J. H. Hildreth, of the Chicago Board of Trade Battery, is to be returned to the original owner if alive, or his family if they can be found alive, at the Confederate reunion at Memphis, Tenn., this summer. The sword is carefully packed away at the residence of Mr. Hildreth and never has left his possession since it came into his hands forty years ago.

Want Italian Discharged.

Employes of the Utica Cabinet Company have demanded the discharge of an Italian foreman. The company announced that it could not settle personal troubles between employes and stated the factory, which was closed, would be reopened Monday for all who wish to return to work. The men's committee stated they would not go back. They have a dislike for foreign labor. About 100 men are epmloyed and wages and hours are entirely satisfactory.

Shop Men Strike.

The employes of the Central railroad of New Jersey in the Ashley car shops struck because Superintendent Thomas refused to reinstate thirty discharged men. About two weeks ago thirty men employed in the car shops were suspended. The officials of the company claimed work was slack in the shops and it was necessary to reduce the force. The men, however, claimed they were laid off because they were prominent in the labor union.

Plague Prevails.

Robert M. McWade, United States Consul at Canton, China, reports that 16,000 deaths from the plague have occurred there during the past six weeks, and that there are thirteen cases of smallpox on board the United States Monitor Monterey. Only one death has resulted on the Monterey, and the other cases of smallpox are progressing favorably.

Pope Growing Much Alarmed.

The Pope in his allocution says dangerous events had come to pass and were becoming more serious and spreading from one part of Europe to another. Several states widely separated but united by an identical desire had entered into open war against religion. The campaign was directed against the religious congregations in order to destroy them gradually. Neither common law nor equity, nor the deserts of the congregations have prevailed to prevent their destruction. The desire was also manifested to prevent the youth from being educated by the congregations of whom many pupils had become illustrious.

Claims Against China.

The latest advices to the State Department from Mr. Rockhill contain the further details respecting the amount of the indemnities claimed from China by the powers. It appears that these claims have been much exaggerated in some statements, though the sum total is still far in excess of the amount of money it is believed that China can raise. It is the belief of the State Department that the total claims should not be allowed to exceed $150,000,000 or $200,000,000.

Mexico's Interests.

The Times says: "It is reported among Wall Srteet men that the visit of J. P. Morgan to Europe has something to do with the things of Mexico. It is even suggested that President Diaz has commissioned the New York financiers to sound powerful foreign interests upon plans that may lead to the establishment of a new Mexican government financial policy, even a movement along conservative lines towards the establishment of the gold standard."

French Captured.

It is said that a private telegram has been received to the effect that General French with 500 British troops has been captured by the Boers while his force was enveloped in a mist on the hills. No confirmation of the report can be obtained. The war office knows nothing about the rumored capture of General French and entirely discredits the report.

BLOWER WORKS BURNED.

Seven Hundred Men Idle—Loss Estimated at $330,000.

A Boston dispatch says: The main building of the extensive blower works of the B. F. Sturtevant Company, in the Jamaica Plain district, was burned early Sunday morning, causing a loss of $350,000, fully insured. The concern manufactured various kinds of machinery and electrical goods as well as blowers. All patterns and plans were destroyed. Over 700 men are temporarily thrown out of employment.

BAD FUTURE FOR NEGRO.

Relations Between White and Black Races Discussed in Meeting.

The annual convention of the American Academy of Political and Social Science adjourned at Philadelphia Saturday night. The closing day's sessions were devoted to consideration of the race problem of the south and our newly acquired West Indian possessions. President George T. Winston, of the North Carolina college of agriculture, and Professor W. E. Burghardt Dubois, of the Atlanta university, discussed the negro question from opposite points of view at the afternoon session. At night Senator Platt, of Connecticut, and Charles M. Pepper spoke on the Cuban and Porto Rican phase of the race question.

In his address, Mr. Winston said in part: "The two races are drifting apart. They were closer together in slavery than they have been since. Old-time sympathies, friendships and affections created by two centuries of slavery are rapidly passing away. A single generation of freedom has produced indifference, mistrust and prejudices. Unless a change is made the coming generation will be separated by active hatred and hostility. The condition of the negro is indeed pitiful, and his prospects for the future are dark and gloomy. There is no solution for the problem, unless it is dealt with from the standpoint of reason and experience without prejudice or fanaticism."

CUBANS RELENT.

Reconsider Action in Turning Down Platt Amendment.

A special from Havanna says: At Saturday's secret session of the constitutional convention Senor Nunez asked that the convention either reject or accept the Platt amendment as the resolution adopted Friday was not a formal declaration and was misleading. The conservatives considered the resolution practically rejected the amendment, while the radicals and the radical press maintained that it did not, and Senor Nunez therefore asked that a yea and nay vote be taken. This was opposed by the radicals, who have always avoided taking a decided stand.

The conservatives were pleased at the point, and as a split was threatened among the radicals, a compromise was offered and agreed to by the terms of which a resolution was adopted that the convention should not express itself either for or against the amendment and that a commission be sent to Washington to reach the best possible agreement with the president. This commission will not be authorized to settle definitely the question of the relations between the United States and Cuba, but will report back to the convention.

OLD SOLDIERS ANGERED.

Governor Longino, of Mississippi, is Scored For Slurring Remarks.

Considerable indignation is being expressed by confederate veterans and members of the Daughters of the Confederacy, at Jacksonville, Miss., over a remark made by Governor Longino when the petition asking that the corner stone of the new statehouse be laid on the birthday of Jefferson Davis was in consideration.

The remark in question was made to one of the prominent ex-confederates who was deeply interested in the selection of June 3d as the date for the ceremony, and, according to his statement, when the petition was presented Governor Longino is reported to have said:

"I can't see what Jefferson Davis has to do with this statehouse, and I'm getting tired of this ex-conferate rot, anyhy."

WANTS MOB PROSECUTED.

Father of Cremated Negro Asks Authorities to take action.

A special from Leavenworth, Kan., says: Alfred Alexander, father of Frederick Alexander, the negro who was burned at the stake for the alleged assault and murder of Miss Carrie Forbes and for the assault of Miss Roth, has filed information with the county attorney against a number of those participating in the burning and asks for a warrant for their arrest upon the charge of murder.

Alexander will ask for warrants for William Forbes, whom he accuses of setting fire to his son, one of the city officials and a policeman, who, he charges, assisted in piling the fuel around the stake and aided in the burning.

"NO FRAUD," SAYS SMITH.

The Postmaster General Investigates Philippine Postal Affairs.

D. W. Vaille, formerly director general of posts in the Philippines, and now an assistant superintendent of the railway mail service, was in Washington Friday, in connection with the statement in the report from Auditor Lawshe, at Manila, that "the accounts of the postal service were very unsatisfactory." Mr. Vaille established the service in the Philippines and remained there until several months ago.

Fifteen hundred Hebrews held a meeting in Milwaukee Sunday in the interest of the Zionistic movement, and demonstrated approval of the plan which it is hoped will restore the ancient prestige of the Jews as a nation.

FREAKS OF NATURE.

ANIMALS THAT BLOOM AND PLANTS THAT EAT MEAT.

Species in Each Kingdom That Are a Law Unto Themselves—The Sea Cucumber Group Spread Their Fatal Beauties for Victims—"North Carolina Fly-catcher."

In general, animals move about to seek food, while plants are fixed to one spot and get their nourishment from the earth in which their roots are imbedded and the air that surrounds their leaves, but there are species in each "kingdom" that do not follow the rule. Botanists know of plants that have neither roots nor leaves, of others that have one but not the other, and of others still that are undoubtedly vegetable, yet move about as freely as animals would do. On the other hand there are animals that never leave the spot on which they first took up their habitation, and that seem to trust to luck for food. The oyster and clam have thus lost the power of locomotion, writes Dr. Charles Minor Blackford, Jr., in the Scientific American. There are many that have been separated from the plants only by the researches of recent years. Sponges, corals, sea anemones and the whole "sea cucumber" group were long believed to be vegetable, and many blue water sailers think so to this day. There are animals that seem to blossom as freely as do flowering plants.

The sea anemone is one of the commonest of these. It is found clinging to rocks in sheltered places along shore in practically every part of the world, for it is not confined to any special region. It grows only in comparatively shallow water, that is in depths of less than 500 fathoms, although there is one species that lives in the open sea, but wherever found it is essentially the same in structure. It is a tough, leathery tube, spread out below into a "base", that fastens it to a rock or other foundation, and expanding above into the flower like "disk" with the mouth in the centre. All around the opening of the mouth are curling tentacles, not unlike the petals of modern chrysanthemum. Some varieties are almost or entirely colorless, while in some others the tentacles are gorgeously tinted and rival the flowers of the field; but in all lurks death in a certain and horrible form. Watch some little creature touch the curving arms and they will be seen to curl inward and wrap the intruder in their folds as they push it toward the mouth. The inner sides of the tentacles are covered by poison glands that sting the prey to insensibility or death and so stop the struggles that might prove disastrous to the anemone. When the mouth is reached the captive is pushed into the hollow interior, and the anemone shuts up into a reddish brown ball until its meal is digested, when it spreads its fatal beauties for another victim.

Another great family of flowering animals is that including the "sea cucumbers." These animals have long, flattened bodies of a dark color that ranges from brown to reddish purple, and their most active movement is a slow creeping along the bottom. At one end is the mouth, surrounded by the petal like tentacles, that push into it the mud and sand on which the organism lives. The mud of the bottom is filled with tiny beings that really furnish the food, but it appears to subsist on the inorganic mud itself. The most curious thing about the "cucumber" is that it takes lodgers in a way. It has a large cavity within its body that is filled with water, and into this cavity a little fish called the fierasfer works its way, and then lives within the helpless host. It is not a parasite, for it leaves its lodging to seek food, but it merely lodges in the holothurian for shelter, as the power of stinging that sea cucumbers possess to a high degree renders them fairly safe from molestation. The little lodgers do not seem to do any harm to their landlords, except when several take quarters in the same one, and then they may inflict damage by overcrowding.

The whole class of coral-forming animals resemble plants so closely as to deceive all but skilled observers. Few sights in nature are more beautiful than the "coral gardens" in the West Indies, where the gorgeously colored vegetation is almost entirely animal in character. The sea bottom near Nassau is formed of white coral sand and the debris of broken down shells, and covering this is water of such transparency that the boat seems to float in air. A plate of glass is let into the floor of the boat and the reflection of the sunlight from the white sand below illuminates the scene so that its smallest detail is visible. The sheet of glittering white sand is broken by dark masses of coral rock from which stream broad sheets of "fan coral," that naturalists call gorgonias, brilliant in vivid reds, yellows and purples. The darker masses of rock are spangled with anemones that equal the tints of a tropical forest, while the waving plumes of the sea feathers and the fantastic shapes of the glass sponges add the charm of variety of form. Clumps of bright hued sea weeds that bear little resemblance to the dirty, faded green ones common on our coasts, are the only representatives of real vegetation that greet the eye. All the rest is animal, but the eye is deceived by a mimicry of plant life so perfect as to make the efforts of our human players crude indeed. The vivid stars of richest crimson that look like blooms on the branches of the coral are really the ends of boring annelids, worms that cut into the stony mass and ensconce themselves in the trunks of growing coral.

However anomalous the idea of flowering animals may appear, it is not more so than is that of plants that set traps and devour the prey taken by them. Flesh-eating plants seem to violate the rules of nature, yet the violation is apparent rather than real, for many plants absorb animal matter as part of their food. In general this is taken in only after decomposition has rendered the tissues soluble, but there are some blood thirsty plants that kill and eat small animals as ruthlessly as do beasts of prey.

Among these the little sun-dew is most widely known for its fame spread over the world by the work of Darwin, who gave an elaborate description of it in his "Insectivorous Plants." The leaves of the sun-dew are studded with little projections on whose summits are drops of a clear, sticky liquid that glisten in the sun, as does dew, and from this the name is derived. The liquid attracts insects, either by its appearance or its odor, but when the unfortunate visitor seeks to sip the tempting draught, the leaf begins to coil inward and form a cup from which escape is impossible. The liquor runs down into the hollow and collects into a pool, in which the insect is drowned before being digested.

In the neighborhood of Wilmington there grows the "North Carolina fly catcher," a plant that Linnaeus called "the miracle of nature." This plant has leaves divided into two lobes that sit at a little less than a right angle to one another and are fringed with tiny spikes. The upper side of each lobe is covered with minute glands that secrete a purple fluid and also has a number of sensitive filaments arranged in a triangle. If an insect touch these filaments the lobes shut up like the leaves of a book, the two parts turning on the midrib as a hinge, and the intruder is captured. If it be very small it can escape through the spaces between the interlocking spikes, but otherwise the leaf forms itself into a temporary stomach in which digestion proceeds. The glands that were dry before begin to secrete an acid liquid of a purple color, containing an enzyme like pepsin, in which the soft parts of the victim are disintegrated, and as this proceeds the pressure is increased until all of the digestible matter is absorbed, when the leaf gradually opens and the dry husk is extruded. The leaf will close on a bit of glass or stone as readily as on a fly, but the fraud is quickly discovered, and the indigestible matter rejected. The leaf is then ready to close again, even before it is fully opened, whereas, when digesting food material it stays closed for several days and is very sluggish in shutting again. The most vigorous leaves seem to be able to digest only two or three times in a lifetime, and the botanist Lindsay fed some specimens with such quantities of meat that they died from indigestion.

In Portugal there is a plant that is so efficient a fly catcher that the country people hang up branches of it for this purpose. It secretes a gummy, sticky fluid that entangles insects and kills them.

The common bladderwort is a foe to many small animals. It captures great numbers of waterbugs, and has been known to catch and kill small fishes. From time to time the attention of fish culturists is called to this plant as a foe, but it is not regarded as a serious one.

Great Age of the Mountain Red Cedars.

Of all the hardy creatures of the vegetable kingdom the red cedar is perhaps the most enduring, for it dwells and thrives for centuries where hardly any other form of vegetation exists. On the tops of granite mountains, 10,000 feet high it frequently makes its resting place, and there, in the midst of snow beneath and sunshine above and flimsy air about, it grows slowly and strongly, planting its tough roots in the cracks between rocks. With hardly a bit of soil to feed upon, the red cedar of the higher altitudes lives to an age of 2000 years of hardy strength, some of the larger trees reaching a diameter of nearly 10 feet. These giant trees that were old before the beginning of the Christian era still flourish in the mountain ranges of the Pacific coast and show no signs of decay. Many of them have been overturned through the crumbling away of the mountainside or by the fierce power of the avalanche, but still they live, clinging to the rocks and putting forth fresh leaves and sending out new branches, pointing upward. The age of these patriarchs of the wilderness is estimated by counting the rings which show annual increase in diameter, each circle representing a year.

Boys Learning Laundry Work.

The Church Army in England, which has more than 100 homes for men, women and children whom it is trying to save from lives of crime, has settled the problem of employment for some of the boys by establishing a laundry in one of the boys' homes and teaching the inmates to wash and iron. The boys were at first inclined to resent the idea of doing girls' work, but they have gradually become interested and find it more to their liking than wood sawing and chopping. As yet they have done no fine or women's work, but are doing the coarser pieces better than the average laundress. Two or three of the boys have risen from the ranks and become assistant superintendents, and they have aspired to fine work and even lace curtains.

An Ugly Spider.

There is a spider in the London zoo, obtained from somewhere in the Soudan, that is the fiercest beast of his kind that ever spread out his legs in a menagerie. The ordinary spider has only four legs on a side. This creature has five and those who have seen him find his counterpart in the terrible "devilfish" described by Victor Hugo in "Toilers of the Sea." The scientific name of the terror is Galeodes.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

FOR DELEGATE FROM CHILTON COUNTY:

DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE:

H. W. CAFFEY.

POPULIST NOMINEE:

L. H. REYNOLDS.

EIGHTY-TWO names will be found on the official ballot.

ON Tuesday next every man should go and vote. That is a plain statement and no man can gainsay it. It is a busy time, and farmers can ill afford to lose valuable time to attend an unnecessary election. But this is an election forced upon them, and is of such vast importance that nothing should keep a man at home. Go and vote! If you think a constitutional convention is for your benefit, vote in favor of it, and if you believe it will do you no good vote against it. Vote for any candidate you wish, or vote for none at all, but in any case go to the polls and vote either for or against the convention, and we believe Chilton county will vote "No Convention" by a large majority.

Chilton county parties are anxious to join hands with us and work for a new county with Montevallo for a county seat.—Montevallo Sentinel.

THE Sentinel appears to be very anxious to make its town the seat of a new county, and there may possibly be some "Chilton county parties" who are anxious to aid it. Why they should be anxious is a mystery. Are they aching to get out of the lowest taxed county in Alabama? Are they desirous to get out of a county that does not owe a cent, and go into a new county which will have to raise money to build a new court house, and whose small population will have to tax themselves to pay all the county officials? They may want to do these things, but we are inclined to think it is all in the imagination of our friend the Sentinel, although "The Notch" seems to be tarred with the same brush and is "anxious" to make Maplesville another county seat. Just think of it—five county seats all in a bunch: Clanton, Maplesville, Montevallo, Calera and Columbiana. Gee whiz! Why not add Jumbo?

At a recent meeting of the General Executive Committee of the Confederate reunion at Memphis it was decided to order at once ten thousand cots as a first installment to meet the demand for them on the part of householders in Memphis who are anxious to commence the fitting out of their rooms before the rush begins. Already quarters have been arranged for nearly all of the people who, it is estimated, will come to the Reunion, and the work of that committee is steady going forward. In the Quartermaster-General's department the offers to donate provisions, already mentioned in previous letter, are continuing to pour in. All of these offers are being accepted, for it is a hungry business to go to a Reunion and mix in the whirl of excitement and pleasure in a three days' stretch.

The immense Reunion building on the bluff is progressing satisfactorily and will be finished in ample time for the purpose for which it is dedicated. The building has been christened "Confederate Hall," and will be the largest and handsomest structure ever erected for a similar purpose. In general the work of accommodating and entertaining the crowds is now approaching completion, although there is still of course much to be accomplished. The task of meeting the visitors, directing them to their quarters, and supplying them with all necessary information, is now the problem before the Information Committee, and that problem seems to have been solved.

Holds Up A Congressman.

"At the end of the last campaign," writes Champ Clark, Missouri's brilliant Congressman, "from overwork, nervous tension, loss of sleep and constant speaking I had about utterly collapsed. It seemed that all the organs in my body were out of order, but three bottles of Electric Bitters made me all right. It's the best all-round medicine ever sold over a druggist's counter." Over worked, run-down men and weak, sickly women gain splendid health and vitality from Electric Bitters. Try them. Only 50c. Guaranteed by Clanton Drug Co

Sheriff's Sale.

By virtue of an execution issued out of the Circuit Court of Chilton county, and State of Alabama, and to me directed, whereby I am commanded to make the amount of a certain judgment recently obtained against W. T. Smith and K. W. Smith, out of the goods, chattels, lands and tenements of the said W. T. Smith and K. W. Smith I have levied on the following property, to wit:

N ½ of the ne ¼ less four acres in the northeast corner thereof, and the n ½ of the nw ¼ section 25, and the n ½ of the ne ¼ section 26; all in township 22, range 14 east, in Chilton county, Alabama.

Therefore, according to said command, I shall expose for sale, at public auction, all the right, title and interest of the above named W. T. Smith and K. W. Smith in and to the above described property, on during the legal hours of sale, at the Court House door in Clanton, Alabama.

MONDAY, MAY 6th, 1901,

Dated at Clanton, Ala., this 3d day of April, 1901.

M. A. KILLGORE, Sheriff.

Sells-Gray's circus last Saturday at Clanton was a decided success. There was a large crowd in town and all declared that the street parade and the entire performance was far above the shows we have previously had here.

Hon. L. H. Reynolds passed through town Tuesday on his way to the speaking at Verbena.

Co. F. B. Baldwin was in town Monday.

Mr. Moody, the contractor for the new brick stores, was in town Monday, arranging to commence work next week.

Dr. J. B. Adams arrived home last Saturday morning, having stood the journey pretty well, we are glad to say.

Mr. N. A. Logan went to Birmingham Monday.

Mr. L. A. Dudley left Tuesday to accept a position as warden at Dolive.

Mr. Charlie Gulledge, of Verbena, was in town Saturday.

Why don't you dress that wound with Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic instead of that old greasy salve or ointment? It will prevent or remove inflammation and soreness and heal it much quicker and is so much cleaner and more pleasant. Only 50 cts. a bottle by druggists.

The Ladies Aid of the M. E. Church, have finished their new quilt, and turned it over to the Parsonage.

Miss Ada Aldridge donates a nice quilt to the Parsonage, for which the ladies return many thanks.

The Ladies Aid of the M. E. Church will have a Spelling Bee, at the Academy, admission 10 cts. Begins at 8 o'clock. Everybody invited. Friday evening April 19.

Mrs. C. B. McNeil of Montgomery is visiting friends in Clanton.

Mrs. J. M. Potts and Miss Emma Potts and little Genuie Eugene Evers visited Birmingham Monday.

Miss Katie Hill of Strasburg visited Clanton Saturday.

Miss Lonie Deshazo of Mulberry was a visitor here Saturday.

Miss Nora Rollins of Coopers spent Saturday here.

Mr. R. W. Kendrick of Pletchers was in town Saturday.

Mr. J. J. Grant of Verbena was one of our welcome visitors Saturday.

Mr. M. L. Bates of Waddy gave us a pleasant call Saturday.

Mr. L. Moore of Coopers smiled upon us on Saturday.

Mr. J. G. Smitherman of Maplesville was in town Saturday.

Mr. W. D. Lawrence of Maplesville was a visitor here Saturday.

Mr. W. Beasden of Maplesville was over Saturday on business.

"What's the matter" with giving your horse or mule a dose of Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic when he has colic? It will cure him and that's what you want. For sale by druggists and dealers.

Mrs. W. M. Wood visited Jemison Tuesday.

Miss Ada Askins of Coopers was in town Monday.

Mrs. Touro and Miss Damsky visited Birmingham Monday.

Mrs. W. H. Fosnee is visiting Selma this week.

Mrs. G. L. Phillips is now offering Ladies Hats at reduced prices. Next door to Abe Kauter.

Marriage licenses have been issued this week by the Probate Judge to the following persons.

An Amateur Savant Fooled.

The stories are common enough fire engines being turned out to quench an aurora, and, on the other hand, it has not seldom happened that a very mundane conflagration has passed muster for a "celestial display."

In the memoirs of Baron Stockmar an amusing sheet-to is related of one Herr von Radowitz, who was given to making the most of easily picked up information. A friend of the baron's went to an evening party near Frankfort, where he expected to meet Herr von Radowitz. On his way he saw a barn burning, stopped his carriage, assisted the people and waited till the flames were nearly extinguished. When he arrived at his friend's house, he found Herr von Radowitz, who had previously taken the party to the top of the building to see an aurora, dilating on terrestrial magnetism, electricity, etc. Radowitz asked Stockmar's friend, "Have you seen the beautiful aurora borealis?"

He replied: "Certainly. I was there myself. It will soon be over." An explanation followed as to the barn on fire. Radowitz was silent some ten minutes, then he took up his hat and quietly disappeared.—Knowledge.

Men Who Handle Millions.

The government is more trustful of the employees in its financial center than is any private corporation. In the United States treasury the whole output of the nation's currency is handled by men who are under neither surveillance nor bond. The paying teller handles $40,000,000 or $50,000,000 a year. The exchange clerk has every day $400,000 in change at hand. The money in charge of the keeper of the cash-room runs from $170,000,000 upward, and the chief of the issue division handles millions every day. Any of these men could get away with enormous amounts of money and be reasonably secure against detection for a considerable length of time. Nevertheless, peculations from the treasury have been few and small in amount during its history. There is an axiom in the department which runs as follows:

"Wherever money is handled there is a point at which the honesty of the individual must be the main reliance."

And so the treasury dispenses with the services of spotters. However, private business interests involving the handling of large sums of money are not likely to follow this example. Spotters may be an evil, but they are a necessity in the present phase of human development, and until some psychological chemist devises a preparation to make men honest the type is likely to persist.—S. H. Adams in Ainslee's.

The Athenian of Today.

The Athenians dine late the year round and, whenever the weather will permit, in the open air. As the heated season advances the dinner hour is set later and later until in August 9:30 or 10 becomes the common thing. Fancy going to the theater after that! Yet the open air performances are liberally patronized, and they do not begin, of course, until after dinner. The legend "Curtain rises promptly at 9" is a snare and a delusion, as many a foreigner has found, to his extreme annoyance.

The out of door dining and the sky roofed theaters are so typically Greek that they serve as a link between modern and classical times. The old Greek, as everybody knows, was an outdoor man, his house serving as little more than a sleeping place and storeroom. The Athenian of today dines in a garden, on his terrace or in a park. If he is too poor to possess any of these accessories, he sets his table upon the sidewalk. Many of the cheap restaurants appropriate the walks for dining rooms. One is often compelled when taking an evening stroll to dodge in and out among dozens of tables covered with reasonably clean linen and lighted by means of candles, whose flames are protected from the wind by means of glass globes.—Scribner's.

Might Be Out of Debt.

"My case is peculiar," remarked the letter R.

"How so?" chorused the other letters of the alphabet.

"Well, when it comes to making 'boodle,' I always lend, and, you will notice, there is absolutely no reason why I should be in 'debt.'"—Exchange.

BILL ARP'S LETTER

Advent of April Brings Up Discussion of All Fools' Day.

RECOUNTS INDIVIDUAL EXPERIENCES.

Little Ones Try to Fool the Old Man, But He Was On to Their Sly Game And Retaliated.

This month did not begin right. April means to open, but it did not open. It was an April fool. Nothing shows in my garden but the peas and onions. The flowers make no progress. There is no sweet south wind to breathe upon them—no sunshine. On Monday the grandchildren imposed upon me with their Hindoo pranks. They gave me a cup of chocolate with whipped cream on top, and it was nothing but soapsuds. I pretended to be fooled, but I wasent; I paid them back in various ways. The Hindoos started this childish custom away back in the ages, and it still pleases the children. And now Easter day is at hand and that is another name that came down from the Pagans. Ostera was their goddess of spring and it was corrupted into Estera.

How these old heathen names do stick to us. The names of the days of the week and of the months came from them. So did the planets and the constellations. Even the prophets and Job had to take them from the Egyptians. But the Scotch people don't call it Easter. They say Pascha day, or passover day. They won't pattern after anybody but John Knox, and he said Pascha. But there is a reason for calling it Easter, for the coming of spring—the opening of the earth and the flowers is emblematical of the resurrection—the opening of the Savior's tomb and His return to bless and comfort His people. This day corresponds closely with the Jewish passover, and so they observe it.

Now I want the young people to know that Lent is another word that means spring. It is preceded by that foolish festival called mardi gras—or fat beef—and continues forty days in remembrance of the Savior's long fast, and it ends with Easter, and the communion and other rejoicings. As the old-time almanacs would say, "about this time look for Easter hats and flowers and finery." Christmas is another festival day that is common to all Christian nations. There are many other days dedicated to the saints, but in course of time it was found that there were not enough days in the year to go round, and so the pope stopped the sainting of so many and had one day set apart as All Saints day. The next day after that is All Souls day, on which mass is said by the Roman Catholics for the souls of the dead who are in purgatory.

It seems that about 900 years ago a pilgrim from the Holy land found a hermit in Sicily who told him of an opening between the cliffs of the mountains near by that communicated with hades, where Pluto lived, and that he could see the sulphurous smoke rising and hear the groans of the lost souls who were being tormented in hell and he had known some of them to escape through the prayers of the priests and this made the devils very mad and he could hear them cursing the priests with awful imprecations. The pilgrim told all this to the abbots and monks, and they had a day set apart to pray these lost souls out of hell or hades or purgatory or whatever it is.

Besides these international days there are national days in every country. Here we have the Fourth of July and Washington's birthday and Decoration Day and some others. Germany celebrates the birth of Calvin and Luther and the kaiser. Scotland that of Sir William Wallace and Bruce and John Knox. In old England they celebrate the queen's birthday, Magna Charter day, Waterloo day and May day. May day is the happiest of all and has been long remembered in verse and song and in dancing around the May pole.

Tennyson wrote a sad, sweet poem called the "May Queen." Mexico celebrates all the Roman Catholic days and has one other that the rabble call Judas Iscariot's day. It is the next day after Easter. On the beautiful trees in the plazza or park they suspend pasteboard images of Judas Iscariot—images as large as life, with little holes bored in them from head to foot and in every hole is fastened a cannon cracker. At a given signal the fuse in every cracker is lighted and all of them explode nearly at the same time and such a terrific popping was never heard outside of a battlefield, and poor old Judas is torn and rent into a thousand pieces. This is just a sign of what they would do to him if they had him there alive, but I reckon it is more for frolic than anything, for they shout and laugh and dance the hornpipe and make all the racket they can.

Ben Franklin said that man was a bundle of habits. He might have added "and superstitions," for most all people have some belief in supernatural things. Two hundred years ago almost everybody believed in witches. Shakespeare wrote about them in "Macbeth" and Burns in "Tam O'Shanter." The Puritans drowned many innocent women from mere suspicion of being witches. The conceited, self-righteous rascals never accused a man of being a wizard. It is the women who have suffered in all ages. When I was a boy the young people were more afraid of ghosts than they are now.

Ghosts are very scarce in these days. I haven't seen one in a long time. In my early youth I was the mill boy and I remember that one evening in the early twilight as I was astride my horse and grist and going slowly home I neared the country graveyard of Fairview church and saw, or thought I saw, a ghost ahead of me in the big road. It had arms and legs, but had no head. It was white and going slowly from me. I checked my horse and wondered. I started on again and got a little closer. Still the form was headless. Broad shoulders and arms akimbo. Nearer and nearer I drew to it, but it made no sign.

My horse pricked up his ears as if alarmed. The road forked not far ahead, and I had resolved that if the ghost took one road I would take the other, when suddenly an old man stopped to cough and took the sack from his shoulders and laid it upon the ground. I knew him instantly—old Uncle Tom Wilson, the hunchback—going home from the mill with his grist across his shoulders, and his head bent forward so that I could not see it in the dusky twilight. Now if both of us had reached the forks of the road and had separated I should always have believed I saw a ghost.

That old mill road and church and grave yard made lasting impressions upon me, and so did the mill and the pond and the spring-board and big wheel and the soothing sounds of the water falling over the dam. We had various adventures with the country school boys on the way, for they dident like the town boys—and they dont yet. I remember that it was on April fool day that I saw in the road just beyond the school house a package done up in brown paper, and as I had met a man in a buggy a little while before, I supposed he had dropped it.

I stopped my horse and got down. Picking up the package I untied the string and took off the wrapper and found another wrapper and another string and then another and another and at last two big black bugs, whose odor was familiar. That kind of bug that advance backward, and you can't tell whether you meet 'em or overtake 'em. Just then a score of boys jumped from the bushes and yelled and screamed "April Fool!" I was so mad I could hardly mount my horse again, but I never spoke a word. I took it out in thinking and hating. West Point hazing wasent any worse than that April fool was to me. But boys will be boys.—BILL ARP in Atlanta Constitution.

There is reason to believe that the movement of population from the country to the city is subsiding and that farming is becoming more popular. It ought to. Farming properly followed is as sure and good a business as any other. It may be a slow process of acquiring a competence, but it is the most certain and the most independent one. With industry and economy a comfortable living can be made by cultivating the soil, with less labor and risk than by any other honest method known. Stick to the farm, advises the Agricultural Epitomist.

The wonderful dam across the Nile, which has been building for some years, is practically completed, and in a short time Egypt will, by the storage for water thus provided, be relieved from the difficulties resulting from the rise and fall of the river. This will bring about the development of two-thirds of the country, which have hitherto been waste land. A great increase in the production of Egyptian cotton may be expected.

A NEW TRANSPORT WAGON.

Can Carry Rations for Forty Men on Outpost Duty or Serve With a Battery.

The old idea of taking few measures for the comfort of the troops in the field, because they are usually compelled by the force of circumstances to do without any comforts, was exploded long ago and to-day every good officer tries to bring his men to the field of battle in as fresh a condition as possible.

One of the most arduous duties (other than actual fighting on the firing line) is outpost duty, and any means that will lighten this service in the field will be welcomed by the army. Wagon transportation will not always be available far to the front, and yet the South African campaign has shown that even at the outposts it can often come into play, and would be of inestimable value in sparing the men unnecessary labor.

A new military transport and shelter wagon is the direct outcome of the late experience in the Transvaal. It was designed by a volunteer artillery colonel of Sheffield, England. The wagon is built of wood and is mounted on springs and four wheels. The tires are eight inches wide, to facilitate travel over soft ground, and the rear wheels are on a broader gauge than those in front. It is arranged for horse or traction engine draft.

The top of the wagon box is surrounded by stout wire netting, inside of which is the platform. Under the platform floor is a water cistern of 40 gallons capacity. One each side of the wagon are hinged doors, closing recesses in which a canvas shelter is kept rolled up. This canvas can be run out in a very few minutes, and when held up by the wagon at one end and by posts planted out at the side of the wagon at the other, will form a rectangular tent for fifty men. Seats are also provided at the sides of the wagon in the form of hanging steps, so that the men can be carried on them when necessary. When not in use these seats can be folded up out of the way. Rifle or carbine racks are also part of the equipment. The wagon can carry four tons of stores and would thus provide a detachment of forty men with rations for 100 days. It is designed either for the supply of a detachment on outpost duty or as part of the equipment of a field battery, and with its tent shelter, will prove far more valuable, under circumstances where horse or traction engine draft is available at all, than the transport wagons now in use.—New York Sun.

The Dragon Flag of Wales.

"Quarterly azure, and gules, four lions passant gardant counter-charged." Welsh people desire the Welsh arms added to the standard, and London heralds say that if Wales has any arms, these are they. But are the heralds correct? The dragon of Britain figures in Gildas as well as in Tennyson, and the dragon was the flag of the Dux Britanniae of Roman days. The house of Cunedda appears to have kept the dragon flag and the title of King of Britain for a time. After Cadwallon's death, however, they become merely princes, and curiously adopt the lion as their emblem, while the dragon passes perhaps as part of the hegemony of the island to the Saxon Kings of Wessex. Hastings field made an end of the dragon as an English flag. The dragon, however, became the Welsh flag again when Owen Glendower, "by the grace of God Prince of Wales," rose in revolt against Henry IV., and it was also under the Red Dragon that Henry VII. (who claimed to be heir of Arthur and Cadwallon) marched to Bosworth. That dragon flag was subsequently hung up at Westminster. There is, however, some historical justification for adding the red dragon to the English standard to represent Wales. It would, however, be interesting to know the exact device on the flag of the Britons borne before Charles I., when as Prince of Wales he kept court at Ludlow Castle.—The Saturday Review.

Wealth of Western North America.

It is beyond the limit or any merely human descriptive powers to do justice to the timber wealth of the Pacific coast. It has been calculated with reference to British Columbia alone that at the present rate of consumption it would take 700 years to exhaust the more available supplies of timber; and as, under the husbandry of nature, forests will renew themselves in less time than 700 years, the calculation is merely a way of indicating that the timber resources of the Pacific coast are practically inexhaustible. It is not too much to say, then, that for all trade and commerce into which wood and the products of wood enter, and for all manufactures in which wood and the products of wood are consumed, the Pacific coast possesses resources incalculably greater than any other portion of the globe, civilized or uncivilized.

As regards the products of the mine, the territory under consideration already produces no inconsiderable proportion of the world's annual supply of gold, silver, copper and lead. It is besides infinitely rich in iron, coal and petroleum, of which its stores are hardly yet comprehended, much less utilized. And what is known of all its mineral resources is as nothing in comparison with what is not known.—David B. Bogle, in the Engineering Magazine.

REV. DR. TALMAGE.

DISCOURSE BY THE EMINENT DIVINE LAST SUNDAY.

Subject: Christ is Risen! — Lesson Embodied in Our Saviour's Resurrection—Awaiting the Day When "All Who Are in Their Graves Shall Come Forth."

[Copyright 1903.]

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The great Christian festival celebrated in all the churches is the theme of Dr. Talmage's discourse. I Corinthians xv, 20, "Now is Christ risen from the dead and become the first fruits of them that slept."

On this glorious Easter morning, amid the music and the flowers, I give you Christian salutation. This morning Russian meeting Russian on the streets of St. Petersburg hails him with the salutation, "Christ is risen indeed!" In some parts of England and Ireland to this very day there is the superstition that on Easter morning the sun dances in the heavens, and well may we forgive such a superstition, which illustrates the fact that the natural world seems to sympathize with the spiritual.

Hail, Easter morning! Flowers! Flowers! All of them a-voice, all of them a-tongue, all of them full of speech to-day. I bend over one of the lilies, and I hear it say: "Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow. They toil not, neither do they spin, yet Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these." I bend over a rose, and it seems to whisper, "I am the rose of Sharon." And then I stand and listen. From all sides there comes the chorus of flowers, saying, "If God so clothed the grass of the field, which to-day is, and to-morrow is cast into the oven, shall He not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith?"

Flowers! Flowers! Braid them into the bride's hair. Flowers! Flowers! Strew them over the graves of the dead, sweet prophecy of the resurrection. Flowers! Flowers! Twist them into a garland for my Lord Jesus on Easter morning, and "Glory be to the Father and to the Son and to the Holy Ghost; as it was in the beginning, is now and ever shall be!" The women came to the Saviour's tomb, and they dropped spices all around the tomb, and those spices were the seed that began to grow, and from them came all the flowers of this Easter morn. The two angels robed in white took hold of the stone at the Saviour's tomb, and they hurled it with such force down the hill that it crushed in the door of the world's sepulcher, and the stark and the dead must come forth.

I care not how labrinthine the mausoleum or how costly the sarcophagus or however beautifully parterred the family grounds—we want them all broken up by the Lord of the resurrection. They must come out. Father and mother—they must come out; husband and wife—they must come out; brother and sister—they must come out; our darling children—they must come out. The eyes that we closed with such trembling fingers must open again in the radiance of that morn; the arms we folded in dust must join ours in an embrace of reunion; the voice that was hushed in our dwelling must be retuned. Oh, how long some of you seem to be waiting for the resurrection! And for these broken hearts to-day I make a soft, cool bandage out of Easter flowers.

This morning I find in the risen Christ a prophecy of our own resurrection, my text setting forth the idea that as Christ has risen so His people will rise. He, the first sheaf of the resurrection harvest. He, "the first fruits of them that slept." Before I get through this morning I will walk through all the cemeteries of the dead, through all the country graveyards, where your loved ones are buried, and I will pluck off these flowers, and I will drop a sweet promise of the gospel—a rose of hope, a lily of joy on every tomb, the child's tomb, the husband's tomb, the wife's tomb, the father's grave, the mother's grave, and, while we celebrate the resurrection of Christ we will at the same time celebrate the resurrection of all the good. "Christ, the first fruits of them that slept."

If I should come to you and ask you for the names of the great conquerors of the world, you would say Alexander, Caesar, Philip, Napoleon I. Ah! You have forgotten to mention the name of a greater conqueror than all these—a cruel, a ghastly conqueror. He rode on a black horse across Waterloo and Chalons and Atlanta, the bloody hoofs crushing the hearts of nations. It is the conqueror Death. He carries a black flag, and he takes no prisoners. He digs a trench across the hemispheres and fills it with the carcasses of nations. Fifty times would the world have been depopulated had not God kept making new generations. Fifty times the world would have swung lifeless through the air—no man on the mountain, no man on the sea, an abandoned ship plowing through immensity. Again and again has he done this work with all generations. He is a monarch as well as a conqueror; his palace a sepulcher; his fountains the falling tears of a world. Blessed be God in the light of this Easter morning! I see the prophecy that his scepter shall be broken and his palace shall be demolished. The hour is coming when all who are in their graves shall rise, Jesus, "the first fruits of them that slept."

Now, around this doctrine of the resurrection there are a great many mysteries. You come to me and say, "If the bodies of the dead are to be raised, how is this and how is that?" And you ask me a thousand questions I am incompetent to answer. But there are a great many things you believe that you are not able to explain. You would be a very foolish man to say, "I won't believe anything I can't understand." Why, putting down one kind of flower seed, comes there up this flower of this color? Why, putting down another flower seed, comes there up a flower of this color? One flower white, another flower yellow, another flower crimson. Why the difference when the seeds look to be very much alike—are very much alike? Explain these things; explain that wart on the finger; explain the difference—why the oak leaf is different from the leaf of the hickory. Tell me how the Lord Almighty can turn the chariot of His omnipotence on a rose leaf. You ask me questions about the resurrection I cannot answer. I will ask you a thousand questions about everyday life you cannot answer.

I find my strength in this passage, "All who are in their graves shall come forth." I do not pretend to make the explanation. You go on and say: "Suppose a returned missionary dies in this city. When he was in China, his foot was amputated. He lived years after in England, and there he had an arm amputated. He is buried to-day in yonder cemetery. In the resurrection will the foot come from China, will the arm come from England and will the different parts of the body be reconstructed in the resurrection? How is that possible?"

You say that "the human body changes every seven years and by seventy years of age a man has had ten bodies. In the resurrection, which will come up?" You say: "A man will die and his body crumble into the dust and that dust be taken up into the life of the vegetable. An animal may eat the vegetable. Men eat the animal. In the resurrection that body, distributed in so many directions, how shall it be gathered up?" Have you any more questions of this style to ask? Come on and ask them. I do not pretend to answer them. I fall back upon the announcement of God's word, "All who are in their graves shall come forth."

You have noticed, I suppose, in reading the story of the resurrection, that almost every account of the Bible gives the idea that the characteristic of that day will be a great sound. I do not know that it will be very loud, but I know that it will be very penetrating. In the mausoleum, where silence has reigned a thousand years, that voice must penetrate. In the coral cave of the deep that voice must penetrate. Millions of spirits will come through the gates of eternity, and they will come to the tombs of the earth, and they will cry, "Give us back our bodies. We gave them to you in corruption. Surrender them now in incorruption." Hundreds of spirits hovering about the fields of Gettysburg, for there the bodies are buried. A hundred thousand spirits coming to Greenwood, for there the bodies are buried, waiting for the reunion of body and soul.

All along the sea route from New York to Liverpool, at every few miles where a steamer went down, departed spirits coming back, hovering over the wave. There is where the City of Boston perished. Found at last. There is where the President perished. Steamer found at last. There is where the Central American went down. Spirits hovering—hundreds of spirits hovering, waiting for the reunion of body and soul. Out on prairie a spirit alights. There is where a traveler died in the snow. Crash goes Westminster Abbey, and the poets and the orators come forth! Wonderful mingling of good and bad. Crash go the pyramids of Egypt, and the monarchs come forth.

Who can sketch the scene? I suppose that one moment before that general rising there will be an entire silence, save as you hear the grinding of a wheel or the clatter of the hoofs of a procession passing into the cemetery. Silence in all the caves of the earth. Silence on the side of the mountain. Silence down in the valleys and far out into the sea. Silence. But in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, as the archangel's trumpet comes pealing, rolling, crashing across the mountain and sea, the earth will give one terrific shudder, and the graves of the dead will heave like the waves of the sea, and Ostend and Sevastopol and Chalons will stalk forth in the hoid air, and the drowned will come up and wring out their wet locks above the billow, and all the land and all the sea become one moving mass of life—all faces, all ages, all conditions gazing in one direction and upon one throne, the throne of resurrection. "All who are in their graves shall come forth."

"But," you say, "if this doctrine of the resurrection is true, as prefigured by this Easter morning, can you tell us something about the resurrected body?" I can. There are mysteries about that, but I shall tell you three or four things in regard to the resurrected body that are beyond guessing and beyond mistake.

In the first place, I remark in regard to your resurrected body, it will be a glorious body. The body we have now is a mere skeleton of what it would have been if sin had not marred and defaced it. Take the most exquisite statue that was ever made by an artist and chip it here and chip it there with a chisel and batter and bruise it here and there and then stand it out in the storms of a hundred years, and the beauty would be gone. Well, the human body has been chipped and battered and bruised and damaged with the storms of thousands of years, the physical defects of other generations coming down from generation to generation, we inheriting the infelicities of past generations.

But in the morning of the resurrection the body will be adorned and beautified according to the original model. And there is no such difference between a gymnast and an emaciated wretch in a lazaretto as there will be a difference between our bodies as they are now and our resurrected forms. There you will see the perfect eye after the waters of death have washed out the stains of tears and study; there you will see the perfect hand after the knots of toil have been untied from the knuckles; there you will see the form erect and elastic after the burdens have gone off the shoulder—the very life of God in the body. In this world the most expressive thing is the human face, but that face is veiled with the griefs of a thousand years. But in the resurrection morn that veil will be taken away from the face, and the noonday sun is dull and dim and stupid compared with the outflaming glories of the countenances of the saved. When those faces of the righteous, those resurrected faces, turn toward the gate or look up toward the throne, it will be like the dawning of a new morning on the bosom of everlasting day! O glorious, resurrected body!

But I remark also in regard to that body which you are to get in the resurrection, it will be an immortal body. These bodies are wasting away. Somebody has said that as soon as we begin to live we begin to die. Unless we keep putting the fuel into the furnace the furnace dies out. The blood vessels are canals taking the breadstuffs to all parts of the system. We must be reconstructed hour by hour, day by day. Sickness and death are all the time trying to get their pry under the tenement or to push us off the embankment of the grave, but, blessed be God, in the resurrection we will get a body immortal.

Sometimes in this world we feel we would like to have such a body as that. There is so much work to be done for Christ, there are so many tears to be wiped away, there are so many burdens to lift, there is so much to be achieved for Christ, we sometimes wish that from the first of January to the last of December we could toil on without stopping to sleep or to take any recreation or to rest or even to take food—that we could toil right on without stopping a moment in our work of commending Christ and heaven to all the people, but we all get tired. It is characteristic of the human body in this condition; we must get tired. Is it not a glorious thought that we are going to have a body that will never grow weary? O glorious resurrection day! Gladly will I fling aside this poor body of sin and fling it into the tomb if at Thy bidding I shall have a body that never wearies. That is a splendid resurrection hymn that we have all sung:

So Jesus slept. God's dying Son
Passed through the grave and blessed the bed.
Rest here, blest saint, till from His throne

The morning breaks to pierce the shade.

I heard of a father and son who, among others, were shipwrecked at sea. The father and the son climbed into the rigging. The father held on, but the son after awhile lost his hold on the rigging and was dashed down. The father supposed he had gone hopelessly under the wave. The next day the father was brought ashore from the rigging in an exhausted state and laid on a bed in a fisherman's hut, and after many hours had passed he came to consciousness and saw lying beside him on the same bed his boy.

Oh, my friends, what a glorious thing it will be if we wake up at last to find our loved ones beside us, coming up from the same plot in the graveyard, coming up in the same morning light—the father and son alive forever, all the loved ones alive forever, never more to weep, never more to part, never more to die.

May the God of Peace that brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus, that great Shepherd of the sheep, through the blood of the everlasting covenant make you perfect in every good work to do His will, and let the associations of this morning transport our thoughts to the grander assemblage before the throne. The one hundred and forty and four thousand and the "great multitude that no man can number," some of our best friends among them, we after awhile to join the multitude. Glorious anticipation!

Blest are the saints beloved of God;
Washed in their robes in Jesus's blood.
Brighter than angels, in, they shine,
Their wonders splendid and sublime.

My soul anticipates the day,
Would stretch her wings and soar away.
To aid the song, the palm to bear,
Amid how, the chief of sinners, there.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON CO[illegible] FOR APRIL 21.

Subject: The Walk to Emmaus, Luke, 13-35—Golden Text, Luke "Memory Verses, 33-35—Commentary on the Day's Lesson.

13. "Two of them." In [illegible] implied that they were not [illegible] was Cleopas, of whom we know [illegible] the other is unknown. "Emmaus" [illegible] word means "hot springs" [illegible] ably a place where there were [illegible] "Threescore furlongs." [illegible] one half miles. The site [illegible] somewhat uncertain.

14. "They talked together" [illegible] versation naturally turned [illegible] absorbing question of the [illegible] tion of Jesus and the re[illegible] had heard of His resurrec[illegible]

15. "Commoned together" [illegible] consulted together, what [illegible] do, in such perplexing circumstances, [illegible] exchanged views and free[illegible] the facts before them concerning [illegible] ability of Christ being [illegible] "Drew near." Coming up behind [illegible] from Jerusalem.

16. "Eyes were holden." [illegible] suming a different form [illegible] supernaturally influencing [illegible] they might not know Him. [illegible] 16-12.

17. "Said unto them." As a gu[illegible] er, in order to be heard, He began [illegible] ting them to speak first. What [illegible] nications." What is the nature [illegible] talk which so absorbs you? He [illegible] tion Jesus introduces Himself [illegible] conversation. "As ye walk and [illegible] Thus Jesus leads them to open [illegible] hearts to Him. He would have [illegible] late to Him what He already knew.

18. "A stranger." If He were [illegible] events that had been so public [illegible] and so universally known. He [illegible] mere sojourner; if He did not [illegible] suppose they would be talking about [illegible] thing else? Cleopas appears [illegible] at His question.

19. "What things?" He [illegible] swer by another question. He [illegible] hear from their own lips their [illegible] ings. "Concerning Jesus of Naz[illegible] As He was commonly called. [illegible] full of things concerning Him, [illegible] summary of Christ's life. Now the [illegible] of their lamentations are over their [illegible] pointed expectations break [illegible] prophet." He preached a true [illegible] lent doctrine, which had its [illegible] and its tendency toward heaven [illegible] firmed it, by many glorious [illegible] mercy. "Mighty." However the [illegible] Jews may have made them waver [illegible] faith about His being the Messiah, [illegible] had no doubt that He was a prophet [illegible] they knew what He had done [illegible] had heard His teachings. "[illegible] word." There is but little use of [illegible] dertaking to speak for Christ when [illegible] actions precede our words.

20. "Crucified Him." Our rulers [illegible] Him as a malefactor and not as a [illegible] and have crucified Him. They [illegible] fully with regard to their rulers [illegible] they are speaking to a supposed [illegible]

JAPS AND COSSACKS MAY YET CLASH

Mikado Still Engaged In Preparing For War.

CHINA'S RULER MUST RETURN

Mikado Demands That Chinese Troops Be Sent Into Manchurian Territory at Once.

A cable dispatch from Pekin says: Komoura Yutaro, the Japanese minister, accompanied by General Yamaguchi, the Japanese commander, called upon Prince Ching Sunday and notified him that the return of Emperor Kuang Hsu was urgently desired. Prince Ching was informed that the emperor's wishes would be respected by the foreign troops and that every courtesy would be shown him.

It was pointed out to the Chinese plenipotentiary that the emperor's return was of the highest possible importance as affecting the maintenance of the integrity of the Chinese empire, and that he should come accompanied by every available soldier, by at least twenty thousand men if possible.

The troops, it was further contended by the Japanese minister, must be sent into Manchuria, as the Russians reported great disturbances there and it was not right that the task of quelling the trouble should be thrown upon one nation. Finally, Prince Ching was assured that if the 20,000 Chinese troops could not suppress the disorders in Manchuria, other powers would send an international force to co-operate with China, which all the powers regarded as a friendly power.

No reply having been received to this communication, Li Hung Chang was notified to the same effect and told that Emperor Kuang Hsu must give an immediate answer.

The preparations which the Japanese are making here for an early start indicate that they still expect war between Russia and Japan. Vessels arriving at Taku from Nagasaki report the mobilization of the Japanese fleet and the continuance of preparations on board ship for the anticipated struggle.

Prince Ching says all his reports go to show that the missionary statements regarding a rebellion in Mongolia are not supported by the facts. Neither does he believe that the rebellion of General Tung Hsiang amounts to much.

"It is the object of certain elements," he asserts, "to make it seem that China is in a condition of constant broil, rendering it unsafe for the foreign troops to be withdrawn. Those who have this in view will magnify a village quarrel into a big rebellion. The missionaries, naturally timid, take these reports in good faith."

MINISTERS ARE CRITICISED.

The conduct of the ministers of the powers over the negotiations with the Chinese plenipotentiaries causes much adverse comment among the military authorities. Their dilatory tactics have prevented what might have been accomplished two months ago. Even now the meetings of the ministers are postponed for the most trivial causes. For instance, the desire of one minister to go on a picnic to the tombs of the Ming dynasty prevented the holding of a meeting for a number of days. Then M. De Giers and other ministers insisted upon celebrating Easter, and thus a week was consumed. In a third case an unnecessary visit by one minister to Tien Tsin held up negotiations for four days. These are fair illustrations of what has been almost continuous from the beginning.

Memorial services will be held by order of the court in honor of the members of the tsung-li-yamen who were executed last summer because of their pro-foreign sentiments—Hsu Ching Chien, Li Shan and Hsu Yung Yi. The staff of the United States legation has been invited to attend. Hsu Ching Chien, who was a man of considerable wealth, held at various times the post of Russia, that of director of the Russo-Chinese bank and that of president of the Chinese Eastern railway.

Carriage Factory Burned.

The carriage and wagon factory of A. C. Norman & Co., of Covington, Ga., was totally destroyed by fire Thursday night, many new vehicles being destroyed. The loss amounts to $3,500, with no insurance.

Disappearance of the Chamois.

Attention is called in French scientific journals to the disappearance of the chamois from the French Alps. These graceful animals, in spite of the fact that they conceal their homes and places of refuge in the most inaccessible spots at heights varying from [illegible] to 11,500 feet, are merrilessly hunted out and shot down, so that there is danger of their complete extinction. In Italy there is a large reserve in which the chamois are protected, and the formation of a similar reserve in France is advocated.

Spring Cleaning Made Easy.

Much of the terror of spring cleaning may be avoided by proper preparation. Settled weather should be selected for the work, and a supply of all needed articles in readiness. Ivory soap will be found best for washing windows, paints and floors; it is harmless, and very effective in making the house clean and fresh.—Ellen E. Parker.

The best collection of Chinese coins to be found outside of China has been given to the archaeological museum of the University of Pennsylvania by Rev. E. W. Twing, a Honolulu missionary. The collection goes back to a time over 2000 years ago, and includes those odd, early Chinese coins which were made in the form of spades, razors, keys, shirts and tools.

For Moist Hands.

Girls who are troubled with moist, clammy hands should use a plentiful supply of borax in the washing water, dusting afterwards with boracic acid powder or with the best borated talcum powder. Old gloves worn at night are sometimes successful in whitening and softening rough hands; oatmeal water allowed to dry on the hands is also an excellent bleacher.

Young Women

The entry into womanhood is a critical time for a girl. Little menstrual disorders started at that time soon grow into fatal complications. That female trouble you bring graveyards proves this. Wine of Cardui establishes a painless and natural menstrual flow. When once this important function is started right, a healthy life will usually follow. Many women, young and old, owe their lives to Wine of Cardui. There is nothing like it to give women freedom from pain and to fit young women for every duty of life. $1.00 bottle at druggists.

Miss Belle M. Strayer, Tully, Kans.—"I have suffered untold pain at menstrual periods for a long time, was nervous, had no appetite, and had interest in everything, in fact was miserable. I have taken four bottles of Wine of Cardui, with Thedford's Black-Draught, when needed, and to-day I am entirely cured. I cannot express the thanks I feel for what you have done for me."

This 31 day of April, 1901.
S. M. ADAMS,
Judge of Probate.

A Precocious Baby.

The baby was only 4, but she was only child and had lived with her parents largely in hotels, and she was self possessed little maiden. She was always a model of propriety as to manners, so that when one day a young man, a friend of her papa's and mamma's and a great admirer of the little girl, asked to take her out to luncheon all by herself she was allowed to go. A very tiny girl may go without a chaperon sometimes. The little girl was to do the ordering. She undertook this responsibility with confidence and taking up the menu, studied it with as much gravity as if the letters were as unreadable to her as Greek would have been to her mamma.

"I will have some meat and some potatoes," she said gravely, "and by and by I may have some ice cream."

The order was given, the cream followed, and the little lady was altogether charming, dainty and sweet the companion for luncheon. The meal ended with the dignity with which it had begun, the young woman donned her wraps, and as the young man was preparing to escort her to the door she remarked gravely:

"And now I will have some flowers."

It was the last touch of grown up news, and it was the proudest young man in New York who took home a pretty and dignified baby with a big bunch of roses in her arms.—New York Times.

A Patent Hole.

Of the many extraordinary things for which patent protection has been granted a hole seems to be the most useless and impossible. Yet there are many patents for holes, and what is more, the patents are valid and valuable. One of the best relates to holes in ships' bottoms for the admission and escape of water to the condenser.

Every one who has seen a steamer under way will have noticed a stream of water issuing from her side a little above the water line; that water is pumped into the ship for the purpose of condensing the waste steam that leaves the cylinders and returning it as water to the boilers.

At last it occurred to a genius that if a hole were made in the bottom of the ship forward of the condenser and another abaft it, the water would circulate around the condenser without the aid of a pump. It is for the sake of these holes, so that they will offer less resistance to the water when the ship is traveling fast, that several patents have been granted.

A Testamentary Puzzle.

An Englishman who recently died had three children, one son and two daughters, and he mentioned all of them in his will.

The first clause is, "I leave my property to Mary Elizabeth, when Arthur has done with it." The other clause is, "To Susan Jane—she may take whatever Arthur wishes to give to her."

There is no doubt of Arthur's meaning in the document, but the puzzle question is raised, Are Mary Elizabeth and Susan Jane beneficiaries under the will?

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Some of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not

The first act of the Constitutional Convention has been played and the curtain rung down. As was generally anticipated the convention has carried throughout the state, and Chilton county voted against it. As far as the figures are ascertainable at this writing "No Convention" received about [illegible] votes, and "For Convention" [illegible]. It would seem from these figures that rather more than one half of the voters of Chilton collied to vote at this election, and that of the [illegible] who did go to the polls the great majority were in favor of letting the present constitution remain in force.

In his speech last Saturday Dr. Cunningham seemed to think there was a possibility that the convention might be unable to agree upon a new constitution, but taking all things into consideration it hardly looks probable that the convention will wind up in that way. At any rate the convention is going to meet and do something—what that something may be the Lord only knows.

Work has commenced on the new brick buildings opposite the court house and will be pushed to completion as early a date as possible. Mr. Moody, the contractor, is on the ground and making things move. Clanton is quietly and steadily growing—it is one of the best towns in the State, and don't you know it.

Maplesville.

A romantic marriage took place at Maplesville, last Sunday. It appears that cards had been issued announcing the marriage of Miss Sarah Abney, of Maplesville to Mr. C. A. [illegible] of Autauga county, the ceremony was to take place in Maplesville on Wednesday next, April 24. Everything was in readiness, and the neighborhood was ringing with the joyous news. But there came a sudden change.

Saturday morning Mr. C. A. [illegible] a prosperous young business man of Anniston, who had long been a suitor to Miss Abney, arrived in Maplesville and at once called at the bride elect's. Evidently he pleaded eloquently, for he succeeded in winning her. He left her happy and in joy hurried to the livery stable, where he hired a buggy and set out at the top of his speed for Clanton, the county seat. Arrived there he hurried to the office of Judge Samuel M. Adams, who is young of heart and sympathetic toward lovers, and of him he procured the legal writ to license Miss Abney.

With this license Mr. Britton sped back to Randolph, Bibb county, and there a preacher to perform the ceremony. With the license and the preacher he sped back to Maplesville, and there, on the same Sunday that was yesterday, Mr. Britton and Miss Abney were married and made husband and wife.

The groom and bride left Maplesville yesterday afternoon for Birmingham, and practically the entire population of the town was at the railroad station to see them off. Great and happy excitement prevailed. Mr. Britton and his bride—she is said to be very beautiful—proceeded to Anniston Sunday morning.

Clanton April 23-1901

Editor Banner—As you were kind enough to notice my departure for Elmore county, a couple of weeks since, there will likely be a large number of the members of the "Farmers Mutual Insurance Association, who also take your valuable paper, that would like to know the results of my trip. I made the trip "overland" (in a buggy) going by the way of Wetumpka visited a number of points in the county, among others I was at "Flea Hop," "Kid" and "Sand Tuck," and added some few thousand dollars to the Association attended the meeting of the society, on the 13th inst at Union Academy, six miles north of Wetumpka, and gave the assembled members a summary of what Chilton county was doing for mutual self-protection, they seemed pleased to hear the particulars. The members present came to the conclusion that the middle of April was a bad time for farmers to meet so made their annual meeting day hereafter the first Thursday in August. (Watermelon time) Elmore county branch of the "Farmers Mutual Insurance Association" was organized Oct. 12, 1900, at present writing it has about $125,000 insurance in force. They have just paid a loss of $550 to Brother T. D. Avant, of Beat one, and have done it cheerfully too, each member seems to think, "suppose it had been me." Bro. Avant's house and contents were destroyed by fire unknown, but surmised to have been a combination of rat and matches. When I turned my face toward the "State" of Chilton, I took up the east bank of the Coosa, but after travelling almost an entire day, could not find a ferryman with nerve enough to put me across until I struck up with "Admiral" Higgins, at Smith's Ferry, and he made no bones of braving the "raging waters" but after entertaining me very hospitably, he summoned the crew of the "Coosa River Queen" (unprotected cruiser) and landed me safely in Chilton. With many thanks for your kindness I am very truly yours,

The Constitutional Convention of 1875

Montgomery, April 17, 1901.

Editor Banner—Enclose I hand you a list of the officers of the last Constitutional Convention held in 1875 with the number of days, and the cost of same: LeRoy Pope Walker, President; H. B. Screws, Secretary; T. H. Watts, Jr., Assistant Secretary; C. D. Whitmore, Assistant Secretary; M. L. Woods, Enrolling Clerk; Lemuel Lomax, F. E. Ferguson, Pages; Lee Dolton, Doorkeeper; Chas. Pegue, Assistant Doorkeeper; Robt. Arrington (colored) Assistant Doorkeeper. Delegates, 32; county delegates, 64. The delegates were paid for 27 days which includes three Sundays. Cost of convention $25,9[illegible]4.20. That was to frame a new constitution. Now, it is hoped that the one that will assemble in May will get through in less time, as some say that some of the present constitution will be used with some changes, and it is hoped that they will put in better time than our lawmakers did and not create any more officers than the present one has provided for. They ought to look well to the taxpayers.

Yours truly,
W. F. CLAUGHTON.

Cedar Grove.

Farmers are moving along nicely planting, some are nearly done.

We are having some windy, cold weather that is very injurious to our young corn.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Baker visited relatives east of Clanton last Saturday.

Messrs. D. C. Tildon and Ben Price went to Blocton last Saturday hunting work; success boys.

Our community was well represented at the show by both old and young, and we learn that a great many came back wiser and poorer.

Mr. Jack Foreman, our champion rabbit hunter, killed seven of the long-eared quadrupeds Friday.

"Uncle Jimmy" and son, Johnnie Collins, spent Friday and Saturday on business.

Mr. John Collins, Jr. made a business trip to Clanton Saturday.

Mr. Frank Price and his daughter, Miss Dora, made a business trip to Thorsby Saturday.

Mr. Charley Baker, of Concord, visited his brother, Mr. J. L. Baker, Saturday.

Mrs. Martha Baker, who lives 3½ miles east of Clanton, visited her brother, J. W. Collins, Jr., Sunday.

Messrs. "Bob" Hardy and Jack Jones made a business trip down on the river Friday.

Misses Callie Martin and Emma Gentry, of Blocton, who have been visiting their brother, Mr. John Hayes, returned home Monday.

Several of our farmers attended the speaking at Thorsby Saturday night and report it the nicest they ever had the pleasure of attending.

OLD PATCH.

Burwell.

Mr. J. C. Goss is suffering with la grippe.

Some of the brethren say it is wrong to let their cows eat the grass off their neighbor's woodland and as they are determined not to let the Devil get them for dishonesty they advocate the stock law.

Mr. Beater Kendrick left Sunday for Birmingham to visit his brother.

The Reflector said it was human nature for the chip to be knocked off of Bro. Pounds' head at the Legislature. If he had said it was inhuman nature that caused the bill to be passed that forced the stock law on the people in Beat five, he would have hit the nail on the head.

Saturday was to have been a great feast day in these diggins with the Democrats but when they came to butcher the beast it was a little tough.

Mr. P. H. Connell and wife visited Mr. Bab Connell Sunday.

Some of the folks say it will be five years before this country is ruled by a crown. They put the stock law on the people so they might get acclimatised to the king.

Cotton planting is progressing in these parts.

They tell me that some of the platforms are like Dock's horse. How is that Sir? Quite spotted.

CLANTON, - - - ALABAMA.

An "educational journal," so-called, not long ago offered a prize for the suggestion that, in the opinion of the journal, would be of greatest benefit to education and educators. Among the many answers was the following: Sink all the educational journals in the middle of the Atlantic ocean." The suggestion did not win the prize.

A Tall Men's Club has been organized in the University of Pennsylvania. It has twelve members, each of whom is six feet, two inches, or more in height. Six other men, termed "shorties" because they are only six feet one inch in height, are associate members. The names of the officers are the Moon Hitter, the Skyscraper and the Ceiling Duster.

The disaster at the Golden Gate reads more than one lesson. It marks the need of building all ships with watertight compartments, of some efficient lifeboat drill and service, and of the utmost vigilance and judgment on the part of pilots. It emphasizes, too, another lesson, fundamental and paramount, to wit, the need of freeing all harbors and other navigable waters as far as possible from rocks and shoals and other dangerous obstacles. For it was after all, the rock that did the mischief. No fog, nor faulty construction, nor lack of boat drill would have destroyed the ship had not the fatal rock been there.

In the savings banks of all countries where such institutions exist the aggregate deposits amount to the almost inconceivable total of seven billions of dollars. Of this grand total in the world's "inside pocket" the savings bank depositors of the United States own over one-third. Of the remaining two-thirds the depositors in British savings banks hold $916,000,000, those of France $825,000,000, those of Prussia $1,255,000,000, and those of Austria-Hungary $650,000,000. Relatively to their numbers, therefore, the Prussian people have the largest savings bank deposits. And while apparently the savings of the British and French are comparatively much less than those of the American depositors, some allowance must be made for the fact that savings bank books in America are not, as in Europe, held exclusively by wage earners.

In the safe of a Maryland man who died recently was found $40,000 in twenty-dollar gold pieces. That is the form in which wealth seems really attractive and brilliant. You seldom hear nowadays of a really great miser, a miser who understands his business. Poor little misers, male and female, do turn up from time to time, usually with soiled bills sewed inside of their soiled clothes or tucked away in cubbyholes or beds or old pots and pans. But now rarely is a miser on a large scale discovered, and no miser worthy of the name or alive to the opportunities of his profession ever hoards anything but gold. It must be a real aesthetic joy to go and look at piles and packs of eagles and double eagles, splendid and shining, infinite riches in a little room. You can sympathize with a fellow who hoards gold, for it is good to look at. But people in the Daniel Dancer line who secrete mere vulgar glaring bills must miss half or three-quarters of the joy of the true miser.

The practicability of irrigation on an extensive scale has been conclusively demonstrated. In the west more than $100,000,000 has already been thus invested under state and individual control, and the lands so treated have increased in value a hundred fold. The only things to consider are whether the work should be undertaken by the federal government on the large tracts of arid land belonging to the nation, whether these tracts should be turned over to the states within whose borders they lie on condition that they shall be watered, or whether the whole project of irrigation should be intrusted to private enterprise? With what has been accomplished the question of irrigation is bound to command a yearly increasing degree of public attention from this time forward. In its scope and importance it is a national question, thinks the New York Mail and Express. The possibility—already conceded—of reclaiming from the desert an area of territory large enough for an empire and compelling it to yield subsistence for 50,000,000 human beings who shall thus be added to our 76,000,000 of American producers and consumers—this magnificent project is enough to stir the dullest imagination.

THE NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Summary of Current Events From All Sections of Alabama.

BRIEFLY TOLD FOR ALL OUR READERS

Sensation Created at Merrimic By Corpse Breathing—Capt. Hobson At the Buffalo Exposition. Other Interesting Items.

Meet Next Year in Birmingham.

The annual session of the Medical Association of Alabama which was held in Selma last week, came to a close Friday. Birmingham was selected as the next place of meeting for the Association, though a strong invitation was extended by Talladega for the Association to meet in that city.

License Case Tested.

The cases against the seven Tuscaloosa merchants for selling millinery in connection with their dry goods stores without first taking out the $7.50 license which is charged by the city for selling millinery in addition to any other regular stock, has been decided by Mayor Cochrane against the merchants. A test case will be made of it by A. P. Miller, agent for Charles Broadway Rouss, of New York.

Mill Will Work.

The Athens cotton mill hopes to begin operating next week on full time, running night and day to keep up with their orders. The machinery has been tested and found thoroughly satisfactory and the plant is said to be one of the most complete in the country, everything being of the most improved and latest design. The management is highly pleased with the plant.

Cotton Mill for Stevenson.

Through the exertion of S. S. Broadus and a number of the wealthy and influential citizens of Jackson county, the requisite amount of money has been raised to erect a cotton mill at Stevenson at an early date. The Stevenson Land Company has donated three acres of land for the site. The mill will prove a great thing for Stevenson and Jackson county.

Receiver Appointed.

The Continental Security Redemption Co., of which George W. Morgan is president, and whose principal office is in Birmingham, has been placed in the hands of a receiver by Judge John Bruce of the United States Court at the instance of officers of the company who filed a suit for that purpose. J. B. Cobbs of the Alabama National Bank was appointed receiver and gave a $25,000 bond with the United States Fidelity and Guarante Company as surety.

Sensation Created at Merrimack By Corpse Breathing.

The funeral of Mrs. Frank Marlow at Merrimack near Huntsville, was interrupted in a strange manner Friday. The corpse was in plain view of the mourners, and the service was in progress, when the supposed corpse gasped and drew a long breath. Relatives rushed to her side and it was found that the body was warm, and that a very feeble pulse was beating. A physician was sent for, and for more than an hour Mrs. Marlow's relatives and friends believed that she would be brought back to life. However, she never regained consciousness and died in a short while. The funeral was continued and the body was interred in Maple Hill cemetary. Mrs. Marlow died from colic.

Crushed By Car.

Julius Wetzel, employed at the planing mill of the Kyle Lumber Company in Gadsden narrowly escaped death last week. He was placing several loaded tram cars in the dry house, and had stopped one car so it could not move. Just as he raised up his helpers pushed in another loaded car, catching him between them and terribly crushing him. He remained in this position until sufficient help could be secured to push the car away. When he was carried home, his chest was crushed, and he is injured internally and may die, though there are chances of his recovery.

Has the Gold Fever.

The gold fever has struck Tallapoosa and the country around Dadeville is eorwded with prospectors from all parts of the United States. Some rare finds have been made and land is bringing princely prices. It has long been known that the hills of Tallapoosa county contained gold in limited quantities, and in rare sections even paying veins.

Revenue Case Argued Before the Supreme Court.

The case of the court house of Shelby county was argued before the Supreme Court last week. The people of Columbiana thought that the act for removal was gotten through the legislature without proper publicity. The county commissioners at a meeting declared they could not levy a tax to meet interest on the bonds.

Storm at Carrollton.

The storm at Carrollton unroofed the courthouse, jail and a number of residences. The drug store of H. B. Upchurch and a mill are reported as having been wrecked. No one has been reported injured. Six negro prisoners were carried elsewhere from Carrollton for safe keeping by Sheriff Salmon, as the jail was rendered insecure by the heavy wind that unroofed it.

Four Negroes Drowned in a Creek Near Talladega.

News has been received of the drowning of three negro men and a negro woman in Wewaka Creek, near Talladega. A party of six had attended Sells and Gray's circus and while going home were attempting to ford the creek when the wagon bed floated off carrying the occupants down the swift running stream, two of whom saved themselves.

Will Build Tinware Plant.

O. W. Baker of Norfolk, Va., is in Huntsville for the purpose of locating a large plant for the manufacture of tinware. Mr. Baker operates a large manufactory of that kind in Virignia and has received liberal inducements to remove to this city. The Battle Ax Hay Press Company has secured a site on White street and will build a plant for the manufacture of hay presses and pea hullers. The plant will be removed from Decatur where it was known as the Alabama Foundry and Machine Works.

Mr. Willett for Vice President.

The Key West, Florida, Advertiser formally nominates Hon. Joseph J. Willett of Alabama for Vice-President on the democratic ticket in 1904, naming David Bennett Hill for the first place. "This ticket is being discussed in various sectitons of the country," says the Key West Advertiser. "Hill is general favorite and Willett is one of the ablest lawyers of the south; aand while he voted the Democratic ticket straight, he was a leading advocate of a conservative platform."

Storm Struck With Force at Guntersville.

Guntersville and county was visited by the hardest windstorm in its history Wednesday night. There were no clouds and a heavy wind arose from the south and southeast, increasing in velocity until trees, fences, parts of houses and all kinds of debris filled the air. A number of residences were seriously damaged and that of E. O. Neely, editor of the dDemocrat, was so badly that as soon as the wind ceased it was necessary for carpenters to prop the building up to keep the same from falling down. Nearly every business house in the town was damaged, the telephone wires were tangled and twisted, broken down and injured so that several days will be necessary to rearrange them satisfactorily. The new Guntersville Methodist church which was ready for use next Sunday was blown from its foundation, warped and twisted so that it will have to be rebuilt from the foundation up. This was the most serious damage, as it was a new building which the people had erected at considerable cost, and had not been used. The negro Methodist church was demolished and taken entirely away, several outhouses and negro dwellings were destroyed.

Hobson at Buffalo.

Captain Hobson recently was ordered to the bureau of construction and repair at Buffalo for special duty. It has been the desire of those in charge of the exposition to have this young hero of our war with Spain with the naval exhibit during the summer but Admiral Bowles, chief constuctor, was loth to deplete his already small bureau force to allow Mr. Hobson to go to Buffalo. However, he has now yielded to the popular desire and Captain Hobson will be connected with the Navy Department's representation there.

Troops to Be Called Out.

Arrangments are about complete for an attempt to capture the outlaws of the Reynolds faction near Mayking, Ky. Deputy United States Marshall Tom Hollyfield have arrived with a posse of twelve men and other reinforcements. If these are not sufficient to quell the disturbers, Governor Beckham will send state troops.

LIVE WASHINGTON NOTES

Happenings of the Week at the Nation's Capital.

OUR CORRESPONDENT'S WEEKLY LETTER.

Hundreds of Letters Are Received Asking for Information About Oklahoma Lands — Aguinaldo's Manifesto Very Gratifying.

The arrangments for the exhibitions of the State, War and Navy Departments at the Buffalo Exposition are now practically complete.

Statement of the treasury balance in the general fund, exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption shows: Available cash balance $152,672,918, gold $95,601,958.

The annual meeting of the American Social Science Association came to an end April 19th. Oscar G. Strauss of New York City was chosen president. Mrs. Olga Langhorne read an interesting paper on domestic service in the south.

Henry White, Secretary of the United States Embassy at London, is in Washington. Mr. White is there on his annual visit to this country, and will return to England next month. He has taken a great interest in the case of Mrs. Maybrick.

Three companies of the Second Asiatic Regiment, commanded by Major Muehlenfels, and all but four hundred men of the garrison at Pao Ting Fu, marched April 17 under the command of Generals Von Lessia and Kettler to the Huai Lu passes in order to attack the Chinese general, Liu.

The Porto Rico commission has received the following cablegram from the executive comittee of the Planters, Bankers and Merchants Association: "Commission is instructed to prolong its stay in the United States Districts are preparing meetings to protest official reports of prosprity.'"

Surgeon Sternberg has received a report from the Chief Surgeon at Manila, Colonel Greenleaf, showing that on April 16, there were in hospitals 2,937 cases. This makes the sick rate of the United States army in the Philippines 7.39 per cent, as aginst 6.89 in the preceding month. This slight increase is accounted for by the beginning of the change of seasons. Both rates are below the normal

Adjutant General Corbin authorizes the statement that no material changes will be made in the army in the Philippines until after the War Department has heard from General Chaffee on the subject. In accordance with orders previously issued. General Chaffee will relieve General MacArthur of the command of the military forces in the Phillippines on June 30th.

It is announced officially now that W. H. Doll has been appointed general agent of the passenger department of the Seaboard Air Line to succeed William Connell, resigned. His headquarters will be in this city. Mr. Doll at present is traveling passenger agent of the Seaboard Air Line, with headquarters in New York. His new appointment takes effect April 20th.

The prospect of the opening of new lands in Oklahoma Territory to settlement under the act of March 3 last, providing for the dispositon of lands ceaded by the Wichita, Kiowa, Comanche and Apache Indians, has had the effect of increasing the correspondence of the commissioner of the general land office until it has come to be of enormous dimensions. Most of the letters ask for information upon the subject.

Especial gratification is felt in administration circles at the unreserved tone of Aguinaldo's manifesto and the full definition it indicates of American rule. This, it is felt, will bring to the support of the government many Filipinos, who wishing for peace, have hesitated to assist the Taft commission. Aguinaldo, now that he has accepted American sovereignty, probably will be given considerably more liberty than he has enjoyed hitherto. His services will be used as far as possible in the pacification of the islands.

DUNS REVIEW.

Anticipates Large Cotton Acreage, Though Planting is Two Weeks Late

R. G. Dun's & Co.'s weekly review of trade says in part: Favorable crop reports, heavy bank clearings, record breaking, railroad earnings, a large distribution of spring and summer goods and easy collections give the business situation an encouraging aspect. Wall street speculation does not yet disclose any approaching relation in commercial lines and the money market seems to have turned the corner—at least for the present. Cotton and woolen goods retain their gain of last week, though partly on account of the idleness of many mills. The wool market is steady, notwithstanding the absence of demand from large producers of goods. In all branches of iron and steel manufacture requirements are much in excess of available stocks. Another feature was the greater activity in structural material for bridges and buildings, while the large tonnage of steel rails already placed did not prevent further orders. The recent advance in plates failed to diminish business. Faith in the future is evidenced by more plans for the erection of new mills with enormous capacity.

The outlook for this year's crop of cotton has been ascertained by a careful canvass of the southern states. Correspondents of R. G. Dun & Co. report that planting averages about two weeks later than usual owing to heavy rains. While there is reason to anticipate a large acreage, cancellation of many orders for fertilizers show that the sharp decline in cotton prices had the beneficial result of restricting operations to some extent. Planters have encountered some difficulty in securing sufficient labor owing to that great demnad in other industries and it is expected that the cost of planting and picking the current crop will be greater than usual on this account.

Armed Miners Leave Indiana.

About six hundred coal miners gathered from Southern Indiana point left Evansville, Ind., by steamboat for East Wood Landing, Ky., to endeavor to close down the union mines in Western Kentucky. The first point to which their attention will be directed is Zebree, which is about two miles from the point of landing. About ten days ago the United Mine Workers of America in Kentucky adopted a new scale of wages which is about 33 per cent below the Indiana scale adopted at Terre Haute some weeks ago. This difference in wages caused a complete paralysis of the mines in Southern Indiana. The object of the Indiana miners is to get the co-operation of the Kentucky miners in an adjustment of the difference, s both being competitors in the same field of distribution.

Insane Man Shoots.

A horrible tragedy was enacted about five miles west of Humbolt, Tenn., in which John B. Tatum was shot and instantly killed by Freeman Patterson, a man 72 years of age. It is claimed by some that Patterson was insane at the time of the shooting.

Chile Wants No Fight.

The rumors current at Santiago De Chile of difficulties between Chile and Argentine Repulhic are without foundation. Nothing has occurred between the governments of the two countries to cause anxiety.

Moulton is Improved.

Richards Hayden Moulton of Tennessee who tried to kill May Buckley, an actress, is in a little better condition physically. He does not improvementally, however.

Victoria Memorial.

Pierpont Morgan and J. P. Morgan and Company have each auscribed £1000 to the Victoria memorial.

Will Build Large Tow Boat.

The Iowa Iron Works at Dubuque, Iowa were awarded a contract to build the largest tow boat in the world for the Monongahela Coal Company, Pittsburg. The boat will be able to tow fifty steel barges and will cost a quarter of a million

Standard Oil Company Increase Stock

The Standard Oil Company will declare a dividend about May 1st. At the same time the plan will probably be adopted of increasing the capital stock of the company from $100,000,000 to $400,000,000.

Dog Fight Causes Killing.

Frank Lutz, a farmer 25 years of age and unmarried, was killed by James Childrens, also a farmer, on Stull's farm, a few miles from Newburn, Tenn. Lutz was brained with a hand stick which farmers use at a log rolling.

Magistrate J. H. Little committed suicide at his home in Paducah, Ky., taking morphine.

Many Arms Are Bared For Injection While Physicians Who Are Famous For Their Dissection.

Jacksonville, Fla., April 12. Jacksonville has got the smallpox. It is not a panic, for there has been no deaths, but there are about forty cases and the board of health have got them out of town and have ordered universal vaccination. A child can't go to school without a sore arm and a certificate from the doctor. Wyman is a doctor here and it interests me to note the flocks of children who come and go, and to listen to the talk. Mothers or sisters come with them to keep their courage up. Some are timid and some are brave. Young men come at night and take their leave, and the city will soon be [illegible]

What a wonderful discovery it was—only a hundred years ago Dr. Jenner dared to proclaim it to the world, and it took twenty-five years to make the world believe it. Now every child that bares its arm to receive the virus is a living monument to the sagacity of that great and good man. It is pathetic to read how he was hounded and persecuted by the envious and contemptuous of the medical profession. How patiently he waited for time and truth to prove his theory, and lived to see it all confirmed, and, when he died a beautiful monument was erected in Trafalgar square to honor his name and perpetuate his fame and memory. Our own Dr. Crawford Long is entitled to a similar memorial, not only by the state, but by the nation, for although he did not protect us from a pestilence, he did give them immunity from pain under the surgeon's knife. I remember well when the patient had to clinch his teeth and strong men had to hold him while the doctor cut and sawed his limb in two.

I remember when it was my part to hold the foot and leg that was being removed from a poor sufferer, and when at last the saw had cut through the bone and the weight of the limb came upon me I fainted and fell down upon the floor with the bleeding leg. That Evans never groaned. He lived to wear another pair of boots. I was when at college, in 1846, I had a tooth extracted and took what was then called Morton's Letheon, and I didn't know when it was pulled. It took me some time to get over it, and as I was reeling back to college I met Professor McCoy, and in a hilarious manner slapped him on the shoulder and said: "Hello, old Mack!" and he thought I was drunk and had me up before the faculty. My room mate, Darrell Cody, was with me and tried to explain, but the professor wouldent hear him and we had fun the next morning when the truth came out. The professor apologized to me and not long after invited me to supper. Poor Bill Evans was there—good, loving Bill Evans. He was my classmate and I loved him, and mourned for him when he died. He had charge of the lunatic asylum at Macon for many years. Every now and then the boys come out. Just drop out and the procession moves on. I read of every one and I am sad, but that is all I can do. A friend in Atlanta asked me the other day, "Why dident you write something about Eugene Harris, your room mate and one of the truest, best and best men who ever lived." "Yours, of course," said I, "but how could I write." He was a friend indeed, a friend indeed—an aristocrat of birth, a gentleman in heart and manners. Lost everything by the war but the gentleman that was born in him. He died poor and was buried by friends, but he was a big-hearted gentleman to the very last. How kind he was to my wife and little children during the war, when they were fleeing from the foul invader and I was away. That's all! He was not a Christian in any sense, but he had a big heart and would have died for a friend. That's all! If I can't meet him in heaven, I shall be disappointed. My wife says he was the kindest she ever had when she was in the greatest distress.

My sister is about over and will soon be forgotten. I brought down some eggs for a little grandson. His mother dyed them for him and he was curious to know more about them and said to his mother, "Mamma, who is this Easter man and where does he live?" "He lives up in heaven," she said, "and his name is Jesus." "Is he selling eggs up there?" he asked. How those little chaps do puzzle us with their questions. Little Joe has the whooping cough and I want to take her medicine. "If she won't take it," said her mother, "she may die." "Well, mamma, if I die I will go to heaven, where God is, and he will give me a pony. Oh, the grown up people were as pure and innocent as the children. Of such little children to come unto us is the kingdom of heaven," is one of the sweetest verses in the Scriptures. The preachers may talk about the confession of faith and salvation, but the mothers want any better faith than is in their sons, and that other one, where he said of his child: "He cannot come to me, but I shall go to him," is another remark that I will think about mothers. Not one believes that one is lost, no matter how bad he was. The mother expects

What a wonderful discovery it was only a hundred years ago Dr. Jenner dared to propound it to the world, and it took twenty five years to make people believe it. Now every child that bares its arm to receive the virus is a living monument to the sagacity of that great and good man. The preachers may quarrel about the confession of faith of infant salvation, but the mothers don't want any better faith than is in that verse, and that other one, where David said of his child: "He cannot come to me, but I shall go to him." There is another remark that I will make about mothers. Not one believes her dead son is lost, no matter how bad he was. The mother expects to meet him in heaven and if he is not there how can she be happy? God knoweth. We do not. All that a poor mortal can do is to trust Him and do good.—BILL ARP, in Atlanta Constitution.

SCIENTIFIC AND INDUSTRIAL.

It is proposed to illuminate the Yosemite Falls, 2600 feet in height, by the use of twenty arc lights in connection with means for producing color effects. Some of the roads are also to be lighted with electricity.

Henry B. Miller, United States Consul at Shanghai, declares that the consumption of flour is rapidly increasing in China, and he argues from this fact that there will soon be a great demand in that country not only for American flour, but also for mill machinery.

Although an order for machinery to cut a tunnel a mile and a half long on the Manchurian Railway has only just been placed (in America), it is hoped that the tunnel may be completed in a year's time. The road will then be opened and afford a through route from Europe to the Pacific coast.

The Ontario government has reserved 1,400,000 acres of wild land near Lake Temagami, a great lake lying west of Lake Temiscaming, on the Upper Ottawa. This will be used as a national park where the timber will be preserved, and the game will be allowed to increase. The number of beavers and deer is increasing.

A United States Treasury report estimates the present yearly consumption of corn by hogs, at least eight thousand million bushels, or thirty-eight per cent. of the present crop, and the average consumption by each hog at not far from twenty bushels, and total number slaughtered the past year over rather than under forty millions.

An attempt is being made to free the streams of Louisiana and Florida from the water hyacinth. Hundreds of skiffs and small vessels have been caught by the water hyacinths, and are unable to get out of the streams in which they were used. The drainage canals in New Orleans are in peril, and the logging industry of Southern Louisiana is in danger of destruction. There is room for a new and successful process.

In experimenting with the Gray and Mundy submarine telegraph recently, an 800-pound bell was let down into the ocean twenty feet below the surface. It was found that when the bell was tolled by means of mechanism the sound could be easily heard on a ship a mile away, without any sort of connecting apparatus, the sound waves being transmitted through the water, which is, of course, a much better conductor than air. By the aid of microphone attachments the bell was heard at a distance of twelve miles.

Origin of Writing.

Arthur J. Evans, discoverer of the remains of a great prehistoric palace at Knossos, in Crete, which is believed to be the original of the fabled "Labyrinth," says that the revelations made there carry back the existence of written documents on Greek soil some eight centuries beyond the earliest known monuments of Greek writing, and five centuries beyond the earliest dated Phoenician record as seen on the Moabite stone. These discoveries, therefore, "place the whole question of the origin of writing on a new basis."

Mr. Evans thinks that the Cretan hieroglyphs exactly correspond with what, in virtue of their names, we must suppose to have been the pictorial originals of the Phoenician letters on which the alphabet is based. Among these are aleph, the ox's head; beth, the house; daleth, the door, and so forth. This contravenes the old theory of De Rouge that the Phoenician letters were derived from early Egyptian forms signifying quite different objects.—Youth's Companion.

Renovating Royal Palaces.

Whenever there is a new reign in Russia all the churches in Moscow are painted and regilded. A new reign in England is the signal for the renovation of palaces. All town and country palaces belonging to the Crown will be repaired, decorated and improved during the period of mourning at the expense of the State. Many changes will be made at Windsor, and Buckingham Palace will be transformed internally. Many alterations will be required before these cold, inartistic apartments can be adapted to the requirements of a permanent home for the King and Queen. Many of these rooms are lighted by candles, but a circuit of electric light will be extended from the ballroom, drawing room and throne room to every section of the palace. The gardens will need little attention, as the turf is perfect, the lake picturesquely bordered with lawns, and every tree in the forty acres shapely and well ordered.—London correspondence New York Tribune.

A Family Hint.

When the children gather around your table for their meals do they hear growls about their neighbors or an intelligent discussion of current events? Every grown person remembers what his parents used to talk about; it is one of the indelible memories of his childhood. It is very important that children should not hear growling or gossip.—Atchison Globe.

A New York judge has made a ruling tending to materially lessen the use of expert handwriting testimony. This looks like a serious blow to a thriving American industry.

MAKING ARTIFICIAL PERFUMES.

Vanilla From Cloves, Violets From Orris Root and Lilacs From Turpentine.

The manufacture of artificial perfumes is acquiring importance as an industry, having been started originally by the Germans, but taken up recently on a large scale in France. Many wonderful imitations in this line have already been evolved in the chemical laboratory, and more are promised. The substance to which the tonka bean and new-mown hay owe their odors has been discovered newly in a Florida herb known to botanists as liatris odoratissima, and is being utilized in perfumery. Rose oil, ylang-ylang, lavender oil and other valuable essential oils derive their scents from a combination of a number of ingredients. They are, in fact, blends, and to determine the constituents and reproduce them is an intricate problem.

Nevertheless, the problem has been attacked with astonishing success, though its difficulties are suggested by the fact, which is mentioned for the sake of illustration, that the oil of rose owes its odor to no fewer than seven different chemical ingredients. A substance called "turpineol," easily obtained from turpentine oil, has a powerful odor of lilac, and on this account is extensively used in the manufacture of perfumes. From oil of orris (extracted from orris root) is got "ketone," which has the smell of fresh violets, and so may be used in place of an extract of the latter.

Vanillin, the odoriferous principle of the vanilla bean, was reproduced by synthesis as long ago as 1874, and several methods of making it have been patented since then, but at present it is obtained mainly from oil of cloves, and the product has practically driven the vanilla bean out of the market for perfumery and confectionery. Nearly related to it is a substance called "piperonal," prepared from oil of sassafras and oil of camphor, which has a strong scent resembling heliotrope, and is much used under the name of "heliotropin."

The odoriferous principle of bitter almond oil has been reproduced by synthesis.

WORDS OF WISDOM.

Sorrow's best antidote is employment.

Loyalty to truth may be treason among the loyal.

The children of our brain are often treated like orphans.

Contempt is the only way to triumph over calumny.

All cruelty springs from hard-heartedness and weakness.

The Golden Rule is still the rarest exception in the world.

The drama of life is the greatest problem play of them all.

The realizations of our dreams are often beyond our recognition.

Your best friend is the one who gave you an introduction to yourself.

The usual fortune of complaint is to excite contempt more than pity.

Consideration is the roll in which wisdom may be expected to grow, and strength be given to every upspringing plant of duty.

All the while that thou livest ill, thou hast the trouble, distraction and inconvenience of life, but not the sweet and true use of it.

Mediaeval Architectural Models.

Mediaeval times have transmitted to the moderns one glory, at least, in which they can never be surpassed—their noble and stately, or graceful and beautiful architectural models. It was in the twelfth and following centuries that there arose in France and England, Belgium and Holland, Germany, Italy and Spain, the cathedrals and abbeys which display so much varied excellence of general composition, along with the beauties attached to intricacy of parts, elegance of form and skilful use of light and shade. The rounded arch of the severe and massive Norman style gave way to the pointed arch of the Gothic, a style of building which soon displayed the profusion of ornament seen in the cathedrals of Amiens and other French towns. The cathedrals of Milan and Cologne, the latter of which has been only recently completed, belong to the fifteenth century. The Milan work is a wonder, a dream of white marble, bristling with pinnacles and statues, and without a rival in its own way.—American Cultivator.

Presuming Upon Ignorance.

It never pays to presume on either the ignorance or the unappreciativeness of the reader. The boy on the farm, the clerk—boy or girl—in the city store, the country merchant or the city man or woman of means can be appealed to all alike in the same sort of way, if that way be the right way. The theatre is a good example of this. The people who pay ten cents to stand in the upper gallery are pleased with the same performance which is also applauded by the merchant, the manufacturer, the banker, who sit in the front rows of the orchestra at two dollars a seat.—Advertising Experience.

They Met Their Match.

At an evening party the other night one of the guests made a novel bet. He placed three jugs in a row. Tying a piece of stout string to the handle of the first one, he threaded it through the handle of the second jug, and tied it again to the handle of the third jug.

Then he offered to bet the other guests that he would free the middle jug without untying or cutting the string. Many took up the challenge and wagered he could not do it. When all was agreed the man who had made the bet calmly lit a match and burnt the string through and took the bet.—London Answers.

REV. DR. TALMAGE.

DISCOURSE BY THE EMINENT DIVINE LAST SUNDAY.

Subject: Religion as an Exhilaration—Christianity in Uplifting and Dispels Melancholia and Gloom—Fate of Young Men Who Go to For Sinful Amusements

(Copyright 1901.)

WASHINGTON, D. C.—In this discourse Dr. Talmage sets forth religion as an exhilaration, and urges all people to try its uplifting power; text, Proverbs iii. 17, "Her ways are ways of pleasantness."

You have all heard of God's only begotten Son. Have you heard of God's daughter? She was born in heaven. She came down over the hills of our world. She had queenly step. On her brow was celestial radiance. Her voice was music. Her name is religion. My text introduces her. "Her ways are ways of pleasantness, and all her paths are peace." But what is religion? The fact is that theological study has had a different effect upon me from the effect sometimes produced. Every year I tear out another leaf from my theology until I have only three or four leaves left—in other words, a very brief and plain statement of Christian belief.

An aged Christian minister said: "When I was a young man, I knew everything; when I got to be thirty-five years of age, in my creed I had only a hundred doctrines of religion; when I got to be forty years of age I had only fifty doctrines of religion; when I got to be sixty years of age I had only ten doctrines of religion, and now I am dying at seventy-five years of age, and there is only thing I know, and that is that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners." And so I have noticed in the study of God's word, and in my contemplation of the character of God and of the eternal world, that it is necessary for me to drop this part of my belief and that part of my belief as being nonessential, while I cling to the one great doctrine that man is a sinner, and Christ is his Almighty, and divine Saviour.

Now, I take these three or four leaves of my theology, and I find that, in the first place and dominant above all others, is the sunshine of religion. When I go into a room I have a passion for throwing open all the shutters. That is what I want to do this morning. We are apt to throw so much of the sepulchral into our religion and to close the shutters and to pull down the blinds that is only through here and there a crevice that the light streams. The religion of the Lord Jesus Christ is a religion of joy indescribable and unutterable. Wherever I can find a bell I mean to ring it.

If there are any in this house this morning who are disposed to hold on to their melancholy and gloom, let them now depart this service before the fairest and brightest and the most radiant being of all the universe comes in. God's Son has left our world, but God's daughter is here. Give her room! Hail, Princess of Heaven! Hail, daughter of the Lord God Almighty! Come in and make this house thy throne-room!

In setting forth this idea, the dominant theory of religion is one of sunshine, I hardly know where to begin, for there are so many thoughts that rush upon my soul. A mother saw her little child seated on the floor in the sunshine and with a spoon in her hand. She said, "My darling, what are you doing there?" "Oh," replied the child, "I am getting a spoonful of this sunshine." Would God that to-day I might present you with a gleaming chalice of this glorious, everlasting gospel sunshine!

First of all, I find a great deal of sunshine in Christian society. I do not know of anything more doleful than the companionship of the mere funmakers of the world—the Thomas Hoods, the Charles Lambs, the Charles Mathewses of the world—the men whose entire business it is to make sport.

They make others laugh, but if you will examine their autobiography or biography you will find that down in their soul there was a terrific disquietude. Laughter is no sign of happiness. The maniac laughs. The hyena laughs. The loon among the Adirondacks laughs. The drunkard, dashing his decanter against the wall, laughs.

There is a terrible reaction from all sinful amusement and sinful merriment. Such men are cross the next day. They snap at you on exchange or they pass you, not recognizing you. Long ago I quit mere worldly society for the reason it was so dull, so inane and so stupid. My nature is voracious of joy. I must have it.

I always walk on the sunny side of the street, and for that reason I have crossed over into Christian society. I like their mode of repartee better. I like their style of amusement better. They live longer. Christian people, I sometimes notice, live on when by all natural law they ought to have died. I have known persons who have continued in their existence when the doctor said they ought to have been dead ten years. Every day of their existence was a defiance of the laws of anatomy and physiology, but they had this supernatural vivacity of the gospel in their soul, and that kept them alive.

Put ten or twelve Christian people in a room for Christian conversation, and you will from eight to ten o'clock hear more resounding glee, see more bright strokes of wit and find more thought and profound satisfaction than in any merely worldly party. Now, when I say a "worldly party," I mean that to which you are invited because under all the circumstances of the case it is better that you go, and, leaving the shawls on the second floor, you go to the parlor to give formal salutation to the host and the hostess and then move around, spending the whole evening in the discussion of the weather and in apology for treading on long trains and in effort to keep the corners of the mouth up to the sign of pleasure and going around with an idiotic he-he about nothing until the collation is served and then, after the collation is served, going back again into the parlor to resume the weather and then at the close going at a very late hour to the host and hostess and assuring them that you have had a most delightful evening and then passing down off the front steps, the slam of the door the only satisfaction of the evening.

O young man come from the country to spend your days in city life, where are you going to spend your evenings? Let me tell you, while there are many places of innocent worldly amusement, it is most wise for you to throw your body, mind and soul into Christian society. Come to me at the close of five years and tell me what has been the result of this advice. Bring with you the young man who refused to take the advice, and who went into sinful amusement. He will come dissipated, shabby in apparel, indisposed to look any one in the eyes, moral character eighty-five per cent. off. You will come with principle settled, countenance frank, habits good, soul saved, and all the inhabitants of heaven, from the lowest angel up to the archangel and clear past him to the Lord God Almighty, your coadjutors.

This is not the advice of a misanthrope. There is no man in the house to whom the world is brighter than it is to me. It is not the advice of a dyspeptic—my digestion is perfect; it is not the advice of a man who cannot understand a joke or who prefers a funeral; it is not the advice of a worn-out man, but the advice of a man who can see this world in all its brightness, and considering myself competent in judging what is good cheer I tell the multitudes of young men that there is nothing in worldly associations so grand and so beautiful and so exhilarant as in Christian society.

I know there is a great deal of talk about the self denials of the Christian. I have to tell you that where the Christian has one self denial the man of the world has a thousand self denials. The Christian is not commanded to surrender anything that is worth keeping. But what does a man deny himself who denies himself the religion of Christ? He denies himself pardon for sin; he denies himself peace of conscience; he denies himself the joy of the Holy Ghost; he denies himself a comfortable death pillow; he denies himself the glories of heaven. Do not talk to me about the self denials of the Christian life. Where there is one in the Christian life there are a thousand in the life of the world. "Her ways are ways of pleasantness."

Again, I find a great deal of religious sunshine in Christian and divine explanation. To a great many people life is an inexplicable tangle. Things turn out differently from what was supposed. There is a useless woman in perfect health. There is an industrious and consecrated woman a complete invalid. Explain that. There is a bad man with $30,000 of income. There is a good man with $800 of income. Why is that? There is a foe of society who lives on, doing all the damage he can, to seventy-five years of age, and here is a Christian father, faithful in every department of life, at thirty-five years of age taken away by death, his family left helpless. Explain that. Oh, there is no sentence that oftener drops from your lips than this: "I cannot understand it; I cannot understand it."

Well, now religion comes in just at that point with its illumination and its explanation. There is a business man who has lost his entire fortune. The week before he lost his fortune there were twenty carriages that stopped at the door of his mansion. The week after he lost his fortune all the carriages you could count on one finger. The week before financial trouble began people all took off their hats to him as he passed down the street. The week his financial prospects were under discussion people just touched their hats without anywise bending the rim. The week that he was pronounced insolvent people just jolted their heads as they passed, not tipping their hats at all, and the week the sheriff sold him out all his friends were looking in the store windows as they went down past him.

Now, while the world goes away from a man while he is in financial distress, the religion of Christ comes to him and says: "You are sick, and your sickness is to be moral purification. You are bereaved. God wanted in some way to take your family to heaven, and He must begin somewhere, and so He took the one that was most beautiful and was ready to go." I do not say that religion explains everything in this life, but I do say it lays down certain principles which are grandly consolatory. You know business men often telegraph in cipher. The merchant in San Francisco telegraphs to the merchant in New York certain information in cipher which no other men in that line of business can understand, but the merchant in San Francisco has the key to the cipher, and the merchant in New York has the key to the cipher, and on that information transmitted there are enterprises involving hundreds of thousands of dollars. Now, the providences of life sometimes seem to be senseless rigmarole, a mysterious cipher, but God has a key to that cipher, and the Christian a key to that cipher, and though he may hardly be able to spell out the meaning he gets enough of the meaning to understand that it is for the best.

Oh, what an observatory in which to study astronomy heaven will be, not by power of telescope, but by supernatural vision, and, if there be something doubtful 10,000,000 miles away, by one stroke of the wing you are there, by another stroke of the wing you are back again, and all in less time than I tell you, catching it all in one flash of eternity.

And geology! What a place that will be to study geology when the world is being picked to pieces as easily as a schoolgirl in botanical lessons pulls the leaf from the corolla! What a place to study architecture, amid the thrones and the palaces and the cathedrals—St. Mark's and St. Paul's rookeries in comparison.

Sometimes you wish you could make the tour of the whole earth, going around as others have gone, but you have not the time, you have not the means. You will make the tour yet during one musical pause in the eternal anthem. I say these things for the comfort of those people who are abridged in their opportunities—those people to whom life is humdrum, who toil and work and toil and work and aspire after knowledge, but have no time to get it and say, "If I had the opportunities which other people have, how I would fill my mind and soul with great thoughts!" Be not discouraged, my friends. You are going to the university yet. Death will only matriculate you into the royal college of the universe.

What a sublime thing it was that Dr. Thornwell, of South Carolina, uttered in his last dying moments! As he looked up he said, "It opens; it expands, it expands." Or as Mr. Toplady, the author of "Rock of Ages," in his last moment or during his last hours looked up and said, as though he saw something supernatural, "Light!" and then as he came on nearer the dying moment, his countenance more luminous, he cried, "Light!" and at the very moment of his departure lifted both hands, something supernatural in his countenance as he cried "Light!" Only another name for sunshine.

Besides that, we shall have all the pleasures of association. We will go right up in the front of God without any fright. All our sins gone, there will be nothing to be frightened about. There our old Christian friends will troop around us. Just as now one of your sick friends goes away to Florida, the land of flowers, or to the south of France, and you do not see him for a long while, and after awhile you meet him, and the hollows under the eyes are all filled, and the appetite has come back, and the crutch has been thrown away, and he is so changed you hardly know him. You say, "Why, I never saw you look so well." He says: "I couldn't help but be well. I have been sailing these rivers and climbing these mountains, and that's how I got this elasticity. I never was so well." Oh, my friends, your departed loved ones are only away for their health in a better climate, and when you meet them they will be so changed you will hardly know them, they will be so much changed, and after awhile, when you are assured that they are your friends, your departed friends, you will say: "Why, where is that cough? Where is that paralysis? Where is that pneumonia? Where is that consumption?" And he will say: "Oh, I am entirely well! There is no sick ones in this country. I have been ranging these hills and hence this elasticity. I have been here now twenty years, and not one sick one have I seen. We are all well in this climate."

And then I stand at the gate of the celestial city to see the processions come out, and I see a long procession of little children with their arms full of flowers, and then I see a procession of kings and priests moving in celestial pageantry—a long procession, but no black traveled vehicle, no mourning group—and I say: "How strange it is! Where is your Greenwood? Where is your Laurel Hill? Where is your Westminster Abbey?" And they shall cry, "There are no graves here." And then listen for the tolling of the old bell-frien of heaven, the old belfries of eternity. I listen to hear them toll for the dead, but they toll not for the dead. They only strike up a silvery chime, tower to tower, east gate to west gate, as they ring out, "They shall hunger no more, neither thirst any more, neither shall the sun light on them nor any heat, for the Lamb which is in the midst of the throne shall lead them to living fountains of water, and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes."

THE SABBATH SCHOOL

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR APRIL 28.

Subject: Jesus Appears to the Apostles, John xx., 19-29—Golden Text, John xx., 29—Memory Verses, 19, 20—Commentary on the Day's Lesson.

19. "The same day." It is still the resurrection day, Sunday, the Lord's day. "At evening." The events of the day had been many and important, but now, at the close of the day, Jesus appears to all the disciples. He would have appeared to them in the morning had they been assembled then. "Doors were shut." And probably bolted. "For fear." There is nothing to show that the Jews designed to molest the disciples, but because they had put Christ to death they had reason to fear that they might be the next victims. "In the midst." He evidently entered miraculously. In verse 20 John refers to the fact that the doors were shut in a way to leave but little doubt that he intends to convey the impression that Christ entered by His own power while they were shut. "Peace be unto you." His usual salutation and benediction. May every blessing of heaven and earth which your lips than this: "I cannot understand it; I cannot understand it."

20. "Had so said." Luke makes mention of several things that took place before He showed them His hands and side. See chap. 24: 37, 38. Here we see how terrified they were, supposing they had seen a spirit. All these references to the great difficulty with which the disciples accepted the fact of the resurrection of Jesus are given to strengthen our faith in the fact. There was no collusion among the disciples to show that Jesus was alive, but they themselves were convinced against their wills, against their prejudices, against their expectations. He then gently reproved them by asking why they were troubled and why they permitted anxious reasonings and questionings to arise in their minds. "Shewed unto them." The wounds were probably all perfectly healed, but the scars remained. "His hands and His side." Luke says hands and feet. This leaves no doubt that Jesus was nailed to the cross and not tied on as many were. Jesus told them to handle Him (Luke 24: 39), which they probably did. "Glad." They were terrified at first, but when they knew Him they were glad. There is great joy in the resurrection for every one. "When they saw." A sight of Christ will gladden the heart of a disciple at any time. It was at this time that He gave to them another proof that He was the same Jesus whom they had known. He called for food (Luke 24: 41—43) and did eat before them. Afterward the apostles called attention to what now occurred as a proof of their Lord's resurrection. Acts 10: 41. He ate before them, not because He had need of food for the body, but because they had need of faith for the soul. There is a great mystery in connection with Christ's resurrection body. There are several opinions concerning it. 1. That after His resurrection He had a spiritual body, similar to what our bodies will be after our resurrection. 2. That He had a body the same in substance as before the crucifixion, but endowed with new properties and powers. 3. That He had a body the same in substance and attributes as He had before His crucifixion, and that this was changed into His glorious resurrection body at the ascension.

21. "Hath sent Me." As I was sent to proclaim the truth of the Most High, and to convert sinners to God, I send you for the very same purpose, clothed with authority and influenced by the Spirit.

22. "Breathed on them." Intimating by this that they were to be made new men; for in this act He evidently alluded to the creation of man when God breathed into Him the breath of lives and He became a living soul. "Receive ye the Holy Ghost." Out of His fulness their minds and hearts were to be filled, and thus they would be prepared to carry on the work after He had left them.

23. "Ye remit," etc. See Revised Version. Compare Matt. 16: 19. One thing is certain, God only can forgive sins; to declare anything else would be blasphemous. But Christ gave power and authority to the apostles in the establishing of His church that has not been transmitted to the church. Since the church could not be organized or the full gospel preached till after the death and resurrection of Jesus, He must have some authoritative representatives on earth to whom, under the guidance of the Holy Spirit, could be committed the decision of all questions and interpretations that would necessarily arise. They who believed on the Son of God, in consequence of the preaching of the apostles, had their sins remitted; and they who would not believe were declared to lie under condemnation.

24. "Thomas." This was His Hebrew name, and Didymus His Greek name; both meant "a twin." "Was not with them." This was one of the principal causes of the unbelief of this apostle. He should have been at his post with the rest, then he would have seen and heard Jesus, and would have received the blessings and encouragement that the others received.

25. "Except I shall see." Thomas would not believe the testimony of the ten apostles. He is most unreasonable and obstinate in his unbelief. "I will not believe." Thomas is so certain that it can not be so that he is determined not to be convinced; he will not accept ordinary evidence.

26. "After eight days." One week from that time on the next Lord's day night. Again they were met for religious worship and this time Thomas was with them; probably encouraged to be present by what the other apostles had told him. "Then came Jesus." Jesus will always be present with those who meet in His name.

27. "Reach hither." Our Lord meets him in His own language, and this was a rebuke to Thomas, showing him that Jesus, though not present, knew all the hard, unbelieving things he had said. "But believing." There is evidence sufficient. It will be well for every one to heed these words of Christ to Thomas; let us "have faith in God."

28. "Thomas answered." Overwhelmed with the fact of Christ's presence, he did not hold out an instant. "My God." I confess Thy divine knowledge and power and prostrate myself before Thee as the great God. Thomas was the first who gave the title of God to Jesus. The slowness of Thomas to believe ought to strengthen our faith. The disciples were cautious and accepted nothing that they did not know was founded on fact.

29. "And yet have believed." The faith of Thomas would have been more pleasing to Christ if he had believed at once. Let us receive the testimony of those who have seen Him, remembering that there are peculiar blessings in store for those who have not seen and yet have believed.

This is assuredly the generation of the specialist in all professions and all lines of business. One of the latest additions to the ever-swelling ranks is the photographer who makes a specialty of women's photographs. And while he is most successful in his chosen line, strange to say he is not an adept in the art of flattering the sitter to the point that the picture bears scarcely any likeness to the original. Rather, he produces a series of portraits, each one depicting some passing mood or characteristic, so that one's friends can choose the one which seems to each most natural.

CIRCUIT COURT will convene for the spring term at Clanton on Monday, May 13.

THE Constitutional Convention has carried the State by about thirty thousand majority, and the Convention will therefore meet in Montgomery on May 21.

FROM the best information at hand from all the boxes, Mr. Reynold received 1055 votes and Dr. Caffey 335. About the same number of votes were cast on the straight question of convention or no convention, although it seems probable that Reynolds has run ahead of the ticket.

So much has been said and written about the possible disfranchisement of some of the citizens of Alabama, and so many suggestions have been made as to the best means of meeting the requirements of the fifteenth amendment to the Federal Constitution, that it appears strange that the most simple method seems to have been overlooked. Why not give every registered voter a ballot and let him mark it himself without any assistance from a marker? An exception might be made in the case of old illiterate Confederate soldiers and sailors, and those physically disabled on account of blindness or inability to use their hands, and these should select one of the managers to mark their ballot. Dispense with the markers, and let every man vote his own ticket. If he cannot do so he simply disfranchises himself, and it would be a great incentive to him to acquire at least some education. If any departure is to be made from universal suffrage under the existing system, this would seem to be a feasable plan, and would certainly not conflict with the Federal Constitution.

The cotton crop in Alabama has been permanently damaged from 15 to 20 per cent, was an opinion expressed by Col. Falkner yesterday, and from other sources we learn that a large acreage will have to be replanted, while seed is scarce and hard to get. Corn does not appear to have suffered.

THE SPEAKING AT CLANTON.

Probably the most interesting debate ever held in Chilton county was that of last Saturday at Clanton. The court house was well filled and for over three hours the four speakers kept the rapt attention of the audience to the extent that scarcely a man left his seat until the close of the meeting. The speakers on both sides were at their very best, and made their arguments in good temper and without prejudice to their opponents. Each recognized and freely acknowledged that the other was honestly contending for what he considered the best interests of the State.

Hon. L. B. Pounds, chairman of the Populist Executive Committee, called the meeting to order and introduced the speakers.

Hon. Jesse Stallings, of Butler county, was the first speaker. He said the object of Democracy is good government, in the same way that the object of religion is the salvation of souls. The State Constitution must of necessity be inferior to the Federal Constitution. We want, first, fair elections. You cannot have it with universal suffrage. The Democratic party wants fair elections and to stand upon a higher plane of morality. Mr. Stallings concluded his speech by saying that if every pledge made by the Democratic party is not faithfully kept he would fight it upon every stump throughout the State.

Hon. L. H. Reynolds said he could not understand the Democratic party adopting a policy which would diminish their power. If they did that he would consider them political fools. In 1892, if it had not been for the negro vote in the black belt, the Populist party would have acquired the control of the State. The Democratic party could not disfranchise the negro without disfranchising the illiterate white man.

Dr. R. M. Cunningham, of Jefferson, was the next speaker. He said that good government preserved the permanent rights of man, and was in the interests of communities. If the Democratic party was to be kept in power by fraud at the ballot box it means ruin to the State. The Democratic party now was appealing to the people of Alabama to relieve them of the necessity of fraudulent elections. We should do the best we can in the fear of God and the honest discharge of our duties. The Democratic party of to-day proposes the Initiative and Referendum. From a partisan standpoint, what in the name of common sense could the Democratic party want more than it had now? They had both U. S. Senators, all the Congressmen, the Governor and all State officers, and a nearly unanimous legislature. But they recognized it was necessary for the best interests of the State that we should have honest elections, and that was what they were asking for.

Judge. S. M. Adams made one of his happiest speeches, in the course of which he said that if the Democratic party only kept their pledges, the first election after the convention was held would be good by to the Democratic party. If these pledges were faithfully kept the Democratic party would have more applications for membership than they would care to have.

AT THORSBY

On Saturday night the school house at Thorsby was packed and a rousing meeting was held.

Chairman Pounds opened the proceedings and introduced Mr. L. H. Reynolds who spoke for fifteen minutes. He was followed by Dr. Cunningham whose speech of one hour was on the same lines as his speech of the morning at Clanton.

Dr. Caffey briefly addressed the meeting outlining his position on the question at issue.

Then Judge Adams spoke for an hour in reply to Dr. Cunningham, after which Dr. Cunningham concluded the proceedings with a short speech and the meeting adjourned in high good humor.

THE CONFEDERATE REUNION.

Veterans will at the Confederate Reunion at Memphis have their own post office, which will be located in Confederate Hall, during the coming Reunion. Uncle Sam is determined that the ex-soldiers shall have everything comfortable, and to this end has agreed that the special postoffice be placed at the convenience of all the old veterans and their friends. A special man will be placed in charge of it and all mail arriving for visitors of the Reunion or members of the different commands of Confederate Veterans or Sons of Veterans will be delivered at the hall, will be there assorted and arranged for delivery, and any visitor expecting a letter from home can find it at headquarters. Each commandant of State headquarters will be furnished with a list of mail for any company or command in his division. Letters may also be delivered from this postoffice and stamps purchased.

This sub-department of Uncle Sam will be under the direction of Postmaster Dutro and will be given his personal attention. The suggestion has met with approval of the committee which appreciates thoroughly the interest taken in the success of the big Reunion by the postmaster.

Confederate Hall itself is in rapid progress of erection. Already the foundations and floors have been laid, and the raising of the immense arches which are to form the lugh skeleton for the lofty dome of the building has been accomplished. As the floor space will afford the largest dancing platform in the entire South, those upon whom will fall the task of providing for the social events of the Reunion are naturally more than interested in the success of the undertaking. Besides the official sponsors and maids of honor, the Daughters of the Confederacy and the Sons of Veterans are busily engaged in planning for the social success of the Reunion, which is thus far so assured that the numerous balls and receptions already arranged for promise to make the Reunion the most brilliant social event thus far known in the history of the Association.

Col. John W. A. Sanford has appointed Miss Glennie McMorries Maid of Honor for John W. A. Sanford Brigade United Confederate Veterans. We compliment the Brigade upon the selection of this accomplished young lady to accompany it to the reunion at Memphis.

Miss Alice Collier, daughter of Col. W. A. Collier, has been elected by the Clanton Camp sponsor.

AT REST.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. John Gore died on Sunday evening and was buried at Clanton Monday. The little one is at rest with Jesus.

Died on Sunday night Mrs. Alex White at her home one mile north of Clanton. She was buried at Corinth on Tuesday. A husband and three children mourn her loss, and with whom we sympathise in their bereavement.

The mortal remains of Eugene McRee were brought here from Rainer and interred in the cemetery at Clanton on Sunday. He was only twenty years of age and was a victim of consumption. His young days were spent in Clanton and his old home is his final testing place.

Holds Up A Congressman.

"At the end of the last campaign," writes Champ Clark, Missouri's brilliant Congressman, "from overwork, nervous tension, loss of sleep and constant speaking I had about utterly collapsed. It seemed that all the organs in my body were out of order, but three bottles of Electric Bitters made me all right. It is the best all-round medicine ever sold over a druggist's counter." Over worked, run-down men and weak, sickly women gain splendid health and vitality from Electric Bitters. Try them. Only 50c. Guaranteed by Clanton Drug co

AN UNUSUAL SHOWER.

A correspondent of The Clanton Banner tells us of a happening in Chilton county which has caused no little speculation and wonderment among the country people. The event was nothing less than a shower of bugs resembling potato bugs, and the writer says "it rained hard for about five minutes until the ground was literally covered." Showers of other things besides rain are not of very unusual occurrence, though they are always interesting and sometimes inexplicable. Lately there has been considerable comment about a fall of red dust which fell in some part of the country, and we believe it has not been satisfactorily explained. Falls of red snow have been several times noticed, the explanation not always being reasonable or satisfactory.

Showers of living objects are not unprecedented, either. Fish, especially, sometimes rain down, and the obvious explanation is that a miniature waterspout passing over a body of water carries up into the air the small fishes and when the suction of the current is disturbed the fishes come down. All who have been in or have visited the path of a cyclone know that it not infrequently takes up solid objects and transports them considerable distances before the power of the wind is broken, and then the objects fall to the ground. Small frogs are sometimes treated in the same way. People in the country are sometimes surprised after a long spell of rain to see the ground almost covered with earthworms, and at once imagine that they rained down, but in this case the explanation is more simple and natural. They have been driven out of their holes and burrows by the excess of water.

If the bug-shower story is literally true, the explanation may be found, possibly, in the same cause which explains the showers of frogs and fishes. They may have been drawn up by some cyclonic storm and deposited where The Banner correspondent found them, provided they are really potato-bugs. If, on investigation, they prove to be a new species of bug, the scientists will have to account for their appearance and tell whence they came. It would be hard if some erratic little cyclone has imposed on our people a new and unfriendly pest, but it would be a rich find for the entomologists. We hope some of the people of Chilton preserved specimens of their unexpected visitors and will have them classified. At any rate, a shower of bugs is a new contribution from the clouds—Montgomery Advertiser.

AGRICULTURAL.

Feeding a Large Herd.

My practice in feeding milch cows in the past has been silage in the morning, hay or oat fodder at noon and dry corn fodder, cut a few days ahead, at night. The morning and night feeds are mixed with a grain ration of cornmeal, mixed feed and gluten, cottonseed meal or linseed meal. I like the latter best, but think a change is good. I am governed somewhat by the quality of the coarse fodder. I don't cut much marsh hay. Have large silo capacity and have had excellent results from feeding silage. My silos are round, built of wood, twenty by twenty feet. The accompanying plan is of my new stock barn just finished in which I can tie up 100 head on one floor. It has eight box stalls in annex, also calf bins and place for bulls by themselves. The barn has twenty-four foot posts and no cellar. I feed grain feed until cold weather, commencing with winter rye about May 10 and ending with barley.—B. F. Smith, in New England Homestead.

MR. SMITH'S NEW STOCK BARN.

Bee Pastures.

While it would not likely be a paying venture to sow crops for no other purpose than for bee pasture, there are some crops which may be grown on the farm which will yield paying crops of themselves, and will also yield a good crop of honey without injury to the crop.

Of the crops that may be grown to advantage as honey producers and as paying crops I know nothing better than scarlet or crimson clover and buckwheat. The buckwheat should be sown about the middle of July, and about one gallon of crimson clover seed per acre sown with it. The buckwheat will grow up rapidly and protect the young clover plants from the hot sun. In a few weeks the buckwheat will begin to bloom, and it will produce a good pasture for the bees for several weeks at a season of the year that bees are most in need of something to work upon. By the middle of September the farmer may reasonably expect to reap a paying crop of buckwheat, and also to leave the ground covered with a good stand of clover, which will grow up late in the fall and produce a good pasture for young stock in early winter. The clover will begin to bloom by the middle of May the next spring, and will afford a rich pasture for the bees for two or three weeks. The clover may be cut for hay by the tenth of June if desired, or it may be turned under and the ground be planted to late corn, or perhaps a better plan would be to cut the crop for hay, plow the ground and sow it to buckwheat and scarlet clover again. The clover roots will keep up the supply of nitrogen, and will bring up potash from the subsoil and deposit it near the surface. As a buckwheat crop takes only a small amount of potash from the soil the crop will need nothing but a light application of phosphate each year to keep up the fertility of the soil.—A. J. Legg, in The Epitomist.

Planting the Garden For Irrigation.

When I first began gardening three years ago, particular attention was paid to the laying out of the garden for the purpose of irrigation. The ground originally sloped from A to D and B to C, D and C being about eighteen inches lower than A and B. From A to B it was practically level, while at the other end it sloped from

GARDEN PLOT FOR FLOW OF WATER.

D to C. In laying out the garden I raked and moved the soil so as to reverse the slope at each end. The result was if water is let in at A and directed south in the west path, which is depressed about three inches, it will flow to B, then to C, and so along the east path to D. If I want to irrigate the plants of any given row, I put a dam in the west path opposite a point between this row and the next, and cut open the east side of the path opposite this row. The water will then run down the path to the dam, and so down the row and out of the garden at outlet as indicated. One advantage of this plan is that I can irrigate on a hot day without scalding. If I want to water a row of radishes, for instance, I would first take the Firefly plow, set it down two holes, and strike a furrow along the north side of the row, throwing the soil away from the plants, then turn on a gentle stream that will just nicely soak around the plants. After it is well wet in, run the plow the reverse way throwing the soil back against the plants. If the soil becomes too wet it is thrown back as soon as dry enough. The main point is to have a gentle stream. A fast one will overflow the furrow and run too fast and simply set the surface. This leaves the roots to grow near the surface and the plants show the effect of a hot sun. A slow stream soaks down, and I have often saturated the ground under the plant while the surface is yet dry.

Another advantage of this system of irrigation is the ease with which it is done. I can start the water on one side of the garden and go to work on the other, only stopping occasionally to change the water from one row to another. I watered the row of early cabbage more than the others, and had them mature and out of the way in time for a crop of celery, while the last heads in the adjoining rows were not matured until a month after the celery was set out. The greatest advantage of irrigation is that you can get the water when it is needed, and do not have to wait for a rain. Moles caused a great deal of annoyance, for many times I have found the water running down a mole hill instead of following along a row of plants. By using a blunt stick about one and a half inches in diameter to punch down the earth the hole will soon be blocked up.—J. B. Reynolds, in American Agriculturist.

The Strawberry Crop.

One of the crops that is among the first to receive attention in early spring is the strawberry. The plants that were set out early last spring will bear this year, and beds a year or two old will also produce crops according to the attention that has been bestowed upon them. It is not advisable to do more than cultivate between the rows of old beds, in order to remove any weeds or grass that may come up, as it may not be beneficial in some localities to disturb old beds, but fertilizers should now be applied on them, scattering it on the plants in the rows, which are usually mated. If this is deferred it may happen that the fertilizer will do injury should the plants be started in growth when fertilizer is applied. Manure should not now be used on old beds, as it may cause the berries to be injured later when they are ripe, as much of the manure will be undecomposed and consequently prove a hindrance to picking clean berries. Weeds are the cause of many old beds being unprofitable, and they will put in an appearance as soon as the strawberry plants start in growth. They cannot be worked out with a hoe from matted rows, hence must be removed by hand, the necessary labor depending upon the cultivation that was given last year. For old beds a dressing of fifty pounds nitrate of soda and 100 pounds muriate of potash per acre will suffice if the bed received fertilizer last summer. If not, then the quantity of fertilizer must be increased. Wood ashes may be used in place of the potash salt, but should be applied early if scattered over the matted rows.

New beds must be prepared in time to set out the young plants in April. Wood ashes are excellent on new beds. Plow the ground and work in fine with a harrow. Broadcast about twenty bushels or more per acre of wood ashes, and harrow the ground once or twice more. In place of the ashes, if preferred, use 200 pounds of muriate of potash. About 150 pounds of nitrate of soda and 200 pounds of acidulated phosphate rock should also be applied whether ashes or muriate of potash be used. Use only plants with large roots, which should be runners which started last year, selecting the strongest and most promising. Some of the best varieties are pistillate only, hence it will be necessary to use also a variety that is staminate in order that all the blossoms may be pollinated. The staminate varieties, however, are both staminate and pistillate, hence one variety of that kind will require no other, though it is better to have two varieties that they may exchange pollen, but care should be exercised in selecting varieties, as any two varieties should bloom at the same time. The rows should be sufficiently far apart to permit of the use of a horse hoe or hand wheel hoe, and the plants should also be set out with a suitable space between them for use of the hoe. Rows twenty-eight inches apart, with the plants fourteen inches distant from each other, will allow of cultivation with the wheel hoe, but for horse cultivation the distance between the rows should be about three and a half or four feet.

There is no "best" variety of strawberry for all sections. The soil and climate must be considered. If the crop is grown for market the shipping qualities of the berries and their size and appearance are very important. The best market berries may not be the best flavored, while some varieties will not thrive on heavy soils, others prefer sandy localities, few runners are produced by some, while certain varieties will die out on moist land, upon which other kinds have done well. Beginners should not attempt to select the varieties until having consulted growers in their neighborhood. The best variety in any locality is the one which has given the best results under the conditions to which it is subjected, yet that variety might prove unprofitable elsewhere. The preparation of the soil is a very important matter, and when the plants are in place the weeds and grass must be kept down. The hoe must be used between the plants until all weeds are obliterated, and the spaces between the rows should be cultivated whenever the ground is hard. During dry seasons a loose top soil is very beneficial to strawberry plants, and when the young plants are set out all the blossoms must be picked off or they will injure the growth of the plants. A loose soil is also favorable to the rooting of the runners if the matted row system is used.—Philadelphia Record.

A DOMESTIC CATASTROPHE.

The Husband Meant Well, But He Found The Work Uncongenial.

When the general superintendent of the household department is sick there is no amount of good will on the part of the rest of the family that will induce things to run smoothly. In this case the wife had the prevailing malady. As so often happens, the girl left just when she was most needed. She was paid what was coming to her one evening, and the only notice she gave appeared in her absence next morning. Then the husband came out at his best and declared himself.

"I'm a very busy man and this is one of my busiest seasons, but I'll be blanked if we'll have another girl round here to bunco us and increase mother's nervousness. Not while I've got a wiggle left in one, and they tell me I'm a mighty well preserved man. I'll work nights before I'll be imposed on. Half the women are cringing slaves to their hired help, and I'll not stand for it in my house. Not me. One thing I'm mighty glad about is that we use stoves, for I was raised with them and know all about them. Get the ash pans together here and I'll empty them in the alley."

Five were accumulated in short order, and the eldest daughter suggested that he "run out with them" two at a time. He looked at her pityingly, and piled the five up like boxes. He had rubbers over his slippers and his hat was pulled down to meet the upturned collar of his coat. "Just put that sieve full of dry garbage on top," he directed. Then he seized the load, looking to one side of it to pick his way, and gave orders that the coal pails be got together so that he could fill them.

The lower pan was hot, but he hung on grimly and hurried. The rubber dropped from one foot, the slipper slipped, and he came down so hard that he saw stars with his eyes shut. He was buried for a few minutes in ashes, garbage and pans. He kicked his way out and things that he said were more than enough to have him "churched." When his blinking eyes caught the neighbors laughing he scattered the pans, threw the sieve at a cat on the fence, recaptured the rubber, ran for the house and made the air sizzle while he was searching the directory for intelligence offices.—Detroit Free Press.

Best Legs in the World.

The most life-like and serviceable artificial legs in the world are manufactured in America. Enormous quantities of these limbs are shipped to Europe every year.

The first great boom in the artificial-leg business was brought about by the Civil War. Since that time railroad and trolley car accidents have kept up an ever-increasing demand. Another factor has been the general use of antiseptics. The mortality among those who have their legs amputated is far less than formerly, and a large proportion of the survivors become patrons of the wooden-leg factories.

The old-fashioned peg-leg is practically a thing of the past. The modern artificial leg shows a great advance over the old forms. Every improvement has been with the idea of greater simplicity.

The main object of the manufacturers is to improve the fit of the legs. The best models now cost $100. It costs from $5 to $25 a year to keep one of these in order.

Few women wear artificial legs. On the other hand, it is becoming more common to fit limbs to children. Legs are made for children sometimes before they can walk. They are fitted as soon as the child learns to stand and make it possible for it to develop symmetrically.—Chicago Chronicle.

A Rapid Postal Service.

That the postal service of Berlin has long been the model (as yet unattainable) for the rest of Europe is well known. But it is not equally matter of common knowledge that the excellence of the Berlin postal arrangements of yesterday no longer satisfies the postal authorities of to-day. The latest innovation has been a still more frequent clearing of the letter-boxes and a more rapid delivery than ever. The letter-boxes in the principal thoroughfares are now cleared every fifteen minutes during the busy hours of the day. The rapidity of delivery of letters recently even resulted in the saving of a human life. A girl determined to commit suicide, wrote to her parents of her intention and posted the letter, which was delivered within an hour of being posted. This enabled the father to hurry off in a cab to the spot in the Thiergarten which his daughter had mentioned as that where her body would be found, to catch her alive, box her ears, and take her home. —Sidney Whitman, in Harper's Magazine.

Chloroform Restored Its Victim.

The Diesbach family, of Atchison, had an old horse which had lived out its days of usefulness. At last it became so old and decrepit that it got down in the barn and could not get up. The family sent for a horse ambulance and turned the animal over to the town scavenger with money to buy chloroform with which to give the old horse an easy death. The horse was carefully conveyed to the boneyard and a pint of chloroform was soaked in a sponge and placed beneath its nose as it lay on the ground. After sniffing at the chloroform the horse jumped up, kicked out its heels and ran cavorting out into the country. And yet a man once wrote a book to prove that animals have no sense of humor.—Kansas City Journal.

A Trait of Augustin Daly.

A lovely trait of Mr. Daly's character was his tenderness and thought of children. I never knew him to pass a little newsboy on the street without buying a paper, and he always took the paper with a look in his eyes as much as to say: "We must help the boys to get a living." A beautiful trait, not giving as charity, but buying what the boy had to sell.—Mrs. Gilbert in Scribner's Magazine.

A BRITON'S IDEA OF FREEDOM.

It Was to Roll Himself on the White House Lawn, and He Did it.

"I never go to Washington that I do not think of a young Englishman who went around the city with me a dozen years ago," said a man who had just returned from the inauguration ceremonies. "We saw everything that there was to be seen. He was pleased with everything, and he said so, but the thing that impressed him most was the lack of formality and the absence of guards.

"He never tired talking of this and comparing the simplicity of the arrangements in Washington with the way the rulers of Europe are guarded. Particularly he was impressed by the fact that any one who wished to was allowed to go into the White House grounds, and wander around without showing any passes or credentials of any kind.

"Well, one day we were wandering around and we went up past the White House. The Englishman stopped and watched the stream of men and women going into the grounds.

"'By Jove,' he said, 'it is wonderful, and no mistake. Why, they let you do just as you please. Do you know, I think that if a fellow wanted to he could go in there and roll over on the lawn and there wouldn't be a person who would think of speaking to him about it.' 'Of course no one would speak to him about it,' I said. 'What's more, if you want to do it I'll stay here and watch you, and if any one does say anything about it I'll help you lick him.'

"'Will you?' he said.

"'I mean it,' I said.

"He looked at me for a minute, and then he walked into the White House grounds. There was a crowd there, but no one paid the least attention to him. He went out on the lawn, right in front of the main entrance to the building, and lay down flat on his back. Then he rolled over three times, slowly and deliberately. Then he got up and walked out of the grounds, as happy as though he had found $10.

"No one looked at him, and no one spoke to him; to roll over on the White House lawn might have been the proper thing to do so far as the attention that it attracted went. The Englishman said that if he had acted that way in any of the capitals on the other side he would have been locked up as a dangerous character. He was very proud of his exploit and I suppose that he is still telling the story of it in England."—New York Sun.

Verdi's Last Resting Place.

Verdi's tomb will be a very plain one, merely a sarcophagus with the simple inscription, "Pray for the souls of Giuseppe Verdi and Maria Strapponi Verdi, his beloved wife," and the dates of their deaths. The chapel in which the composer of "Il Trovatore" is buried is a small building in the Lombard style of architecture, which forms the central feature of the Asylum for Decayed Musicians, which the composer built at great expense at Milan. It is divided into two sections; the upper is a pretty oratory dedicated to the Madonna and St Cecilia, intended for the inmates of the establishment, and having access from the interior of the building. The lower chapel or crypt contains only an altar, as yet incomplete, and the coffins of Verdi and his second wife. His first wife died very young, in 1845, and within less than three months of her death both his children died.—London Chronicle.

The President's Work Increasing.

On the same day that M. Lagarda, the Philippine representative, called at the White House, there were visitors present from Hawaii, Alaska, Porto Rico and Cuba, as well as a large delegation of Indians in paint and feathers. Each one of these callers represented a late addition to the territory under the old flag. On some days the secretary is compelled to report to the President that he saw only one-half of the callers; next day a third; next day a fourth; next a sixth, until the geometrical recession reaches a fraction of less than one-tenth, during the rush. Some inventive Yankee will have to invent a presidental automaton to keep up with the necessary demands for handshakers—especially if this spirit of expansion keeps right on expanding.—Joe Mitchell Chapple, in the National Magazine.

Caseophoby.

Those who insist upon eating cheese should take the precaution to cook it thoroughly before eating. It is for this reason that some people who are unable to eat raw cheese find themselves able to eat toasted cheese without difficulty. Toasting the cheese does not, however, increase its digestibility, but rather the reverse. Its beneficial effect, if any, is from the destruction of the virulent microbes which are present, and which are capable of giving rise to symptoms even more distressing than those of ordinary indigestion. The best method of dealing with cheese is to give it to the pigs, as it is nothing more or less than decayed milk, fit only for a scanvenger diet.—Sanitary and Municipal Engineering.

Charcoal is the great Italian fuel. Naples alone consumming 40,000 tons of wood charcoal, at a cost of from $16 to $20 per ton, the national consumption being 700,000 tons.

Have an Abiding Faith in Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compou

After years of struggle to attain and merit public confidence, with a and steadfast belief that some day others would recognize in us the good faith, and honesty of purpose which we know we possess, what a fine satisfaction it is to succeed, and to realize the uplifting influence merited confidence of a vast army of our fellow beings.

Thus stands the Pinkham name in New England, and all over Am and nowhere is the faith in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound gr than in New England, its home. Merit, and merit alone, can ga this ORGANIC INFLAMMATION.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: — I was troubled very badly with inflammation of the bladder, was sick in bed with it. I had two doctors, but they did me no good. A friend gave me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it helped me. I have now taken three bottles of it, and I am entirely cured. It is a God-send to any woman, and I would recommend it to any one suffering as I was. I think, if most of the women would take more of your medicine instead of going to the doctors, they would be better off. The Compound has also cured my husband of kidney trouble."
MRS. MABEL GOOKIN,
Box 160. Mechanic Falls, Maine.

NERVOUS PROSTRATION.

"For two years I suffered from nervous prostration, the result of female weakness. I had leucorrhoea very badly, and at time of menstruation would be obliged to go to bed. Also suffered with headaches, pain across back, and in lower part of abdomen. I was so discouraged. I had read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound, and concluded to give it a trial. I wrote to Mrs. Pinkham, and received a very nice letter in return. I began at once the use of her Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier, and am now feeling splendid. I have no more pain at monthly periods, can do my own work, and have gained ten pounds. I would not be without your Vegetable Compound. It is a splendid medicine. I am very thankful for what it has done for me."— MRS. J. W. J., 76 Carolina Ave., Jamaica Plain, Mass.

PAINFUL PERIODS.

"I cannot help but feel that it is my duty to do something in repay recommending your wonderful medicine. I must say it is the grand medicine in the world, and have sent a great many to you suffering with the troubles I had. I tell people I could go on a platform and testify to the cure it has wrought in my case. My trouble was a painful menstruation. The suffering I endured cannot describe. I was treated by one of our most prominent physicians here for five months, and found myself getting worse instead of better. At the end of the fifth month he told me he had done all he could for me, and that I had better go to the hospital. My sister advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it cured her of backache. I did so, and followed it faithfully, and am now cured of my trouble, and in perfect health. I owe my thanks to your medicine. I cannot praise it enough, and would recommend it to all who suffer from female weakness."— MRS. H. S. BALL, 461 Orchard St., New Haven, Conn.

If Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will cure these women — not you — you cannot tell until you try it. If you are ill, and really want to get well, commence its use at once, and do not let any drug clerk persuade you that he has something of his own which is better, for that is absurd. We challenge him to produce the evidence we do.

GOLD IN NUGGETS.

Summary Writeup of the Finds in the State of Vancouver.

John W. Adams, civil mining engineer, has just returned from the Cariboo district, and makes the following glowing report: In my capacity as a civil and mining engineer of many years experience in gold mining I was recently requested to examine and report for a client on the alluvial gold finds of Quesnel Creek, a district some few miles from this place, twenty miles from Marysville and twelve miles from Jellicoe. I found a physical condition which set me wondering and asking why such a southern Klondike and yet rich placer gold deposit has remained so obscure. It is a matter of record and beyond dispute that over $1,000,000 worth of gold has been taken from Quesnel Creek and carried to the United States mint. Personally I have proved that over $50,000 worth of gold has been panned out from less than three quarters of an acre, some of the nuggets weighing as much as one pound and one quarter ounces. There are at present a number of residents along this auriferous little water course who take advantage of pretty days and a prepossessing frame of mind to occupy themselves along this generous creek and through the plateaux on either side panning the yellow metal, and always with liberal results. This wonderful deposit extends over many thousand of acres, and it is a mystery how it has escaped the public notice. My account is more than conservative, but as well known is this deposit locally that the Marysville Bank for years has been buying this gold and forwarding to the United States mint for coinage, and such high-class firms as Peters & McClung, of Knoxville, Tenn., have been receiving it for many years past in payment for goods from the local merchants and others at the rate of 90 cents per penyweight. One miner within the last few months carried $1,000 worth of the precious metal to the bank for coinage.

No Strike to be.

There will be no strike in Pittsburg. The trusts will make concessions, and so will the men. This statement, coming as it does from an officer of the Amalgamated Association, is authoritative and declares the situation in a nutshell. The workingmen have no desire to precipitate the struggle, and should the clash have decided to make concessions, which will be met by the manufacturers. The final vote will not be taken on the matter until late this afternoon, or probably this evening, but the probability of a strike at this writing is very remote.

Bethery Charged.

Senator W. B. Eldridge, of Memphis, in open session of the Senate accused Ex-Comptroller James A. Harris of attempt to bribe and blackmail and precipitated one of the most sensational scenes ever enacted in the halls of the Tennessee legislature. He charged that Mr. Harris came to him at his seat in the senate chamber and offered him money and promised him to have withdrawn a suit pending against him on the condition he would vote for the final bill when it came up on a motion to reconsider.

Palace in Pekin Was Burned.

A dispatch from Pekin gives details of the conflagration which destroyed the imperial palace in which Field Marshal Count Von Waldersee, commanding the allied forces in China, has his headquarters. The conflagration began in the residence of Major Martine, who was absent at the time, and spread thence to the Asbestos Palace, which the Count Von Waldersee brought from Germany.

Worse Than Enoch Arden.

Asher Knight, a resident of Hannibal, Mo., who disappeared nineteen years ago, leaving a wife and several children, has returned home. He found his wife the widow of Milford McElhiney, a well-to-do farmer who died a year or two ago. Mrs. McElhiney thought her first husband dead. When he came home he explained that he had remained away so long because he had heard that she was married again and had no desire to cause her trouble. Whether this explanation will be accepted by Mrs. McElhiney and a reunion follows remains to be seen.

MUSIC FOR HAND-ORGANS.

What the Organs Cost and Where the Money is Made.

There is a little shop on Elizabeth street, the owner of which has a factory in Brooklyn, where most of the new hand organs are turned out, and the old ones repaired, and this is the season when times are busiest. "For hand organs," said the head of the shop, "seem never to get too old to be used. They can be patched and patched again, and passed from hand to hand and from town to town, until every part of them has been renewed over and over again. The voyages and adventures of a hand-organ are as varied as those of a tramp steamer. They take in every side of life, from the beginning in the swell quarters of the metropolis to the end, knocking around the country in company with a monkey and his owner."

The choice of the music for the hand-organ lies with the manufacturers. The publishers of songs send him the popular songs as soon as they have been marked success, and the manufacturer uses those which he thinks are the most popular. The particular tunes which are chosen for any one instrument, though, depends on the quarter of the city through which lies the beat of the man who turns the crank. Every city organ-grinder has a definite beat, and covers a certain round of streets more or less regularly every day.

If the beat lies through the German quarter, then German or Italian national characteristic airs are added to the repertoire of the organ. If the organ is to travel through upper Fifth avenue in the region of the Fifties (and this is the best beat in New York, for if the man gets anything at all there he gets a good deal and the pay for "moving on" is higher than elsewhere), some opera airs and a "romance" are used. In the Bowery region it is ragtime and waltzes that bring in the most money.

"If a man will tell us the beat he wants to travel, in the city or out, up the Harlem, back in the state, or anywhere in the whole country," said the maker of the organs, "we'll give him the proper set of tunes to fit his trip. Hand-organs are kept more up to date now than in old times, and the airs in the barrel of an instrument can be changed easily enough to fit the popular taste, though, of course, not without any expense."

There are about 300 licenses issued in New York City, mostly to Italians, and that is a conservative estimate of the number of performers on the streets. The work of this particular variety of cigale gives the lie to the proverb, for two men on a good beat will make as much as $1.50 apiece a day, or ever more in the best months, August and September are the best months for the city, and for the country too, though in that part of the world any summer month is a profitable one for the organ grinders. The factory, of course, is busiest just now, getting ready for the summer season.

Hand-organs are not cheap. A good one will cost as much as $200, though the price varies a good deal, according to the quality of the instrument. There are organs made with additional instruments, such as drums and cymbals, and these are more expensive. Some of them are made with arrangements for turning the crank mechanically. One kind in particular, which is a good deal used by women who want to have their hands free to do a tambourine act while the music is going one, is run by a spring, which is wound up by two or three vigorous turns of the handle before each tune.—New York Post.

TO MAKE LENSES LIKE EYES.

Problem of the Photographer—Stereoscope Not Dead.

"A curious popular delusion about photography," remarked the proprietor of a big Broadway studio, "is that we are worrying ourselves to discover a method of color work; for—this year's illustrated Nature-books to the contrary, notwithstanding—it hasn't been discovered yet. Now, very few of us waste any thought on that at all. When the process is originated, it will come from some scientific laboratory.

"Frankly, we are all after the 'stereoscope effect.' We want to make the lenses 'see double,' like the eyes, you know, so that the object photographed may stand out as it does in real vision. Our constantly having to limit ourselves to 'seeing black and white,' may keep us from thinking overmuch on the potentialities of color; but the unified stereoscope, 'perspective in photography'—well, we can't help feeling that ought to be within the range of practical optics. Certainly, there are as many cranks pestering us with its discovery as there are perpetual-motion inventers enrolled in the books of the Patent Office. When it does come, though, it will call for another Col. Sellars to reckon up the "millions in it."

"And, speaking of the stereoscope, do you know that the sale of that dear old standby of the front parlor whatnot has really never fallen off? There are still several firms making the ancient yellow-mounted views of Niagara, the Yellowstone, and the Battlefield of Gettysburg. No blasphemous present-day scoffing has touched them. More curious than that, too, a young friend of mine, who travels for a photo supply house, has just discovered in a little, back-country Ohio town an old fellow who is still making the genuine and original daguerreotype. He is putting that gentle old rose-tint on the cheeks, is gilding the ladies' brooches and earrings, and is framing his little art-works in their inseparable satin-lined leather-cases."—New York Post.

Late Queen Victoria's Religion.

Queen Victoria was profoundly religious. She believed in the efficacy of prayer. She was a regular Bible reader, and frequently used a well-worn Bible that belonged to General Gordon, and was presented by his sister to the queen, who acknowledged the gift in an autograph letter. At the same time she did not permit her religious convictions to influence the subtle intricacies of statecraft.—Chicago Record.

Gold of the Black Hills.

Only two states in the union produce more gold annually than do the three counties comprising the Black hills in South Dakota, and they are Colorado and California. Worms CASCARETS are a sure cure for tape worms and those other pests of worms that make the lives of children and their mothers miserable. Any variety of parasites that live in the human stomach or bowels, and feed on the substance which should properly nourish the body, are dislodged by Cascarets Candy Cathartic, and expelled. One or two tablets usually drive them out, and persistent use is sure to do away with the unwelcome intruders. Many children and older people suffer from worms without knowing it, and get thin and weak, although their appetite is good. The best way to find out is to take Cascarets. Never accept a substitute!

—Brooklyn Citizen.

"A tape worm eighteen feet long at least came on the scene after my taking two CASCARETS. This I am sure has caused my bad health for the past three years. I am still taking Cascarets, the only cathartic worthy of notice by sensible people." GEO. W. BOWLES, Baird, Miss.

A Raging, Roaring Flood

Washed down a telegraph line which Chas. C. Ellis, of Lisbon, Ia., had to repair. "Standing waist deep in icy water," he writes "gave me a terrible cold and cough. It grew worse daily. Finally the best doctors in Oakland, Neb., Sioux City and Omaha said I had Consumption and could not live. Then I began using Dr King's New Discovery and was wholly cured by six bottles." Positively guaranteed for Coughs, Colds and all Throat and Lung troubles by Clanton Drug co. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

Young Women

The entry into womanhood is a critical time for a girl. Little menstrual disorders started at that time soon grow into fatal complications. That female troubles are filling graveyards proves this. Wine of Cardui establishes a painless and natural menstrual flow. When once this important function is started right, a healthy life will usually follow. Many women, young and old, owe their lives to Wine of Cardui. There is nothing like it to give women freedom from pain and to fit young women for every duty of life. $1.00 bottles at druggists.

Miss Della M. Strayer, Toffy, Kan., "I have suffered untold pain at menstrual periods for a long time, was nervous, had no appetite, and lost interest in everything, in fact was miserable. I have taken four bottles of Wine of Cardui, with Thedford's Black-Draught, when needed, and to-day I am entirely cured. I cannot express the thanks I feel for what you have done for me."

The Shipmaster's Cow.

A certain farmer is telling [illegible] things about a Rockland ship[illegible] "The shipmaster," he says, "[illegible] cow of a man down city way [illegible] critter—nothin' the matter with [illegible] But it seems the captain's wife [illegible] day thought the milk tasted [illegible] and suggested that p'raps she [illegible] eatin' spruce boughs; sayd the [illegible] fasted like spruce. And what [illegible] do but go out in the pasture [illegible] the cow, to see what she did eat. [illegible] cow was layin' down, chewin' [illegible] and he went along and run [illegible] in her mouth to see what she [illegible] in. Then he was mad. He put [illegible] on the cow and started off [illegible] He met a neighbor, who says, '[illegible] are you goin' with the cow?' [illegible] take her back to the feller that [illegible] ber to me. He's cheated me [illegible] won't stand it.'

"The man wanted to know what [illegible] the matter, and he went on [illegible] about it and says: 'She wasn't [illegible] boughs, but she was chewin' [illegible] that's what's the matter with [illegible] and makes it taste like spruce [illegible] he says, 'that ain't all. She's [illegible] el to the habit that she's worn [illegible] teeth out. She ain't got an upper [illegible] in her head. Back she goes, quick.'

"Of course, the man told him [illegible] was all nonsense—that cows never [illegible] no upper teeth. But he didn't believe [illegible] word of it and went on and had [illegible] nal row with the man that sold [illegible] the cow. Guess he was never satisfied about it or knew what a darned [illegible] he was makin' of himself."—Boston [illegible] (Me.) Opinion.

He Certainly Was a Fiend.

The stage was rolling along the [illegible] you trail when suddenly the [illegible] reared back on their haunches [illegible] lone highwayman with a Winchester appeared on the scene.

"Step out of the hearse, gentlemen, and hands up!" he ordered.

One by one they climbed out [illegible] elevated hands.

The highwayman relieved the [illegible] and several times was forced to wait [illegible] one nervous little man to keep his [illegible] from his pocket.

"What's the matter with you?" [illegible] finally roared. "You make me [illegible] more like that, and I'll pump the [illegible] in you!"

"Please let me," pleaded the [illegible] man as his hand again slid toward [illegible] pocket.

"Please let you?" roared the [illegible] ds. "Please let you perforate [illegible] You're imposing on my good nature [illegible] ny. Look out! Look out! Keep [illegible] mit away from that pocket, or [illegible] Eternal"—

"But it won't hurt you," pe[illegible] the little man. "It won't hurt you [illegible] all! Stand just as you are, [illegible] keep your rifle leveled. There! [illegible] it!"

And while the highwayman was [illegible] covering from his astonishment [illegible] tle man had flashed his [illegible] snapped the button.—Indianapolis [illegible]

Love and Thrift.

The late Professor Shuttleworth [illegible] London was particularly fond of [illegible] how, when he once acted as [illegible] tenens in Devonshire, he had a [illegible] claim the banns of marriage [illegible] young rebel and a village maid. [illegible] fortnight later the young swain [illegible] at the professor's lodgings.

"You put up the banns for me," [illegible] said.

"Yes, I remember," replied [illegible] Shuttleworth.

"Well," inquired the rebel, "[illegible] got to go on?"

"What do you mean?" asked the [illegible] fessor. "Are you tired of the girl?"

"No," was the unexpected [illegible] "but I like her sister better."

"Oh, if the original girl doesn't [illegible] you can marry her sister."

"But should I have to be [illegible] again?"

"Certainly, that's necessary," [illegible] swered Mr. Shuttleworth.

"But should I have to pay [illegible]"

"Yes, it would cost you three and [illegible] pence."

"Oh, would it?" rejoined the [illegible] after reflection. "Then I'll let [illegible] main as it is." And he did.—[illegible] Telegraph.

[illegible] Lights He Saw and Some He Saw Not.

[illegible]

[illegible] was dropped [illegible]

[illegible] would be benefitted by the [illegible] of a little gravel.

The Editor of the "Chilton Re[illegible]" must be greatly in need of [illegible] of clothes, for in two differ[illegible] places in his last issue he makes [illegible] urgent appeal for help to clothe [illegible] Under the caption of [illegible] "Good News for Maplesville" he [illegible] "Somebody ought to set us up [illegible] suit of clothes. What do [illegible] about it?" Well, all I [illegible] is that rather than he [illegible] would go naked through the streets [illegible] Maplesville, I will give him a [illegible] suit. That surely is "Good [illegible] for Maplesville." In another [illegible] place he remarks that "Nobody [illegible] offered to give the Editor a [illegible] of clothes that he has worn out [illegible] around through briars [illegible] wire fences." You will notice [illegible] only asks for an old suit [illegible] one has worn out. That [illegible] extremely moderate. He might [illegible] of for a new suit. Come [illegible] brother and I will see what [illegible] can find for you.

It looks mightily like this is going [illegible] be a busy time in Clanton [illegible] summer. Work has already [illegible] on the four new brick [illegible] for C. L. Stewart, Mrs. [illegible] W. T. Callen and John [illegible] Robinson. Alfred Popwell is [illegible] plans for the erection [illegible] brick stores on his two lots; [illegible] H. Barron is getting estimates [illegible] two story brick store opposite [illegible] L. Mullins; E. M. Pinckard [illegible] are going to enlarge their [illegible]; Mrs. Johnson is thinking [illegible] building a brick store for the [illegible] Drug Co., and W. I. Mul[illegible] contemplates replacing his [illegible] ture with a brick building. [illegible] has just completed his [illegible] new residence, and work is [illegible] on T. A. Curry's hand[illegible] building. That's a pretty [illegible] record. Well done, Clanton.

We have just got over one elec[illegible] but there's another one to [illegible] little later on, and I have [illegible] wondering if it is not very [illegible] that the reason so few voters [illegible] out at the late election was [illegible] were holding themselves [illegible] the next one. It would [illegible] very surprising if the next [illegible] brings out a full vote. At [illegible], men can't be always [illegible] their work to vote—we [illegible] many elections.

VOL. IX CLANTON, ALA. THURSDAY MAY 2, 1901 NO. 26

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Some of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

L. & N. is doing a good thing in putting down gravel at the crossing to the depot. It was time, too, for the crossing was sloppy, and in every wagon the east side of the crossing was like wading through a bog. But, of course, all those using the west side had to cross to do their marketing, and it was very necessary they should be able to do so without swimming.

Well, now, if the L. & N. is doing this for the city, they intend to do a good job. The gravel crossing will be worthless unless it is well kept up. There are some places on some of our roads where a few cents of gravel dumped would greatly improve. The expense would not be great, but the advantage to those using the roads would be immense. And, if only a few loads could be put on Clinton streets, what a vast improvement would be made! Our streets are getting in good shape, but a few loads of gravel would help them immensely. I know some of our sidewalks would be benefitted by the use of a little gravel.

The Editor of the "Chilton Reflector" must be greatly in need of clothes, for in two different places in his last issue he makes a pathetic appeal for help to clothe him. Under the caption of "Local News for Maplesville" he says: "Somebody ought to set us up with a suit of clothes. What do you say about it?" Well, all I can say is that rather than he should go naked through the streets of Maplesville, I will give him a suit. That surely is "Good News for Maplesville." In another place he remarks that "Nobody has offered to give the Editor a suit of clothes that he has worn out in running around through briars and barbed wire fences." You will notice he only asks for an old suit that some one has worn out. That is reasonably moderate. He might have asked for a new suit. Come brother, and I will see what I can find for you.

Things looks mighty like this is going to be a busy time in Clanton this summer. Work has already commenced on the four new brick stores for C. J. Stewart, Mrs. Mips, W. T. Callen and John Robinson. Alfred Popwell is considering plans for the erection of a brick stores on his two lots; J. Sartor is getting estimates on a two story brick store opposite Mullins. E. M. Pinckard and others are going to enlarge their stores. Mrs. Johnson is thinking of building a brick store for the Johnson Drug Co., and W. I. Mullins contemplates replacing his store with a brick building. Tee has just completed his new residence, and work is progressing on T. A. Curry's handsome residence. That's a pretty good record. Well done, Clanton.

We have just got over one election, but there's another one to come a little later on, and I have been wondering if it is not very likely that the reason so few voters came out at the late election was because they were holding themselves back for the next one. It would be very surprising if the next election brings out a full vote. At all events, men can't be always leaving their work to vote—we have too many elections.

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY

Take Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. E. W. Grove's signature is on each box. 25c.

Our Populite friends are ever ready to cry fraud and thievery in elections, will they please inform us if the appointment of managers at Stanton, a Democratic box, is a sample of their purity and honesty. The managers of that box were two Populites and one Prohibitionist and one of the Pops lived in another Beat. They violated the law in not allowing a Democratic inspector, and again by taking a man from another beat as an inspector.

Clanton, April 26, 1901

The above is from the so-called "Chilton Reflector" and the statement is far from pure journalism and does the undersigned appointing board of Chilton county great injustice. We will say, for the satisfaction of any honest citizen who may chance to read it, that we did what we could to give the democrats representation at each box in the county. The party submitted no names to us as suitable managers, and we made a selection of as good and competent democrats as we knew, desiring that the Democratic party should be represented at each polling place in the county, and not one word of complaint has come to us from any democrat in the county as to the democracy or honesty of the men appointed to represent that party and not a word as to the fairness of the election, and it remains for a little one-horse editor to write such misleading statements as the above, seemingly for no other purpose than to impress the people who may not know the facts that the officers of Chilton county sought the advantage of the Democratic party in appointing managers, when the facts are we would not take that advantage for any consideration, and we do not believe that any man acquainted with us would believe it.

The so-called Reflector says we violated the law in appointing an inspector from another beat. Mr. John J. Letcher lived so near Stanton that we were under the impression that he was in Beat eight, while he is across the line and just over the line in seven. It was simply an honest mistake that did not disturb anyone except the imported one-horse black belt editor of the so-called Reflector.

Editor BANNER.—Preliminary steps are being taken for the erection of the Thorsby college. The grounds have been cleared up by Mr. S. Howard and the first material placed on them for building by Messrs. W. A. and George W. Mims. We understand those gentlemen donated this work free, gratis, and for nothing, and others of their neighbors will follow suit. It will be remembered that the "Chapel" people have already contributed a great deal for the erection and support of their school, and to take a leading hand in the erection of the school at Thorsby, not only speaks well for the settlement but for Prof. Rasco, who has had charge of the Chapel Institute ever since it was founded.

The Democratic nominees received an average vote of 357, and the Republicans an average of 675.

W. F. Aldrich ran ahead of his ticket by 78 votes.

Reynolds' majority over Caffey was 841.

The majority for "No Convention" was 878.

Cedar Grove.

Our industrious farmers are having to plant their cotton over.

Mr. Newt Childress and his charming daughter, Miss Eunice made a business trip to Clanton Saturday.

When a man gets so honest that he doesn't want his kine to eat the grass off his neighbor's woodland he is like the Irishman's tree, "so straight he leans over a little."

Rev. Mr. Cassady filled his appointment at Cedar Grove to-day to a large crowd.

Mr. William Barrett spent Wednesday and Thursday hunting a dead mule, or at least we have been reliably informed that he was inquiring for such a "critter" as he went down the road.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hayes are visiting relatives in Blocton.

Billy, the Boy, says "Saturday was to have been a great feast day in these diggins with the Democrats, but when they came to butcher the beast it was only a little toad." Now, we had decided that he must have been a large frog by the noise he has been making by his croaks.

Mr. J. L. Baker and his mother-in-law, Mrs. P. P. Price, made a hustling trip to Clanton Saturday, Mr. Baker returning home with a severe attack of bilious headache which continued to get worse until Mr. Newt Waller carried him back to Clanton to see the doctor Sunday; we hope he will soon recover.

Mr. Harvey Collins made a business trip to Clanton.

Mr. Frank Price made a business trip to Clanton Saturday.

Messrs. Jesse Hayes and Jack Foreman made a business trip to Clanton Saturday.

If more of our farmers would read the Banner they would be better posted as to when the next election will come off.

OLD PATCH.

New Salem.

Farmers are through planting. Some had their cotton to plant over by planting so early. I guess they will wait for spring next time.

The Sunday-school at New Salem is progressing nicely. We will have singing every first and third Sunday at two p.m., for the benefit of the church and Sunday-school.

We are sorry to say that Mrs. A. L. Collins is very sick.

Mr. J. M. Parker and wife, visited the family of W. M. Martin Sunday.

Mr. Reuben Price and Miss Dora Maddox paid a flying visit to Lomax Sunday.

Several of our young people attended preaching at Collins Chapel Sunday.

JEANTON, - - - ALABAMA.

A lecturer on sociology wants to hear a reasonable explanation of why a man has twenty pockets and a woman none at all.

In Arkansas the Legislature has approved a constitutional amendment providing that three-fourths of a jury may return a verdict in civil cases.

One of the problems that confront the modern civilization lies in the fact that nothing of importance can happen without having poetry written about it.

By living a useful and industrious though unostentatious life as an American citizen, the late Benjamin Harrison did much to efface the perplexity over what shall become of former Presidents.

According to the judgment of a Chicago court you are not to jump off a train until it comes to a full stop. Usually persons who persist in jumping off moving trains come to a full stop themselves.

The Swedish Navy, for the size of it, is possibly the most effective of any among those of all the nations, not only because the vessels are substantial, but because the sailors of Sweden are known to be the best in the world.

With a navy already about equal to the combined navies of any other two powers, Great Britain has ordered work begun during the present year on three battleships, six armored cruisers, two third-class cruisers, ten torpedo boat destroyers, five torpedo boats, two sloops of war and five submarine boats. That Hague disarmament agreement seems to have acted like a movement to reduce the cotton acreage.

Our venerable friend, the war cloud in the Balkans, is getting himself groomed up for a spring campaign. His present habitat is Macedonia, which is probably the most dangerous spot on the map of Europe today. If lightning from that cloud should strike there, no one can tell how great the resulting conflagration might be. But the great powers are experts in the manipulation of lightning rods.

The bicycle may pass, but it will pass only when the cycle of human development which produced it has run its full course and the people that made it marvelous in human annals have passed away forever. For, looked at from any point of view, whether from that of service or pleasure, or the result of human thought and skill, or adaptation to popular needs, the bicycle stands to-day as the consummate achievement of our mechanical development.

It is a singular coincidence that almost simultaneously came the inauguration of the president of the United States a change of British sovereigns and the establishment of a new state in the Australian confederation. These three great groups of English speaking people are the dominant powers on every continent but the mainland of Europe, and indirectly they are powerful there. No race speaking one tongue and having essentially the same institutions ever before spread over so large a part of the world or held so nearly all the earth in its grasp states a writer in The World's Work.

Several particularly pathetic cases within the last few months have been the cause of reviving the old agitation in England for the modification of the law which requires that the sentence of death shall be pronounced in each case of a woman convicted of infanticide. This law is regarded by the majority of thinking Englishmen as a crude and cruel relic of those days when in the early part of the last century persons were condemned to death for stealing a few cents' worth of candles or flowers. For many years no woman has been sent to the gallows for this crime; in fact, the term of imprisonment is being continually lessened. But in the matter of the pronouncement of the death sentence, there is absolutely no discretionary power given to the presiding justice. Knowing full well that the Home Secretary will change the sentence to a comparatively short term of imprisonment, still he must go through the ghastly form of sentencing her to be hanged by the neck until she is dead. As those interested in the proposed reform say, this is merely a form of exquisite torture, as cruel as it is unnecessary. An empty formula, it is contrary to all the modern notions of justice.

THE NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Summary of Current Events From All Sections of Alabama.

BRIEFLY TOLD FOR ALL OUR READERS

Condition of Coke Business Makes State One of the Leaders—Sad Ending of Memorial Services.

University Won.

The University of Alabama baseball team defeated the Auburn club in a splendidly fought game, the score standing 5 to 1. Donahoo and Ash were the University's battery and Parker and Nesbit Auburns' battery.

Alabama Third.

The census Bureau has issued a bulletin on the coke industry, based upon the condition of the business in 1900. Alabama, sixth in 1880 and second in 1889, now stands third. Tennessee, which stood fourth in 1880 and 1889, was sixth in 1899.

The Loss About $50,000.

A disastrous fire visited the Railroad Compress, on avenue A and Thirty-fifth street in Birmingham, commencing about 9:15 o'clock Saturday morning and continued several hours. About 1,200 bales of cotton were either totally destroyed or badly damaged, to a total loss of about $50,000.

Cotton Nearly All Ruined

The full damage done by the cold just passed, to Pike county farmers, can't yet be determined. However, it is known that the cotton which was just out the ground is nearly all ruined, and many acres will have to be replanted. The cotton seed supply is not abundant, and this will cause a number of planters much trouble.

Burned By Explosion of Lamp.

Bob Abercrombie and Captain Nealy, two young men in the employ of the Bessemer People's Home Telephone Company, were severely injured by the explosion of a gasoline lamp while they were at work on a 'phone in the Bessemer Cornice Works. Their hands and arms were badly burned and Mr. Abercrombie was also burned about the head.

Some Official Returns.

The result of last Tuesdays' election in Jeffferson county was officially announced as follows:

For convention, 1,913.

Against convention, 1,893.

Majority for convention, 20.

The official vote in Madison county was as follows:

For the convention, 2,551; against, 1,520.

In Mobile the total vote cast was 1,074 as follows:

For the convention, 696; against, 378, a majority of 318.

The vote of Tuscaloosa shows the majority for the constitutional convention to be 278.

The vote was 848 for and 569 against the convention.

In Dallas, for the convention received 5,668 votes.

No convention received 200 votes.

In Etowah the official count resulted 189 majority for no convention.

Jackson county went against convention by 281 majority.

For convention carired in Limestone by majority of 168 votes, and in Lowndes the official count shows a majority of 2,860 for convention.

Patriotic Love.

Birmingham has not forgotten the bravery of her intrepid forefathers and Friday hundreds of children strewed the graves of her silent soldiers with beautiful tokens of patriotic love. Memorial Day was observed by the Confederate Veterans of Birmingham and their sons and daughters. Appropriate services, consisting of songs, recitations, addresses and music, were held at the Auditorium. The services were conducted by Camp Hardee, Commander S. L. Robertson presiding, assisted by Pellham Chapter United Daughters of th Confedracy.

Narrow Escape.

Lawson White, a member of the jewelry firm of Murray and White and a prominent business man of Huntsville, came near dying by an accidental dose of morphine. Mr. White intended to take anti-kamia, and instead swallowed two capsules of morphine. He did not know this until he felt a peculiar sensation, and sent for a doctor. It took fouteen hours of hard work to get Mr. White out of danger.

Bessemer Fire.

At one o'clock Monday morning fire broke out in the business section of Bessemer and nearly a block of buildings were destroyed, entailing a loss of probably $75,000. The fire originated in the Bell Top saloon and spread to the clothing stores on either side. The fire department quickly responded to the alarm, and though they fought hard the spread of the flames could not be prevented until several two-story buildings had been burned.

Teachers' Review Term.

In view of the new school law requirements, by which teachers are to be examined July 1st, by State Board of Examiners, and because these examinations are increasing in severity, and many holding low grade license desire a higher, and, too, because so many teachers are desiring higher professional training and emoluments therefrom the LaFayette College will hold a summer school of Pedagogy and review term for six weeks, beginning May 7th, and running to June 13th. All branches in the State Board's Examination lists will be presented for review by an able faculty and the expenses, all told for said term, need not be above $25. All railroads in Alabama and adjoining states offer reduced fare under certain restrictions. Get certicate of payment of fare to La Fayette Ala.

Dog Causes Shooting Where Three Are Shot.

A dog was the cause of a bloody due three miles below Oxford Sunday evening, in which four persons partcipated, J. W. House and his son, Gus House, W. M. Johnson and his fourteen year old son. Both the Houses and the elder Johnson were shot with a winchester rifle, and are dangerously wounded. The trouble arose over a dog of Johnson's which the elder House had killed. Johnson started in pursuit of House, and shot him twice through the stomach. Gus House, seeing the trouble, seized a gun and shot the elder Johnson, and was immediately shot by the fourteen year old son of Johnson, who escaped injury. It is thought that all will recover.

Curiosity Excited.

The appearance of a surveying party consisting of twelve white men and three negroes, which have started out surveying from Thomaston, the present terminus of the B. S. and N. O., has given rise to reports of what is likely to be the ultimate destination of the "Great Short Line." An engineer has just recently returned from making a trip on horseback from Martins to New Orleans and has made his report to the proper authorities. This has come on good authority, and appears to be true. It is stated that three surveys are to be made, one to New Orleans, another to Meridian, Miss., and another to Jackson, Miss. How true this latter is could not be ascertained.

A Sad Ending.

The memorial exercises at Tuscaloosa had a very sad ending. Just as the salutes over the graves of the departed Confederate dead were being fired by the Warrior Guards and the Alabama corps of cadet, the life of H. Foster Hill, one of the bravest veterans passed away in the cemetery. Mr. Hill was walking with a friend, when he was taken suddenly ill and sunk to the ground. Medical aid was called, but life was extinct in ten minutes. His remains were carried to his home at once. A large crowd was present when he died, and they were horror-stricken at the sudden ending of Mr. Hill, who had been in the very best of health a few minutes before his death. Mr. Hill was one of the wealthiest and most prominent citizens of Tuscaloosa.

Harkins Gets the Appointment.

Governor Samford has named John Harkins of Jefferson to be Assistant State Mine Inspector vice McDonald, whose term will expire May 23rd. The Governor said that the race for this position had caused him more thought than any equal appointment he had to make. There were several applicants for the position but the race was clearly between Harkins and McDonald and the one fact that Harkins' indorsement was about double that of McDonald probably won the position for the former.

Another bank has been organized at Mobile, attesting again the wonderful progress of Alabama's Gulf City. The new institutiton is known as the Merchants' Bank and will have a capital of $150 000.

United States District Atttorney William Vaughan has received his commission from Washington reappointing him district attorney for four years for the Northern District of Alabama.

LIVE WASHINGTON NOTES

Happenings of the Week at the Nation's Capital.

OUR CORRESPONDENT'S WEEKLY LETTER.

No LL. D. Degree for President McKinley from Harvard University this Year—Chinese Regulars Back Within Great Wall

Brigadier General William Ludlow, recently appointed military governor of the Viscayas, will return to the United States at once. The distinguished soldier was recently attacked with la-grippe, which has developed into a dangerous case of consumption.

All the Paris papers contain three columns of a passionate appeal to Frenchmen to build the Panama canal. It is an obvious advertisement, signed by the distinguished engineer, Philippe Bunau Varilla, well known in the United States, who himself contributes $400,000. The appeal is based upon patriotic and practical grounds. A cheerful and hopeful effect has been produced in Paris by this unexpcted appeal.

Senator Daniel, of Virginia, has consulted with the president in reference to secureing for Mrs. Mary Custis Lee, who holds power of attorney from Geo. Washington Custis Lee, the relics of George Washington in the Smithsonian Institute. Congress in 1869 passed a resolution against restoration to General R. E. Lee, believing the relics belonged to him. Mrs. Lee had only a life tenancy therein and at her death title descended to petitioner, a son of General Lee. The articles were at Arlington when the war began and in 1862 were turned over to General McDowell, who placed them in the patent office for safe keeping. The president holds that inasmuch as the property is merely held in trust by the government at the time when the owner could not protect them, and they needed it and such protecting being no longer necessary, intormed Senator Daniel that it affords him great pleasure to give direction for the restoration to the present head of the historical famiy.

The war deparment is advised that the Chinese regulars, who retired beyond the great wall, have re-appeared at another point within the international area. Strong representations have been made to the Chinese plenipotentiaries in regard to the necessity for their immediate retirement. The French force is in readiness to renew the operations, but has been ordered to await the result of the imperial edicts.

The following cablegram has been received at the State Department from Mr. Squires, the United States charge at Pekin: "The Empress Dowager has appointed a board of National administration to relieve her of her public functions. They embrace three members of the cabinet now with the Empress at Sian Fu and Prince Ching, Viceroy Lian and Prince Kung, who are now in Pekin." This news is regarded as of importance, indicatng as it does the relinquishment by the Empress Dowager of the arbitary powers she heretofore has exercised.

Private advices to merchants in San Francisco state that the War Department has under favorable consideration an action for the establishment of an American line of steamers to Manila proposed by the mercantile interests of that city.

The Maryland Steel Company, which built the torpedo boat destroyer Worden, Wipple and Truxton notifies the Navy Department that invitations to christen these vessels have been sent to Miss Isabelle Truxton, of Norfolk, in the case of Truxton; Miss Katherine Whipple Sibley of Detroit, in the case of the Whipple, and that Mrs. John L. Worden, widow of the late Admiral Worden has been requested to select a suitable person to christen the Worden. It is expected the three destroyers will be launched at the ship yards on Sparrow's Point, Baltimore, the latter part of next month.

General Pedro F. Balencourt, one of the most influential members of the Cuban delegation, says: "It should be understood that we are here for the purpose of studying the entire question of the relations between the United States, more particularly as presented by the Platt amendment. But it is a mistake to think that we have presented any proposition or that there is anything thus far beyond a slight effort to bring the views entertained by the Cubans here to a focus.

The Mexican ambassador has received a denial from his government of the report that the Mexican government has given a concession of 5,000,000 of national land in the states of Tamaulias, Vera Cruz, Coahuila and Durango for colonization purposes.

The administraiton has succeeded in securing a collection of opinions from the leaders of the senate of all political parties upon which to base negotiations for a new isthmian canal treaty. Now that it is aware of the wishes of the most of the senators, the only problem before the state department is to frame treaty that will reflect those views, ensuring a two-thrids vote for ratification, and yet shall be acceptable to the British government. It is expected that the draft of a treaty will be framed before long, probably the latter part of June on Mr. Hay's return from the west.

Congressman Irwin recommended to the civil service commission the removal of John H. Casey and Thomas F. Ditto from their positions as members of the board of examiners of the engineer service at Louisville. It is alleged by Representative Irwin that the engineers' board of Louisville has practical control over the discharge and appointment of the several hundred employes at the canal locks, and that the appointees are selected exclusively from among the friends of Casey and Ditto.

SHOE INDUSTRY BOOMING.

The Famous Factory at Brockton, Mass., to Be Enlarged.

Boston, Mass.—The boom in New England industries continues and reports from the factory centres tell one tale of universal business activity. No line seems to be in a more prosperous state than is the shoe industry. From Brockton come especial encouraging reports. W. L. Doulgass is going to increase the capacity of his factory to 6,000 pairs of shoes per day.

The addition will be made in the form of a wing running out from the front of the factory 100 feet deep, forty feet wide and four stories high. This will add 16,000 square feet of space for manufacturing purposes.

About $4,000 more per week will be paid out to shoemakers. Which will go to increase the prosperity of the community at large.

When the factory starts up the first of July it will be on an output of 500 dozen pairs of shoes per day, and the weekly pay roll, exclusive of office help, superintendent, foremen, etc., will be $22,000 per week to those actually engaged in making shoes.

The salesmen on the road are selling twenty-five per cent more goods than last season, and to take care of this increased business the erection of the addition is made necessary. The increased sale is the direct result of extensive advertising, the expenditure for which is now larger than at any other period, and is to be still further increased.

Killed at Brookside.

Coroner Paris, of Birmingham, was called to Brookside Sunday night to investigate the killing of a negro man at that place. Neither the name of the negro nor any cicrumstances surrounding the killing could be ascertained. His body was found late Sunday after noon.

Cannot Collect for Whisky.

Judge Holmes of the Des Moines District Court, has decided that a liquor firm outside the state cannot collect for goods shipped into the state and consigned to a factor acting on salary or commsision.

Great Preparation.

Great preparations are being made to receive President McKinley when he stops for a short time in Decatur. At a joint meeting of the mayors and citizens of the two Decaturs, plans were formulated and committees appointed to see that the towns appear to good advantage. The entertainment committee, as well as all other committees, are equally divided between the two towns. The ladies will present Mrs. McKinley witn a beautiful floral piece, "With Welcome to the Decaturs."

Citizens Interested in New Road.

The question of building the proposed railroad from Courtland to Lamb's Ferry on the Tennessee river, eight miles from Courtland, is being discussed on every hand. Many of the leading citizens of this section are very much interested, and it looks very much as if the project will go through. The distance from Lamb's Ferry to Decatur is twenty miles.

LATE STATE NEWS

They Want a New County.

The citizens of Shelby county held a mass meeting Saturday. J. L. Oliver was elected chairman and Abercrombie secretary. After the chairman had explained the object of the meeting and after other citizens had spoken, Mr. Abercrombie offered the following resolution, which was unanimously adopted:

"Resolved, That all citizens in Coosa Valley between the Calera creek in Shelby county and Backbone mountain in St. Clair are urgently requested to attend a meeting to be held at Vandergrift on Saturday, the 11th day of May to discuss and to take into consideration the best plans to be adopted to secure the constitutional convention to grant the necessary steps to create a county living in the territory referred to, to procure the creation and establishment of a new county in said territory."

Governor on Negro Problem.

Gov. W. J. Samford, in a letter to a New York paper says the south does not object to the efforts of philanthropists to assist the negro in education or otherwise. The south generously disperses the school fund between the races. The southern people have the kindest feeling for the negro and have no objection to what he may receive to better his condition. The negro problem is necessarily committed to the white people of this state, and I doubt if it can be successfully undertaken by those who live hundreds of miles away and are ignorant of existing conditions. Misdirected effort might retard rather than help his condition."

Linden Looking for Railroad.

Linden people are very much interested in the outlook for a railroad. A corps of engineers started out one day morning from Thomaston to run a line from that place to Nanahubba, passing on the Bigbee river, just above Myrtlewood. This line goes about one and a half miles south of Linden. Other surveys will no doubt be made before ther oute is permanently located, and it is thought by many that the better route can be had nearer Linden, about one mile south where the road will strike the old road bed intended for the Linden and Beckley railroad, which was built by the citizens of Linden in the palmy days before the war.

Lands Optioned.

A well informed gentleman says that there is scarcely an acre of agricultural land in the county of Tuscaloosa that is not optioned. These options have been taken on lands far down the Warrior river, but lying in Tuscaloosa county. There are several parties holding these options, but there is one company which owns options on about 200,000 acres of the best lands in the county, and it is believed that eventually these will prove to be very valuable to the holders of them. A Louisville syndicate is also interested in options on a large amount of timber land in the county, and these lands, more or less covered by these options.

A Peculiar Death.

W. Henry Schnitzer, engineer on the Louisville and Nashville railroad, met his death in a mysterious and horrible manner by being run over by a freight train at Cullman. Mr. Schnitzer was in charge of the engine on freight train No. 16, second section, and had waited at Cullman for three freight trains, section men to pass him. When he arrived at this place, in accordance with the orders given by the train dispatcher, he took the siding. For some reason he alighted from his engine and was seen no more until his badly mangled body was found a short time after.

Extension of Stove Foundry.

Foundations for a large addition to the Lizzie Lowman Stove Foundry, of Sheffield, have been completed. The company will, upon the completion of its enlargement, add sixteen men to its force, besides adding new patterns of stoves to its output. The foundry is full up with work, shipping two car loads of stoves.

Bartow Man Reviews Incidents of The "Late Unpleasantness."

A TRIBUTE TO "TIGE" ANDERSON.

The Union of Georgia and Kentucky Regiments Formed the Brigade Which General Lee Led

General G. T. Anderson (Old Tige) and Colonel Tom Taylor have just passed over the river. They were about the same age and were close to each other during the civil war. General Anderson was our brigade commander and Colonel Taylor commanded one of his regiments, the First Kentucky. Since the war one of them was made chief of police of Atlanta and the other of Louisville, Ky. Taylor was next to the last of the surviving colonels of that brigade. It was General Bartow's old brigade, composed of the Seventh, Eighth, Ninth and Eleventh Georgia regiments and the First Kentucky and a Virginia battery. The regiments changed their colonels many times and of the old Eighth only one (Colonel Towers), who was its fifth colonel, now survives. None but the veterans know how numerous were these changes of commanding officers.

The records show that but one of the Georgia regiments that went into service in 1861 and 1862 brought back the same colonel it took out. The officers of the companies were changed oftener than the colonels. Deaths, resignations and promotions were ever going on. Captain Twiggs' company of the First Georgia regulars had twelve different captains during the war. The personnel of the privates was also continually changing—"disappeared" or K. I. B. (killed in battle)—responded to more names than half the first muster rolls, and recruiting was constantly going on to fill up the ranks.

But I was ruminating about old Tige and Tom Taylor, for after General Bartow was killed I was transferred to General Anderson's staff and followed his fortunes for nearly two years in the Army of Northern Virginia. He was every inch a soldier. He never questioned the wisdom of an order, but obeyed it.

"Ours not to make reply,
Ours not to reason why;
Ours but to do and die"

was his motto. I do not believe he ever experienced the emotion of fear. We thought that sometimes he was too daring. I remember that on one morning during the battles on the Chickahominy he wished to make a personal reconnaissance of the position of the enemy on its left flank, and asked Major Ayer and myself to ride with him. There was a wide, open field between the armies, probably 1,000 acres, and our wing was covered by a forest of thick woods curving around the open space in form of a semi-circle. We kept covered by those woods until we had got far round and were as near to the federal battery as we dared to go. The general said: "Well, there is no use in going back the long way that we came. Let us take the diameter of this circle and save a mile or two." "They will see us and open fire," said I. "Let them shoot," said he, "they can't hit us. We can outride their balls; come on, follow me."

We did follow, but we dident want to and there was no necessity for taking such a peril. I will never forget that ride. The federal batteries opened fire quickly as we flew along the plain. The six-pounder sent their balls over us and behind us and before us and some bounded along the ground quite near us, but the general only waved his hat and smiled. We were all well mounted and made the trip safely, but I never made another pleasance with him. One evening his brigade was at work on the banks of the Rappahannock. We had made a long march and were awaiting orders. The boys were sitting down or lying down upon the grass. The horses were massed behind the mountain range that skirted the opposite bank of the river.

We could not see them, but we knew they were there, for their battery amused themselves by firing over the mountains and dropping their shells at random over us and beyond us. They exploded in the air and did but little harm. We were not disturbed and watched them as we would a pyrotechnic display. General Anderson was stretched at length upon the ground and we were not far away. His fine horse was cropping the grass near the general held him with a long rein that was attached to the bridle. While we were chatting quietly a shell exploded directly over us and a piece of the fragment struck his horse on the head and killed him instantly.

My nearness to the danger stopped my conversation, but the loss of his horse aroused and excited Old Tige to more than usual eloquence. Looking at his horse that was dying at his feet he poured out a language according to his anger and indignation. His anathemas were terrible. "We will pay them for that," said he; "I would have given my right arm for that horse. But we will pay them back two for one. We have come here to fight, and old Bob will give us a chance to get even. Blast their infernal hides! All they dare to do is to hide behind a mountain and shoot at us." He did get even, and Old Tige was comforted; for in a few days the second battle of Manassas was won and a great victory won. Forty-thousand troops under Lee un-

"A Gray Man Reviews Incidents of The Late Unpleasantness."

A TRIBUTE TO "TIGE" ANDERSON.

A Native of Georgia Kentucky Troops Formed the Brigade Which General Lee Led

Generals T. Anderson (Old Tige) and Tom Taylor have just crossed over the river. They were in the same army and were close to each other during the civil war. General Anderson was a brigade commander and commanded one of the regiments of the First Kentucky brigade, and I think it was one of them was made up at Atlanta and the other at Augusta. Taylor was next door to Anderson. Of the surviving colonels of the brigade I think I was general Bartow's aide, Lee was colonel of the Seventh, Gartrell of the Ninth and Eleventh Georgia and Lewis was in the First Kentucky and Georgia battery. The regiments changed their colonels many times and the old Eighth only one (Colonel Lewis, who was made fifth colonel, I believe). None but the veterans knew these changes. Fighting officers were these. I think that but one of the colonels that went into action in 1862 brought back a commission to look out. The officers were changed by death. Deaths, wounds and promotions were ever taking place. In Twiggs' company the first Georgia regulars had three captains and six lieutenants during the war, besides most of the privates and corporals changing—"promoted" or killed in battle—and recruiting officers came more names than half a dozen musty rolls, and recruiting was constantly going on to fill up the ranks.

But I was ruminating about old Tige and Tom Taylor, for after General Bartow was killed I was transferred to Mr. Anderson's staff and followed his fortunes for nearly two years in the Army of Northern Virginia. He was a very rich man. He never questioned the wisdom of an order, but obeyed it.

"Ours not to make reply
Ours not to reason why,
Ours but to do and die"

was his motto. I do not believe he ever experienced the emotion of fear. I thought that sometimes he was reckless and daring. I remember that on one morning during the battles on the Rappahannock he wished to make a personal reconnaissance of the position of the enemy on its left flank, and asked Major Ayer and myself to ride with him. There was a wide, open field between the armies, probably 200 acres, and our wing was covered by a forest of thick woods curving around the open space in form of a half circle. We kept covered by the woods until we had got far round and were as near to the federal batteries as we dared to go. The general said: "Well, there is no use in going back the long way that we came. Let us take the diameter of this circle and be home over two." "They will see us and open fire," said I. "Let them shoot," said he, "they can't hit us. They can't hit our balls; come on; follow me."

We did follow, but we dident want to. There was no necessity for taking such a risk. I will never forget that ride. The federal batteries opened quickly as we flew along their front. The first pounder sent their shot over us and behind us and behind us and bounded along the road quite near us, but the general never waved his hat and smiled. We reached home safely and made the journey safely, but I never made another such venture with him. One evening a brigade was at work on the banks of the Rappahannock. We had made a long march and were awaiting orders. The boys were sitting down or lying down upon the grass. The enemy were massed behind the mountain range that skirted the opposite side of the river.

We did not see them, but we knew they were there, for their batteries amused themselves by firing at us and dropping their shells at random over us and among us. They exploded in the air around us, doing little harm. We were not annoyed, but watched them as we would a display. General Lee was stretched at length upon a knoll and we were not far away. A fragment struck his horse in the head and killed him instantly. Our nearness to the danger stopped conversation, but the loss of his horse aroused and excited Old Tige to some measure. Looking at his horse that was dying at his feet he used language according to his anger and indignation. His anathemas were awful. "We will pay them for that," he said; "I would have given my right arm for that horse. But we will pay them back two for one. We have come here to fight, and old Bob will give us a chance to get even. Blast their infernal hide-and-seek tactics! All they dare to do is to hide behind a mountain and shoot over it." We did get even, and Old Tige was comforted; for in a few days the second battle of Manassas was fought and a great victory won. Forty-eight thousand troops under Lee utterly routed and vanquished 80,000 under Pope.

I never think of General Tom Taylor but what I think of the great battle of Drainsville, in which he figured, and a smile comes over my memory. The fun of that battle lasted our boys a long time, and Major Ayer at Rome is not done laughing at it yet. The valley of Drainsville was neutral ground and the harvest of hay was great. The two armies were in winter quarters and wanted it. Jeb Stuart assured General Johnston that if he would furnish the wagons and teams and a regiment of infantry he would go for the hay. He said that the owners were mostly southern men and wanted us to have it. Old Joe was suspicious, but consented. The federals were nearer to it and had a large force of cavalry in their camp. Tom Taylor was sent along with his regiment and Major Ayer put in charge of 400 wagons, with four-horse teams to each.

It was about fifteen miles to the valley over a pike road that was generally wide enough for teams to pass each other, but was very narrow where cut through the little hills. Many of these cuts, a hundred yards long, were not more than ten feet wide. The day and the scheme was kept profoundly secret. One morning about the break of day our boys were aroused by the unearthly rumbling sound of 400 wagons rolling over the pike, but that sound was nothing to the roaring of those wagons on their return. That train of wagons was nearly four miles long and by the time the head of the column got fairly into the valley and the major began bossing the loading of the foremost teams Tom Taylor, with his men, were resting in the suburbs and Jeb Stuart, with 2,000 cavalry, were paraded on a hill overlooking the valley. Just then 6,000 federal cavalry came charging down from some hiding place behind the woods and for an hour or more Stuart and Taylor had their hands full.

The federals had an artillery company to help create a panic and they were after the wagon train in desperate determination. In the confusion that followed the surprise Stuart ordered the wagons that were loading to countermarch in double quick and they performed that maneuver with great alacrity until the head of the procession reached the pike and could get no farther, for the body and tail of the train blockaded the highway for two miles both ways. Then came the great stampede. "Then rushed the steeds from battle driven." All along marshal, lives here now and still declares that he turned his team in an eight foot cut and passed two more in a ten-foot cut and had liked to have beat the whole train to camp. His driving was like the driving of Jehu, for he drove furiously.

The big battle of Drainsville never got into history, but it was camp talk at Centerville all that winter. During the revolution of 1776 there was a great battle called the "battles of the kegs" that caused infinite merriment to the continental army and it was set to verse by a humorous poet, Francis Hopkinson, but this is known to Virginia veterans as the "battle of the wagons."—BILL ARP in Atlanta Constitution.

the line the alarm was given, whips were popping, teamsters bawling. "Turn, men; turn and save your teams," exclaimed the major. "The yankees are coming." And they did turn, but to this day nobody knows how. Some of the wagoners swore afterwards they flew over and some crawled under and some turned a four-horse team in an eight-foot cut. Colonel Taylor ordered his men to guard the wagons, but they couldn't keep up with them. Stuart's men were in a hand to hand fight with the enemies' cavalry and slashed them with swords and shot them with small arms; but they were outnumbered and had to fight and fall back at every charge.

It was about the middle of the afternoon when the roaring of the stampeding train reached our campground. Old Joe Johnston heard it, for the sound thereof was like the sound of many waters. He understood it at once and ordered a whole brigade and battery to double quick up the Drainsville pike. "I told Stuart," he exclaimed, "they would trick if he didn't look out. Those rascals in that valley are nearly all union men and they got word to the enemy. I'm afraid we have lost some of our wagons, and it will be a hard joke on Stuart." Later on we perceived great clouds of dust gathering over the pike and the roaring came louder and louder and nearer and nearer, and by and by, with the aid of a field glass, we could see Major Ayer rise over the top of a distant hill and halt. He is a fine rider and was astride a fine horse whose name was Selim.

He saw the brigade coming to the rescue and slowed up, the long procession behind him. Man and beast were dripping with streams of sweat that would have turned a saw mill. In the grand melee Colonel Taylor got out off from his command, for the boys were trying to keep up with the wagons. But they all came up in course of time and received the plaudits of their comrades. Stuart worried the enemy so bad that they left the valley with nary wagon and Major Ayer left it with nary hay. But they got it later, for old Joe got his back up and swore he would have it.

Those 400 wagoners were for a long time the heroes of the campfires. One of them, Jim Wilkerson, our former

THE BIBLE AND A MYSTERY.

Only Three Men in the India Paper Street at Oxford.

It is fairly well known, says the Golden Penny, that the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge, having paid £20,000 toward the cost of publication, are joint owners of the copyright of the Revised Version. The copyrights of the Authorized Version and of the Book of Common Prayer, however, are vested in the Crown, and authority to print them in England is given by patent to the king's printers, and by charter to the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge. There is, probably, not another printing press in the world which issues so many copies of the Bible as that of the Oxford university, where the famous India paper, a quarter of a century ago, revolutionized both the Bible and the prayer book trade.

Oxford's answer to the question whether the circulation of the Bible is decreasing is emphatically: "No." The output averages about a million complete copies every year, apart from New Testaments, separate portions and Welsh Bibles. Justly proud of their printing, the authorities of the press make a standing offer of a guinea to anybody who first points out a printer's error in any edition of the Authorized Version and as there are over 70 editions of the Oxford Bible altogether, it is sufficient testimony to the excellence of the work to say that the bill for these errors—the errors themselves being usually of the most trivial character—rarely amounts to more than two or three guineas a year. There are a few obsolete words in the Bible, however—"astonied," for example—which are a constant source of trouble on this account, raising false hopes in the breasts of many a would-be winner of the guinea reward, and involving correspondence with applicants from all over the world.

Today the Bible, in all its stages, is produced by the best workmanship in the trade, and under the most watchful care it is possible to provide. This remark is equally true of each of the three great houses from which we get our Bibles. The Oxford Press is remarkable from the fact that it not only prints its books, but manufactures its own paper, makes its own type for some 50 or 60 languages, maintains its own bindery—where the skins of at least 100,000 animals are annually prepared for Bibles alone—and, in short, does everything connected with the work from start to finish. The Oxford type foundery is interesting as being the oldest establishment of its kind in England.

The Oxford India paper is, of course, of recent date, although its original, hidden among the many other secrets of the mysterious East, may date back to an indefinite age. Only three persons at a time are permitted to know the process of its manufacture at the University mills at Wolvercote, each workman being allowed to understand only one stage of the process. The story of its introduction has been told before, but it is worth retelling. Sixty years ago an Oxford graduate, newly home from India, presented the University Press with a small fold of remarkably thin, yet perfectly opaque paper. In 1874 a serious attempt was made to manufacture a similar paper. The preliminary experiments at the Wolvercote mills failed, but out of these failures presently came complete success, the first fruits of which took the form of an edition of the Bible similar in all respects to the unlimited number of copies printed 33 years before on the graduate's fold of paper from India. This was in August, 1875, and so great was the demand for the new edition that in a few weeks a quarter of a million copies had been sold. Nowadays the Oxford India paper is employed for hundreds of different works and editions, yet it remains as much a mystery as ever.

Over a Million British Paupers.

A time of war is usually a time of little or no pauperism. Yet the British journals are commenting on the fact that in the words of the Spectator, "the number of paupers in London is only 195 less than it was a year ago, a difference which may be dismissed as meaningless" in view of the huge total.

British official year-books for 1901 give some rather staggering facts about the extent of pauperism in the three kingdoms at a time when, trade being immensely stimulated by the South African war, it should be at its lowest point. With a population of 27,500,000 the pauper rolls of England last year comprised 807,471 persons, who were supported at a cost of $56,000,000. Scotland, with a population of about 4,000,000, supported 97,947 paupers at an expense for the year of a little over $5,000,000. Ireland, with a population of 4,700,000, returned 97,587 persons as paupers, for whose support $5,400,000 was raised by poor-rates.

It thus appears that in Edward VII.'s kingdom, despite the passing artificial aid to prosperity of a big war, there are 1,003,005 paupers supported by public taxation, at a cost of nearly $67,000,000 a year.—New York World.

Mock Volcano at the Fair.

One of the unique features of the Paris exposition is the mock volcano or miniature Vesuvius, which cost $1,000,000 to construct. The burning mountain is daily sending forth life-like corona flames and real lava.

The outside of the volcano is planted with trees and shrubs, as well as a good sprinkling of rocks and stones.

Visitors ascend by means of a model railway, and restaurant, cafes and side shows find a place on the side of this diminutive Vesuvius.

REV. DR. TALMAGE

DISCOURSE BY THE EMINENT DIVINE LAST SUNDAY.

Subject: In Praise of the World's Redeemer—Portraits of Some of His Great Disciples and Exponents—The Love of Christ Set Forth.

[Copyright 1901.]

WASHINGTON, D. C.—In this discourse Dr. Talmage sounds the praises of the world's Redeemer, and puts before us the portraits of some of His great disciples and exponents; text, John iii, 31, "He that cometh from above is above all."

The most conspicuous character of history steps out upon the platform. The finger which, diamonded with light, pointed down to Him from the Bethlehem sky was only a ratification of the finger of prophecy, the finger of genealogy, the finger of chronology, the finger of events—all five fingers pointing in one direction. Christ is the overtopping figure of all time. He is the vox humana in all music, the gracefullest line in all sculpture, the most exquisite mingling of lights and shades in all painting, the acme of all climaxes, the dome of all cathedrals, the grandeur and the peroration of all splendid language.

The Greek alphabet is made up of twenty-four letters, and when Christ compared Himself to the first letter and the last letter, the alpha and omega, He appropriated to Himself all the splendors that you can spell out with those two letters and all the letters between them. "I am the alpha and omega, the beginning and the end, the first and the last." Or, if you prefer the words of the text, "Above all."

It means, after you have piled up all Alpine and Himalayan altitudes, the glory of Christ would have to spread its wings and descend a thousand leagues to touch those summits. Pelion, a high mountain of Thessaly; Ossa, a high mountain, and Olympus, a high mountain, but mythology tells us when the giants warred against the gods they piled up these three mountains and from the top of them proposed to scale the heavens, but the height was not great enough, and there was a complete failure. And after all the giants—Isaiah and Paul, prophetic and apostolic giants; Raphael and Michael Angelo, artistic giants; cherubim and seraphim and archangel, celestial giants—have failed to climb to the top of Christ's glory they might all well unite in the words of the text and say, "He that cometh from above is above all."

First, Christ must be above all else in our preaching. There are so many books on homiletics scattered through the world that all laymen, as well as all clergymen, have made up their minds what sermons ought to be. That sermon is most effectual which most pointedly puts forth Christ as the pardon of all sin and the correction of all evil, individual, social, political, national. There is no reason why we should ring the endless changes on a few phrases. There are those who think that if an exhortation or a discourse have frequent mention of justification, sanctification, covenant of works and covenant of grace, therefore it must be profoundly evangelical, while they are suspicious of a discourse which presents the same truth, but under different phraseology. Now, I say there is nothing in all the opulent realm of Anglo-Saxonism or all the word treasures that we inherited from the Latin and the Greek and the Indo-European, but we have a right to marshal it in religious discussion. Christ sets the example. His illustrations were from the grass, the flowers, the spittle, the salve, the barnyard fowl, the crystals of salt, as well as from the seas and the stars, and we do not propose in our Sunday-school teaching and in our pulpit address to be put on the limits.

I know that there is a great deal said in our day against words, as though they were nothing. They may be misused, but they have an imperial power. They are the bridge between soul and soul, between Almighty God and the human race. What did God write upon the tables of stone? Words. What did Christ utter on Mount Olivet? Words. Out of what did Christ strike the spark for the illumination of the universe? Out of words. "Let there be light," and light was. Of course thought is the cargo and words are only the ship, but how fast would your cargo get on without the ship? What you need, my friends, in all your work, in your Sunday-school class, in your reformatory institutions, and what we all need is to enlarge our vocabulary when we come to speak about God and Christ in heaven. We ride a few old words to death when there is such an illimitable resource. Shakespeare employed 15,000 different words for dramatic purposes. Milton employed 8000 different words for poetic purposes; Rufus Choate employed over 11,000 different words for legal purposes, but the most of us have less than a thousand words that we can manage, less than 500, and that makes us so stupid.

When we come to set forth the love of Christ, we are going to take the tenderest phraseology wherever we find it, and if it has never been used in that direction before all the more shall we use it. When we come to speak of the glory of Christ the conqueror, we are going to draw our similes from triumphal arch and oratorio and everything grand and stupendous. The French navy has eighteen flags by which they give signal, but those eighteen flags they can put into 66,000 different combinations, combinations infinite and varieties everlasting. And let me say to young men who are after a while going to preach Jesus Christ, you will have the largest liberty and unlimited resource. You only have to present Christ in your own way.

Jonathan Edwards preached Christ in the severest argument ever penned, and John Bunyan preached Christ in the sublimest allegory ever composed. Edward Payson, sick and exhausted, leaned up against the side of his pulpit and wept out his discourse, while George Whitefield, with the manner and the voice and the art of an actor, overwhelmed his auditory. It would have been a different thing if Jonathan Edwards had tried to write and dream about the pilgrim's progress to the celestial city or John Bunyan had attempted an essay on the human will.

Brighter than the light, fresher than the fountains, deeper than the seas, are these gospel themes. Song has not melody, flowers have no sweetness, sunset sky has no color, compared with these glorious themes. These harvests of grace spring up quicker than we can sickle them. Kindling pulpits with their fire and producing revolutions with their power, lighting up dying beds with their gory, they are the sweetest thought for the poet, and they are the most thrilling illustration for the orator, and they offer the most intense scene for the artist, and they are to the embassador of the sky all entusiasm. Complete pardon for direst guilt. Sweetest comfort for ghastliest agony. Brightest hope for grimmest death. Granuest resurrection for darkest sepulcher.

"Oh, what a gospel to preach! Christ over all in it. His birth, His suffering, His miracles, His parables, His sweat, His tears, His blood, His atonement, His intercession—what glorious themes! Do we exercise faith? Christ is its object. Do we have love? It fastens on Jesus. Have we a fondness for the church? It is because Christ died for it. Have we a hope of heaven? It is because Jesus went ahead, the herald and the forerunner.

The royal robe of Demetrius was so costly, so beautiful, that after he had put it off no one ever dared put it on. But this robe of Christ, richer than that, the poorest and wannest and the worst may wear. "Where sin abounded grace may much more abound."

"Oh, my sins, my sins," said Martin Luther to Staupitz; "my sins, my sins!" The fact is that the brawny German student had found a Latin Bible that had made him quake, and nothing else ever did make him quake, and when he found how through Christ, he was pardoned, and saved he wrote to a friend, saying: "Come over and join us, great and awful sinners saved by the grace of God. You seem to be only a slender sinner, and you don't much extol the mercy of God, but we who have been such very awful sinners praise His grace the more now that we have been redeemed." Can it be that you are so desperately egotistical that you feel yourself in first rate spiritual trim, and that from the root of the hair to the tip of the toe you are scarless and immaculate? What you need is a looking glass, and here it is in the Bible. Poor and wretched and miserable and blind and naked from the crown of the head to the sole of the foot, full of wounds and putrefying sores. No health in us. And then take the fact that Christ gathered up all the notes against us and paid them and then offered us the receipt.

And how much we need Him in our sorrows! We are independent of circumstances if we have His grace. Why, He made Paul sing in the dungeon and under that grace St. John from desolate Patmos heard the blast of the apocalyptic trumpets. After all other candles have been snuffed out this is the light that gets brighter and brighter unto the perfect day, and after, under the hard hoofs of calamity, all the pools of worldly enjoyment have been trampled into deep mire, at the foot of the eternal rock, the Christian, from cups of granite, lily rimmed and vine covered, puts out the thirst of his soul.

Again I remark that Christ is above all in dying alleviations. I have not any sympathy with the morbidity abroad about our demise. The Emperor of Constantinople arranged that on the day of his coronation the stonemason should come and consult him about his tombstone that after a while he would need, and there are men who are monomaniacal on the subject of departure from this life by death, and the more they think of it the less prepared are they to go. This is an unmanliness not worthy of you, nor worthy of me.

Saladin, the greatest conqueror of his day, while dying ordered the tunic he had on him to be carried after his death on a spear at the head of his army, and then the soldier ever and anon should stop and say: "Behold all that is left of Saladin, the emperor and conqueror! Of all the states he conquered, of all the wealth he accumulated, nothing did he retain but this shroud!"

I have no sympathy with such behavior or such absurd demonstration, or with much that we hear uttered in regard to departure from this life to the next. There is a common sensical idea on this subject that you and I need to consider—that there are only two styles of departure.

A thousand feet under ground, by light of torch toiling in a miner's shaft, a ledge of rock may fall upon us, and we may die a miner's death. Far out at sea, falling from the slippery ratlines and broken on the halyards, we may die a sailor's death. On mission of mercy in hospital, amid broken bones and reeling leprosies and raging fevers, we may die a philanthropist's death.

On the field of battle, serving God and our country, slugs through the heart, the gun carriage may roll over us, and we may die a patriot's death. But, after all, there are only two styles of departure—the death of the righteous and of the wicked, and we all want to die the former.

What did the dying Janeway say? "I can as easily die as close my eyes or turn my head in sleep. Before a few hours have passed I shall stand on Mount Zion with the one hundred and forty and four thousand and with the just men made perfect, and we shall ascribe riches and honor and glory and majesty and dominion unto God and the Lamb." Dr. Taylor, condemned to burn at the stake, on his way thither broke away from the guardsmen and went bounding and leaping and jumping toward the fire, glad to go to Jesus and to die for Him. Sir Charles Hare in his last moment had such rapturous vision that he cried, "Upward, upward, upward!" And so great was the peace of one of Christ's disciples that he put his finger upon the pulse in his wrist and counted it and observed its halting beats until his life had ended here to begin in heaven. But grander than that was the testimony of the wornout first missionary when in the Mamertine dungeon he cried: "I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand! I have fought the good fight. I have finished my course. I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, will give me in that day, and not to me only, but to all them that love His appearing!" Do you not see that Christ is above all in dying alleviations?

Toward the last hour of our earthly residence we are speeding. When I see the spring blossoms scattered I say, "Another season gone forever." When I close the Bible on Sabbath night, I say, "Another Sabbath departed." When I bury a friend, I say, "Another earthly attraction gone forever." What nimble feet the years have!

The roebucks and the lightnings run not so fast. From decade to decade, from sky to sky, they go at a bound. There is a place for us, whether marked or not, where you and I will sleep the last sleep, and the men are now living who will with solemn tread carry us to our resting place.

So, also, Christ is above all, in heaven. The Bible distinctly says that Christ is the chief theme of the celestial ascription, all the thrones facing His throne, all the palms waved before His face, all the crowns down at His feet. Cherubim to cherubim, seraphim to seraphim, redeemed spirit to redeemed spirit, shall recite the Saviour's earthly sacrifice.

Stand on some high hill of heaven, and in all the radiant sweep the most glorious object will be Jesus. Myriads gazing on the scars of His suffering, in silence first, afterward breaking forth into acclamation. The martyrs, all the purer for the flame through which they passed, will say, "This is Jesus, for whom we died." The apostles, all the happier for the shipwreck and the scourging through which they went, will say, "This is the Jesus whom we preached at Corinth, and in Cappadocia, and at Antioch, and at Jerusalem." Little children, clad in white will say, "This is the Jesus who took us in His arms and blessed us, and when the storms of the world were too cold and loud brought us into this beautiful place." The multitudes of the bereft will say, "This is the Jesus who comforted us when our heart broke." Many who had wandered clear off from God and plunged into vagabondism, but were saved by grace, will say: "This is the Jesus who pardoned us. We were lost on the mountains, and He brought us home. We were guilty and He made us white as snow." Mercy boundless, grace unparalleled. And then, after each one has recited his peculiar deliverances and peculiar mercies, recited them as by solo, all the voiced will come together in a great chorus, which shall make the arches re-echo with the eternal reverberation of gladness and peace and triumph.

Edward I. was so anxious to go to the Holy Land that when he was about to expire he bequeathed $160,000 to have his heart after his decease taken and deposited in the Holy Land, and his request was complied with. But there are hundreds today whose hearts are already in the holy land of heaven. Where your treasures are, there are your hearts also. John Bunyan, of whom I spoke at the opening of the discourse, caught a glimpse of that place, and in his quaint way he said: "And I heard in my dream, and, lo, the bells of the city rang again for joy. And as they opened the gates to let in the men I looked in after them, and, lo, the city shone like the sun, and there were streets of gold, and men walked on them, harps in their hands to sing praises with—all. And after that they shut up the gates, which when I had seen I wished myself among them."

THE SABBATH SCHOOL

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR MAY 5.

Subject: Jesus and Peter, John xxi., 15-25—Golden Text, John xxi., 17—Memory Verses, 15-17—Commentary on the Day's Lesson.

15. "When they had dined." Eating together was a token of fellowship and here shows Jesus's perfect reconciliation to all His disciples. "Simon, son of Jonas." He does not call him Cephas, or Peter, the name He had given him, for he had lost the credit of his strength and stability which those names signified. By thus addressing him it would the more affect him and bring vividly before him his denial. "Lovest thou Me?" There were special reasons why this question should be put to Peter. (1) He had denied his love for Christ and there was reason for Christ to suspect his love. (2) He must learn that love for Christ is the thing most commendable and the surest proof of penitence. There is a curious change of terms here, and, if we would fully understand this passage, it is necessary to call attention to some of the delicate shades of meaning in the Greek, which do not appear in our English translations. Jesus uses the word love three times in His questions, and Peter uses it three times in his answers, but in the original the word which Jesus uses in His first two questions (agapao) is a different word from that which Peter uses (phileo) in all his answers. In the third asking Jesus uses Peter's word. "More than these." That is, more than these other disciples love Me. He had declared, "Though all men shall be offended because of Thee, yet will I never be offended." Christ would now hear his present testimony. Others think that by "more than these," Jesus meant the boat, nets and fish—in fact, his business. Whether Christ meant this or not, it should be remembered that if our love for Christ is perfect, we will love Him more than we love our earthly possessions. "Thou knowest that I love Thee." He could not only profess love to Christ, but he could tell Him that He knew that there was love in his heart. He was confident that Jesus knew that he loved Him. "Feed My lambs." This is a commission to give spiritual food to the youngest and weakest in the flock of Christ.

16. "Feed My sheep." Here He uses a word which signifies to tend a flock, not only to feed, but to take care of, guide, govern, defend, etc., by which He seems to intimate that it is not sufficient merely to offer the bread of life to the congregation of the Lord, but he must take care that the sheep be properly collected, attended to, regulated and guided.

17. "The third time." The three questions could not but recall the three denials, and the form of the last question could not but vividly bring back the thought of the failure of personal devotion at the moment of trial. "Lovest thou Me?" This time Jesus uses Peter's word for love. "Was grieved." Because He pressed the question the third time and thus called attention to his failure, and because in changing the word he had used for love He seemed to imply a doubt of his love. It has been suggested that Peter feared lest Christ still saw something wrong in his heart that would lead to another fall. "Thou knowest all things." He was sure of Christ's perfect knowledge, and humbly appeals to Him for proof of his love. "Feed My sheep." Still another word is used here by Christ to represent the flock committed to Peter's care, which means "little sheep;" "the sheeplings," the tender and delicate that needed special care. The purpose of these questions seems to have been, 1. To show Peter that Jesus knew his failures and heartily forgave them. 2. To guard him against his natural self-confidence lest he should again fall. 3. To show his brethren that he was fully restored. 4. To set clearly before him the great work he was to do. 5. To impress upon him that only in deep and earnest love to Jesus could he do this work.

18. "Verily, verily." These words express the truthfulness and unchangeableness of what is to follow. "When thou wast young," etc. Peter must have been about middle life. He now went where he chose to go, but the time would come when he would be carried by others. This forecast of Peter's future seems to have been for the purpose of encouraging him by the assurance that, however he may have failed in the past, he would henceforth go on boldly, even to crucifixion. "Shall be old." Peter lived thirty-six years after this, and was crucified at Rome about the year 66 A. D. "Another shall gird thee." Such as were condemned to be crucified were tied to the cross until the nails were driven. "Wouldest not." While Peter was willing to die for Christ, yet he was a man and would naturally shink from the torture of the cross. Ancient writers state, however, that he considered it such a glorious thing to die for Christ, that "he begged to be crucified with his head downward, not thinking himself worthy to die in the same posture in which his Lord did."

19. "Glorify God." The good man glorifies God in his death as well as in his life. Psa. 116: 15; Phil. 1: 20. In an especial manner did the death of the martyrs glorify God: for they gave their lives in defense of the truth. "Follow Me." Jesus probably desired to take Peter aside for the purpose of speaking privately with him. Many think that Christ meant by this that Peter was to follow Him to the "cross."

20. "Seeth the disciple." That is, Peter turned about and saw John, the author of this gospel, following. "Which also leaned," etc. See John 13: 21-25.

21. "What shall this man do?" "And this man what?" R. V. margin. What is to become of him? Must he partake of like sufferings, and testify his love by dying for Thee? This question, although dictated by love, should not have been asked. To Peter it was given to know what manner of death he was to die, but it would not be best that this should be known in the case of every disciple or apostle.

22. "That he tarry till I come." There is great difference of opinion as to Christ's meaning. By the words, "till I come," did Jesus mean His second coming, and that John was never to die; or His coming to destroy Jerusalem; or did He mean that John was to remain at that place until He and Peter returned from a private interview? John lived for many years after the destruction of Jerusalem, and was the only one of the apostles who did not die a violent death. The disciples themselves understood that Jesus meant that John should not die. V. 23. Who can say when or how he died? St. John himself, at the time of writing this gospel, seems not to have known clearly whether he should die or not; he merely stated what Jesus had said, and if he understood he did not think it proper to explain. John Wesley thinks John was translated.

There will be only eighty-six new members in the next Congress, 270 of the old members of the House having been re-elected.

Some idea of the coach horse business is suggested by these high priced roadsters indulged in by wealthy owners of coaches. The sensational price of $23,000 to $41,000 paid by Robert Bonner for Dexter and Maud S. respectively, have not been duplicated in the past decade, yet the Abbot sold recently for $28,500—quite a fortune to invest in a single animal.

CIRCUIT court meets on Monday, May 13. There is a light docket.

IT is calculated there will be an opposition of about twenty in the Constitutional convention.

THE banking house of Josiah Morris & Co., resumed business at Montgomery on Tuesday.

BIRMINGHAM is indulging in a street fair this week. The railroads have granted a rate of one fare for the round trip.

JEFFERSON county gave a majority of twenty for the Constitutional convention. A pretty close shave for the biggest county in the State.

GOOD old Dallas came up with a majority of 5468 for the convention. White folks and negroes all vote one way in good old Dallas.

BY a change of schedule on the M. & O. subscribers, whose postoffice is on that road, will receive The Banner as soon as their postoffice is open Friday morning.

Correspondents will oblige by seeing that their communications reach us not later than Tuesday night. It is impossible for us to use them when they reach us later than that time.

PRESIDENT McKinley and party passed through Alabama on Tuesday on their Californian trip. The train in which they are travelling is said to be one of the finest ever put on the road.

IN his charge to the Grand Jury of Butler county on Monday Judge Richardson asked that a special investigation be made of the conduct of all the county officers.

A SERIOUS collision occurred at Calera yesterday. A freight train on the Southern cut into another freight on the L. & N. The engineer on the Southern train was badly injured. To colored firemen were also seriously bruised. Two L. & N. and three Southern cars were totally destroyed and the Southern engine turned over twice before landing at the bottom of the embankment.

Closing Exercises at Collins Chapel.

The closing exercises of this popular school took place on Tuesday according to program. There was a large attendance and much regret expressed at the coming departue of Prof. Rasco, who is going to Thorsby.

The recitations and addresses were excellent and highly applauded by the audience. Judge Adams made an interesting address and gave some good advice to the students.

At night the program was concluded by an excellent concert given by the students and all expressed themselves delighted with the general progress of the school under Prof. Rasco's admirable superintendence.

Crop Conditions.

Following is the weekly summary of the Weather Bureau of crop conditions: Throughout the central, east gulf and south Atlantic states the general condition of corn is poor, owing, it is still, to unseasonably cool and wet weather, and much replanting in these districts is necessary. The unfavorable effects of the frosts of the previous week appear to have been more serious to cotton in the central districts of the cotton belt than was indicated in the preceding bulletin. Much of the crop that was up prior to the 18th in Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama was killed, necessitating extensive replanting. The bulk of the Texas crop is now planted and planting is progressing over the northern part of the cotton region. Widespread scarcity of seed is reported from the central and eastern districts. Some tobacco has been transplanted in South Carolina but none northward.

The eleventh annual convention of the State Christian Endeavor Societies of Alabama came to an end Sunday night. The Convention was the most successful in the history of the organization. It was largely attended. The speakers were the best that could be secured, the music was grand; the hospitality of the citizens of Montgomery was unbounded, a Christian warmth seemed to permeate the meetings and everything was favorable for a most successful convention.

Our Tariff and Its Revision.

It is likely that the best course the United States could pursue would be to take up at an early date a thorough revision of the existing tariff with a view to cutting out of it all needlessly high rates of duty, and making it as little obstructive of foreign commerce as circumstances will permit. It is plain enough that the time has come when many schedules, like that of iron and steel, for instance, could be sweepingly revised. There will be much less danger of attempts at European exclusion of American wares if we proceed to pull down some of the barriers the need of which we have outgrown. For example, with the American Tin Plate Company now an integral part of an iron and steel corporation capitalized at almost a billion and a half dollars, there is no longer any need to fear the competition of European tin plate. The only point to be considered is that of the maintenance of the American scale of wages. Nor is there any much reason for dealing with the tariff as a party question. According to the sounder theory of American protectionists, the high tariff was to be justified as a temporary means to an assured end. Certainly, that end has now been to a great extent, at least, accomplished; and this country has reached, relative to other countries, a position of high and mature industrial development. Even admitting that under conditions existing ten or twenty years ago there was close relation between the tariff system and the rate of wages, it would not follow of necessity that under the different conditions now existing the average standard of wages in the United States would be much affected by a rapid change from a protective to a revenue tariff. The old time theoretical arguments of the protectionists and free traders may all be safely neglected, in the working out of a tariff-revision adapted to the new epoch.—From "The Progress of the World," in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for May.

The Confederate Reunion at Memphis

Probably the most important question on the lips of all those who will attend the Confederate Reunion to be held in this city next month, is that of how to secure accommodation during the three days' official gathering of the ex-Confederate Veterans. The work of the Information Committee, in conjunction with the carefully prepared plans of the Committee on Hotels and Accommodations, is now in such state as to be able to furnish a complete answer to this vital question.

Preparations for the accommodation of about 70,000 people during this Reunion visit have already been completed, but there is still ample and comfortable room in waiting for thousands more. The Information Committee, consisting of 400 members, is ready to furnish accommodations for any and all who wish to write to them on that subject. Upon inquiry this committee will mail a blank to those interested, this blank being provided with spaces which, when filled out by the applicant, will show clearly how many people desire rooms, what price per day they wish to pay for the same, whether there will be ladies in the party or no, and how long the visitors in question intend to stay in Memphis. Letters of inquiry should be addressed to Chairman of the Assignment Committee, 12 Cotton Exchange Building, Memphis, Tenn.

All who see Mr. C. F. Collier of Cherokee, Iowa, as he is now, cheerful, erect, vigorous, without an ache could hardly believe he is the same man, who, a short time ago, had to sit in a chair, propped up by cushions, suffering intensely from an aching back, in agony if he tried to stoop—and caused by chronic kidney trouble, that no medicine helped till he used Electric Bitters and was wholly cured by three bottles. Positively cures Backache, Nervousness, Loss of Appetite, all Kidney troubles. Only 50c at Clan on drug store.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.
"Something New Under The Sun."

All Doctors have tried to cure CATARRH by the use of powders, acid gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of CATARRH, has at last perfected a Treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures CATARRH, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the affected parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES" the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.

"SNUFFLES" is the only perfect CATARRH CURE ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflammation quickly and permanently. It is also wonderfully quick to relieve HAY FEVER or COLD in the HEAD.

CATARRH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION—"SNUFFLES" will save you if you use it at once. It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send for it at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "SNUFFLES" the "GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE."

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

An Ingenious Treatment by which Drunkards are Being Cured Daily in Spite of Themselves.

No Noxious Doses. No Weakening of the Nerves. A Pleasant and Positive Cure for the Liquor Habit.

It is now generally known and understood that drunkenness is a disease and not weakness. A body filled with poison, and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors, requires an antidote capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the marvelous transformation of thousands of Drunkards into sober, industrious and upright men.

WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! this remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of Drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and as many more have been cured and made temperate men by having the "CURE" administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in coffee or tea, and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. DO NOT WAIT. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading "improvement." Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "HOME GOLD CURE" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of every body a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept. C 935, EDWIN B. GILES & COMPANY, 2330 and 2332 Market Street, Philadelphia.

THE YIELD OF POTATOES.

The average yield of potatoes in the United States seldom reaches 100 bushels per acre, yet 300 bushels would not be a large average if farmers would select their varieties and use sufficient fertilizer for producing large crops.

THE IMPORTANCE OF BREED.

Experienced dairymen declare that it costs no more for the food consumed by a cow that produces 300 pounds of butter per year than for one producing 150 pounds. The two kinds of cows will eat about the same quantity of food, but one will convert more food into milk and butter than the other. This fact demonstrates the importance of the breed. The cost of butter from the better cow is consequently one-half less than that from the other, and gives a profit, while other cows in the herd may entail loss.

OBTAINING GOOD GARDEN CROPS.

Two things are absolutely necessary in order to obtain good garden crops, one being the use of good seed, and the other a thorough preparation of the soil. When there is a failure in either of these, neither liberal manuring nor cultivation while growing will enable the gardener to get a good crop, while under these conditions we have seen very fair crops grown on land that was not very heavily manured, or cultivated very carefully after planting. Of course it is better that the four requisites should go together, yet the two we deem most important cost the least and are the most frequently neglected.

MIXING CHEMICAL FERTILIZERS.

Chemicals can be mixed together and used without any material for dilution. In years of their use for all crops and under all conditions, I have in no case used any dilutant. It is not advisable to use them in large amounts in the hill unless they are thinly spread. The practice of using large quantities in the hill in any event is one not to be commended, so that little danger exists in their use alone when wisely or lightly used. Nitrate of soda and muriate of potash are not safe materials to use in the hill, as it is found that these materials in the early stages of plant growth, when in excess, tend to retard growth.

It is my custom to use half and half quantities of yard manure and chemicals and for corn to spread the chemicals broadcast when used to the amount of 500 pounds to the acre. This system may not give the corn so quick a start, but it calls the roots out and feds them well for the final crop and succeeds.—J. W. Sanborn, in New England Homestead.

TO MAKE A GARDEN.

The first thing to be decided is the contour and size of the beds. Often this is predetermined by the shape of the lot; still, beds should follow the curves of paths, as plants rarely look well if grown in straight lines. Curves are not always possible to secure, and, after all, shape is merely a question of taste. Consider the garden and lawn as a whole, trying with fine eye of imagination to see the garden in all its summer luxuriance. An uninterrupted lawn vista is one of the beautiful things in nature; though if one desires a brilliant bit of color to break it with a bed of golden-leaved salvia or one of Madam Bruant geraniums would be striking. A decidedly tropical effect can be secured by using the bronze foliaged ricinus in mass, surrounded by glowing scarlet cannas. If one is fortunate enough to have lilacs, syringas, or the pretty barberry-brushes grouped near the edge of the garden or lawn, here will be the very nook for the fragrant lily-of-the-valley and the lovely amaryllis. Poppies and delicate larkspur all thrive admirably among the hardy shrubs. In planning borders, place tall-growing varieties in the background—for this, cannas with their orchidlike bloom, or the amaranthus may be used. The double dahlia is particularly effective in this way.

As soon as the ground can be worked, the soil must be spaded and turned, that the spring sunshine may warm it sufficiently before seed-sowing.—Harper's Bazaar.

HOUSING THE FARM IMPLEMENTS.

There are many farmers throughout the country who should have better shelter for farming tools. In passing a farm recently I noticed a mowing machine, rake and two cultivators standing outdoors. How long they had been exposed I do not know, but it was probably since last used. Allowing good farm implements to stand out in this way is bad management, and the time is not far distant when they will have to be replaced with new. There are some tools that would be almost ruined by being exposed in this way for only one winter, and none of the things would be in as good shape for use next spring as they would had they been properly housed since they were last used.

At present there are many tools that the farmer, cultivating one hundred acres should have, but many of these tools will be short lived unless protected from the elements. I would advise the purchasing of these improved implements if the farmer can afford them and has a suitable place for them when not in use, if not he would better hire from his neighbors for a time. A good substantial building, to shelter all the tools needed on any ordinary farm can be built for a moderate sum, say $50 to $75 according to location. The damage done tools left outside all the year through, would amount to enough in four years to erect a good building and then it is so much better to have the tools free from rust and in good order for using. From a business standpoint the interest on cost of and wear on such a building is far less than the wear on the tools when exposed. Therefore build a tool house. If you cannot afford to put up shelter of some kind for the tools, you certainly cannot afford to own them. Shelter your tools.

Again in many instances farmers who have no tool house are obliged to run their binders and rakes into the barn or stable, where they are much in the way and unhandy to get at, the result is they are often left out until long after done using. Years ago there were not so many tools in use, but that they could be stored without an extra building. There are more used now and some of them cost a great deal of money. Some farmers have put up a kind of shelter for these tools, but not what it should be. A shed is better than nothing, in fact a shelter made of poles and straw or swale hay is better than leaving them out in the corner of the fence.—V. M. Couch, in The Agricultural Epitomist.

TO CHECK THE SQUASH VINE BORER.

A handful of tobacco stems placed around a hill of squashes is said to do much to keep away the fly that is the parent of the squash borer. It is also a good fertilizer, particularly if ground fine. But it is said that even more effective remedy is the use of bisulphide of carbon. Make a hole about an inch deep in the soil of the hill, among the vines, and put in a few drops of the liquid and cover it up. The fumes will find their way up to the plants, and if the moth is there it means instant death to her. If she has been there it destroys the eggs of the young borers. If she has not come she will detect the odor and keep away. The fly usually appears in the latter part of July, and the borer begins its work about August 1, and the vines begin to wilt and turn yellow about the first of August, but they are sometimes earlier. When they are seen in a single vine it is quite time to make the application if it has not been done before. It may not be necessary to caution any one of the poisonous or explosive character of this compound, or the danger of inhaling the fumes or carrying fire near it, but better a few unnecessary words than the trouble that might result if these precautions were neglected.

We have known gardeners to give up growing squashes because of these squash borers, or because of the abundance of the large squash bug, yet the latter is easily disposed of by spraying with the Bordeaux mixture, a single spraying being usually enough if the vines are well coated with it. They live by sucking the sap, and do not like the lime and copper flavor.—Massachusetts Ploughman.

FERTILIZERS FOR GARDENS.

Before the farmer applies his fertilizer he should determine the kind of crops to grow. At this season the garden will receive much attention, and, as the different vegetables require different proportions of foods, a knowledge of what to use for each crop may save for the farmer many dollars. Of course, when the farmer buys fertilizers the cost is increased, and it is a direct cash investment, the returns for which depend upon future conditions of weather and treatment given, but experiments published in Farmers' Bulletin, No. 124, by the United States Department of Agriculture, demonstrate that, while the medium amounts of fertilizers may give profitable yields with staple crops, the profit from the garden may be greatly increased by heavy applications of expensive fertilizers. Nitrogen, however, should be used with a view to its probable loss, as an excess may not remain in the soil, while any excess of phosphoric acid will remain over for use during the succeeding season. At the New Jersey station experiments were made on rich soil to furnish information as to the relative usefulness of nitrate, ammonia and organic form of nitrogen for crops belonging to that class in which rapid and continuous growth are important factors in determining the profits to be obtained. The crops grown were table beets, tomatoes, muskmelons, sweet corn, potatoes, sweet potatoes and certain forage crops. The plots were well fertilized with phosphoric acid and potash before the nitrogen was applied.

With table beets, on very rich soil, nitrate of soda was applied in various amounts, heavy applications of fertilizer having been also given the previous year. The earliness of the crop was greatly hastened by the use of the nitrate. For every dollar invested in nitrate of soda for beets there was sufficient earliness and increase to return three dollars. With tomatoes a comparison was made with nitrate of soda, sulphate of ammonia and dried blood as sources of nitrogen. Nitrate of soda was used at the rate of 150 pounds, sulphate of ammonia, 120 pounds, and dried blood, 200 pounds per acre. The yield of tomatoes was 12 per cent. greater from nitrate of soda than from sulphate of ammonia, and 68 per cent. greater than that from dried blood. The net gain from the nitrate of soda was $53.33 for every dollar expended, while sulphate of ammonia returned $44.26 and dried blood $22.50 for every dollar expended. The plants that received nitrate also produced the best fruit and but little that was inferior. It is, therefore, established that in growing tomatoes, even on the richest soil, progressive farmers will use nitrogen in some form, but the best results from the use of nitrogen are obtained when the very soluble nitrate of soda is used. With muskmelons the best results were also obtained from the use of nitrate of soda as a source of nitrogen, though dried blood proved superior to sulphate of ammonia for muskmelons, the sulphate having a tendency to produce more vine at the expense of fruit. In regard to "culls" it is stated that the percentage of them on the nitrate plots were lower than on plots treated with other forms of nitrogen. Dried blood gave the best results with sweet corn, the nitrate being more liable to be carried beyond the reach of the plants early in the season owing to its solubility.

It has been demonstrated in a great many experiments that plants have their preferences of food, and that for a farmer to attempt to feed all kinds of crops with only one kind of food would be to incur a loss. Plants also utilize certain foods at different stages of growth. Nitrogen promotes rapid leaf growth, but at maturity, when the seed is forming, phosphoric acid is essential. When the land is lacking in any particular element the farmer must supply it or the crop will be deficient, according to the deficiency of the desired element. With garden crops the farmer undertakes to grow early plants and as rapidly as possible. To succeed he must not be too economical with nitrogen, no matter how rich his soil may be, for the experiments mentioned above, with some crops, show that not only is the cost of the nitrogen returned, but a profit over the expense as well, with the advantage of larger yields, better product and earlier use, which points of excellence are very important with all garden crops.

Modern Book Shelves.

Among the modern ideas of furnishings, plainness of effect has a prominent part. One of the latest and most favored ideas for a library is to have perfectly plain pine book shelves, which any carpenter can put up, stained to match the woodwork of the room, to fill every available space in the room between doors and windows, forming a continuous line of books. They should not run up very high, though, about four feet, or perhaps a trifle more.

The Arrangement of Halls.

Hall curtains may be hung from swinging brackets, to be pushed back flat against the walls when a freer passageway is needed. These brackets are often used in apartments where the parlor and dining-room are just by the front door, the bed-rooms and bath beyond. Perfect privacy is then secured the tenant, and a pretty interior is suggested to the visitor. The quality of the curtain must depend upon the surroundings. Sometimes a heavy tapestry can be used, a velvet or a silk, but oftenest a simple hanging serves every purpose.

There is a transparent Japanese silk showing painted flowers or figures, which in many places is better than anything else. The hall is not darkened by it, and at the same time no visitor can see through it. The general effect is apt to be enhanced by a small table in front of the hall curtain, and if the other appointments of the house justify the use of cathedral and church lamps, one of these suspended from the ceiling by the curtains, with pieces of brass or of pottery on the table, will be found most interesting. For the most part, however, the simpler the arrangement of the table the better, a crystal vase with fresh cut flowers or a palm being all that is needed.—Harper's Bazar.

On Keeping Cut Flowers.

A woman who has given much thought and care to flowers gives some valuable suggestions for preserving their beauty as long as possible after cutting. She says:

The ends of the stems of all flowers should be cut off before they are placed in water. It is better to strip the leaves from that part of the stem which will be immersed.

Do not allow the ends of the stems to rest on the bottom of the vase.

In cutting the ends, snip them off at right angles to the stalk.

Change the water each day, and at the same time again cut the ends of the flower stems.

Do not place flowers near or under lights—gas or lamp—when it can be avoided.

Maidenhair fern should be kept rolled up in moistened paper and on the ice, or, with the stems in the water, in a cool place, until ready for use. In this way it will last for some time.

Mignonette is generally grown in a cool house, and for this reason often droops when first placed in a heated room. It is well to put it in the ice-box, in water, for a time, when it will revive, "harden" and, if properly cared for each day, last a long time.

Many flowers do more satisfactorily if placed in water, with the chill off until the stems have become filled, and are then allowed to stand in an ice chest, or very cool place, for a time. Roses will occasionally revive if placed in ice water—always with the ends of the stems previously cut.

Never place cut flowers in a draught or in sunlight—New York Tribune.

Corn Soup—Cut green corn, in season, or canned corn, chop it fine. Put this in the kettle and to one quart of corn add two quarts of sweet milk, a little salt and pepper, and a tablespoonful of butter. When this has boiled five minutes, add a teaspoonful of flour that has been mixed with half a cupful of cold milk. Boil one minute longer and it is ready for the table.

Chicken Cutlets—Take some nice pieces of boiled chicken. Soften some butter, but do not melt it, and spread on each piece of chicken. Have ready beaten two eggs; dip the chicken in the egg batter, then into cracker or dried bread crumbs, which have been rolled fine. Have some butter hot in the spider, enough to cover the chicken; put the chicken in and fry brown, then turn and fry the other side.

Peach Cake—After you have mixed the dough for light bread, take a piece as large as a quart bowl, and work into it half a cup of sugar, half a cup of butter and one egg well beaten. When thoroughly kneaded let it rise, work it down again, and roll it into a thin sheet. Lay it in a well greased pan and cover the top with peaches that have been pared and cut in halves. Press the peaches down into the dough, sprinkle liberally with sugar and a little cinnamon, and when the dough is light, bake in a moderate oven.

"Now Dont Get the Blues.

When a cheerful, brave and light-hearted woman is suddenly plunged into that perfection of misery, the blues, a sad picture.

It is usually this way:

She has been feeling out of sorts for some time, experiencing severe headache and backache; sleeps very poorly and is exceedingly nervous.

Sometimes she is nearly overcome by faintness, dizziness, and palpitation of the heart; then that bearing-down feeling is dreadfully wearing.

Her husband says, "Now, don't get the blues! You will be all right after you have taken the doctor's medicine."

But she does not get all right. She grows worse day by day, until all at once she realizes that a distressing female complaint is established.

Her doctor has made a mistake.

She loses faith; hope vanishes; then comes the morbid melancholy, everlasting blues. She should have been told just what the trouble was, but probably she withheld some information from the doctor, who, therefore, is unable to accurately locate her particular illness.

Mrs. Pinkham has relieved thousands of women from just this kind of trouble, and now retains their grateful letters in her library as proof of the great assistance she has rendered them. This same assistance awaits every sick woman in the land.

Mrs. Winifred Allender's Letter.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I feel it my duty to write and tell you of the benefit I have received from your wonderful remedies. Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I was a miserable wreck of myself and every one around me. I suffered terribly with pain in my back, head, and right side, was so nervous, would cry for hours. Menses would appear sometimes in two weeks, then again not for three or four months. I was so tired and weak, could not sleep nights, sharp pains would dart through my heart that would almost cause me to faint.

"My mother coaxed me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I had no faith in it, but to please her I did so. The first bottle helped me so much that I continued its use. I am now well, weigh more than I ever did in my life."—Mrs. WINIFRED ALLENDER, Farmington, Ill.

Tuberculosis Serum Proving to Be an Effective Cure—Postmaster Dynamiter Sails to Cover His Own Guilt in Florida.

Tuberculosis Serum.

Dr. Carlos L. Villar, an Argentine army surgeon, has just published a report of the treatment of fifty cases of tuberculosis with his serum at the Military hospital in Buenos Ayres. The treatment extended from December 1 to April 30, 1901. Tuberculosis in the early stage, says Dr. Villar, was cured within forty days. Of the patients whose cases were far advanced all were cured except those who could offer very little resistance to the disease.

Two Burglars Stole a Safe.

A most audacious robbery was committed at Anaconda, Mont., by two burglars who secured $10,000 in gold. The robbers entered the Alaska saloon by forcing in the street doors. Boldly picking up a 300-pound safe they loaded it on to an express wagon. Driving outside the city limits, they broke the safe open and secured $10,000 in gold. Putting the broken safe into the wagon they started toward town and made good their escape. There is no clue.

French Had a Great Scheme.

A Paris paper affirms that General Bailloud and Colonel Marchand, some time ago contemplated an attempt to seize the Chinese Empress and court. General Bailloud approached Colonel Marchand and asked him if he would undertake a certain enterprise which would very probably hasten the end of hostilities. The colonel replied that he was willing and General Bailloud and Colonel Marchand drew up a plan, the execution of which was venturesome, if not feasible. The diplomats, however, learned the scheme and it fell through.

Assistant Postmaster Arrested.

The arrest of Assistant Postmaster J. H. Drexel at Tarpon Springs, Fla., was reported to the Postoffice Department. It was reported that the safe had been blown open with dynamite and $1,000 taken. Inspectors Bond and Bannerman after investigating charged Drexel with being short in his accounts to the extent of $1,000 and with having dynamited the safe to cover his guilt. His mother is postmaster and his father is employed in the Postoffice Department at Washington.

Nine Locomotives.

An American concern has secured a contract for locomotives recently by the Calcutta Port Commissioners despite active European competition. The Indian authorities invited the open market for nine locomotives. The lowest British bid was Neilson, Reid and Company, of Glasgow. Their price was 1,549 pounds each. The Pittsburg Locomotive Works's bid of 1,378 pounds for each was lower. The Pittsburg company also offered quicker delivery, undertaking to fulfill its contract inside of six months, while the shortest given by British builders was nine months. The Calcutta officials accepted the tender of the American company. This is the first contract for locomotives Americans have secured abroad through competition.

Will Operate Against Trusts.

At a meeting in Pittsburg on May 8, a movement will be started for the organization of the Central Labor Council of the United States which is aimed to be an amalgamation of all the labor unions in the country with central headquarters, the object being to secure co-operation among all branches labor and to operate especially against the great trusts.

Boers Want Peace.

Henry W. Massingham writing says: "The Boers are greatly worn and harrassed, and they yearn for a settlement but they will not trust any settlement on Chamberlain Milner terms. They would, however surrender the whole Johannesburg and Rand gold fields district to Great Britain on condition that independence was restored to the Orange Free State and that the Transvaalers were allowed to found a republic in the wild, uncultivated north, subject to British control of foreign affairs."

Beaumont Oil Fields.

The Beaumont Oil exchange has posted the stoatement that the Standard Oil Company has purchase the railroad terminals, which has special facilities at Port Arthur. The price was not given. Port Arthur is the nearest deep water port to the Beaumont oil fields, and by controlling this outlet the Standard Oil Company can control every barrel of oil taken from the Beaumont field. The railroads cannot compete in freight rates with pipe line via Port Arthur to New Orleans and Galveston. Thus owning Port Arthur, the Standard Oil Company will control even the domestic trade in crude oil. No one ever doubted that the Sandard Oil Company would ultimately get control of this oil field, but no one appears to have foreseen the purchase of Port Arthur by the company.

Killed By His Sister.

Richard Jacks, age 15, was accidentally shot and killed by his 18-year old sister at Brazil, eighteen miles west of Birmingham, Saturday afternoon. When this terrible tragedy occurred the girl was trying to protect her brother from a crowd of drunken men who were creating a disturbance at their home. Richard Jacks and his sister lived with their widowed mother near the Brazil mines. Saturday afternoon five or six men, who are said to have been considerably under the influence of liquor, went to the Jacks' residence and conducted themselves in a boisterous and objectionable manner. Richard Jacks went out on the front porch and asked them to cease their rowdyism and go away. A quarrel ensued and his sister came out on the porch with an old gun which had been retained in the house. As she stepped out on the porch she tried to cock the gun, and in doing so her finger slipped from the hammer, causing the gun to be discharged. The load struck the young fellow on the body, penetrating to the vital organs, producing death within a short time.

A Real Tragedy.

While playing the tragedy "Last Upon the World," in the closing exercises of the Stanley McCormick High School at Burnsville, Tenn., a real tragedy was enacted, when R. N. McInturf, one of the students, was shot and killed by Lacena Baily, another student, both representing charters in the play.

Drawing Plans for Ensley's New City Hall.

Pans are being drawn for the proposed new city hall which is to be erected at Ensley, in accordance with resolution recently passed by the city council authorizing an issue of bonds to secure this. One of the attractive features of the new hall will be an auditorium in the second story which can be utilized for public speaking or performances of any nature. Work will be begun on the new hall right away as it is greatly needed.

Sad Picture.

A sad picture was presented at the orphanage of the Alabama Methodist church at Summerfield one day this week. Five little children, whose parents had been taken away by death were received, and the sight of those diminutive specimens of humanity without kindred or home made nearly everybody near them cry.

NO WRONG DONE BY MISSIONARIES

Minister Conger Refutes Stories of Looting.

THE MATTER FULLY EXPLAINED

Rev. Ament Also Takes Vigorous Exceptions to Derogatory Statements Published.

In reference to the accusations of looting made against missionaries, United States Minister Conger, who arrived at San Francisco Wednesday night, makes the following statement:

"The Americans have a larger number of missionaries out there than any other nation, and I am frank to say that, under the circumstances, there are very few things which the missionaries have done, if any, for which there need to be any apology whatever. The stories of their looting are false, to my knowledge.

"Believing that our government would not demand a monetary indemnity for the murder and pillaging of native Christians, I advised them that wherever they could make settlements with the villages where those murders or destruction of property had taken place to make them on their own responsibility. Li Hung Chang and Yen Mao suggested that settlement could be made in this way with the least possible friction. There was no going out and compelling the people to pay anything. It was altogether voluntary on their part.

"The missionaries have been criticized severely for going, immediately after the siege was raised, into abandoned houses for shelter for themselves and the native coolies who were expelled from their homes. As to this I told them 'if there is a boxer's habitation abandoned, take possession of it, so you can have a place in which to shelter and take care of the native Christians.'"

Speaking of the siege Mr. Conger said:

"It took every man we had to stand by the women and children. If not, the legation could not have lived, and without the native Christians, none of us would have been saved. The missionaries were not the prime causes of the trouble; they were only one of the causes. The missionaries were not responsible for the building of the railroads or for any of the other foreign innovations against which the hatred of the boxers seemed to be directed."

MISSIONARY AMENT TALKS.

Rev. A. S. Ament, of the American board of foreign missions of the Congregational church, whose collection of indemnity for damages done by boxers in China has caused considerable discussion, takes vigorous exceptions to the criticisms made by Mark Twain and others as to the alleged misconduct of the missionaries. He says:

"We found ourselves at the close of the siege with 500 native Christians upon our hands, no food, no clothing, no money and every Christian house burned.

"On the very day of the arrival of the allied forces we were informed that we must leave the British legation, as it was to be used as headquarters for the officers of the British army. I immediately thought of a Mongol prince, Hsi Ling, who was an ally of the boxers and whose place was the headquarters of boxers and blacklegs. We found the prince's place entirely empty and the next day we brought up our native Christians and occupied the deserted place. In that house and in neighboring houses that we occupied we put more than 400 people. We took only abandoned property.

"The only food in the prince's place was a bit of rice. We dicided to sell the clothing and curios found upon the premises and realized $2,500 in gold. They were bought by British and American officers at a private sale of two weeks' duration.

"Native Christians brought up furs and sable which they had purchased at a low price from wealthy Chinese who feared they might be looted by the military people, and who were willing to dispose of them for a little money. These articles were sold at our place to British and other officers. I considered that that was a fair, honest speculation, which injured nobody and which benefited many people. There may have been some looted goods taken, but it was without my knowledge. The Russian and Sikh soldiers were selling truck very cheap, but my people did not do the looting."

Chief Postoffice Inspector Cochran, at Washington, has been notified of the arrest of Jacob Israel, assistant postmaster at Ocala, Fla. Israel is charged with the embezzlement of money order funds, whose amount is not stated.

HEIRS ARE WANTED.

Civil War Veteran Dies and His Money Awaits Relatives.

Joseph Conaster, a civil war veteran, died suddenly at Thornton, Wash., recently, leaving property valued at $30,000 to $40,000. It is said he had relatives in Tennessee. Inquiries have been received in Knoxville from Thornton about these relatives. The fortune will go to a charity hospital if they are not located before May 15th. A number of Conasters live in east Tennessee.

Lincoln and His Law Cases.

All clients knew that, with "Old Abe" as their lawyer, they would win their case—if it was fair; if not, then it was a waste of time to take it to him. After listening some time one day to a would-be client's statement, with his eyes on the ceiling, he swung suddenly round in his chair and exclaimed:

"Well, you have a pretty good case in technical law, but a pretty bad one in equity and justice. You'll have to get some other fellow to win this case for you. I couldn't do it. All the time while standing talking to that jury I'd be thinking, 'Lincoln, you're a liar,' and I believe I should forget myself and say it out loud."

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS is the one important magazine in the world giving in its pictures, its text, in its contributed articles, editorials and departments, a comprehensive, timely record of the world's current history. Not the enumeration of mere bare facts, but a comprehensive picture of the month, its activities, its notable personalities, and notable utterances. The best informed men and women in the world find it indispensable.

There are many readers in your locality who have yet to learn of its usefulness. We wish to establish active agents in every city and township in the country. We will pay liberally for energetic effort in the subscription field. Leisure moments can be utilized with substantial increase of income. Make a list of the persons in your locality who should have the "Review of Reviews," and send to us for agent's terms, sample copies, and working outfit. Then solicit their subscriptions. It is a compliment to approach a person with a subscription proposition for the "Review of Reviews," and consequently orders are easily secured. This is the active subscription season. Make application at once, naming your references.

Price, 25 cents a number. $2.50 a year.

ALL DAY SINGING.

All singers will please remember that the annual May singing that met its first appointment at Salem, 1900, will meet again the fourth Sunday in this month. We hope to meet the good singers and especially invite singing teachers (of course the organist has an especial invite). We look forward to a day of singing praises unto our Great Redeemer. D. S. Doctors' "Cut Naps."

The "cat naps" indulged in by the late Dr. William Pepper became a standing joke among his medical friends. He had the faculty of going to sleep at will and waking up when he willed. He would sometimes, under a mental strain, keep a long line of patients waiting while he slept in his private office for three, four or five minutes, or as long as he willed. Then he would resume his work, greatly refreshed.

Another prominent physician has a queer habit of napping although he only takes one a day and that just after luncheon, which with him is a hearty meal. He repairs to his office and throws himself in a reclining position where the polished wood floor is not covered by the rug. He has a bunch of keys between the forefinger and thumb of his right hand and allows to hang loosely over the arm of the chair. Then he dozes off for never more than a dozen or so. The moment his fingers relax the keys drop on the bare floor, acting as an alarm. It is scarcely a nap—just a relaxation of the mental and physical faculties. The doctor calls it a cat nap, and if he misses it he says he does not feel quite himself for the rest of the day.—Philadelphia Record.

They Eat Themselves.

From various causes, such as pain and fear, many animals eat their own flesh. Rats, when caught in a trap by the leg, will gnaw off the entire member, and mice in captivity have been known to bite off their tails. There are some creatures who go much further and actually eat themselves if left for too long a time without food.

A hyena belonging to a menagerie was kept by the proprietor on short food in order to tame it. One morning he was horrified to find that the ferocious creature had actually devoured one of its own legs.

An eagle in the zoo a few years ago was noted for the fact that it would now and then pick pieces off both of its own legs and eat them.

Certain caterpillars and snakes eat their cast off skin. This may not be to fear, but it looks like cannibalism.

There is just a trace of this characteristic in human beings. We bite our lips when in rage, sometimes bite our hands and arms, although it must be admitted that they desist when the gums begin to hurt.

One Way of Getting Even.

"There is a fellow in our office who is a chronic borrower," said a young man employed in a large Market street establishment recently. He borrows from nearly everybody in the place, and we all made up our minds to stand the thing. He has owed me $2 for a year, but I'm nearly square with him, for he has never paid me a penny. That sounds queer, but it is true. I'll tell you how I've worked it.

"Every once in a while one of my fellows will say, 'I'm going to ask him and so give me what he owes me on pay day or know the reason why.' That's my chance, and I generally mark, 'I'll bet you a quarter you don't get it.' Usually the fellow takes the bet up, and when pay day comes I win his bet, for So-and-so never pays me. I small bets of quarters and dollars for luncheons and cigars I have won back the amount I originally loaned the chronic borrower."—Philadelphia Record.

It Came in Handy.

Poet—I left a poem here the other day. Do you think you can use it?

Editor—I have already. It came so handy, I simply had to.

Poet (gasping joyfully)—All!

Editor—While I was writing an editorial I ran out of copy paper, and your poem, being written on one side of the paper only, just helped me out.—Catholic Standard and Times.

A Triumph of Photography.

Of course it was a Missourian of the "you've-got-to-show-me" type who remarked to a companion who had just examined with awestruck interest a picture in which there was a group of faces of all the presidents of the United States, "Say, Bill, how in thunder did the photograph man ever get them all together at once?"—Chicago City Journal.

Jemison, Ala., May 1, 1901

Editor Banner. Please allow me short space in your paper. Let me say to all those that supported me, from a grateful heart that I fully appreciate every vote I got, and while the convention has carried and we are going to have a new constitution, but the Lord only knows what it will be. But one fact has been clearly demonstrated to the politicians, that a majority of the white men of Alabama are opposed to the whole movement, and wherever the measure was fought the vote was strong against the convention. You see about 25 counties went against the convention, and some without any effort. I am sorry the friends of the people of Alabama did not make a fight against the convention in every county in the State. Well, the big guns came down in Chilton and received a cordial hearing, but the people of Chilton will not be swayed one way or the other, they have opinions of their own and the manhood to stand for them on election day; though some of their leaders desert and go over in the enemy's camp they will not be moved unless they think they are right. And I reckon by now some of the other fellows are beginning to think that Chilton is hard to redeem. I think, at least that a new saviour would have to prove his faith by his works, or perform a few miracles at least, before the people of Chilton would fall down at his feet and worship. Again thanking those that supported me, and I feel very grateful to you Mr. Editor, for the fair treatment you gave me in my race,

I am very respectfully,
L. H. REYNOLDS.

Burwell, May 4, 1901

Editor Banner—Just to keep up the fun to please the boys, we will notice the piece in the Reflector from J. A. G., the great democratic lion of Chilton county, although it is as senseless as lions generally are. It is difficult to answer the way in which our friend the great lion writes. It reminds me of the poor baker that went crazy, and when the keeper at the asylum was asked by a spectator what that poor man was there for, said he was a baker and got to making the holes larger in his cakes to swindle his customers, and found out that it took more dough to go around a large hole than a small one, and the fact ran him crazy. That is what is tickling J. E. G's neighbors, his discovery of the great strength of the democratic party or lion, especially in Chilton county. We will here make note of some of the lion's statements or foolishness. He says we democrats can't help taking cognizance of the absurd statements in the papers written by the pops. Why don't he mention some of their absurdities? He says they are too absurd for reflection, but the truth is we pops, write like this. For instance, the democrats of Dallas county sent up a majority for the convention of 5468, with not more than 2000 white voters in the county, making 3468 negroes vote to disfranchise themselves, and everybody knows that that is not so, and the democrats, as well as everybody else, knows that kind of stuff is what gives them their great lion strength. The democrats know and admit that they have been outvoted, even counting the negro on their side, and but for having the election machinery all in their own hands the State would have passed from under their control as Chilton has done, and its government wisely and honestly administered as Chilton's has been. No, the truth is the democrats have practiced such galling frauds and violated so many pledges that a large majority of the

We are having some very dry weather; a warm shower would be a welcome visitor.

We are having some sickness in our burg at this writing.

Mr. Frank Price and family, accompanied by Miss Annie Hayes and Miss Mose Pate, attended the closing exercises of Prof. Rasco's school at Collin's Chapel Tuesday.

Mr. D. C. Price, of Blocton, is visiting friends and relatives here this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Hayes made a business trip to Thorsby Saturday.

Mr. Ben Price who went to Blocton a short time ago, returned home where it is reported he will remain.

Mrs. Emley Cleckler and Mrs. Mattie Franklin, of Scott Hill, visited relatives and friends here Saturday.

Our friend, Mr. A. J. Foreman, left Saturday informing us that he was going to Arkansas.

Mr. D. C. Price and his nephew, Harvey Wilson, visited Scott Hill Sunday and it is said that some of the charming young ladies did best to make their visit one long to be remembered and never to be forgotten by their hospitable treatment towards them.

Mr. J. W. Hayes and his better half made a business trip to Clanton Monday.

Our vicinity was well represented in county court Monday.

Maplesville.

We are glad to state that pleasant weather has at last overtaken us and we are luxuriating in garden sass and early fruits which we think have improved the general health of this locality; spring chickens have come in that our preachers and some others so much enjoy; flowers are blooming, mockers are giving us sweet melody; our boomers are booming all good citizens and there are many of us that are giving them a boost in all laudable enterprises so that politically speaking we are all on the "up grade to prosperity." Our hotels are crowded to overflowing with timber inspectors, making our big saw mill near to hand. The optional trades have been made which makes us have lively hope of industrial improvements soon, but since gratis advice is so cheap (which is the reason your correspondent is so very liberal in this commodity) we advise every one to do their own booming by way of liberal patronage of all home affairs.

Dr. Frank DuBose has gone to Hot Springs for rheumatic trouble.

We are pleased to state that Mrs. Crumpton is convalescing from quite a serious attack under the skillful treatment of Dr. Claughton.

Miss Trapp, of Clanton, is treating Miss Lillie Bowline to a visit.

Mr. Blalack is home a few days.

Mrs. Blalack has returned home from a visit to her sister, Mrs. Carden of Shelby county, who has been very ill.

Our very popular teacher, Miss Molly Gardner, was very quietly married to Mr. Bob Wilson last week.

We regret that Mr. Burk and family leave so soon. REVOLG.

CLANTON, - - - ALABAMA.

While Andrew Carnegie is not exercising the least sacrifice in giving out of his abundance the large sums which he is bestowing upon different public objects and enterprises, he is at least showing forth to the world a valuable and necessary example in the way of giving.

No one who appreciates the conditions of modern society can possibly underestimate the fact that the stage offers a wonderful opportunity for good or evil. Fortunately, during the present season, its work has not been in behalf of corruption, and this has been largely because the public would not have it that way, observes the Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post. Equally, it has not been in the direction of piety and reverence. Its moral value has been as near the neutral line as the campaign of a politician who tries to capture votes in a close district.

Jacob Riis, who has done much for tenement house reform in New York City, in a temperance lecture recently advanced the idea that the breaking up of the drink habit among men can be much better accomplished through the medium of the saucepan than the hatchet. Mr. Riis's view is that a great many men are driven to drink by the unattractive character of their homes and the abominable nature of the cooking they are compelled to put up with there. He argued that whatever tends to health and contentment at home is a sovereign antidote for the human tendency to seek elsewhere solace in drink.

An inventor in Canada is at work upon a machine for the utilization of sawdust. The machine is an arrangement of revolving cylinders into which the sawdust is placed and subjected to strong heat. With an unperfected machine there have been obtained from 1000 pounds of sawdust 160 pounds of char, 180 pounds acids, 162 pounds tar, 248 pounds water. The gases were not measured, but a test showed them to be superior to coal gas for lighting and heating, except that there was a pungent odor not difficult to get rid of. The products sought were the tar, acids and char, but it is believed that the gases have a commercial value. Our redwood sawdust is probably very valuable for acids.

The showing made by the recent census of Italy, the first taken in 20 years, must be very encouraging to that country and rather discouraging to those who count it among the decaying nations. It also emphasizes the fact once more that France is the only country in Europe which has a stationary population. The maximum estimate of the present population of Italy was 31,000,000. The census shows that it is 35,000,000 in Italy and that there are 5,000,000 in North and South America. In 1870 the population of the country was in round numbers 26,800,000 and the increase in ratio in the last 20 years is larger than that of any other European country. The density of population is 125 to the square mile. The birth rate of Italy has always been very high and still remains so, but the great increase in its population is due primarily to the improvements in the sanitary conditions. In the face of what has been accomplished since the unification it seems scarcely credible that there are intelligent Italians who could go back to the old order of things.

The Chicago Tribune recently published a study of the earnings of certain classes of Chicago working people. According to the showing of the Tribune there is a vast portion of Chicago's population whose earnings are so pitifully inadequate as to excite the wonder that actual starvation does not exterminate them. The investigation was conducted by Miss Nellie Outten, a graduate student of the department of sociology in the University of Chicago. Miss Outten found people working under almost unbelievable conditions of filth and cold and darkness. The particular industry that she investigated was "finishing work" on clothing. The nationalities represented among the workers were Italians, Swedes, Bohemians, Jews and Poles. Women were found working whose average weekly wages did not exceed forty cents, or a little less than $21 a year. The statement is made that the average of the wages paid in the sweat-shops is only $77 a year. The average of the earnings of a whole family is put down at only $297.79 per annum. Miss Outten adds to all this the statement that wages are steadily falling.

JUDGE'S DECISION IS AGAINST PARK

Verdict Directs That the Teachers Be Paid.

APPEAL WILL NOW BE TAKEN

Funds Arising From Sale of Northeastern Road Can Be Legally Used Says Judge Candler.

The argument in the mandamus proceedings brought against Georgia's State treasurer, to force him to pay the teachers out of the public property fund, was concluded before Judge John S. Candler at Atlanta, Friday afternoon. The judge took the matter under advisement and rendered his decision Saturday to the effect that Treasurer Park must pay the warrants drawn for the teachers' salaries.

In his decision Judge Candler sustains throughout the position taken by Attorney General J. M. Terrell in his opinion given to the treasurer with regard to making the payments from the public property fund.

The money that the treasurer is diricted to use to pay the teachers under Judge Candler's decision is the $200,000 received from the sale of the Northeastern railroad, the property acquired after the adoption of the constitution of 1877. This $200,000, together with the $77,294.83 of general funds in the treasury will furnish more than enough to pay the $260,306.18, the amount for which warrants have been drawn in favor of the teachers.

Judge Candler concludes his opinion with a mandamus order directing the state treasurer to pay the 143 warrants drawn in favor of the teachers from the funds mentioned.

The court did not pass upon the question of the other $231,000 of the public property fund for the reason, as he states, that it was not necessary, though it is altogether probable that the supreme court will construe the law with regard to that portion of the fund also when the matter comes before it for review.

Judge Candler held in the first place that as a ministerial officer, Treasurer Park should have paid the school teachers' warrants without raising "a constitutional question to delay or defeat the payment of such warrants."

When the warrants were presented at the treasury signed by the governor and countersigned by the comptroller general, and after the attorney general had given the treasurer an opinion to the effect that the money could and should be paid, the court holds that it was Treasurer Park's duty to have made the payments without raising any question. This was what Attorney General Terrell stated in the beginning of the opinion he gave Treasurer Park, and then followed it up with an opinion to the effect that the payments so made would be perfectly legal and proper.

Judge Candler follows up this point in the case with an opinion respecting the portion of the fund, $200,000, received from the sale of the Northeastern railroad, property which was acquired after the addition of the constitution of 1877. He takes the view that it was not intended by the framers of the constitution to mortgage property which the state did not then own, and in this connection he holds that the clause of the constitution in question, "so far as relates to the property covered by the same, should be construed by the same rules as are applicable to the construction of mortgages or trust deeds between individuals or corporations."

Judge Candler then states that in view of these facts it is unnecessary to decide the other questions raised by the petition. He orders that the treasurer make payments forthwith.

An appeal will be taken at once from the decision of Judge Candler. As soon as Treasurer Park learned of the decision he went to Macon to consult his attorneys with reference to the further course to be pursued.

As the treasurer stated when the question first came up, he intends to have the opinion of the highest court in the state before he pays out any portion of the public property fund.

SEVEN DIE IN FLAMES.

Fireman Prevented From Saving Victims By Freight Train.

Seven persons were burned to death, three fatally injured and several others slightly burned and otherwise injured in a fire that destroyed a three-story apartment building at 9316 Marquette avenue, South Chicago, early Sunday morning.

While the occupants of the burning building were struggling to save themselves, the firemen, who were responding to the alarm, were vainly waiting for a freight train which blocked the way of the fire engines to move away from the crossing and give an open road to the fire.

We Find Support.

Inquiry in Washington confirms the report that the United States is working and finds support in its efforts toward the opening of all China to the trade of the world. This does not mean the practical abolition of customs duties, but would make every city a mart of the world's goods instead of limiting foreign commerce to the few existing treaty ports.

Bridge Plans Accepted.

The Madison county commissioners have accepted plans for a fine steel drawbridge which will span the Paint Rock river at New Hope. The river is now navigable to a point fourteen miles above New Hope, and immense amounts of timber are being brought down in barges drawn by steam tugs.

Martinelli as Cardinal.

Cardinal Martinelli took the oath of his new office in Washington and subscribed to the profession of faith at the Papal Legislation. The oath was administered by Monsignor Conaty, of the Catholic University and witnessed by Monsignor Marchett, the Papal Ablegate. The ceremony was private and extremely simple.

Effect of Mrs. Nation's Work.

Mrs. Nation's crusade against the saloon has resulted in a movement to purify Kansas politics. A permanent organization of the grand chapter of the law enforcement league of Kansas has been affected and in every city, town and hamlet in the state a local chapter is established.

New Steamers Ordered

The United Steamship Company of Copenhagen has ordered six new steamers of 12,000 tons each, for the United States trade. On account of the increase of American exports it has been decided to open a regular line to Boston and increase the number of steamers on the New York and New Orleans routes.

Raisin Corporation.

The Pacific Coast Seeded Raisin Association has been incorporated with a capital of $300,000, all subscribed. The incorporators represent five firms that sell 90 per cent of the seeded raisins produced in California, and 75 per cent of the raw product.

Canal Delayed.

The Chancellor, Count Von Buelow, reported personally to Emperor William and complained of the international delaying of the canal bill by the majority in the Diet. The government thereupon gave up further negotiations for the bill for the time being.

The statement that the total indemnity to be demanded of China amounts to 65,000,000 pounds has been officially confirmed. This amount includes all private claims. It is believed that if China will now undertake to pay this sum in indemnities the evacuation of Pe Chi province can begin immediately.

A Chance for Teachers.

La Fayette college will give the best of review instruction for state examination, July 1st next, and the railroads throughout Alabama and adjoining states give reduced fare on certain conditions to persons attending. Ask the railroad agent when you purchase your tickets for a certificate of payment of are to La Fayette. Board can be had at $9 to $10 per month, and tuition is low. The faculty is large and of high standard, and the college classes and model school are to be found in daily session, affording opportunities to observe and study most practically. A fine opportunity for "greenheads." Students and teachers are heartily welcomed at La Fayette, Ala., and can enter Monday, May 13th, or May 20th, as convenient.

Address the President, LaFayett, Ala. and get advantage of this summer school review.

Instructions have been sent by the state department to Ambassador Choate directing him to call the attention of the British government to claims for damages made by American citizens. These allege that they were driven out of the Transvaal by the British army although they did not participate in any operations. Many are interested in mines, and their damages, if proven, will amount to several million dollars.

A Law and Order Leagune has been organized in Anniston with the following officers: President, H. B. Rudisill; vice-president, C. J. Houser; secretary and treasurer, M. F. McCarty; chairman executive committee, W. A. Davis; executive committee, first ward, Capt A. W. Bell; second ward, J. T. Powell; third ward; J. L. Jackson; fourth ward, John H. Frye; fifth ward, J. H. B. Fitzgerald. The expressed intentions of this order are as follows: First, To insist upon the enforcement of law. Second, To work for the repeal of laws that are bad and the enactment of good laws. Third, To apprehend and prosecute violators of the law.

HELP IS EXTENDED TO JACKSONVILLE

Stricken City Finds Sympathy From All Quarters.

MARTIAL LAW IS ENFORCED

Additional particulars of Jacksonville's fearful conflagration show that one hundred and forty-eight blocks of the city were laid waste.

Ten thousand people are homeless, and many of them left for St. Augustine and other coast cities and nearby towns, while numerous river craft took many to little places on the St. Johns river. Supply stations have been established in various parts of the city.

The prompt action of Secretary of War Root in tendering the use of the barracks near St. Augustine was received with gratitude on every side.

A committee was appointed at a meeting of citizens to wire the governors of various states to send all tents they can spare to Jacksonville. It will be weeks before anything like permanent shelter can be provided for the homeless thousands and Jacksonville for some time to come will be a city of tents.

Saturday Governor Jennings declared the city under martial law. Col. Lovell, of the First regiment, is is command of the troops.

The following troops, in addition to local companies, arrived during the day and are on duty: Governor's Guards, Tallahassee; Columbia Rifles, Lake City; Suwanee Rifles, Live Oak, and Gem City Guards, of Palatka. The city is patrolled and the entrances to burned districts guarded by sentinels. Military headquarters has been established and passes are necessary to enter the lines in any part of the city.

FOOD AND RAIMENT POUR IN.

The hunger of 10,000 homeless people was satisfied Sunday upon the arrival relief trains and boats bringing provisions from nighboring towns and distant cities. A commissary was established in the center of the city and thousands were fed during the day. An order was promulgated, under martial law, requiring all merchants, whose stores were spared by the conflagration, to open their doors and sell to all who asked.

Five carloads of tents were received Sunday, the property of the state, which are to be used by the homeless temporarily. These are in addition to those ordered sent by Secretary Root.

The Times-Union and Citizen estimates the total loss at $11,000,000. These are based upon an itemized statement furnished by a volunteer committee of citizens.

MANY PERSONS MISSING.

Rumors of loss of life are on every hand, and the river has been closely watched. Many persons have confirmed the report of loss of life at the Market street wharf. Numerous advertisements appear in the local papers asking for aid in searching for persons who are missing. As many have left the city for refuge, it is impossible to ascertain who have been lost in the Market street pier tragedy.

TO ISSUE BONDS.

Chairman Porcher L'Engle, of the board of county commissioners of Duval, said:

"A bill will be introduce in the legislature at once to bond Duval for perhaps $200,000 to rebuild the courthouse and the county jail. The bill is being prepared. I understand that a bill for the issuance of $500,000 of city bonds will be at once introduced also. Of this $300,000 will be used to take up the judgment debts of the city and the remainder to rebuild city buildings."

The prisoners in the county jail, thirty-five in number, including many for serious offenses, some capital, were marched to Riverside under heavy guard before the fire reached them. Later on the prisoners were taken by the sheriff to Green Cove Springs, Fernandina and St. Augustine.

MESSAGE FROM PRESIDENT

To Governor Jenkins of Florida Expressing Sympathy.

Sunday afternoon, Governor Jennings, of Florida, received the following telegram:

EL PASO, TEX., May 5, 1901.—The Governor of Florida, Tallahassee, Fla.: I have just learned of the calamitous fire that has swept over the city of Jacksonville and hasten to express the deep sympathy, in common with our country, I feel for those who have suffered. The government will do all it can in the work of relief.

WILLIAM MCKINLEY."

Governor Jennings promptly acknowledged the receipt of the president's message of sympathy.

Minister Conger Entertained.

A public reception was tendered to Minister Conger at Des Moines Friday under the auspices of the G. A. R. of that city. Fully 3,000 persons crowded into the building to listen to the addresses and the response of the guest of honor, who for an hour detailed his experiences during the siege of Pekin.

LATE STATE NEWS.

Bond Election Close.

The event of Monday in Bessemer was the election under the act of the last General Assembly authorizing the citizens to vote on the question of issuing bonds to an extent not exceeding $40,000 for the purpose of establishing and operating an electric light and power plant. A special registration was held for the purpose, and so little interest was felt in the question that but 540 voters registered out of some 1,200 in the city.

Money Lender Robbed.

Mr. R. R. Dyer, one of the local managers of the money lending firm of Orr & Company, of Anniston, whose office is in the Mallory-Plowman building, was rendered insensible Tuesday either by knockout drops or by some other means, and the cash drawers of the office robbed. Mr. J. A. Moore, the other manager, left the office shortly before, and when he returned found Mr. Dyer in an unconscious condition and apparently in great agony.

Good Prices for Mineral Lands.

Mineral lands in Tuscaloosa county continue to bring good prices as deeds filed in the court house the latter part of last week will attest. The deeds in question are those from the Alabama State Land Company to the Central Iron and Coal Co. for 2,360 acres of mineral lands for $47,200, or $20 per acre. These lands were sold several weeks ago, but the deeds were filed for record only a few days since.

Slayer of Deputy Edwards in Jail.

John Dawson, Jr., who was arrested at Thomasville last week, charged with the murder of Deputy Sheriff Joe Edwards, is said to have confessed the crime to Sheriff Blackwell, while enroute to Mobile, where the negro is now in jail. He said, the report goes, that Edwards came to his house in the night and fired through the door, and that he shot in defense of his home as any other man would have done. He did not know it was an officer, he said.

Street Fair a Great Success.

Saturday night a tremendous crowd passed through the gates to take a last look at the attractions of the Elks. The fair was the biggest thing in the amusement line that Birmingham has ever had, and the Elks are to be congratulated on the triumph of the enterprise. During the week about 75,000 people passed through the gates and the Elks realized about $7,500, which will be used to help pay for the new home that they bought on Eighth avenue.

Choctaw Oil Lands.

Capt. Joseph Rose, president of the Royal Baking Powder Company, Mobile, has returned from Cullom Springs, where he had gone to inspect the alleged oil lands in that vicinity. Mrs. Dahlberg, proprietress of the springs, also came to the city and there were several conferences held between Captain Rose and representatives of Mrs. Dahlberg relative to the sale of the springs property. There was no conclusion reached, however. It was reported on good authority that Captain Rose had offered $25,000 for the property if there were any mineral deposits thereon.

Probably Foul Play.

Word is brought to Selma of the mysterious disappearance of a negro by the name of Bill Williams, who lives across the river in the neighborhood where the recent trouble grew out of the killing of Deputy Sheriff Edward. Williams had been indicted for stealing cotton seed and had been released on bail. On Wednesdy night last he was visited by a crowd of men and barely escaped with his life. Since Friday night he has been missing, and his relatives begin to suspect foul play. A diligent search has been made for the negro, and no clue whatever to his whereabouts can be found, and it is hinted that he has gone the way of the three negroes who were killd on Thursday night last.

Vigorous Protest.

At a meeting of Camp W. J. Hardee, United Confederate Veterans, held on Saturday afternoon in their hall in Birmingham, a resolution was presented to the effect that the word "rebel" did great injustice and should be eliminated from history as much as possible. It was decided to invoke the assistance of Hon. Thomas Owen, the Director of Alabama's Historical Department, in having all histories in this state so written as to leave out the obnoxious word. The resolutions were introduced and were adopted with no dissenting vote.

Explosion of Gas.

Considerable excitement was occasioned at Ensley by a series of gas explosions at the plant of Semet-Solvay Company. It seems one of the mains conveying gas through the works became stopped up in some manner, several explosions resulting. It was feared at first that a great deal of damage had been done, but closer investigation proved this to be untrue and the plant is operating as usual.

REVIEWS A NEW BOOK

[illegible] of Colonel John Cussen to Redeem Some Wrong Shallow or Revenge. Says William [illegible]

It is only a little book—a very little book—that the author has sent to me, and the greater part of its pages has suggested [illegible] and has proved a [illegible] to my old age. I have read it aloud to my wife and neighbors, and it has comforted them and established them more firmly in the faith, if that were possible. This book is on my desk and I note its [illegible] in large print, very large, so that the veterans might read it with the glasses or a strong [illegible] of the optic. Its modest title is "A Chance in Current History," by Colonel John [illegible] of Glen Allen, Va. It is the work of a retired confederate veteran, who is known and loved by all Virginia and who was grand commander of the grand camp of Virginia [illegible] veterans and the intimate friend of General Maury, Dr. Hunter [illegible], Pitzhugh Lee and Joseph E. [illegible]

This book was written with no [illegible] motive, neither for profit or fame, nor with any desire of criminating, but rather to heal the breach and at the same time preserve the truth of history and hand it down to our children. There is not a line of malice or revenge within its pages, but a high [illegible], dignified, conservative appeal [illegible] his comrades to uphold the government that is now a nation and at the same time defend the south from any [illegible] upon her honor. It is beautifully written in thoughts that breathe and words that burn and no man, north or south, can question a statement contained within it. I wish that I was able to place a copy of this book in the home of every family in the south and in the hands of every young man, and I would make it a little book of history in every public school. There are only six chapters, and not more than ten minutes long, but there is not a wasted sentence nor a paragraph too much.

The last chapter is a defense of the American Indian, for the author was a frontiersman and lived among them and mingled with them for many years, and as General Maury said of him, "He has more thoroughly studied the Indian character than any man living." The first chapter is devoted to a review of a United States history recently written and published by Professor Goldwin Smith, an Englishman, who was for years a professor of history in Cornell university and is now a doctor of canon law in Toronto, Canada. This history is published both in London and New York, and is strangely popular both in England and the north. It is intensely venomous against the south, and especially against Virginia. Now listen for a few [illegible] at some of his historical [illegible] taken verbatim from his book. Listen and wonder that such a book could find patrons anywhere. "South Carolina got her start by combining buccaneering with slave owning and making her ports a shelter for pirates and corsairs, such as Captain Kidd and Blackbeard.

"Georgia was the refuge of the [illegible] and bankrupt. Her first settlers were good-for-nothings who had failed in trade—a shiftless and lazy set—but later on some better elements came in—Highlanders, Moravians and persecuted Protestants of Salzburg.

"The first settlers of Virginia were an unpromising lot—lackeys, beggars, broken down gentlemen and tapsters out of a job. To this crew of vagrants were afterwards added jail birds. English convicts were offered the choice between the gallows and Virginia, and some were wise enough to choose the gallows. Even their place of settlement—Jamestown—had long been a desolation. They were not such colonists as the Puritans. They made the Indians work for them, while the Puritans worked for themselves. Many of them were kidnaped from the streets of London and all were of depraved character. Afterwards came African slavery, the bane of Virginia and her ultimate ruin. As were the people so were their leaders. A chief fomenter of the quarrel with England was Patrick Henry, a man who had tried many ways of earning a living and had failed in all. A bankrupt at twenty three, he lounged in idleness till he found he could live by his tongue. James Madison was a well meaning man, but morally weak. Henry Clay was a dazzling, but artificial meteor. John Randolph had natural ability, but lacked good sense and had no power of self-control. He would enter the senate with his hunting whip in his hand and behave as if he were in his dog kennel." He gives praise to Washington, and much praise to Benedict Arnold, who, he says, "was one of the best of American generals and the most daring of all. He was slighted and wronged by politicians and had despaired of redress." But Franklin and Samuel Adams were lacking in the ordinary traits of gentlemen and as for Patrick Henry nothing better was to be expected, for the character of an Englishman is not to be formed in backwoods."

Concerning the civil war he says: "The slaveholders stamped military heel and thrust the poor people

American Claims to Be Pushing Process of Settlement by Chinese. McKinley to Launch the Cuban Delegation in Business.

A correspondent of the Daily Herald asserts that President McKinley has informed Mr. Kruger that he can't aid him either officially or privately.

No application has been made for the chief of steam coal bunkers at Manila at $2.250 a year, notwithstanding that for the place with the civil service commission and an announcement to the effect was made a few weeks ago, but candidates are not in sight.

The ship Ivy is at Port Royal via Belize, with lumbermen and bankers will be in Honduras, though unofficial advices have not been received. It is known to need no French bankers would undoubtedly lend her all she could get money for. It is to the United States that the interests of the French have been directed during the past year. The remarkable boom in stocks here as well as the triumphal progress of President McKinley through the West have aroused widespread attention.

The ocean liners arriving at Quarantine carrying one thousand immigrants each and the health officer of the port and the corps of marine hospital surgeons who examine the new arrivals for the second time when they reach Hoboken are kept busy from early in the morning until long after sundown. Many passengers with sore eyes are found. The much discussed question of who shall fill the honors of the battleship Ohio has been settled by the announcement that the launching will be performed by Mrs. McKinley. She will press the button and the released axe will sever the last at the turn of the tide at noon.

Miss Helen Doehler, of Cincinnati, will break the bottle of California wine over the bow and give the new machine the name of Ohio.

The custom inspectors during the seizing all uninvoiced goods on board vessels entering that port in accordance with their orders to the effect that vessels shall be thoroughly searched not even the quarters of the officer excepted. A number of cases have been seized on board the Bremen XIII, from Corunna, and ordered to contain Madrid letters.

Secretary Root received a telegram from the mayor of Jacksonville, Fla., that the St. Francis Barracks will be put at the disposal of the board to house 1,000 homeless people. Secretary Root immediately sent a telegram to Colonel Brooke, in command at the department of the east, to direct the officer in charge of the barracks to house the people of Jacksonville every possible. The secretary received a dispatch asking for a large supply of tents, the mayor indicating that the people of the city were without shelter. The orders to have 1,000 hospital tents at once. These tents will be pitched at Salisbury, Md., just across the Chesapeake from Washington and at Philadelphia. They go forward on the first of the month.

The special commission of the constitutional convention which met in Washington to obtain a better idea of the intentions of the United States government regarding the relations to be met in Havana by a study of the Platt amendment and by Colonel Scott's reading that the commission had held several conferences during the day and had reached an understanding which they declined. He explained, however, that it would be necessary to hold a meeting when the report of the commission would be drawn up and forwarded for a conference with the delegates.

Shot by Sultan.

It is rumored," says the Berlin correspondent of the Times, "that the Sultan shot his physician, who, while attending his ear complaint and without intentionally caused His Majesty's pain. The chamberlain ran into the room, and the man who opposed them was an attempt on his life, fired again, wounding Chamberlain."

Concerning the civil war he says: "The slaveholders escaped military service and thrust the poor people under fire. Guards impressed men in the streets and conscripts were sent to Lee's army in chains. At the taking of Fort Pillow the negroes were nailed to logs and burned alive. The southern lady was but the head of a harem. She was soft, elegant and charming, but the civil war disclosed an element in her character of a different kind."

This is enough of the scandalous and slanderous book and it is only popular at the north because of its vilification of the south. He flatters New England and the Puritans and gives praise to Benedict Arnold, who was born in Connecticut, and more to old John Brown than to General Lee.

These are the kind of books that northern children read and study and believe. How can that section ever be reconciled? And yet there are people at the south who condemn us for defending the honor of our ancestors and the heroism of our soldiers and speak of it as "ex confederate rot." Lord Macauley said: "A people who take no pride in the achievements of their ancestors will achieve nothing for their own children to be proud of." Some of our most gifted men are still toadying to please northern appetites, "licking the hand that strikes the blow." Of all such a patriotic northern writer says beware of the "chronic reconciler," the man who improves every opportunity to haul out his faded olive branch and waive it in the eyes of the people. When any man, north or south, talks in a mellow way of his love for his old enemy, watch him. He is getting ready to ask for something. Watch him.

There is something pathetic in the picture of the north and south clasped in each others arms and shedding a torrent of hot tears down each others backs, but the aged mothers on each side have not yet learned to love the foe with much violence. Nor does the crippled veteran love the adversary who robbed him of his glorious youth and left him a feeble ruin, nor have the patriotic soldiers on either side deserted the cause for which they fought.

But think of Virginia—the glorious Old Dominion—the mother of states and statesmen. Her domain extended from Carolina to Canada and from the Atlantic to the Pacific oceans. Born upon her generous bosom was Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, Lighthorse Harry, Robert E. Lee, Joe E. Johnston and Stonewall Jackson. Who would not be proud to be a Virginian?

Who can wonder at the patriotic pride of those two venerable sisters, Miss Judith and Miss Anna Thomas of Southampton county, now passed their eighth-eth year, the only sisters of General George H. Thomas, and who, ever since 1861, when he accepted office under Lincoln, have uniformly declared that they once had a brave and noble brother of that name and that he won renown in the war with Mexico when he was a major in Colonel Robert E. Lee's regiment, but that he died in 1861 and now they have no brother. Ever since Virginia seceded they have pathetically declared their dear brother died in the spring of 1861. Every Virginia officer of the old army, save George H. Thomas, promptly resigned and volunteered to defend their state. These lonely old maidens seem really to believe that their brother did die.

The county of Southampton had presented to Major Thomas on his return from Mexico a beautiful sword and after our civil war he wrote to his sisters and requested that the sword be sent to him. They replied that they could not part with it, for it was the only memento of a very dear brother who died in 1861. They still live alone and in poverty in the same old mansion in which they were born, but neither friend nor neighbor ever presumes to mention General Thomas in their presence. These venerable and venerated ladies are but a type of the old Virginia aristocracy. Well may they be proud of their state and their ancestry.

I do not know Colonel Cussons nor the price of his little book, nor have I any interest in advertising it, but I do wish that every veteran and every veteran's son had it. His address is Glen Allen, Va., and he is the publisher. I suppose that $1 will buy it postpaid.—BILL ARP, in Atlanta Constitution.

Great surprise is expressed at the falling off in the number of students at the Princeton Theological seminary. The surprise is based chiefly on this fact, that the young men who would ordinarily have entered the theological seminary have joined the army instead. The assumption that a clergyman is a mild, non-combative individual is totally erroneous. There is no harder fighting than that which is done by the clergy, observes the New York Journal. In order to fulfil their mission conscientiously they are obliged to fight themselves as well to fight evil in others. A clergyman's life is mapped out for him not as a life of ease, but as a life of struggle and of combat.

Voting by machines has been found to be practicable and convenient and much more rapid than by paper ballots. It eliminates fraud and bribery and does away with the tedious counting process which is the source of many errors and much waste of time. The machines not only record the votes but count them, and as soon as the last vote has been cast the total for each candidate is ready to be announced, states the Philadelphia Press.

GOD THINGS SEIZED FOR DEBT.

Boarders in a House, an Engine and False Teeth Levied On.

A story comes from Australia of the United States ship Glacier, the refrigerating ship of the navy, having been seized for debt in the harbor of Sydney. A naval vessel is not often seized for debt, and the legality of the seizure might be a matter of international inquiry. The story is that when the Glacier was at Sydney the officers' mess ran up several bills on shore. When they came to settle, before sailing, a bill was presented by a tradesman which the mess refused to pay, on the reasonable ground that they did not owe it. Knowing that the vessel was to sail shortly, the tradesman got a sharp lawyer, who procured a judgment against the ship for the amount of the bill. A sheriff came on board upon some pretext, and, drawing a warrant for the ship's seizure from his pocket, affixed it to the mainmast. After that to sail away would have brought on international complications, so the mess paid and tried to look pleasant. The bill was for $250.

Curious things have been seized for debt. Some years ago there was a foreigner of rank in Chicago, who had fallen on evil times, and so set up a boarding house. He was always in debt, and at last his creditors discovered an ingenious way of getting their bills paid. When the boarders were at dinner an officer of the law appeared and levied on the table. The guests were indignant, and the foreign nobleman tore his hair. Finally, as the bill was small, the boarders clubbed together and paid it, after which they resumed their evening meal, amid profuse protestations of gratitude on the part of their noble host. The amount paid was, of course, deducted from their board bill when they came to settle. After the table had been levied on twice or three times it got monotonous and the boarding house ceased to flourish.

Some time back the proprietor of a traveling menagerie in England received a bill as he was leaving Yarmouth with his "aggregation." He declared that the bill was exorbitant and refused to pay. At his next stopping place he was served with a summons, and final judgment and execution was obtained for the bill. But by the time the papers were made out the menagerie was at a third town, and there the officer of the law went to execute the writ. Now, a menagerie is a troublesome thing to levy on, but it was decided to seize a Malay orang-outang, as being the handiest article of value. The officers had no idea what to feed the animal on, and as it became hungry it raved and fought so that they sent it back to menagerie, which by this time had gone to a fourth town. All expenses fell upon the people who had brought the suit, and they were glad to get off even at that price.

A traveling theatrical company which had left a bill behind at Birmingham, England, was "caught up" at the next town with a writ of attachment upon its theatrical properties. When the officer came to levy he found nothing of much value except the wigs belonging to the show. These he seized, and that night "Richard III." was played by actors with up-to-date close-cropped heads, making a most ludicrous effect when combined with mediæval clothes.

Some time ago the London and Northwestern Railway Company fell a victim to the notorious litigant—since declared insane—Mrs. Corbett. The woman, who was always suing something or somebody, brought suit against the company, and as the case was not defended, she obtained judgment. She got an order and actually seized an engine attached to a local train. She held up that train for an hour before the engine was bonded and released.

In New York a woman was taken to court charged with stealing a set of false teeth from one of her boarders. In her defense the accused woman said that she had seized the teeth as security for a board bill owed her by the young lady who owned them.—Chicago Chronicle.

Strange Reciprocity.

What do you think of an alliance between a plant and an ant, a veritable reciprocal treaty whereby the plant furnishes food for the ant and the ant furnishes protection for the plant? This is an actual existing relation in Australia, where a small pugnacious ant and the bull's horn thorn live together under really remarkable conditions.

But for the plant the ant would be without food, and but for the ant the plant would be destroyed by several varieties of insects that attack its leaves.

The reciprocal plan and agreement is this: The thorn at the end of each leaf has a pair of hollow horns, around which is secreted a substance fitted for food for the ant, and which is renewed by the plant as rapidly as it is consumed. In these horns the ant lives and finds his natural nourishment within easy reach.

He objects emphatically to the presence of other insects, and as soon as any of the little enemies of the plant alight on the leaf which he has preempted he darts from his home in the thorn and makes such a fierce attack on the intruder that he is glad to make a hurried escape or else loses his life in the attempt to hold his position.—New York Herald.

Increase of Swiss Population.

The recent census taken throughout Switzerland has shown a remarkable increase in the number of inhabitants. Perhaps the most extraordinary growth is in the canton of Zurich, whose population in 1888 numbered 337,183, but but now it is 428,039, an increase of 90,847 inhabitants in twelve years. This is considered a world's record. Geneva has increased by 21,412 persons during the same period.

REV. DR. TALMAGE.

DISCOURSE BY THE EMINENT DIVINE LAST SUNDAY.

Subject: Lessons Drawn From the Natural World — The Ant as a Teacher — God Regulates the Ant Hill as Well as the Human Habitation.

[Copyright 1901.]

WASHINGTON, D. C.—In this discourse Dr. Talmage draws his illustrations from a realm seldom utilized for moral and religious purposes, text, Proverbs vi. 6-8 "Go to the ant, thou sluggard. Consider her ways and be wise, which, having no guide, overseer or ruler, provideth her meat in the summer and gathereth her food in the harvest."

The most of Solomon's writings have perished. They have gone out of existence as thoroughly as the twenty books of Pliny and most of the books of Aeschylus and Euripides and Varro and Quintilian. Solomon's Song and Ecclesiastes and Proverbs, preserved by inspiration, are a small part of his voluminous productions. He was a great scientist. One verse in the Bible suggests that he was a botanist, a zoologist, an ornithologist, an ichthyologist and knew all about reptiles. I Kings iv. 33, "He spake of trees, from the cedar tree that is in Lebanon even unto the hyssop that springeth out of the wall; he spake also of beasts and of fowl and of creeping things and of fishes." Besides all these scientific works he composed 3000 proverbs and 1005 songs.

Although Solomon lived long before the microscope was constructed he was also an insectologist, and watched and describes the spider build its suspension bridge of silk from tree to tree, railing it the spider's web, and he notices its skilful foothold in climbing the smooth wall of the throneroom in Jerusalem, saying, "The spider taketh hold with her hands and is in kings' palaces." But he is especially interested in the ant, and recommends its habits as worthy of study and imitation, saying, "Go to the ant, thou sluggard, consider her ways and be wise, which, having no guide, overseer or ruler, provideth her meat in the summer and gathereth her food in the harvest."

But it was not until about 300 years ago, when Jan Swammerdam, the son of an apothecary at Amsterdam, Holland, began the study of the ant under powerful lens, that the full force of Solomon's injunction was understood. The great Dutch scientist in his examination of the insect in my text discovered as great display of the wisdom of God in its anatomy as astronomers discover in the heavens, and was so absorbed and wrought upon by the wonders he discovered in the ant and other insects that body and mind gave way, and he expired at forty-three years of age, a martyr of the great science of insectology.

No one but God could have fashioned the insect spoken of in the text or given it such genius of instinct—its wisdom for harvesting at the right time, its wonders of antennae, by which it gathers food, and of mandibles, which, instead of the motion of the human jaw up and down in mastication, move from side to side; its nervous system, its enlarging doors in hot weather for more sweep of breeze, its mode of attack and defense, closing the gate at night against bandit invaders; its purification of the earth for human residence, its social life, its republican government with the consent of the governed, its natural fidelities, the habit of these creatures of gathering now and then under the dome of the ant hillock seemingly in consultation and then departing to execute their different missions.

But Solomon would not commend all the habits of the ant, for some of them are as bad as some of the habits of the human race. Some of these small creatures are desperadoes and murderers. Now and then they marshal themselves into hosts and march in straight line and come upon an encampment of their own race and destroy its occupants, except the young, whom they carry into captivity, and if the army come back without any such captives they are not permitted to enter, but are sent forth to make more successful conquest. Solomon gives no commendation so such sanguinary behavior among insects any more than he would have commended sanguinary behavior among men.

But what are the habits which Solomon would enjoin when he says, "consider her ways and be wise?" First of all, providence, forethought, anticipation of coming necessities. I am sorry to say these qualities are not characteristic of all the ants. These creatures of God are divided into granivorous and carnivorous. The latter are not frugal, but the former are frugal. While the air is warm and moving about is not hindered by ice or snowbank, they import their cargoes of food. They bring in their caravan of provision; they haul in their long train of wheat or corn or oats.

The farmers are not more busy in July and August in reaping their harvest. They stack them away, they pile them up. They question when they have enough. They aggregate a sufficient amount to last them until the next warm season. When winter opens they are ready.

Blow ye wintry blasts! Hang your icicles from the tree branches! Imbed all the highways under snowdrifts! Enough for all the denizens of the hills. Hunger shut out, and plenty sits within. God, who feedeth every living thing, has blessed the ant hill.

In contrast with that insectile behavior what do you think of that large number of prosperous men and women who live up to every dollar that they make, raising their families in luxurious habits and at death expecting some kind friend to give their daughters employment as music teachers or typewriters or Government employes? Such parents have no right to children. Every neighborhood has specimens of such improvidence. The two words that most strike me in the text are "summer" and "winter." Some people have no summer in their lives. From the rocking cradle to the still grave it is relentless January. Invalid infancy followed by some crippling accident or dimness of eyesight or dullness of hearing or privation or disaster or unfortunate environment makes life a perpetual winter. But in most lives there is a period of summer, although it may be a short summer, and that is the time to provide for the future.

One of the best ways of insuring the future is to put aside all you can for charitable provision. You put a crumbling stone in the foundation of your fortune if you do not in your plans regard the sufferings that you may alleviate. You will have the pledge of the high heavens for your temporal welfare when you help the helpless, for the promise is "Blessed is he that considereth the poor; the Lord will deliver him in time of trouble."

Then there is another way of providing for the future. If you have $1000 a year income, save $100; or $2000 a year, save $500; or $3000, save $1000. Do you say such economy is meanness? I say it is a vaster meanness for you to make no provision for the future and compel your friends or the world to take care of you or yours in case of bereavement or calamity.

There are women who at the first increase of their husband's resources wreck all on an extravagant wardrobe. There are men who at the prospect of larger prosperity build houses they will never be able to pay for. There are people with $4000 a year income who have not one dollar laid up for a rainy day. It is a ghastly dishonesty practiced on the next generation. Such men deserve bankruptcy and impoverishment. In almost every man's life there comes a winter of cold misfortune. Prepare for it while you may. Whose thermometer has not sometimes stood below zero? What ship has never been caught in a storm? What regiment at the front never got into a battle? Have at least as much foresight as the insectile world.

Examine the pantries of the ant hills in this weather, and you will find that last summer's supply is not yet exhausted. Examine them next July and you will find them being replenished. "Go to the ant, thou sluggard. Consider her ways and be wise, which, having no guide, overseer or ruler, provideth her meat in the summer and gathereth her food in the harvest."

This is no argument for miserliness. Avarice and penuriousness destroy a man about as soon as any of the other vices. We have heard of those who entered their iron money vault for business purposes, and the door accidentally shut, and they were suffocated, their corpse not discovered until the next day. But every day and all up and down the streets of our cities there are men, body, mind and soul, forever fast in their own money vaults. Accumulation of bonds, mortgages and Government securities and town lots and big farms just for the pleasure of accumulation is despicable, but the putting aside of a surplus for your self defense when your brain has failed, or your right hand has forgotten its cunning, or your old age needs a manservant, or for the support of others when you can no more be a breadwinner for your household—that is right, that is beautiful, that is Christian, that is divinely approved. That shows that you have taken Solomon's ant hill for an object lesson. Going out of this world without leaving a dollar for those who remain behind, if you have done your best, you have a right to put your head in calm confidence on the pillow which Jeremiah shook up in the forty-ninth chapter of his prophecy, "Leave thy fatherless children, I will preserve them alive, and let thy widows trust in Me."

But if, having the means, through mortgages or houses or life insurance for providing for helpless widowhood and orphanage, you make no provision for post mortem need, how dare you go up and take a palace in heaven and let your wife and children go to the poorhouse or into a struggle for bread that makes life a horror and sometimes ends in suicide?

But my subject reaches higher than temporalities—foresight for the soul, provision for eternal experiences, preparation for the far beyond. Ant hills, speak out and teach us a larger and mightier lesson of preparing food for the more important part of us! Do you realize that a man may be a millionaire or a multi millionaire for time and a bankrupt for eternity, a prince for a few years and a pauper forever? The ant would not be satisfied with gathering enough food for half a winter or quarter of a winter. But how many of us seem content, though not having prepared for the ten millionth part of what will be our existence!

Furthermore, go to the ant and consider that it does not decline work because it is insignificant. The fragment of seed it hauls into its habitation may be so small that the unaided eye cannot see it, but the insectile work goes on—the carpenter ant at work above ground, the mason ant at work under ground. Some of these creatures mix the leaves of the fir and the catkins of the pine for the roof or wall of their tiny abode, and others go out as hunters looking for food, while others in domestic duties stay at home. Twenty specks of the food they are moving toward their granary, put upon a balance, would hardly make the scales quiver. All of the work is on a small scale. There is no use in our refusing a mission because it is insignificant. Anything that God in His providence puts before us to do is important.

The needle has its office as certainly as the telescope and the spade as a parliamentarian scroll. You know what became of the man in the parable of the talents, who buried the one talent instead of putting it to practical and accumulative use. His apology was of no avail.

When during the plague in London, at the risk of his life and under the protest of his friends, Rev. Thomas Vincent spent his time preaching the gospel to the sufferers and 68,596 people perished, seven fatalities in the house where he lived, did it just happen so that he came through unhurt? In Fulton street prayer meeting, New York, a young man rose and said: "I have been an infidel fourteen years. I had the prayers of a pious mother, but I spurned them. I have not seen her for fifteen years. I suppose she has given me up as lost. I don't know where to find her, but I would like to tell her what the Lord has done for me in answer to her earnest prayers." Did it just happen so that his mother was present and cried out, "O, my son, my son?" You know of the glorious Christian work in Japan, but do you know how it began? A New Testament was dropped from an English ship in the harbor of Tokyo. The little book came into the hands of a prominent Japanese, who read it and was brought to God, and immediately began to commend Christ to the people. Did all that merely happen so? Tell that to those who do not believe there is a God, but do not tell it to at least a hundred of us who have had in our own lives providential rescues as easily proved as that we have ever lived at all.

But we live in times where there are so many cashings. There seems almost universal unrest. Large fortunes swallow up small fortunes. Civilized nations trying to gobble up barbaric nations. Upheaval of creeds, and people who once believed everything now believing nothing. The old book that Moses began and St. John ended bombarded from scientific observatories and college class-rooms. Amid all this disturbance and uncertainty that which many good people need is not a stimulus, but a sedative, and in my text I find it—divine observation and guidance of minutest affairs. And nothing is to God large or small, planet or ant hill, the God who easily made the worlds employing His infinity in the wondrous construction of a spider's foot.

Before we leave this subject let us thank God for those who were willing to endure the fatigues and self sacrifices necessary to make revelation of the natural world, so re-enforcing the Scriptures. If the microscope could speak, what a story it could tell of hardship and poverty and suffering and perseverance on the part of those who employed it for important discovery. It would tell of the blinded eyes of M. Strauss, of the Hubers and of scores of those who, after inspecting the minute objects of God's creation, staggered out from their cabinets with vision destroyed. This hour in many a professor's study the work of putting eyesight on the altar of science is going on. And what greater loss can one suffer than the loss of eyesight unless it be loss of reason? While the telescope is reaching further up and the microscope is reaching further down, both are exclaiming: "There is a God, and He is infinitely wise and infinitely good! Worship Him and worship Him forever!"

And now I bethink myself of the fact that we are close to a season of the year which will allow us to be more out of doors and to confront the lessons of the natural world, and there are voices that seem to say, "Go to the ant; go to the bird; go to the flowers; go to the fields; go to the waters." Listen to the cantatas that drop from the gallery of the tree tops. Notice in the path where you walk the lessons of industry and divine guidance. Make natural religion a commentary on revealed religion. Put the glow of sunrise and sunset into your spiritual experiences. Let every star speak of the morning star of the Redeemer and every aromatic bloom make you think of Him who is the Rose of Sharon and the Lily of the Valley, and every overhanging cliff remind you of the rock of ages, and every morning suggest the "day spring from on high, which giveth light to those who are in darkness," and even the little hillock built by the roadside or in the fields remind you of the wisdom of imitating in temporal and spiritual things the insectile forethought, "which, having no guide, overseer or ruler, provideth her meat in the summer and gathereth her food in the harvest."

THE SABBATH SCHOOL

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR MAY 12.

Subject: The Great Commission, Matt. xxviii. 16-20 — Golden Text, Matt. xxviii. 20 — Memory Verses, 18-20 — Commentary on the Day's Lesson.

16. "Then." Matthew does not notice any of the important events that have taken place between Christ and His disciples since the morning of the resurrection. They did not go immediately into Galilee, but waited in Jerusalem at least one week, when Christ appeared to them again, on Sunday night, April 16. While they were waiting in Galilee for the appointed time of the meeting Jesus surprised seven of them at the sea of Galilee (John 21: 1-23), and fully restored Peter to his former station among the disciples. Soon after that interview occurs the special meeting of to-day's lesson. This was His eighth appearance. "The eleven." While there is no mention here that any besides the eleven were present, yet it is the general opinion that the whole body of the disciples had come together, and that this was the time when Christ appeared to the 500 brethren referred to by Paulin. I Cor. 15. 6. "Into Galilee." Why did Christ have this meeting in Galilee? This having been the principal scene of Christ's ministry, the greatest part of His followers lived there, and for this reason He chose to make His most solemn and public appearance in that country. "Had appointed them." Jesus had evidently named the mountain. Lange calls attention to Matthew's three sacred mountains. 1. The mount of the Beatitudes. 2. The mount of the Transfiguration. 3. The mount of the great Resurrection Meeting.

17. "When they saw Him." There was something mysterious and supernatural in the manifestation of the glorified body. The more devoted and loving disciples were probably the first to recognize their Lord. "They worshiped Him." They gave divine honor to Him, which was signified by some outward expressions of adoration. Those who see Jesus with an eye of faith are always true worshipers of Him. They are ready to bow humbly at His feet and give Him the love that is due Him. "But some doubted." Certainly none of the eleven after what had taken place at previous interviews at Jerusalem, but of the 500 were now present, we may well believe this of some of them. Lange and others agree with this idea. These doubts were afterward removed from their minds, and all doubts should also be removed from our minds. The resurrection of Christ is the greatest miracle of which we have an account in the Bible, and has been established beyond the possibility of a mistake.

18. "And Jesus came to them." (R. V.) This drawing near was manifestly a special approach unto those who were doubting. "All authority." (R. V.) Authority and power differ; for many have authority to do what they have no power to do, while others have power but no authority. Our Lord's authority implies power also. Christ was about to commission His apostles, and send them out with authority as ambassadors to the nations, and He first shows them by what authority He acts. "Hath been given." (R. V.) He did not assume it, or usurp it, but it was given Him; He was legally entitled to it and invested in it by a grant from Him who is the Fountain of all power. God set Him King (Psa. 2. 6), inaugurated and enthroned Him. Luke 1. 32. As God, equal with the Father, all power was originally and essentially His, but as Mediator, as God man, all power was given Him. "In heaven and in earth." Christ has authority and power in heaven. 1. to intercede with the Father. 2. To send down the Holy Spirit. 3. To raise up His followers. 4. To give them a seat at His right hand in kingdom of endless glory. He has authority and power "on earth." (R. V.) 1. To convert sinners. 2. To sanctify, protect and perfect His church. 3. To subdue all nations to Himself. 4. Over death. 5. To judge the world. 6. He also has authority and power over all the forces of nature.

19. "Go ye therefore." This commission is given primarily to the apostles, who were to carry on and establish the work Christ had inaugurated. What must have been the feelings which such a commission awakened! We conquer the world for Thee, Lord, who have scarce conquered our own misgivings—we, fishermen of Galilee, with no learning, no means, no influence? "And make disciples." (R. V.) They were not to go and subdue, or pronounce judgments against the nations, but to make disciples by preaching the gospel of Christ—a gospel of peace and love. Henceforth they were to be fishers of men. If we are true ministers of Christ we will win men to the truth and thus lead them to obtain salvation. "Of all the nations." (R. V.) This word of Christ breaks down the middle wall of partition which had so long excluded the Gentiles from the visible church. The apostles at first were forbidden to go to the Gentiles, now they are sent to all nations. The Gentiles are to be christianized without first being made Jews. The commission given to the apostles is still binding on the Christian church. Christ's words, according to Mark, are, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature." How can Christians fold their arms contentedly, in the presence of the world's great need? "Baptizing them." This was to be a sign that they had left their heathen religions, and had become true converts to Christianity. "Into the name." (R. V.) This means that converts are pledged by baptism to a faith which has for its object the being designated by that name, and which brings them into union with Him. The word "name" has a wide and deep meaning; it implies a living reality, a power, and in Scripture, when applied to God, is equivalent to the Godhead. "Father—Holy Ghost." Here we have the trinity clearly set forth. There is One God, with one undivided name and nature, who exists as three Divine Persons, under the personal distinction of Father, Son and Holy Spirit.

20. "Teaching them." It is the duty of the apostles and ministers of Christ to instruct those who become disciples or learners. "To observe," etc. What Christ has commanded must be taught and observed. We are to "observe"—pay attention to and obey, "all things"—not merely those things which suit us best, but all the moral duties, without exception, that Christ has commanded. "I am with you alway." Literally, I am with you every day. In the person of the Holy Spirit, Christ would never be absent from them a single day. This should be a source of no little encouragement to all true ministers of the gospel. He is not coming, He is here with us now. 1. He is with both the weak and the strong. 2. He is in the battle as well as the victory. 3. He is with us in life and in death. 4. In time and in eternity. "Unto the end," etc. Into the end of time. "Amen." Omitted in R. V.

The natives of Uganda, Central Africa, have just paid their taxes for the current year, amounting approximately to $300,000. This includes payments in kind, consisting of five elephants, one zebra, 20 chimpanzees, several warthogs, water antelopes, porcupines, snakes and cranes, and numerous monkeys. All these creatures have been received at the government headquarters at Port Alice.

CIRCUIT Court convenes at Clanton on Monday next.

SPLENDID weather and everybody busy.

ELECTIONS are getting to be too cheap. The city of Birmingham elected a mayor and board of aldermen last Monday, and only 261 voters were interested enough to cast their votes.

THE official count of the late election shows a majority of 24,800 in favor of holding the convention. The total vote cast was 115,810—70,305 for the convention and 45,505 against. 25 white counties voted against the convention, but several of these elected Democratic delegates.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla, met with a terrible calamity last Friday, when fire destroyed a great part of that beautiful city. 148 blocks, comprising the business and residence portion of the city went up in smoke and over ten thousand people were rendered homeless. The damage is estimated at fifteen million dollars. The U. S. government have forwarded army tents for the shelter of the homeless, and subscriptions for the relief of the sufferers are being raised all over the country.

THE Weather Bureau's weekly summary of crop conditions says: "Rains are very generally needed throughout the cotton belt to germinate the very large part of the crop replanted since the cold of April 18, some of which, however, is coming up to good stands, especially in the eastern districts. While planting has been delayed by dry weather in Texas, this work has made good progress elsewhere and is nearly completed over the northern portion of the central districts. There is extensive complaint of scarcity of seed. The fruit outlook continues encouraging generally in all districts."

Negotiating with Cuba.

The action taken by congress, to define what it regarded as the suitable basis for a treaty arrangement between Cuba and the United States, was merely a presentation of principles to guide our own executive in negotiating with the Cuban convention. This Cuban convention, on the other hand, was elected for the express purpose of carrying on such negotiations with the United States, as one of its two principal duties, the other being the drafting of a domestic constitution. It seemed somewhat difficult for the convention to discover the natural and suitable way for it to proceed; but, since there was only one really possible thing to do—unless, indeed, the convention should refuse to do anything at all—the obvious plan was at length perceived and adopted. A committee was appointed which should go to Washington and enter upon the duties of negotiation. The Platt amendment, so called, was not adopted for the sake of coercing Cuba, but to inform the President as to the opinions of congress, inasmuch as the arrangement to be entered into will require subsequent congressional sanction. As we have shown, these congressional views are eminently sensible, and are as advantageous to Cuba as to the United States. There can be no haste whatever about completing the negotiation, and time should be taken at Washington for a through and courteous consideration of every point. When the proposed arrangement for the future relations between Cuba and the United States has been put into the form of a treaty, it will have to be carried back to Havana and submitted to the convention, which will be reassembled for the purpose of considering and ratifying the report. In this country, on the other hand, it will have to be submitted by President McKinley for the consideration and action of congress. —From "The Progress of the World," in the American Monthly Review of Reviws for May.

Confederate Reunion at Memphis.

Gen. G W. Gordon, who will be Chief Marshal of the mammoth parade on the last official day of the Confederate Reunion, has given out his plans for the line of march. As has hitherto been the custom, the Army of Virginia will be placed at the head of the procession, as the post of honor. The Army of Tennessee follows, and the third position is assigned to the Trans-Mississippi Department. This will form the body of the parade. Following the Veterans come the divisions of Sons of Veterans occupying the same order, the Army of Northern Virginia again taking first place. The Sponsors and Maids of Honor of the Sons of Veterans for the three divisions, for the Commander in Chief and for Forrest Camps, will be the only sponsors recognized unless the order is modified. In the rear of the Sons of Veterans and bringing up the rear will be the local military companies and visiting military companies.

All Doctors have tried to cure CATARRH by the use of powders, acid gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of CATARRH, has at last perfected a Treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures CATARRH, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES" the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use

"SNUFFLES" is the only perfect CATARRH CURE ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflammation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve HAY FEVER or COLD in the HEAD.

CATARRH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION—"SNUFFLES" will save you if you use it at once. It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send for it at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the doctor of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "SNUFFLES" the "GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE."

The Concordia Land and Improvement Association, a Corporation under the Laws of Alabama, having its principle place of business at Thorsby, Alabama, Plaintiff, vs. H. J. Osterlund, Defendant, who resides at Red Wing Post Office, in the State of Minnesota.

To H. J. Osterlund, the Defendant in the above stated cause, who resides at Red Wing Post Office in the State of Minnesota.

You will take notice that The Concordia Land & Improvement Association, a corporation under the Laws of Alabama, having its principle place of business at Thorsby, Alabama, the Plaintiff in the above stated cause, sued out an attachment in said cause against you, the said H. J. Osterlund, the Defendant, on the 7th day of May, 1901, to enforce the collection of a debt due it by you by a promissory note containing a waiver of exemptions as to personal property in the sum of $65.00 with interest thereon at 8 per cent per annum since the first day of April, 1899, together with $15.00 as an Attorney's fee for collecting said note; that said attachment was sued out without bond; and that said attachment was levied upon the southeast fourth of the southeast fourth of southwest fourth, except rights of way 20 feet wide on the east and south sides of said tract of land in section one, township twenty-two, range thirteen, in Chilton County, Alabama, as the property of the said H. J. Osterlund, the Defendant, by the sheriff of said Chilton County, on the 7th day of May, 1901. Let this notice be published in The Banner, a weekly newspaper published in said Chilton County, for three successive weeks next following, and let a copy of each issue containing same be sent by mail to the said H. J. Osterlund, the Defendant.

Witness my hand, this the 7th day of May 1901.

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

An Ingenious Treatment by which Drunkards are Being Cured Daily in spite of Themselves.

No Noxious Doses. No Weakening of the Nerves. A Pleasant and Positive Cure for the Liquor Habit.

It is now generally known and understood that drunkenness is a disease and not weakness. A body filled with poison, and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors, requires an antidote capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most opaitnate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the marvelous transformation of thousands of Drunkards into sober, industrious and upright men.

WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! this remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of Drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and as many more have been cured and made temperate men by having the "CURE" administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in coffee or tea, and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. DO NOT WAIT. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading "improvement." Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "HOME GOLD CURE" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of every body a treatment more effective than cures costing $25 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept. C 935, EDWIN B. GILES & COMPANY, 2330 and 2332 Market Street, Philadelphia.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY COMPOUNDED

THE NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Summary of Current Events From All Sections of Alabama.

BRIEFLY TOLD FOR ALL OUR READERS

The Selma Baptists Have Let Contract for An $80,000 Church Edifice—Tuskegee Institute and Mallalieu Seminary Get $10,000.

New Sewer System.

The survey of the proposed Decatur sewerage has just been completed and the plans and specifications will be ready in about a week. The system will cost about $10,000.

Tuskegee and Mallalieu Get $5,000 Each.

The will of Mary Shannon, of Newton, Mass., filed in the Middlesex probate court Friday, contributes more than $125,000 to the charitable and public institutions. Tuskegee Institute and Mallalieu Seminary for poor whites, Kinsey, Henry county, Ala., get $5,000 each.

Buffalo's Exposition.

The committee on the representation of Alabama at the Buffalo Fair has reported good progress. Six companies had been formed, and they would spend $10,000 to represent the state in Buffalo. The special committee in this particular were Frank Y. Anderson, W. N. Malone and B. Steiner, of Birmingham.

More Smallpox Cases.

Two more cases of smallpox have developed at Florence, and six cases are now in the pest house. While the situation is rather critical, yet the city health officer has the matter well in hand, the wholesale vaccinations last winter among all classes preventing much danger from a spread of the disease. Several more suspects are being carefully guarded.

Handsome Church to Be Built.

The contract was let to J. L. Huggins, of Hawkinsville, Ga., for the erection of the new Baptist church in Selma. The exact amount of the contract was not given out by the committee having the new building in charge, but it is in the neighborhood of $80,000. The new church is to be built entirely of stone, and will be one of the handsomest edifices in the south.

Will Not Reorganize.

The Virginia and Alabama and the Corona Companies will not be reorganized by the Monongahela Coal and Coke Association, known as the Pittsburg combine. At that time, however, there will be a complete reorgnization of these valuable properties and from that date on they will be operated along the most approved Pittsburg line. L. R. Musgrove will, it is surmised, practically control the business in Alabama.

Alabama Press Association.

Details of a delightful trip for the Alabama Press Association this summer are being arranged by President Rufus N. Rhodes and Secretary J. Asa Rountree, of the association. The association will meet in Montgomery on June 20th and 21st. It is proposed to take a trip of fifteen days, the destination being San Francisco, the party also stopping at the principal points along the way. Several railway officials have already volunteered the courtesies of their road for the editors. The trip bids fair to be one of the most enjoyable if not the most pleasant the association has ever had.

Paper Suspended.

The Florence Daily Bulletin suspended after four months' existence. Maj. W. F. Palmer, the editor, will move his plant to Arizona and establish a paper. In his farewell address he scores the city for its lack of enterprise and the merchants for failing to support the daily.

Peculiar Accident.

Rev. John R. Morris of Weatherford, Tex., met with a singular accident on the train north bound out of Mobile. Seated at a window with his elbow on the sill, his arm was struck and broken by the open door of a refrigerator car on the side track. The train was backed to the depot and physician's attention rendered.

Black Creek Mines.

The sale of the Brakes and Black Creek coal mines, located on the Louisville and Nashville railroad between Birmingham and Warrior, which was to have occurred Friday, did not take place. The sale will take place some time in the near future. The delay was caused by intended purchasers requesting a postponement in order to allow further investigation of the properties to be sold.

Advance Announced.

The coal miners employed by the Sloss-Sheffield and Iron Company are now receiving the maximum price stipulated in the contract between the company and the miners for digging coal. This is an increase of two and one half cents a ton over the price they received in April and five cents a ton more than they were getting three months ago.

Three Killed.

Three negroes were found dead Friday near the cabin in which Deputy Sheriff Edwards was killed Sunday night, ten miles south of Selma. Ed Dawson, nephew of Henry Dawson, in whose house Edwards was killed, was found dead in the public road, vehicles having to drive out of the road to pass. The other two were shot in a cabin where their bodies were discovered. The negroes are terrorized and fleeing to the city. There is no clew as to who did the shooting.

Smallpox at Florence.

Four cases of smallpox have been discovered at Florence by the city health officer. Last week a negro boy named Robert Boyd died of what was thought to be pneumonia and the negroes held funeral services in the church which was largely attended. It was developed that many friends had nursed the deceased during the ten days of his illness and many have come in contact with the disease. Later Dr. Kernachan was called to attend four members of Boyd's family and found the parents and two children down with the disease.

Jewels Recovered.

Jewels valued at more than two thousand dollars, which were stolen by burglars from the home of Henry J. Lowenthal, of Huntsville, have been recovered after having been lost since last January. The jwels were found at Dallas by a little boy whose parents, totally ignorant of their value, sold them for $25. The boy found them wrapped in an old glove two or three days after the burglary. Never suspecting that the articls could be genuine gold and diamonds, Mrs. Wilson put them away and forgot them. Recently she took them out and carried them to goldsmith's store and asked him what they were worth. He regconized the initials and said he would give $25 for the jewelry. The offer was immediately accepted and the valuables were returned to the oriignal owner.

Pattern Makers.

The strike of the pattern makers in the machine shop and foundry of the steel mill at Ensley is now on. Effective May 1st, the pattern makers demanded a minimum wage of $3.25 per day instead of the former minimum of $3 per day. The demand was declined.

Hotel Improvement.

It is understood that the stockholders of the Exchange Hotel at Montgomery have practically decided to greatly improve the building and make it a modern hostelry.

Killed by Runaway.

A most distressing accident occurred near Madison, Ala., resulting in the death of Miss Lizzie Halsey, a well known and popular young lady of Huntsville. Miss Halsey, in company with others, was driving to Triana, when the horse became frightened and ran away. Miss Halsey jumped from the buggy and falling out crushed her scull.

The Banana Business On.

Something of the magnitude of the banana business of Mobile may be gathered when it is asserted that during the month of April over 980 car loads of bananas have been shipped from Mobile to the central and northwestern states. If these cars were all coupled together on one track it would make a solid train of bananas seven miles long. All the fruit companies speak highly of the splendid facilities for handling fruit in Mobile harbor, and predict great possibilities for the future.

Amelia's Mansion.

The Gardo House at "Amelia's Mansion" in Salt Lake, built by Brigham Young for his favorite wife, Amelia Folsom Young, and for several years occupied by her, has passed out of the hands of the church. The property was sold in the name of President Snow, as trustee, for the church.

SWEPT BY A RAGING FIRE.

Jacksonville, Fla., Visited By a Disastrous Conflagration.

TEN THOUSAND PEOPLE ARE HOMELESS

One Hundred and Thirty Blocks Were Destroyed, Including Churches, Hotels, Theatres and Residences—A Scene of Desolation.

A most disastrous fire began Friday afternoon in a fibre factory in Jacksonville, Fla. It started from a defective wire, according to the best belief, and burned for nearly ten hours. In that time a property damage estimated from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 was effected. According to the city map, 1 3 blocks were burned, many of them in the heart of the business and residence section. The estimate of the houses to the block is ten, hence 1,300 of them went up in smoke. Many of the finest public and private buildings were destroyed, including hotels, theatres, churches and residences. The casualties cannot be accurately estimated. The mayor ordered all of the saloons closed, and has impressed help to clear the wreckage. The mayor estimates the loss to be at $15,000,000, and that from 10,000 to 15,000 people are homeless. The situation is one approaching desolation in a large section of the city. The burned district reached far from Burbridge street on the north to St. Johns river on the south, a distance of quite two miles. The width of the desolated area is thirteen blocks. Within this space practically everything is blackened ruins. On Bay street, the principal mart of trade, the Western Union Telegraph Company's building is the first going west. Everything east of Laura on Bay street is gone. At midnight the fire was under control having practically burned itself out. The suburban settlements, with the exception of La Villa, are intact. La Villa was badly hurt. Thousands of persons are on the streets homeless, with practically all of their worldly possessions upon their back. The depots of the railroads, situated in the southern section, have been turned into temporary lodging houses and hospitals. Luckily, the weather is fine, so that there will be no suffering on that score. Meetings of the city council, the commercial bodies and the charitable institutions are devising ways and means for the situation. The plans of the city as prepared by the city surveyors show that 130 blocks were burned and a part of another block. The estimates of residences to the block in the residential district is ten and in the business section the blocks were solid. The chief of police ordered all saloons closed until further orders. The fire started between the hours of noon and 1 p. m. and owing to this fact the loss of life will be comparatively small. The fibre factory was a wooden shell full of inflammable material and in a few moments was a mass of flames. The wind, which was already blowing be strong from the southwest, seemed to possessed with a sudden fury, and soon was carrying destructive embers all through the doomed city, the fairest portion of which lay right in the wake of the wind. Some delay was experinced in getting an alarm, and to add to the tragedy of fateful accidents, the engine at the water works suffered a mishap, and nothing more than ordinary pressure could be obtained. By this time the flams had leaped across Davis street and taken a course right through a section where block after block of frame buildings, mostly occupied by negroes, had been erected. Here is where the fire department lost control, as simultaneously in half a dozen places, some of them six blocks from the main fire, roofs were seen to burst out in flames. The wind rising higher and higher mowed down whole rows of buildings and attracted at first a crowd of curious sight-seers who seemed to be fascinated by the sight until they learned that their residences, too, were in danger of total destruction. It took just four hours for that resistless sea of flames to consume every building in its wake for a space of six to eight blocks wide from Davis street near where it started, to the Hogan creek viaduct, a distance of over one and a half miles, and then not satisfied with eating the heart of the residential portion of the city out, it doubled on itself and came roaring up the thoroughfare of trade, destroying everything in what was the original incorporation of Jacksonville.

American Soubrette Worried.

Effie Fay, an American soubrette in London, received through the mail a package, presumably from a jilted Johnnie, and loaded with matches, gunpowder and red pepper. The matches had been so arranged as to cause an explosion had the pakage been opened in the ordinary way by pulling the tape. Miss Fay cut the cardboard top off with a penknife, and then saw the contents, which were evidently intended to blind and otherwise injure her.

A Hundred Mothers Killed.

A dispatch from Odesa, Russia, purports to give an eye witness story of the recent ferryboat disaster on the river Dnieper, near Katchkarovka, when almost a hundred mothers with their babies, returning from the evening milking, were drowned. A sudden storm sprang up, there was a panic, the pattoons were swamped and only a few on the ferry were saved by a boat. Three persons clung to a horse which swam ashore. Pratcically every family in the village was rendered motherless by the disaster.

$250,000 Fire at Dallas.

The repository of the Southern Rock Island Plow Company here was destroyed by fire. The loss is estimated at about $250,000 with probably $15,000 insurance. The fire was caused by lightning which struck the northwest corner and ranged downward from the sixth, or top story, to the basement. The stock was in ruins in less than two hours.

Guerrilla Warfare.

It is said that the revolution in Coldmbia has degenerated into guerrilla warfare and the strength of the rebels is not known. One week perhaps 5,000 men are in the field, while the next week there will be but 1,000 as the rebels are in the habit of returning to their homes in order to gather supplies and the following week they are out in full force.

Wholesale Arrests Made.

During the last few days there have been wholesale arrests and seizures in St. Petersburg in connection with the alleged revolutionary movement. It is reported that persons of high positions and reputation are involved. Several hundred persons have been arrested during the last forty-eight hours, including a number of prominent men.

China's Court to Move.

It is reported that famine will make it impossible for the Chinese court to remain longer in Sian Fu and that the court is now only waiting for the astrologers to fix an auspicious day for beginning the journey to Kai-Feng-Fu in the province of Ho-Nan.

Fired on British.

Some German soldiers who were guarding a German bridge across the Pei Ho at the south end of the British concession in Tien Sien, fired on a British tug the Ego, wounding two of her crew. The bridge impedes river traffic and the tug touched it.

Yellow Fever in Havanna.

Yellow fever has appeared in Havana and the order of the secretary of the treasury at Washington suspending the quarantine regulations until the 15th instant has been revoked.

Wait for Land Opening.

Thousands of people are pouring into southwestern Oklahoma and camping in and about the Kiowa, Comanche and Apache and Wichita Indian reservations to be ready for August. Little attention is given to the order to keep out of the reservations, and covered wagons and tents may be seen from almost every hill top.

Temple to R. G. Ingersoll.

The building in Chicago of a $100,000 temple to the memory of Rober G. Ingersoll, in which the teachings of the orator and atheist shall be perpetuated, is the purpose of the Ingersoll Memorial Association, incorporated at Springfield. The projectors are Edward C. Reichwald, secretary of the American Secular Union and Free Thought Federation; Frederick Dahlstrom and Samuel Roberts.

Simple Life of Holland's Queen.

No wealthy American girl could in her home live more simply than Queen Wilhelmina, and her regime is a model which any young women of humbler birth might follow with advantage. In the morning she is up with the lark, and after a light breakfast of chocolate and rolls or coffee and rolls she devotes an hour to study, and another to affairs of state. Then she goes for a drive, unless some state business requires her presence. At noon the regular Dutch breakfast is served, with simple, healthy food, and without the parade and ceremony which many private families affect.

After breakfast the Queen devotes more time to study and state business, and then again takes an hour of exercise, returning for tea. Dinner, which is more ceremonious than the noon repast, usually passes en famille, and the evening which follows, as in many ordinary home circles, is spent in conversation, music and amusements.

Shrewd Ohio Farmers.

William G. Gehrung, a farmer of Dresden, O., has been fined $25 by his neighbors for eavesdropping over the independent party telephone. Some time ago the farmers organized a telephone company. When the telephones were put in, the party principle was employed, and half a dozen 'phones were put on the same line. This arrangement is such that when one telephone bell rings all ring. For weeks the subscribers have been trying to find out who was listening when they talked. Green and Brown were talking over the line one day when they heard another subscriber take down his 'phone. Then they heard the clear tones of a clock striking. Green and Brown knew the clock, from its peculiar tone, and that it belonged to Gehrung.—Philadelphia Record.

Tolstoi Waits on Himself.

Tolstoi digs his own potatoes, cooks his own food, makes his own fires, chops his own wood and even makes his own food, makes his own fires. Intimate friends says that he has seen him take off his boots to give them to a beggar in the street, and the only time when he carries money is when he asks his wife for a few coppers to give to a passing tramp.

"Dont Speak to me."

All manner of extravagant expressions are possible when a woman's nerves are overwrought.

The spasm at the top of the wind pipe or bronchial tubes, "ball rising in the throat," violent beating of the heart, laughing and crying by turns, muscular spasms (throwing the arms about), frightened by the most insignificant occurrences—are all symptoms of a hysterical condition and serious derangement of the female organs.

Any female complaint may produce hysterics, which must be regarded as a symptom only. The cause, however, yields quickly to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which acts at once upon the organ afflicted and the nerve centers, dispelling effectually all those distressing symptoms.

Mrs. Lewis Says: "I Feel Like a New Person, Physically and Mentally."

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wish to speak a good word for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For years I had ovarian troubles and suffered everything from nervousness, severe headache, and pain in back and abdomen. I had consulted different physicians, but decided to try your medicine, and I soon found it was giving me much relief. I continued its use and now am feeling like a new person, physically and mentally, and am glad to add one more testimonial to the value of your remedy."—MRS. M. H. LEWIS, 2108 Valentine Ave., Tremont, New York, N. Y.

Writing to Mrs. Pinkham is the quickest and surest way to get the right advice about all female troubles. Her address is Lynn, Mass. She advises women free. Following is an instance:

Mrs. Haven's First Letter to Mrs. Pinkham.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I would like your advice in regard to my troubles. I suffer every month at time of menstruation, and flow so much and for so long that I become very weak, also get very dizzy. I am troubled with a discharge before and after menses, have pains in ovaries so bad at times that I can hardly get around, have sore feeling in lower part of bowels, pain in back, bearing-down feeling, a desire to pass urine frequently, with pains in passing it; have leucorrhœa, headache, fainting spells, and at times have hysteria. My blood is not in good condition. Hoping to hear from you, I am,"—MRS. EMMA HAVEN, 2508 Sopth Ave., Council Bluffs, Iowa. (June 3, 1899.)

Mrs. Haven's Second Letter.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wish to express my gratitude for what your medicine has done for me. I suffered for four years with womb troubles. Every month I flowed very badly. I got so bad that I could hardly do my work. Was obliged to sit or lie down the most of the time. I doctored for a long time, but obtained no relief. I began using your remedies—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Blood Purifier, Sanative Wash and Liver Pills—and now feel like a new woman."—MRS. EMMA HAVEN, 2508 South Ave., Council Bluffs, Iowa. (Feb. 1, 1900.)

LION COFFEE

A LUXURY WITHIN THE REACH OF ALL!

In our Roasting Establishments we positively do not allow the use of Eggs, Egg Mixtures, Glue, Chemicals, or similar substances. LION COFFEE is an absolutely Pure Coffee.

Watch our next advertisement

Just try a package of LION COFFEE and you will understand the reason of its popularity.

LION COFFEE is now used in millions of homes.

"LAYING DOWN THE LAW."

THE poet writes his simple lay,
The builder lays bricks by the day.
The carpet man lays carpets too,
So all are laymen good and true.
The hen lays eggs for all mankind,
Which daily in their nests we find.
But the funniest sight we ever saw,
Was Paddy "laying down the law."

Pat toasted to a friendly "Cop,"
We often visited his shop,
That he had a lion tamer been—
The fiercest lions ever seen—
And claimed in manner rather fresh,
That he left em lots of flesh.
The officer pointed his way
That he "lays down the law" every day.

"What's that ye say?" then Paddy cried.
"Ye spalpeen, shure Oi think ye lied."
The cop said "You're too fresh I think,"
It's LION COFFEE that I drink—
It's pure, delicious, strong and healthy too,
And helps a man his work to do.
I take a sip or two to meet
The foes of my weary beat!"

The last word just seemed to suggest
A thought to Pat; he did the rest.
His fist flew out, the cop fell down,
While Paddy's face assumed a frown.
"Ye fooled me, did yez!" he exclaimed
As still another blow he aimed.
"I hope yez wil excuse me paw—
"Tis fond of "laying down the law!"

In every package of LION COFFEE you will find a fully illustrated and descriptive list. No housekeeper, in fact, no woman, man, boy or girl will fail to find in the list some article which will contribute to their happiness, comfort and convenience, and which they may have by simply cutting out a certain number of Lion Heads from the wrappers of our one pound sealed packages (which is the only form in which this excellent coffee is sold).

Can't Sleep?

Did you ever have that feeling of oppression, like a weight on your chest, or a load of cobblestones in your stomach, keeping you awake nights with a horrible sensation of anxiety, or tossing restlessly in terrible dreams, that make the cold perspiration break out all over you? That's insomnia, or sleeplessness, and some unfortunates suffer with it night after night, until their reason is in danger and they are on the edge of going mad. The cause of this fearful ailment is in the stomach and bowels, and a Cascaret taken at night will soon bring relief and give the sufferer sweet, refreshing sleep. Always insist on getting CASCARETS!

"I have been using CASCARETS for insomnia, with which I have been afflicted for over twenty years, and I can say that Cascarets have given me more relief than any other remedy I have ever tried. I shall certainly recommend them to my friends as being all they are represented."

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS is the one important magazine in the world giving in its pictures, its text, in its contributed articles, editorials and departments, a comprehensive, timely record of the world's current history. Not the enumeration of mere bare facts, but a comprehensive picture of the month, its activities, its notable personalities, and notable utterances. The best informed men and women in the world find it indispensable.

There are many readers in your locality who have yet to learn of its usefulness. We wish to establish active agents in every city and township in the country. We will pay liberally for energetic effort in the subscription field. Leisure moments can be utilized with substantial increase of income. Make a list of the persons in your locality who should have the "Review of Reviews," and send to us for agent's terms, sample copies, and working outfit. Then solicit their subscriptions. It is a compliment to approach a person with a subscription proposition for the "Review of Reviews," and consequently orders are easily secured. This is the active subscription season. We have had a good rain; feel good don't you?

School will soon be out, then friends will have to part.

Prof. J. M. Collier and wife visited Brierfield Saturday and had to return in the rain Sunday evening.

Mr. J. H. Anderson visited his old home at Providence Sunday and returned by the wet road.

We learn that Mr. J. N. Goss has secured a school at his old home, which speaks well for Mr. Goss, and we feel sure those people have made no mistake in their selection as he is a hustler in school.

Wonder how the boys take eggs now?

Next Saturday will be picnic day and we are anticipating a nice time. Prof. Collier is making preparations for a fine concert 24th inst.

Several of our people are attending court this week.

Owing to the illness of the pastor there was no preaching at the Baptist church Sunday.

TWO OF PROF'S PETS.

Riderville.

A terrible accident occurred close by this place Monday morning about ten o'clock. An engine in charge of Mr. Norman Cunningham, went through a trestle, thirty-four feet high, on the Jackson Lumber Company's road. As it fell it turned over and the unfortunate engineer was crushed beneath it, the negro fireman escaping with his life but seriously injured.

Mr. Cunningham was a young man about 27 years of age, and a great favorite with all who knew him. He leaves a young wife and one child, and the deepest sympathies of all are with them in their bereavement. "God be with them till they meet again."

Confederate Reunion at Memphis.

During the Reunion at Memphis a limited number of Confederate Veterans, properly identified will be lodged and fed free. Where the visiting Veteran cannot afford to pay for his lodging and board it will be provided for him. In no instance will railroad fare be advanced. If a Veteran desires to visit Memphis, he must provide the means of coming here and returning. If, after his arrival, he presents good and sufficient evidence that he is unable to pay for board and lodging, it will be given him free. The committee takes it for granted that there will be no difficulty in a Veteran of good standing securing the necessary certificate of identification. It can be readily had for the asking, and when it is presented here the committee will accept it and will provide the necessary hospitality without further delay. The committee also desires to be assured that the Veteran really cannot pay his own way. The committee simply desires to guard against imposition, and will do all that it can to prevent hardship and delay.

Any Confederate Veteran, in good standing with his camp or in his community, and unable to pay his way, will be furnished with a badge, lodging and meals, without cost to himself.

Board and lodging can be had at from $1.50 to $2.00 per day, and should be procured as early as practicable through our Information Committee, of which J. S. Davant is chairman, who, with his assistant, R. F. Sloan, will promptly answer any letters or inquiries on the subject.

Macedonia.

Farming operations are progressing slowly; some planted cotton too early and had to plant over, and now it is so dry it is not up sufficiently to chop, and that that was not planted over, there is not a good stand. Corn has been worked out, though it is very small. So if it was customary for barbers to shave farmers as c they would make a deal to take the job by the foot. However, all will come right when the rain begins to come.

Some of your readers have been mistaken in thinking that your Randolph correspondent, whose name is himself V, to be your Macedonia correspondent.

Messrs. Pitts & Hubbard have moved their stock of merchandise from Mr. T. J. Hubbard's place to Randolph; they now occupy the old Cox stand.

Mr. Joseph Elam and wife, of Maplesville, visited his sister, Mrs. Anna Nix, at this place recently.

Several of our people are courting this week.

Mr. John Thacker has been on the sick list several weeks, and is no better at this writing we are sorry to say.

Mr. Lewis Waldrup and his son caught forty-two fishes from the Latham creek last Saturday.

There was singing at this place last Sunday morning.

Rev. L. H. Thomas filled his regular appointment here last Saturday. CLINT.

Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic smells like peppermint candy, and is "just as good," but for a different purpose. Try it next time you get hurt or have Colic. Only 50c a bottle at drug stores.

Cedar Grove.

We had a nice shower yesterday, and those of our farmers that we have chanced to meet since were smiling all over their physiognomy.

"Uncle Jimmy" Collins and his son Johnnie, made a business trip to Clanton Saturday.

Rev. W. G. Riggins delivered an able discourse on sanctification at the church Sunday; the service was well attended.

Crops are looking reasonably well considering the dry weather.

Mr. J. G. Hayes and family visited relatives in Scott Hill Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Enoch Hayes were the guests of Mr. J. L. Baker Sunday night. Mr. Hayes was on his way to Montgomery, being a grand juryman in U. S. court, which is in session at that place.

We learn that there is some dispute as to the meaning of "spicy" (arising from the use of the word in a former letter) which we would be glad some one would explain, as ye writer has no dictionary and fears his opinion would not be taken as authority.

OLD PATCH.

New Salem.

Farmers are all smiling this morning; that rain yesterday was enough to bring smiles from anyone.

Mr. H. M. Hill, of Bessemer, was mingling with his many friends and relatives in this vicinity the past week.

One of Patches crew said that matrimony was a safe trust for the protection of the infant industry. I guess she knows.

Its strange that some of the boys wish that Adam had died with all his ribs in him. I guess Jake must have got after him.

Kate thinks of the Salem items like Pat thought of bulldozing. But she wasn't asleep at all. SAL.

Fought For His Life.

"My father and sister both died of Consumption," writes J. T. Weatherwax, of Wyandotte, Mich. "and I was saved from the same frightful fate only by Dr. King's New Discovery. An attack of Pneumonia left an obstinate cough and very severe lung trouble, which an excellent doctor could not help, but a few months' use of this wonderful medicine made me as well as ever and I gained much in weight." Infallible for Coughs, Colds and all Throat and Lung trouble. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1.00 at Clanton drug store. Trial bottles free.

Thorsby.

Fire on Monday evening at the home of Mr. R. L. Barrett near Thorsby destroyed his blacksmith shop, a new wagon and harness and a buggy. His loss is about $175. He had been working in the shop in the afternoon and had left his son to put out the fire.

The foundations are in for the new school building for Prof. Rasco, and the work will be pushed to completion under the superintendence of Mr. E. F. Mead.

It preserves the flesh when lacerated or wounded in any way. Stops the bleeding, stops the pain and heals quicker than anything. That is what Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic does. Try it when you get hurt. Ask your druggist for it.

A NEW INVENTION FOR LADIES.

Messrs E. M. Beatle & Co. will come to Clanton from Tuskaloosa the 10th of May. They will have the Economy Scrubbing Brush to scrub floors, windows, walls, tables, carpets, etc. Through a sucsion it takes up all the water leaving the floor perfectly dry except dampness, making house drudgery easy and quick. Every lady should have one. Mr. Beatle and his sub agents have the highest recommendations from Rev. J. H. Curry, Fosters, Ala., Hon. J. Manly Foster, Tuskaloosa, and Rev. L. O. Dawson, Pastor Tuskaloosa Baptist church. Write them, if you like, before I come.

Very truly, E. M. BEALL.

All Day Singing

There will be an all day singing at Shady Grove the third Sunday in May. Everybody is invited to attend, and especially the singers. Bring along your books and a basket of dinner. N. J. JONES.

Burwell.

Mrs. Lizzie Kendrick returned from Birmingham Tuesday of last week.

J. E. G. said in the Reflector that the Pops would not listen to anything akin to reason. Let us see, says Bro. Williams, what they have done that was reasonable. Well, there was about 12 or 13 of them forced the stock law on the people in Beat five against the wishes of about 400 white men, to say nothing of the innocent women and children that will have to suffer on account of the fraud. Well, that was quite moderate for a Democrat, they belong to the royal family you know.

We had a musical entertainment at Burwell Saturday night and a performance by Happy Tom. It seemed to be enjoyed by all if the kid had had a spy glass he would have been master of the situation.

Silence is the understanding of fools and one of the virtues of a wise man. It takes cents and sense to make money fast. Prosperity is said to be the first step to glory, but generally when a man gets prospering he forgets the Lord.

There is a much needed rain falling to-day in these parts, farmers will be all smiles to morrow.

THE NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Summary of Current Events From All Sections of Alabama.

BRIEFLY TOLD FOR ALL OUR READERS

Believed that Illinois Central Will Build Road into Birmingham—Episcopal Church of Alabama Elects Officers—Other Items.

Dispensary in Florence.

The Florence dispensary will open July 1st. The dispensary committee have selected Dr. James Burtwell dispenser with Lee Waits assistant for Florence and W. R. Hindman assistants for East Florence. The bill provided for two dispensaries, one for the city and the other for East Florence. A committee of two were appointed to select the location of the dispensaries and to purchase stock to open with. A good deal of interest is centered in the success of the dispensary system in that city.

License Revoked.

State Insurance Commissioner McDavid has received information by wire from the New York commissioner of insurance advising him that the Manhattan Fire Insurance Company of New York had failed to make good the recent impairment to its capital, and that a receivership was imminent. Commissioner McDavid thereupon canceled the company's license in Alabama. The policy-holders will likely lose nothing, as the company's business will probably be reinsured.

Exhumed for Autopsy.

The body of W. R. Styers, the detective who was found dead in the hallway over a saloon in Ensley, has been exhumed and a post-mortem examination will be made. Since the death suspicion of foul play has arisen, and Coroner Paris has disinterred the remains and the stomach has been sent to the state chemist at Auburn to be examined. Great secrecy has been maintained about the affair, for while the body was exhumed Tuesday, the fact did not become known until late in the week.

Miller Will Hang.

The Supreme Court has affirmed the case of Frank Miller and Frank Duncan who were convicted of the murder of Policeman Adams in March, 1900, in Birmingham, and set June 28th as the day on which Miller will be hanged. Miller, on the trial in the lower court, was sentenced to be hanged and Duncan was sentenced to life imprisonment. The trial took place in May, 1900, and an appeal was taken to the Supreme Court. It was argued there in January, 1901, since which time a decision has been anxiously expected by the defendants.

New County Court House.

Plans for the new county courthouse for Tallapoosa have been drawn and are now in the possession of Probate Judge Harlan. When completed the building will be one of the handsomest structures in east Alabamaa, and will represent a total expenditure of something over $35,000.

Nothing for Court to Do.

A singular thing happened in Clayton court. The juries were not called upon to try a single case. Every case tried either and no dispute of facts and hence went off on a legal point or they were settled by the parties without the intervention of the court or jury.

More Money for Battleship Silver Service.

M. W. Camper, chairman of the Battleship Alabama Silver Service Commission of the eighth district, has made his appointments in the counties of the district and a number of the committee have accepted. The commission needs $5,000 yet and active work will be begun at once to raise the money. It would be a reflection on the state of Alabama not to be able to raise this fund, and Mr. Camper is especially anxious that the eighth district do its whole duty in this matter.

Commencement Sermons.

Dr. George W. Reed, of Birmingham, has been chosen by President Davis to preach the commencement sermon for the Athens Female College, which will begin on Sunday, May 19th. Dr. Andrews, of Gadsden, will preach the baccalaureate sermon, and Colonel Mosley, of Opelika, will deliver the graduating address to the senior class. The commencement exercises promise to be among the most interesting that have been held in the seventy years' history of the college.

Hall for Convention.

The question of securing the Auditorium for the constitutional convention in the event its sessions are to be held in Birmingham, will be taken up by the Board of Trade at the next meeting, which takes place on Wednesday night. President O'Neill of the Board of Trade is out of the city, but Secretary McCullough addressed a letter to President VanHoose of the Auditorium Company, asking on what terms the Auditorium could be secured for that purpose. The Commercial Club will likely take the matter up, but as President Kettig is out of the city, no official action has been taken.

Survey for New Road.

A railroad surveying corps under Engineer Wilson came running a line from the west into and through Bessemer and on and up towards Birmingham, but they would vouchsafe no information as to the interest they represented, nor to the object of their work. It is blieved that the Illinois Central intends to enter this district by a line connecting with their line at West Point, Miss. It will cut through a vast virgin coal field extending through the Northern part of Tuscaloosa county direct to the west border of Bessemer.

Dug Up Cannon Ball.

The force of hands that is grading the track for the electric street railway in the western portion of Selma, struck a pile of ordnance stores about two feet under the ground. There were seventeen cannon balls and cartridges struck by the picks of the men and then removed and laid aside. From all appearances the balls and shells had evidently been buried to keep from being taken when the "Yankees" paid their "visit" to Selma on that April day some thirty-six years ago.

New Officers.

The Diocesan Council of the Episcopal church of Alabama, at its meeting elected the following officers: Mr. R. H. Cochrane, of Tuscaloosa, Treasurer of the Diocese; Dr. B. J. Baldwin, of Montgomery, Registrer; Mr. R. P. Wetmore, Birmingham, Chancellor. Trustees of the Bishop's fund, J. H. Fitts, Tuskaloosa, Treasurer; Thoams GoJnes, Montgomery; R. H. Stickney, Greensboro.

To Avoid Trouble.

Presidnet Edward Flynn, of the United Mine Workers of America, has gone to Coalburg to investigate a minor local troulbe. It is given out that there are two miners at that place who are working in a mine with a large number of members of the order while they do not themselves belong to the union. An effort will be made by President Flynn to get these two men to become members of the United Mine Workers and avoid trouble.

Crushed to Death.

James Pruet met a tragic death at Avondale by being crushed to death by a falling building. The Reynolds Lumber Company had under course of erection a building that, when completed, would have been used as a dry kiln, and Mr. Pruet was employed to assist in its construction. While busily engaged about his labors one of the side walls of the building collapsed, and in its fall crushed out the life of Mr. Pruet, who was caught by it. Deceased was 65 years of age.

Tree Fell on Him.

Frank Lucas, a white man, was killed about ten miles below Centerville by a tree falling on him. He was cutting stock for the Jackson Lumber Company, a large saw mill company when a tree fell upon him killing him instantly.

An Awful Death.

William Edwards, aged 21 years, while going from his house to the field to work near Beaver Run, Etowah county, was bitten by a snake and died in awful agony. The snake, a cotton mouth, fastened its fangs in the thigh biting trough his trousers and into the flesh to a depth of over an inch. Edwards ran back to his home, a distance of a half mile and reaching the gate fell exhausted, his tongue swollen and hanging out of his mouth, eyes bulging out and flesh turning black. He suffered horribly until death came. Edwards leaves a wife and one child.

Big Land Deal.

The Alabama State Land Company has sold to Edgar L. Alder 4,840 acres of mineral land and the mineral rights to 800 acres of land lying in range 17, township 4 and 5, the consideration being $121,000. The land lies west of Bessemer, in Jefferson couty, and forms a very valuable tract. It is understood that important developments are to be made upon it by the purchaser.

WARM WRANGLE OVER PRECEDENCE

Ohio Junketers Are Angry Over Alleged Slight.

MRS. M'KINLEY ILL IN 'FRISCO

The President's Itinerary Will Be Changed In Some Respects as a Consequence.

The sudden illness of Mrs. McKinley has caused an unexpected change in the itinerary of President McKinley. He arrived in San Francisco Sunday afternoon several hours ahead of the time scheduled. The state of Mrs. McKinley's health was such that the president decided to leave Delmonte with his wife for the home of Henry T. Scott, in San Francisco, where she could have complete rest and where a specialist could be consulted, if necessary.

Ohio Party Discomfitted.

The Ohio party en route to San Francisco to see the launching of the battleship Ohio, enjoyed a sojourn at Del Monte, Cal., Saturday. The Ohio party and Governor Nash's party clashed over a question of precedence and harmony is wanting. The people of California have been very cordial but naturally President McKinley has received the most attention, and Governor Nash and party, who are traveling on a separate train, have been a little in the background. At Los Angeles it was all McKinley, and the Ohio senatorial party felt slighted.

The chagrin of the party experienced over its alleged mistreatment at Los Angeles became more intense as the time passed and broke out into open revolt at conferences in the Hotel Delmonte. The special cars bearing the Ohio congressmen were attached to the Ohio special at Los Angeles. This seemed to add to the ill feeling of the governor's party, who complained that they had been an annexed section to the president's party, and now were given third place.

The congressmen seemed equally dissatisfied with the new arrangement, and finally it was decided that the congressmen should travel as they had done before reaching Los Angeles. The cars of the congressmen were accordingly taken off the Ohio special at Delmonte, and they left for San Francisco at noon Saturday, while Governor Nash and party left at 2 p. m. for San Francisco. Then Colonel J. B. Ellison and Willis G. Bowland, who have charge of all arrangements for Governor Nash and the Ohio special, met a committee from San Jose and notified Chairman Minor that they would not visit San Jose as an annex of any other party.

It was then decided that the special would go from San Francisco to San Jose Sunday night. It was also specified that the Ohio special would leave San Jose before the presidential train arrived.

ASK FOR DOLE'S REMOVAL.

Hawaiian Legislators and Governor Fail to Co-Labor Harmoniously.

Advices from Honolulu state that the first territorial legislature of Hawaii came to an end on the evening of April 30th, according to Governor Dole, and on the next night, according to the majority of both houses. The legislature ended its existence at loggerheads with the governor and without having passed a single important measure to which the home rulers were committed except the county government act, which the governor killed by a pocket veto.

The last act of the house on the evening of the 30th was to pass a concurrent resolution containing a memorial to President McKinley asking for the removal of Governor Dole.

He is charged with having hindered the work of the session by his hostility toward the legislature, withholding information and reports that were called for, and refusing to co-operate with the law-makers. President McKinley is asked in the resolution to use his influence in behalf of an extra session of the legislature to transact general legislation which General Dole refuses to grant.

FANCY PIGS BOUGHT.

Biltmore Farm Being Stocked With English Prize Porkers.

The Biltmore, N. C., pig farm was augmented Friday by the arrival of thirty-two Berkshire pigs valued at $8,000. They were purchased by R. Gentry in England of the leading breeders, and represent all the leading prize winners. No hog was bought whose pedigree is not full of prize winning. Some sows weigh 900 pounds.

Profitable Farming in Alaska.

Gov. Brady of Alaska and other persons familiar with the general features and natural resources of that northern most possession of the United States have frequently asserted that its soil and climate are far more amenable to the processes of a high civilization than is generally supposed, and have predicted that the time would come when Alaska would be the home of a large and prosperous agricultural population. Official confirmation of these views is furnished in a report just made by a special agent of the United States agricultural department, who has had charge of an agricultural experiment station in Alaska. He thinks that the territory will ultimately be as promising a field for agriculture and stock raising as it now is for mining. The results of experiments extending for two years have established beyond a doubt, he says, that such staple products as flax, wheat, oats, rye and barley can be grown with success and profit in almost every part of Alaska. Thus one after another of the old arguments against the purchase of "Seward's folly" are made to give way in the light of the facts.—Leslie's Weekly.

Sunday Habits.

The average man does himself so much harm on Sunday that he does not recover until the following Wednesday. In the first place, he loafs around the house, instead of being active, as on weekdays. In the next place, he eats his breakfast later than usual, and his dinner earlier, and the result is that he is knocked out until Wednesday. The best thing to do on Sunday is to conform to your usual habits as much as possible.—Atchison Globe.

PERIODS OF PAIN

How Three Women Found Re

While no woman is entirely free from periodical suffering, it does not seem to have been the plan of nature that woman should suffer so extensively. E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the most thorough female regulator known to medical science. It relieves the condition which produces much discomfort and robs menstruation of its terrors.

The three letters here published should encourage every woman who reads them.

Aug. 6, 1898.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham: — I have suffered since the age of sixteen with painful menstruation. I have been treated for months, and was told that the womb had fallen a little. The doctor says that is now in place again, but I still have the same pain. Please tell me what to do."—Mrs. Emma Kuehl, 112 Trautman St., Brooklyn, E. D., N.Y.

Jan. 19, 1899.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham: — After receiving your reply to my letter of Aug. 6 I followed your kind advice, and am glad to tell you that I have been cured of the severe pain at time of menstruation through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have taken six bottles of it, felt better after the first bottle, and after a while had no more pain or womb trouble.

"I had doctored from the age of sixteen to twenty-six, and had lost all hope, but your medicine has made me well.

"I would like to have you use my testimonial, so that others may see, and be inspired with hope, and take your medicine."—Mrs. Emma Kuehl, 112 Trautman St., Brooklyn, E. D., N.Y.

Feb. 20, 1900.

"I saw your medicine so highly recommended I thought I would write to you for advice.

"My menstruation occurs every two weeks, lasts a week, and is painful. I have been troubled in this way for some time. I suffer also with sick-headache and backache all the time, appe-

"Since receiving your answer to my letter I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has done me more good than any medicine I have ever taken. My menses are right now, and appear once a month, and I feel so much stronger and better. I always praise your medicine." — Maggie Pollard, 410 So. 5th St., Richmond, Va.

"I was troubled with female weakness, irregular and painful menstruation, and leucorrhoea. The doctor's medicine did me no good. I have taken one bottle and a half of your Vegetable Compound, and thanks to your medicine, my pains are gone. I advise all women suffering as I have to try your Vegetable Compound."—J. Pribble, Indianola, Ill.

If there is anything about your case about which you would like advice, write freely to Mrs. Pinkham. No man will see your letter. It surely help you, for no person in America has such a wide experience in treating female ills as she has had. She has helped hundreds of those women back to health. Her address is Lynn, Mass., and her advice is free. You are very foolish if you do not accept her kind invitation.

$5000 REWARD.—We have deposited with the National City Bank of Lynn, which will be paid to any person who can find that the above testimonials are not genuine, or were published before obtaining the writer's permission. LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO.

LETTERS FROM BABYLON.

Much Museum Contains Kingly Epistles of 4,000 Years Ago.

Two series of curious Babylonian tablets have recently been placed in the Assyrian room of the British museum. The characters inscribed about B. C. 2000 the first series give lists, measurements and statistics of a number of estates. They have been drawn up with a care that indicates they formed part of a large survey of country's cultivable land and habitations. The data upon which the system of taxation employed in the Babylonian empire was based are strange to the Babylonians who had no deep theories of arithmetic and could so readily have made the complicated calculations which they dated the years by. Each year was named after the important event that happened during it. But as in time these became numerous it was found convenient to use a new method in which the years were named after the oldest of the letters known to have been used in that year. In a style resembling the letters and being prevented by powdering the clay, in a style like the letters of kings to their governors, one decrees that be inserted while another recites that of bribed officials. The museum said the tablets date from London Origin of St. Valentine's Day.

The origin of St. Valentine's day is obscure. One tradition says he was a priest who was martyred in the third century. Another says that it was a custom at Rome, during the great festival of February, to celebrate the feast of Pan and Juno. At these festivals many ceremonies, in which young women were put in a lottery from which they were chosen by men. The pastors of the early church, striving to eradicate pagan superstitions, often substituted the name of some Christian saint for that of a heathen deity. In this case it is probable that those of St. Valentine, which occurred at nearly the same time, kept alive, though the name of the day became Christian, relics of the pagan ceremonies still cling to it.

The Atom Still an Abstraction.

A writer in McClure's Magazine says that the atom of today is still a scientific abstraction. Many facts have been brought to light that make it apparent certain that matter is not continuous, is not capable of infinite subdivision. Dalton, the Quaker schoolmaster of Manchester, was the first one to bring the atom down to earth and make it a useful idea. The atomic theory proposed by Dalton in the early years of the century, lives today, and stronger than it has ever been, notwithstanding the efforts that have been made to show that it is built upon sand. It has been and is today an immensely useful theory. Whether it will always continue to be so is another question and one that need not be discussed.

A Highland Scotch Tradition.

There is an old tradition in the Highlands of Scotland to the effect that the house of Balmoral dies when the snow on a particular spot of Lochnagar which is rarely covered even in the severest winters. In fact, according to the local report, the snow did melt this winter for the first time during the reign of her late majesty. It is not generally known, either that the custom of stopping the clocks in the room where a "laird" dies and keeping them so until after the funeral was practiced at Balmoral when the clock in the tower stopped at the hour of Queen Victoria's death, just as the flag was at once lowered to half mast.

Moss for Purifying Syrup.

Besides the thousands of pounds of sphagnum moss sent annually from Florida and other Southern states to northern upholsterers the plant has many other uses. One of these, a use that has recently been discovered, is that of a strainer and purifier of syrup. It has been found that a better syrup can be made by straining sugar cane juice through moss than through any other material.

If a card were a secret, by the time it reached a man had passed it along it would be an alligator.

THE TRIAL OF BARROWS

In Connection With the Commissary Scandal.

EFFICIENCY OF NATIVE POLICE IN THE Philippines is Noted—Office Seeker in Philippines Develops Into a Numerous Quantity—A Small "Scrap"—Other News Items.

Barrows' Trial.

The trial of Captain Frederick J. Barrows, Qartermaster of the Department of Southern Luzon, on charges connected with the commissary scandals is finished. The verdict has not yet been announced. The Department of Southern Luzon is sending various expeditions in pursuit of the remaining Filipino bands. It is expected the islands of Mindero will be occupied in the near future. Many fugitive Tagals and a quantity of arms are reported to be concealed in Mindero.

Appropriates $150,000.

An extensive resume of the organization and varying condition of the Philippine native police force is contained in a statement made public by the Division of Insular Affairs of the War Department. The report recites, because of poverty of the municipalities, the Philippine Commission appropriates the sum of $150,000 to provide increased pay for the body and offers, through General MacArthur, further incentive in the way of increased compensation for meritorious and faithful service. Late reports received at the War Department indicate that an efficient and loyal force of native police have now been organized.

Fearful Fire.

Fanned by a 35-mile-an-hour wind, fire swept the west bank of the Roughe river in Deiray, a suburb to the south of Detroit, Mich., for three-quarters of a mile and destroyed $800,000 worth of property. The fire originated in the roof of the Salliotte and Furgeson lumber mill. The building was soon in ashes and the fire swept across a dock to where a dredge of the Carkin Stickney and Cram fleet was tied up. This craft was burned to the water's edge. Great embers were picked up by the wind and dropped on the roof of Brownlee & Company's mill and salt block, and both these buildings were destroyed.

Mrs. McKinley Ill.

The sudden illness of Mrs. McKinley has caused an unexpected change in the itinery of President McKinley. He arrived in San Francisco several hours ahead of the time scheduled. The state of Mrs. McKinley's health was such that the President decided to leave Delmonte and bring his wife to that city immediately to the home of Henry T. Scott, where she could have complete rest for a few days and where a specialist could be consulted if necessary.

Clothing Needed.

The greatest want in Jacksonville, Fla., is clothing. Many people are wearing today the same underwear which they had on the day of the fire and have not the money to buy new clothes with. Another problem which will be quickly settled is that of the lazy negroes who, since the commissaries were established, have quit work, so many having done so, that the Clyde steamers and the yards of the naval stores and commission companies have been unable to get enough men to do their work.

Robberies Unearthed.

Chattanooga has unearthed a systematic robbery of the government ware houses where are stored uniforms and equipment for the army recruits from East Tennessee and north Georgia. A Bohemian character, named Parnell, who has been stationed at the recruiting station for several months, was arrested, charged with being the active agent in smuggling these goods out and selling them to second hand stores. Captain Vogdes, in charge of the station, has reported the thefts to the war department. It is intimated that some of those connected with the station were accomplices.

International Affair.

Jerome Fedoli, Italian consul in Kansas Cty, is quoted as saying that the labor trouble in Iola, Kan., which resulted in several Italians being driven from that town after being assaulted by American workmen, will be made an international affair. "The expulsion of the Italians from the Iola Cement Works is a very serious matter," said Consul Fedoli, "and will assuredly become an international incident."

DEED OF HEROISM.

Negro Died That His Married Friend Might Live.

William Phelps, of Richmond, Ky., and James Stansbury, of Indianapolis, both negroes, were cleaning the inside of an eight-foot upright boiler at the Cerealine mills when an employe turned on the steam, thinking the cock was tight. It leaked and the scalding steam poured in on the two men. The only exit was up a ladder to a manhole in the top. Both jumped for the ladder. Phelps reached it first, took one step and stopped. He jumped aside and shouted "You go first, Jim; you are married." Stansbury sprang up the ladder and escaped with slight burns about his face and legs. Though Phelps followed at his heels, his act of heroism cost him his life. Both men were being "cooked" when Phelps jumped aside. By the time he had followed Stansbury up the ladder the flesh was dropping from his bones. He was cooked alive and with supreme effort dragged his scalded body from the manhole. He lived two hours in terrible agony, but did not let a groan escape him.

A BIG STRIKE

Involving 500,000 Men is Expected to Occur May 20.

A general strike involving directly 150,000 machinist and indirectly 500,000 men in metal working trades is expected to take place on May 20th unless some arrangment is effected in the meantime. This is the statement made by President James O'Connell of the International Association of Machinists, who has his headquarters in Washington. The demands of the men, the refusal of which threatens to precipitate the strike, O'Connell said, are for a working day of nine hours and an increase of 12 1-2 per cent in wages, or in other words for the ten hours' pay for nine hours' work. The matter, he said, has been under consideration for some time, and every effort has been made by the Machinists' Association to avoid resorting to a strike, but such action, he says, is now necessary if the working men hope to attain the end they are striving for.

Breckenridge Will Inspect.

Secretary Root has approved a plan by which Brigadier General Breckenridge, inspector general of the United States army, will proceed to the Philippines for an extended tour of inspection. The start will be made about June 20th on the transport Ingalls, leaving New York and proceeding via the Suez canal. There are a large number of military posts scattered through the Philippines, and a thorough knowledge of their condition and needs, not only for the present but with reference to the transition stage from military to civil rule, is sought and which is now being rapidly brought about.

Boiler Does Great Havoc.

The boiler of a freight engine on the Huntington and Broad Top Railroad at Mount Dallas, Pa., the southern terminus of the Broad Top railroad, exploded, instantly killing four members of the local freight crew. The bodies of Conductor Hollingshead and Engineer Berkstresser were blown four hundred yards across the river. The cause of the explosion is not known.

Insurgent Officer Gives Up.

Colonel Astilla, the insurgent governor of Infanta Province, has surrendered with ten officers, 180 men, 170 rifles and ten cannons. The United States Philippine Commission has decided to establish an insular government printing plant.

Priest Missing and Cash, Too.

The police and principal citizens of Guadalajara, Mexico, are looking for the Rev. Father Amado, a well known priest of that city, and treasurer of various local religious fraternities and guilds. It is charged that the clergyman has decamped, taking, it is estimated, nearly $100,000 belonging to religious societies and also carrying off the young daughter of one of the leading families. When Father Amado left the city he placed a letter explaining things within the safe, the letter being addressed to Dr. Arias, dean of the Cathedral.

Riot at Barcelona.

An enormous crowd of people participated in rioting at Barcelona, Spain. The rioters endeavored to stop work in the factories, which resulted in collisions with the troops. A number of soldiers are among the wounded. Over a hundred arrests of anarchists, socialists and extreme Catalinists have been made. Twenty-one notorious anarchists have been held on board the warship Pelayo.

The arrows indicate the direction which the contents of the bowels must take in passing through the alimentary canal.

are packed away in your insides and must be kept clean, in order and doing business.

It's a long way, with many turns and pitfalls to catch the refuse and clog the channel if not most carefully cleaned out every day.

When this long canal is blockaded, look out for trouble—furred tongue, bad breath, belching of gases, yellow spots, pimples and boils, headaches, spitting up of food after eating—an all-around disgusting nuisance.

Violent calomel purges or griping salts are dangerous to use for cleaning out the bowels. They force out the obstruction by causing violent spasms of the bowels, but they leave the intestines weak and even less able to keep up regular movements than before, and make a larger dose necessary next time.

Then you have the pill habit, which kills more people than the morphine and whiskey habits combined.

The only safe, gentle but certain bowel cleansers are sweet, fragrant CASCARETS, because they don't force out the foecal matter with violence, but act as a tonic on the whole 30 feet of bowel wall, strengthen the muscles and restore healthy, natural action. Buy and try them! (Look out for imitations and substitutes or you can't get results. Cascarets are never sold in bulk. Look for the trade-mark, the long-tailed "C" on the box.) JUDGE Denson, in his address to the Grand Jury, paid Chilton a high compliment when he said: "Chilton county is a very good county. Its citizens are law-abiding. It is above the average with reference to violations of law." Thank you, Judge, Chilton county highly values your good opinion and appreciates your kind words.

CHILTON county is a good county. It is above the average morally—as witness the small amount of crime. It is above the average financially—does not owe a cent and has plenty of money in the treasury to meet all obligations. It is above the average in point of taxation, having the lowest rate of taxation of any county in the State. It is above the average religiously—as the large number of places of worship and the full congregations attest. Chilton county is a good county.

HAVING failed signally in arousing the slightest interest in the people of Chilton county, the Reflector is vainly endeavoring to put a little life into its columns by mud-slinging at THE BANNER and the county officers. So far as the remarks anent THE BANNER are concerned we treat them with silent contempt—they are beneath our notice. None but a "one-horse" editor would publish such fool statements. The county officers are quite capable of taking care of themselves and need no defense by us. But the Reflector grossly insults the people of Chilton by referring to them as ignorant, and also the Inspectors of Election at the Stanton box by insinuating there was anything wrong about the election at that box. It was the only box in the county that gave a majority for the Constitutional Convention. Is that what the Reflector complains of? It is a downright insult to Rev. W. J. Ruddick, one of the Inspectors at the Stanton box, to say he is not a straightout true-blue Democrat. If there is a more honest, straightforward, conscientious Democrat in Chilton county we would like to see him. The Reflector is either wofully ignorant or wilfully malicious or both. Its ignorance would be considerably ameliorated by consulting a file of THE BANNER; its malevolent inclinations might be curbed by the reflection that, no matter what it says, its remarks, to use its own euphonious phrase, do not amount to "as much as a notch on a stick."

CIRCUIT COURT.

The spring term of the Circuit Court convened at Clanton on Monday. Shortly after ten o'clock Judge N. D. Denson and Solicitor S. L. Brewer entered the court room. The Grand Jury was empanelled and Mr. E. W. Bailey chosen foreman, and the Judge proceeded to make one of his most felicitous addresses.

Judge Denson said it was the duty of the Grand Jury to see how the people and the officials of the county have been conducting themselves since the last Grand Jury met. To inquire into matters concerning the interests of the county. You are representatives of the law. It is no light thing to perform the duties of a grand juror. See that the law is enforced. Look into the moral status, the financial condition and the general condition of the county. See that peace and good order has prevailed and shall prevail in Chilton county. The law enforced is the terror of the evil door. Chilton county has reached a high standard and the enforcement of the law is necessary to keep that standard up. The people of Chilton county are expecting you will do the very best you can to that end. Chilton county is a very good county. Its citizens are law-abiding. It is above the average with reference to violations of law. Lift the standard higher.

He referred to the laws concerning gambling, prohibition, carrying concealed weapons, public roads and buildings, the care of convicts and the poor, etc.

Mr. R. J. Williams of Lily was chosen as bailiff for the Grand Jury.

Three petit juries were empanelled.

REPORT OF THE GRAND JURY.

To the Hon. N. D. Denson, Judge of the Fifth Judicial Circuit:

We, the Grand Jury empanelled by your Honor for the Spring Term 1901, of the Circuit Court of Chilton county, Alabama, beg leave to make this our final report.

We have investigated the violations of law in our county, as best we could, and have turned into Court 21 indictments.

We have examined the county jail and find it neatly kept, but would recommend that the Sheriff use more diligence toward the prevention of escapes. We recommend that the jail yard fence be repaired and the gate to the same be kept locked.

We have examined the records and offices of the various officers and find them neatly kept and properly kept, so far as we could know in the limited time we had for such work.

In the hands of the County Treasurer we find, in cash, the sum of $2,415.61 to the credit of the General Fund, and the sum of $465.28 to the credit of the Fine and Forfeiture Fund, as shown in his report which is attached to this report and marked "Exhibit A."

We have sent a committee to the Poor House, which is very inconveniently situated, being about 12 miles from the court house; they report the same apparently well kept.

The public roads have been reported to us as being in as good condition as roads are usually kept in this county. We urge the road officers to put the roads in better condition. We thank your Honor for the able and explicit charge as to our duties, Solicitor Brewer for advice and able and impartial discharge of duty, and the bailiff for his prompt and courteous discharge of duty, and now respectfully ask to be discharged.

E. W. BAILEY, Foreman.

The Grand Jury adjourned at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

The following cases were disposed of:

Peter B. Melton vs. Jackson Lumber Co., continued. (In Supreme Court.)

The Concordia Land and Improvement Association, a Corporation under the Laws of Alabama, having its principle place of business at Thorsby, Alabama, Plaintiff, vs. S. P. Ness, Defendant, who resides at Kenyon Post Office in the State of Minnesota.

To S. P. Ness, the Defendant in the above stated cause, who resides at Kenyon Post Office, in the State of Minnesota.

You will take notice that the Concordia Land & Improvement Association, a corporation under the Laws of Alabama, having its principle place of business at Thorsby, Alabama, the Plaintiff in the above stated cause, sued out an attachment in said cause against you, the said S. P. Ness, the Defendant, on the 7th day of May 1901, to enforce the collection of a debt due it by you by a promissory note containing a waiver of exemptions as to personal property in the sum of $[illegible] with interest thereon at 8 per cent per annum since the 1st day of January, 1900, together with $25.00 as an Attorney's fee for collecting said note, that said attachment was sued out without bond; and that said attachment was levied upon the north half of northwest fourth of southwest fourth of southwest fourth in section five, township two ty-two, range fourteen, in Chilton County, Alabama, except rights of way 20 feet wide on the west and north sides of said tract of land as the property of the said S. P. Ness, the Defendant, by the sheriff of said Chilton County on the 7th day of May, 1901. Let this notice be published in The Banner, a weekly newspaper published in said Chilton County, for three successive weeks next following, and let a copy of each issue containing same be sent by mail to the said S. P. Ness, the Defendant.

Witness my hand, this the 7th day of May, 1901. E. B. DEASON,
Clerk of the Circuit Court of

"Something New Under The Sun."

All Doctors have tried to cure CATARRH by the use of powders, acid gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of CATARRH, has at last perfected a Treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures CATARRH, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES" the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.

We know you are interested in the problem of getting the most for the money you spend no matter what the outlay is for. We presume to advise you along all lines, but when it comes to a Sewing Machine for yourself and family I am in a position to give some valuable suggestions. For over fifty years the Company have done nothing but study the needs and requirements of the people in the matter of Sewing Machines, and our large business is due to the fact that we are making and furnishing what they want. The styles are the very latest, unsurpassed in lasting qualities and, best of all, our prices are reasonable, and the terms within the reach of all. We are placing our machines in the leading families all over the land. If you want the best looking, the lightest running and the most up-to-date attachments ever bought, call for the High Arm Singer. You will find a complete stock of these machines at the Singer Office.

Machines from $5.00 to $65.00 for cash or on time. We also keep Bands, Cams, Shuttles and Attachments, and the best and only genuine Machine Oil manufactured, every bottle bearing the trade mark. 10, 15 and 20 cent bottles.

My regular office days are Saturdays and Mondays. For other part call on or address

In the Circuit Court of Chilton County, Alabama.

The Concordia Land and Improvement Association, a Corporation under the Laws of Alabama, having its principle place of business at Thorsby, Alabama, Plaintiff, vs. H. J. Osterlund, Defendant, who resides at Red Wing Post Office, in the State of Minnesota.

To H. J. Osterlund, the Defendant in the above stated cause, who resides at Red Wing Post Office in the State of Minnesota.

You will take notice that The Concordia Land & Improvement Association, a Corporation under the Laws of Alabama, having its principle place of business at Thorsby, Alabama, the Plaintiff in the above stated cause, sued out an attachment in said cause against you, the said H. J. Osterlund, the Defendant, on the 7th day of May, 1901, to enforce the collection of a debt due it by you by a promissory note containing a waiver of exemptions as to personal property in the sum of $65.00 with interest thereon at 8 per cent per annum since the first day of April, 1899, together with $15.00 as an Attorney's fee for collecting said note; that said attachment was sued out without bond; and that said attachment was levied upon the southeast fourth of the southeast fourth of southwest fourth, except rights of way 20 feet wide on the east and south sides of said tract of land in section one, township twenty-two, range thirteen, in Chilton County, Alabama, as the property of the said H. J. Osterlund, the Defendant, by the sheriff of said Chilton County, on the 7th day of May, 1901. Let this notice be published in The Banner, a weekly newspaper published in said Chilton County, for three successive weeks next following, and let a copy of each issue containing same be sent by mail to the said H. J. Osterlund, the Defendant.

Witness my hand, this the 7th day of May, 1901.

E. B. DEASON,
Clerk of the Circuit Court of Chilton County, Alabama.

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

An Ingenious Treatment by which Drunkards are Being Cured Daily in Spite of Themselves.

No Noxious Doses. No Weakening of the Nerves. A Pleasant and Positive Cure for the Liquor Habit.

It is now generally known and understood that drunkenness is a disease and not weakness. A body filled with poison, and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors, requires an antidote capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most opatinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the marvelous transformation of thousands of Drunkards into sober, industrious and upright men.

WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! this remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of Drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and as many more have been cured and made temperate men by having the "CURE" administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in coffee or tea, and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. DO NOT WAIT. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading "improvement." Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "HOME GOLD CURE" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of every body a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept. C 935, EDWIN B. GILES & COMPANY, 2330 and 2332 Market Street, Philadelphia.

CLANTON, - - - ALABAMA.

Evidence that money or goods were obtained from a man by charging him with a crime and threatening to expose him is held by the Supreme Court of Nebraska to be sufficient to establish the crime of robbery.

Famine and the Malthusian theory are for the moment hand in hand in India. The 294,000,000 people just counted there represent practically no increase since the census of a decade ago. And it is starvation which has thus fought a teeming population to a standstill.

An Iowa paper tells of a farmer in the state who is satisfied with a 50-acre farm. He finds that to keep it in the best possible condition gives him all the work he wants to do, and besides making a living for himself and wife he sells from $800 to $1000 worth of produce a year. The old adage, "A little farm well tilled," etc., is as true as ever.

Bicycling as a fad has disappeared. The monkey-back scorchers are a thing of the past. The century run has retired into history. The riders of today are those who believe in rational exercise, and those who use the bicycle as a measure of economy in the direction of saving car fare. The bicycle craze has ended, but there will continue to be riders just the same. It has been a case of a survival of the fittest, and those who ride the wheel today know enough not to misuse it. It has been the abuse and misuse of the bicycle that has driven many of its former devotees back to walking.

The first industrial and manual training school in the Philippines has just been established in the city of Dumanguette, on the island of Negros. The school building, which is of two stories (the first of stone and the second of wood, though not of bamboo) was erected through the generosity of H. B. Stillman of New York City, who gave $10,000. The young Filipinos are to be taught carpentering, iron work, etc., and 100 acres of land have been bought on which to teach them agriculture. Dumanguette was selected for the site of the institution because of the friendly attitude of the natives.

You can never know a man's working qualities till he demonstrates them. In making the demonstration he is almost certain to build an institution around him which he cannot abandon. The rule is that men of first-class ability do sooner or later construct something of an institutional character, whether it be commercial or artistic or educational, and thus find or make their own careers. Great opportunities are oftener made than found. They are the products rather of strong personalities than of exterior conditions. A great merchant once said: "I want no man in a responsible place who cannot create more business than he can attend to."

Under the title, "An Act to Prevent Cruelty to Animals," the Legislature of the State of Washington had adopted a measure which the sporting fraternity regards with grave concern. Under this act it is unlawful for any person to be present at a dog fight or cocking main, or to train dogs and cocks to fight, or to rent premises for such exhibitions. It is a criminal offense to cut off a horse's tail, to overdrive an animal or use check reins, or harness that galls. Agents of the humane societies are given the right to use force and make arrests without warrants. Fines are donated to the societies prosecuting. A fine of not more than $150 or imprisonment in the county jail not to exceed sixty days or both fine and imprisonment may be inflicted.

A clergyman working in a large town is almost certain to discover that he is in a way looked upon as common property. What he knows distinctively as his parish bears but a small proportion to the field which, reasonably or unreasonably, he will be expected to occupy. He is presumed to have a heart for everybody's woes, to be a solvent for everybody's problems, to be a treasury for everybody's necessities, and a general bureau of information, writes the Rev. Dr. C. H. Parkhurst, in the Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post. He is also supposed to be able to speak with equal facundity and effect on any occasion that may offer and upon any theme that the occasion may suggest, and to be so charged with versatile stores of fancy epigram and nonsense as to require for the emergency only the easy turning of the spigot.

COPIES OF PAPER ARE SEIZED

England's King is Characterized as Bald-headed Roue, Genteel Perjurer, Etc.

Advices from Dublin state that the police of Cork, Limerick and other towns of Ireland seized all the copies of William O'Brien's weekly paper, "The Irish People," found at the news dealers Friday. The offending article, it now appears, was an abusive attack on King Edward. It was as follows:

"Down upon his knees before an old and baldheaded roue, lover of every woman of fair features who has appeared in English society for forty years, including titled dames and as yet untitled actresses—the English gentleman perjurer of a historic divorce case, the polluted hero of one of the malodorous scenes in Zola's rotten novel, 'Nana,' the center of a score of the most disgraceful scandals of the most contemptible type, down in front of this English king, whose latest public performance was to stigmatize on his solemn oath the whole Catholic world as superstitious idolators, knelt the English-born cardinal prince of the church with a document that might have been presented to a Legree in a southern plantation fifty years ago, but not by an Uncle Tom, poor but contented, of Harriet Beecher Stowe's great story, would have seen his black skin stripped off inch by inch rather than put his mark to a document like that signed and presented by Cardinal Vaughan and the duke of Norfolk on his solemn oath.

"We do not believe he attached the slightest solemnity to the performance. But the fact remains—this old and worn out descendant of a race of scoundrels and practical professors of hideous immorality asseverated that the most of the sacred doctrines of the Catholic faith were idolatrous and superstitious. He has not yet recanted. He has not said a word to indicate he did not thoroughly approve of the terms of the oath framed in the days of Titus. The oath of a perjurer is no less vile than that of the reigning king; but, on bended knees, the prince of the church knelt before this unutterably abominable person. Let us console ourselves with the fact that the presentees were English Catholics, who are repudiated by the only really Catholic nation now in existence. The loyalists represented England only, and if the English Catholics choose to acknowledge themselves superstitious idolators, it is no fault of ours."

The police of London are suppressing copies of the paper forwarded before the office in Dublin was seized.

Dillon Denounces Seizure.

A London special says: At the conclusion of the questions in the house of commons John Dillon (nationalist), moved the adjournment of the house in order to call attention to the seizure of The Irish People.

Mr. Dillon complained that the action of the authorities was grossly illegal. He said he was not concerned to defend the violence of the attack, but any seizure should have been done through the courts. Far more violent attacks on Queen Victoria had been made in the English papers without being seized. The present action was a blow at the liberty of the press.

The motion for an adjournment was defeated by a vote of 252 to 64.

The morning papers of London are unanimous in denouncing the scandalous attack of The Irish People upon the king; but serious doubts are raised as to the wisdom of Mr. Wyndham's action in seizing the paper—first, because the seizure was illegal, it being a case for prosecution; second, because to the delight of the Irish members it has given world-wide publicity to Mr. O'Brien's hitherto little known paper and will be, the nationalists claim, worth thousands of dollars to them from American sympathizers.

TELLER "SWIPED" CASH.

New Orleans Bank Official Caught In Crooked Work.

Samuel Flower, paying teller of the Louisiana National bank, was arrested in New Orleans Saturday by United States Marshal Fontell and charged with a shortage of $38,000. The Fidelity and Depos.. Company, of Baltimore, is on Flower's bond for $25,000.

Flower is a cousin of the late Mayor Flower and comes from one of the most prominent families in the state. He is a son of the late ex-United States sub-Treasurer Samuel Flower, of New Orleans. His bond for $10,000 was promptly signed when he was arraigned in the United States court.

INTERESTED IN GOOD ROADS.

Movement In Mississippi Is Arousing Great Enthusiasm.

A great deal of interest is being aroused over Mississippi in the good roads movement, and the agitation of the question will result in much good. Since the governor's proclamation a number of towns and business leagues have elected delegates to the good roads convention that is to be held in Jackson on the 14th and 15th of June.

WALL STREET QUIET.

Stock Flurry Subsides and the Commercial Atmosphere Is Clarified.

A New York special says: Wall street emerged from its gloom Friday morning, and, with growing confidence in the day, manifested something like buoyant elation. Prices of stock went up with a rush at the last, closing at about the top, and with the net losses left after Thursday's session pretty largely recovered.

There were some clouds remaining on the situation and some natural trepidation lest the violent collapse should have left some casualties which would not be disclosed until the clearing house sheets of the stock exchange had been made up. Early in the day the official announcement was made that the sheets of all the members of the exchange had been cleared perfectly, and that all their checks had been honored. This relieved the last feeling of apprehension and things quited down into a steady condition of business such as has not been witnessed in Wall street for many weeks.

There is no doubt that among those who were heavy losers in Thursday's slump were many of ample resources who viewed the situation with a sporting instinct and a determination to recoup losses by following the market. It was the popular belief that some of the western potentates who were admittedly forced "to walk sideways" during a portion of the day's events were again in the market in a bold attempt to retrieve their losses.

One commercial paper places the losses in the bucket shops throughout the country Thursday at $30,000,000.

BLOODY RIOT IN DETROIT.

City Officials Taboo "Free Speech" and a Clash Follows.

For more than three hours Friday night fully 10,000 men and boys ran riot in the main streets of Detroit Mich., and kept a continual running fight with the police, both mounted and and foot. The net result so far as known is twelve citizens and five policemen injured. The names of but two of the citizens are known at present. They are Mike Waldin and Louis Caplin. Both men had their heads crushed by being trampled on by horses ridden by the mounted police in a charge on the crowd.

The officers injured are: James Toumey, scalp cut by brick; Henry Scott, hit on head with cobblestone; Thomas Murphy, cheek cut open with brick; George Moore, badly cut about the head by brick and taken home in ambulance; Barney Roonan, hit with a brick.

The beginning of the riot was Thursday night when Director of the Police Frank T. Andrews, who recently superseded the old police board through the passage of the Ripper bill by the legislature, issued an order to the police to allow no one to stand about the wagon of one "Tom" Rawdon, a local single tax exhorter who had incurred the ill will of the police director by the extraordinary nature of his remarks on so-called wealthy tax dodgers.

When Rawdon began his exhortations a crowd quickly gathered. Director Andrews supervised the work of the police in keeping the people moving. The crowd good naturedly hooted at the police and no violence was done.

Friday night, however, the temper of the crowd changed when it was announced that Director Andrews had called on reserve officers to assist in keeping the Campus Martius clear. The single tax exhorter came with his wagon and found the campus jammed with people. The police refused to allow him to locate at any particular point, and he drove from one street to another, the crowd following. The mob frequently blocked traffic and the police attempted to disperse them. It was but a moment before stones began to fly through the air and a general mix up followed in which the foot police used their clubs and the mounted men charged. The result was the casualties above enumerated.

At 11 o'clock the mob had gradually dwindled to a mere handful and the city is quiet.

A SUSPECT LYNCHED.

Oklahoma Mob Makes Way With Alleged Well Poisoner.

J. L. Chandler, an old resident farmer of Ioland, Day county, Oklahoma, was taken from his home Friday night presumably by cattlemen and lynched.

For some time there has been trouble between the farmers and the cattlemen and during the past few weeks a great many cattle have died from poisoned water. Chandler was suspected and lynched as a warning to others. The identity of the lynchers is not known.

CHILDREN DIE IN FLAMES.

Mother Was Also Badly Burned and Not Expected to Live.

Friday evening the house of Mrs. Whitsel, a widow living two miles southeast of Climax, Texas, was burned. Her two children, a boy and girl, aged eight and ten years, respectively, were fatally burned from the effects of which both of them died within twelve hour's time. The mother was also badly burned and is not expected to live.

NEELY PAPERS WERE FOR SALE

A Stenographer "Swipes" Correspondence.

GAME WAS NIPPED IN THE BUD

Offer Was Made to Neely's Lawyer and He Promptly Notified the War Department.

A Washington special says: An attempt to sell the confidential communications between the attorney general and the secretary of war in the Neely case was unearthed Saturday by Chief Wilkie, of the secret service.

Information had been obtained from John D. Lindsey, counsel for Neely, in New York, who had received a letter signed by John B. Dickinson, offering him copies of the correspondence. Mr Lindsey turned the matter over to the attorney general and the latter placed the case in the hands of Chief Wilkie. An officer was stationed at the general delivery window of the local post office and when a man presented himself and asked for mail for John B. Dickenson he was followed. He went to the insular division of the war department.

Shortly afterwards a conference was held between the secretary of war, Solicitor General Richards, of the department of justice; Colonel Edwards, chief of the insular bureau, and Chief Wilkie. It was discovered that the man representing himself as John Dickenson was William Davis, stenographer to Colonel Edwards, a position which he has held for a year past. He at one time was private secretary to ex-Congressman Brumm, of Pennsylvania.

Williams volunteered to turn the correspondence that he had attempted to sell to Lindsay over to the Washington officials. As the sale of this correspondence had not been completed no charge was made against Williams, but he was summarily dismissed by the secretary of war.

The papers which Williams desired to sell to Mr. Lindsey consisted of the draft of an opinion of the attorney general upon questions submitted by Mr. Lindsey relative to requisition testimony in the Neely case and was submitted to Secretary Root for consideration and observation. Thre also was a letter from Secretary Root to the attorney general. These papers Williams offered for $200.

SMASHERS ARE SMASHED.

Young Girl Followers of Mrs. Nation Slugged By Barkeeper.

At Wichita, Kas., Saturday afternoon Winona Kilgore, Anna Peoples and Jasmine Wilhoit, three young girls, the latter a daughter of Lucy Wilhoit, the colleague of Mrs. Nation, attempted to smash the Summit saloon. They entered with rocks and the barkeeper did not know an attack was threatened until the glass began to crash about his ears.

Fred Wolfe, the proprietor, knocked the girls down with his fists and pitched them into the street. Miss Wilhoit's brother came to their defense and Wolfe struck him, making a long gash on his face, from which the blood flowed freely in the melee the wrist of Miss Peoples was broken. The police arrested the girls and lodged them in the city jail.

Mrs. Carrie Nation arrived in the city Saturday after an exciting day at Harper. There was a circus in town and she organized a raid on saloons, but was arrested before she could do any smashing. She was released on promising that she would take the next train out of town, which she did.

FIVE OF FAMILY DROWN.

Victims of a Steamer Fire Represented Three Generations.

A dispatch from Houghton, Mich., says: By the burning of the passenger steamer Bon Voyage Friday evening five members of the Altman family, grandmother, mother and three daughters, lost their lives. They were drowned while trying to escape from the boat.

QUICK DEATH FOR TWO.

Planing Mill Boiler Blows Up With Dire Results.

The boiler of McDuffie & Wells's planing mill, near Georgetown, S. C., exploded Saturday morning, demolishing the building and killing R. B. Brunson and Thomas Scott, fatally wounding Ellerbe McDuffie and seriously injuring three other men.

DeWet Again On the Move.

General DeWet, according to a dispatch to The London Daily Mail from Pretoria, has resumed operations and is reported to have crossed into the Transvaal with 2,000 men.

LORD KITCHENER REPORTS.

A Score of Boers Killed, Many Captured and Others Surrender.

Lord Kitchener reports to the London war office under date of Victoria, "Since May 5th twenty-eight Boers have been killed, six wounded and 130 taken prisoners and 183 surrendered. Nine thousand rounds of ammunition, in thirty wagons, 100 horses and large quantities of grain and stock have been captured."

WORK OR STARVE.

Jacksonville Commissary Will Be Closed Against Non-Laborers or Drones.

The situation at Jacksonville, Fla., remains unchanged and the work of the relief association is still a stupendous one, particularly in the commissary department and the labor department. There is abundant work for everybody who can do manual labor and difficulty is being experienced in getting the colored men to work.

The city was visited Saturday by Governor Jennings and a committee from the legislature for the purpose of viewing the situation and to determine how long it would be necessary for the state militia to remain on guard.

A conference was held with the Jacksonville Relief Association and it was decided that, despite the expense of $600 a day, the troops would remain indefinitely, or until semi-normal industrial conditions shall have been restored. No disorder is anticipated so long as free rations are being distributed, but the vicious element might give trouble, it is thought, when the "no work, no rations" edict is enforced.

The local committee has begun to eliminate those who are now imposing upon the country's charity, but some days must elapse before the process can be completed.

The Jacksonville people were assured that the troops should remain as long as needed.

Twelve carloads of supplies for the destitute from the New York chamber of commerce arrived Saturday, and were gratefully received. The clothing will be especially useful. The commissaries continue to feed several thousand persons daily.

The business men generally are having plans prepared for residences and blocks. The plans contemplate, as a rule, even more substantial structures than before.

Jacksonville's business is now crowded into a few blocks and these few are so thronged as to resemble a fairly thrifty section of New York's broadway.

Thus far, the insurance companies have settled about one-fourth of the losses, or $1,500,000.

SHOT WRONG MAN.

Mob Chasing Assailant of Young Woman Makes Mistake.

The body of a negro riddled with bullets was picked up by a train crew on the Southern railway track near Leeds, Ala., Saturday morning and sent to Birmingham. The body was found by the trainmen lying upon the track, the theory being that those who did the killing placed it there so it might be mutilated by the first passing train. The negro had been run down and shot to death, through mistake, by a mob hunting for one Jim Brown, the negro who assaulted and attempted to drown Miss Dell Garrett near Springville.

SURFEIT OF POOR MATERIAL.

Many Volunteer Officers Found Deficient In Qualifications.

A Washington dispatch says: Many of the volunteer officers who were recently designated for appointment in the regular army have failed in their examinations for qualification. Reports received at the war department from the various examinations thus far held show that the percentage of failure is far in excess of the number who come up to the mental and physical standard laid down by the examining board.

At a recent examination held in San Francisco out of a group of twenty-one officers there were nineteen failures and but two candidates who reached the required standard.

REVOLT IN SAN DOMINGO.

Government Has Trouble On Hand and Martial Law Enforced.

Advices from San Domingo via Haytien cable state that the district of Moca and Le Vega are in arms against the government. Congress has decreed the suspension of constitutional guarantees in the revolting districts.

The vice president of Santo Domingo, Horatio Vasquez, is at the head of the government troops operating against the rebels. General Lora has been killed and General Bobea has been taken prisoner.

WALL GETS LIFE SENTENCE.

Three Witnesses In the Trial Are Arrested For Perjury.

At Tallulah Falls, Ga., Friday morning Chubb Wall was convicted in the Rabun superior court of the murder of Christopher O'Byrne, with a recommendation to mercy. Judge Estes sentenced him to life imprisonment.

After the examination of six Atlanta witnesses had been delivered James O'Byrne, brother of the murdered man, swore out warrants against ex-Detective Mahaffey, G. W. Crusselle and E. W. E. Williams, charging them with perjury. All three of them were arrested and jailed.

Odell Vetoes Liability Bill.

Governor Odell, of New York, has retoed the employers liability bill. He says the measure is not in the interest of labor and is too drastically in favor of the corporation.

Appropriated Everything In Sight.

Besides the $350,000 it owes the depositors, the Cuyahoga Savings and Banking Company at Cuyahoga, O., is also said to be liable on about $200,000 of notes on which its name was indorsed by President R. N. Pollock.

BILL ARP'S LETTER

Man Wrought Up Over Sermon By Northern Preacher.

QUOTES WORDS OF A PSALM

Some Abusive Language Used By People Who Feel Malignantly Toward the South.

"Put not thyself because of evil men, fret not thyself because of him who prospereth in his way and brings to pass wicked devices to pass." There is much philosophy and much comfort in that psalm. My frequent personal writings against trouble and intro as [illegible] at least for a time [illegible] I don't believe that David had as many things to exasperate him as we have. Now here is a Chicago religious paper sent to me to disturb my tranquility. It contains a sermon recently delivered by the editor to a large congregation and his followers and listeners said amen at every malediction uttered against our people. I don't feel myself about what a north[illegible] preacher says nor a northern editor either, but I don't like that amen from the saints and it grieves me to realize that the more malignant an editor is against us the more subscribers he gets. Now this Chicago editor says in his sermon "If I were president when the next lynching takes place in the south I would put a cordon around that district and hang a hundred of them, and I would shoot a hundred. Worthy of note are the horrible things carried on in the south. As sure as you live there eight million negroes will one day burst loose. If it is to be in blood, then woe to you in the black belt. You southerners with your rebellious pride still left you rack the poor negro for the very things that your fathers committed on your slaves. There is one voice that will speak if all others are silent. (Applause.) When the time comes we will do more than speak. God will judge you—you whited sepulchers who strain at a gnat and swallow a camel. I have been told that I have not friends at the south. I never had any. They were never worthy of my friendship. They are neither Christians nor good citizens. I hear the wail of eight million Ethiopians, and it will be an awful day when they burst loose in the black belt."

My wife says that I had better take the flowers out of the greenhouse and do anything that will relieve me. I see that the first rose of summer has come forth in all its crimson beauty. A pair of tiny sparrows are drinking at the fountain in the front yard. They are yellow and black, akin to the oriole. A mockingbird is singing in a neighbor's garden. Our flock of doves is sailing around in graceful circles. The peacock is strutting and spreading his magnificent tail and is happy in his vanity. The dog lies yonder on the blue grass and every[illegible] happy that God has made every[illegible] miserable people who are happy unless they are abusing others or finding fault with their betters. What a slack-trough the world is to that class up north. They quarrel with each other in politics and the tariff and religion and the Philippine war, but when they get quarreling they say, "Well, let's hold up awhile and abuse those bigger killers down south." That's harmonizing.

Another preacher, Dr. Gunsaulus, delivered the oration at Galena in honor of General Grant's birthday and it appear that Grant was the author and finisher of emancipation and enfranchisement and it would be sacrilegious to permit the ballot to be taken from him while the shadow of his monument is over the nation. Oh, my country! What an idiot! Everybody who reads history knows that Grant was a slave owner and lived on the profits of his negroes up to the very day of their freedom—and he uniformly declared he was not fighting for the negro, but for the union. Let the reverend gentleman read in Appleton's Cyclopedia of American Biography." My father, General Grant's old father-in-law, lived with him at St. Louis in May, 1860, and if he couldn't live off the hire of his negroes he had better move to Galena and work in the tanyard. But I must take a brief rest again in the garden, for my wife says the potato bugs are on me and I had better get ready to fight them. She says they are almost as pestiferous as yankee preachers and are much nearer to us. My garden is a clay subsoil and bakes very quickly after a rain, and it keeps me moving quite lively to prevent a crust that will not let the little plants come up. It has always been a mystery to me how a little tender plant can heave a clod that will weigh a pound.

About those preachers who are so exercised about the negro. I wish I could mark that the same paper that reports Dr. Gunsaulus' sentiments about the negro had in the next column in its headlines a press dispatch from Greenville, Pa., an account of a lynching crime committed by eight men upon Mr. McMillan and his wife, shooting him and subjecting her to an outrage worse than death and killing both for deed. I hope the devil has got the negroes and lynched them by this time. Do you reckon I would have refused to help lynch the villains if I had been there and if that preacher had been there and offered a helping hand I would have said, "Now, boys, let's hang him up by the legs to give him time to repent of his cowardly dog who would not bite a woman's house." That's my faith and part of my religion, and I've been on that line ever since these outrages began. I rejoice over every lynching of a brute and our woods are full of good citizens of the same mind.

Governor Candler may purge his own record about lynching and denounce that Philadelphia editor who lied on him, but I am not governor—and am not a target to be shot at and I am free to say that a man who would wait for the slow, uncertain process of the law and the courts to avenge our wives and daughters is no man at all and has my scorn and contempt. I think I had better read a psalm or go out and plant some more beans, for my wife says she wants a succession of crops of all these leguminous vegetables. I think that is what she called them.

It is that same puritanical set of preachers who brought on the war and we thought the next generation would have more sense and let us alone since slavery was abolished, but like fathers like sons and they are yet miserable as long as Mordecai is sitting at the gate. Some of our writers and orators declare that peace and brotherly love now prevails, but it is like the game of "three card monte," now you see it and now you don't see it. Henry Grady made a great speech in Boston and fairly captured his audience, but in less than two weeks the Boston preachers were belittling his effort and howling at the south for its bad faith to the fifteenth amendment. The race problem is still their capital stock and it has spread from New England to Chicago and the great west. The G. A. R's. have appointed a committee to write up a history of the civil war, and the next thing will be to force it into the public schools.

The G. A. R.'s are a power in the land and their creed is to draw more pensions and bigger ones, but I can't understand how they can look a confederate soldier in the face and boast of anything. If it took four of us to whip one of them I'd never brag about it nor ask for a pension, and if it was given me I would conscientiously pour it back in the jug. When God created Adam He planted a garden for him and put him in it to keep it and dress it and that was innocent and manly, and so I will go out and dig some and turn the hydrant loose, for it is awful dry. Wish I could turn it loose on those preachers. Since Bishop Candler exclaimed in big head lines, "Oh, for one more breath of Puritanism!" I've been perusing history. Of course he dident mean those Puritans who came to New England and went to importing negroes and robbing the Indians and burning witches.

Mr. Stedman and Miss Hutchinson have eleven volumes of American literature and the second is devoted to those horrible witchcraft times when Increase Mather and Cotton Mather and Samuel Sewall and other savants had helpless women arrested and tried and hung for witchcraft. The whole procedure is in this volume and it makes the heart sick to read how the poor creatures begged for their lives and in their last moments on the gallows denied their guilt. How as many as eight were hung at one time and many more at various times and how old Judge Sewall afterwards repented and the twelve jurymen repented and published their repentance and asked God to forgive their great sin, etc.

One woman, Mary Watkins, who was a hired servant, a white woman, was tried, but the evidence was not quite sufficient to convict, and so they did not hang her, but sent her off to Virginia to be sold as a slave. This is only a little scrap of New England history, and if any of their descendants is ashamed of it they have never said so to me. Those northern brethren are awful slow on apologies. But I must go and stick the sweet peas and hurry up the flowers for the June wedding. Our neighbor's pretty daughter is to be married and they are singing to me—

"Bring flowers, bring flowers, for the bride to wear,
They are born to blush in her shining hair."

—BILL ARP in Atlanta Constitution.

Terrific strides have been made in iron mining in the past five years. An article by Waldon Fawcett in the Century Magazine enlarges upon some of the more striking achievements in that industry. Twenty million tons, which constitute the yearly output of the Lake Superior region at the opening of the new century, is more than double the product of any other iron-mining region in the world during any single year in history. The first ore-diggers went to work there nearly forty-five years ago, and yet one-third of all the ore which has been produced there during the four and a half decades has been mined since 1896. What might be termed the financial side of the iron-mining industry easily constitutes one of the most interesting phases. Here is a commodity which, in its raw state, adds nearly $25,000,000 to the wealth of the country every year—an aggregate greater than that of the gold and silver mines of the nation. There are mines in the territory bordering on the world's largest fresh-water lake, which have a profit of $1,500,000, or half as much in a single year, netted their owners again as the authorized capital of the company controlling them, and it is nothing unusual to hear of a mine which has paid for itself in a single season.

WHITE ELEPHANTS' DECLINE.

They Rouse No Enthusiasm Among Siamese Except When Advertised.

Time flies and customs change, even in the most conservative countries, of the conservative East, and the glory of the white elephant is fast waning. Before the influence of another white animal, the European, he is passing slowly, but surely, into limbo.

The greater part of Indo-China is now possessed by England and France, whose rulers lay no claim to Seyka Winday descent, and who can usually find sufficient exercise for their diplomacy and their armies without recourse to zoological freaks, while in Siam long years of uninterrupted accumulation produced a collection unrivaled in extent.

Forty five years ago His Majesty King Mongkut of Siam was the possessor of one white elephant, which was his chief delight and pride. As the greatest compliment he could think of paying to the Queen of England he sent her, by the hands of her envoys, a few hairs culled expressly for her from the tail o' his beloved animal, and when, a little later, the arbiter of his destiny departed this life, he sent as a present to his friend Sir John Browning, accompanied by a touching letter in English, a small piece of "its beautiful white skin."

How changed are the present conditions of existence of the white elephants in Bangkok! The recent addition of a young specimen to the collection afforded an opportunity of noting the miserable parody which is all that survives of the ancient ceremonies connected with the capture and installation of the white elephant.

The animal in question was captured in the forests near Lopburi, a place once famous as the summer palace and hunting lodge of the kings of Siam. No patent of nobility or alliance with royalty rewarded the finder of the animal; a small pecuniary recompense was thought quite sufficient to meet the case.

When it was announced that the animal was sufficiently tame his transfer to Bangkok was ordered. Thereupon he was marched down to Ayuthia, where a specially constructed railway truck was in readiness to receive him.

But where were the gilded pillars, the silk and satin hangings of the pavilion which should receive the august creature? Where the reverent multitudes to do homage to the mascot of their king and country?

Alas! these things have departed, and are no more seen, a little red calico and a group of stolid railway porters and Chinese coolies alone representing the gorgeous decorations and adoring populace of the past.

In Bangkok, however, some preparation had been made for the reception. The fact of the impending arrival had been published in the papers some days before. Consequently, a considerable crowd assembled at the terminus to witness the disembarkation. The streets were decorated here and there with bunting, and a procession, headed by the four white elephants resident at the capital, escorted the newcomer to the palace.

The trappings of the white elephants were most pitiful to view. Tawdry, threadbare red cloth now takes the place of jewel-studded velvet and silk, diamond and ruby rings no longer ornament the precious tusks, nor are gold bangles to be seen upon the august limbs.—Imperial Asiatic Quarterly Review.

Facts About the Rabbit Pest.

New Zealand's rabbit pest can be appreciated only by inspection of the figures submitted by the Secretary of Agriculture of that colony for the year ended July, 1900, and recently published in his annual report. He states that during the year ended July 1, 1900, 5,152,877 rabbits and 7,744,638 rabbit skins were exported, as against 4,214,962 rabbits and 6,504,189 skins shipped the preceding year.

This increase in the number of rabbits killed is, in his opinion, not an encouraging sign, but rather the reverse. The inspectors of stock for the various districts report that phosphorized pollard, when carefully laid, is the most effective means of stamping out the animals without injury to stock. It appears, however, that careful supervision is necessary in the use of this poison to produce good results.

Other methods of dealing with the problem, which are not so effectual as the use of poison, but which have the advantage of leaving the dead rabbits in such condition as to be salable, are trapping, shooting and hunting with ferrets or dogs. For comparatively small enclosures wire netting is without doubt the best means of dealing with rabbits, and every year sees an increasing quantity of it being erected. Its great expense, however, prevents its being applied to large farms or ranges.

Oil in Strange Places.

Oil wells are sometimes struck in strange places. Possibly the would-be funny man who once remarked that if you stuck a cane in the soil of California it would sprout and blossom in a season, would now assert that they are growing derricks in their yards. At any rate, the derricks are there. Oil was recently struck at Los Angeles, and now the people are drilling wells and erecting derricks in their yards. A derrick can hardly be said to be an ornamental structure, but a good oil well is a profitable thing, and the people are willing to endure the unsightly derricks for the possible financial results.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

REV. DR. TALMAGE.

DISCOURSE BY THE EMINENT DIVINE LAST SUNDAY.

Subject: Influences Once Hostile Now Friendly to Christ—Weapons Formerly Used Against the Lord's Armies Captured and Put to His Service.

(Copyrighted.)

WASHINGTON, D. C.—In this discourse Dr. Talmage calls the roll of influences once antagonistic but now friendly to the gospel and encourages Christian workers; text, I Samuel xxi. 9, "There is none like that; give it me."

David fled from his pursuers. The world runs very fast when it is chasing a good man. The country is trying to catch David and to slay him. David goes into the house of a priest and asks him for a sword or spear with which to defend himself. The priest, not being accustomed to use deadly weapons, tells David that he can not supply him, but suddenly the priest thinks of an old sword that had been carefully wrapped up and laid away, the very sword that Goliath formerly used, and he takes down that sword and while he is unwrapping the sharp, glittering, memorable blade it flashes upon David's mind that this is the very sword that was used against himself when he was in the fight with Goliath, and David can hardly keep his hand off it until the priest has unwound it. David stretches out his hand toward that old sword and says, "There is none like that; give it me"; in other words, "I want in my own hand the sword which has been used against me and against the cause of God!" So it was given him. Well, my friends, that is not the first or the last sword once used by giant and Philistine iniquity which is to come into the possession of Jesus Christ and of His glorious church. I want, as well as God may help me, to show you that many a weapon which has been used against the armies of God is yet to be captured and used on our side, and I only imitate David when I stretch out my hand toward that blade of the Philistine and cry, "There is none like that; give it me!"

I remark, first, that this is true in regard to all scientific exploration. You know that the first discoveries in astronomy and geology and chronology were used to battle Christianity. Worldly philosophy came out of its laboratory and out of its observatory and said, "Now we will prove, by the very structure of the earth and by the movement of the heavenly bodies, that the Bible is a lie, and that Christianity, as we have it among men, is a positive imposition." Good men trembled. The telescope, the Leyden jars, the electric batteries, all in the hands of the Philistines. But one day Christianity, looking about for some weapon with which to defend itself, happened to see the very old sword that these atheistic Philistines had been using against the truth and cried out, "There is none like that; give it me!" And Copernicus and Galileo and Kepler and Isaac Newton and Herschel and O. M. Mitchell came forth and told the world that in their ransacking of the earth and heavens they found overwhelming presence of the God whom we worship, and this old Bible began to shake itself from the Koran and Shaster and Zendavesta, with which it had been covered up, and lay on the desk of the scholar and in the laboratory of the chemist and in the lap of the Christian unharmed and unanswered, while the tower of the midnight heavens struck a silvery chime in its praise.

Worldly philosophy said, "All that story about the light 'turned as clay to the seal' is simply an absurdity." Old time worldly philosophy said, "The light comes straight." Christian philosophy says, "Wait a little while." And it goes on and makes discoveries and finds that the atmosphere curves and bends the rays of light around the earth literally "as the clay to the seal." The Bible right again; worldly philosophy wrong again. "Ah," says worldly philosophy, "all that allusion to Job about the foundations of the earth is simply an absurdity. 'Where wast thou,' says God, 'when I set the foundations of the earth?' The earth has no foundation." Christian philosophy comes and finds that the word as translated "foundations" may be better translated "sockets." So now we see how it will read if it is translated right, "Where wast thou when I set the sockets of the earth?" Where is the socket? It is the hollow of God's hand—a socket large enough for any world to turn in.

Worldly philosophy said: "What an absurd story about Joshua making the sun and moon stand still. If the world had stopped an instant, the whole universe would have been out of gear." "Stop," said Christian philosophy, "not quite so quick!" The world has two motions—one on its own axis and the other around the sun. It was not necessary, in making them stand still, that both motions should be stopped—only the one turning the world on its own axis. There was no reason why the halting of the earth should have jarred and disarranged the whole universe. Joshua right and God right; infidelity wrong every time. I knew it would be wrong.

I thank God that the time has come when Christians need not be scared at any scientific exploration. The fact is that religion and science have struck hands in eternal friendship, and the deeper down geology can dig the higher up astronomy can soar all the better for us.

The armies of the Lord Jesus Christ have stormed the observatories of the world's science, and from the highest towers have flung out the banner of the cross and Christianity now, from the observatories at Albany and Washington, stretches out its hand toward the opposing scientific weapon, crying, "There is none like that; give it me!"

I was reading of Herschel, who was looking at a meteor through a telescope, and when it came over the face of the telescope it was so powerful he had to avert his eyes. And it has been just so that many an astronomer has gone into an observatory and looked up into the midnight heavens, and the Lord God has, through some swinging world, flamed upon his vision, and the learned man cried out: "Who am I? Undone! Unclean! Have mercy, Lord God!"

Again, I remark, that the traveling disposition of the world, which was adverse to morals and religion, is to be brought on our side. The man that went down to Jericho and fell amid thieves was a type of a great many travelers. There is many a man who is very honest at home who when he is abroad has his honor filched and his good habits stolen. There are but very few men who can stand the stress of an expedition. Six weeks at a watering place have ruined many a man. In the olden times God forbade the traveling of men for the purposes of trade because of the corrupting influences attending it. A good many men now cannot stand the transition from one place to another. Some men who seem to be very consistent here in the way of keeping the Sabbath when they get into Spain on the Lord's day always go to see the bullfights. Plato said that no city ought to be built nearer to the sea than ten miles lest it be tempted to commerce. But this traveling disposition of the world, which was adverse to that which is good, is to be brought on our side. These mail trains—why, they take our Bibles; these steamers, they transport our missionaries; these sailors, rushing from city to city all around the world, are to be converted into Christian heralds and go out and preach Christ among the heathen nations. The gospels infinitely multiplied in beauty and power since Robinson and Thompson and Burckhardt have come back and talked to us about Siloam and Capernaum and Jerusalem, pointing out to us the hills about which Jesus preached, the beach upon which Paul was shipwrecked, the fords at which Jordan was passed, the Red Sea beach on which were tossed the carcasses of the drowned Egyptians. A man said, "I went to the Holy Land an infidel. I came back a Christian. I could not help it."

I am not shocked, as some have been, at the building of railroads in the Holy Land. I wish that all the world might go and see Golgotha and Bethlehem. How many who could not afford mule teers now easily buy tickets from Constantinople to Joppa. Then let Christians travel. God speed the rail trains and guide the steamships this night plowing across the deep in the phosphorescent wake of the shining feet of Him who from wave cliff to wave cliff bestormed Tiberius. The Japanese come across the water and see our civilization and examine our Christianity and go back and tell the story and keep that empire rocking till Jesus shall reign.

"Where'er the sun
Does his successive journeys run."

And the firearms with which the infidel traveler brought down the Arab horseman and the pashas of the desert have been surrendered to the church, and we reach forth our hand crying, "There is none like that; give it me."

So it has also been with the learning and eloquence of the world. People say, "Religion is very good for aged women, it is very good for children, but not for men." But we have in the roll of Christ's host Mozart and Handel in music, Canova and Angelo in sculpture, Raphael and Reynolds in painting, Harvey and Boerhaave in medicine, Cowper and Scott in poetry, Grotius and Burke in statesmanship, Boyle and Leibnitz in philosophy, Thomas Chalmers and John Mason in theology.

The most brilliant writings of a worldly nature are all aglow with Scriptural allusions. Through senatorial speech and through essayist's discourse Sinai thunders and Calvary speaks and Siloam sparkles.

Samuel L. Southard was mighty in the courtroom and in the senate chamber, but he reserved his strongest eloquence for that day when he stood before the literary societies at Princeton commencement and pleaded for the grandeur of our Bible.

Daniel Webster won not his chief garlands while responding to Hayne nor when he opened the batteries of his eloquence on Bunker Hill, that rocking Sinai of the American Revolution, but on that day when, in the famous Girard will case, he showed his affection for the Christian religion and eulogized the Bible. The eloquence and the learning that have been on the other side come over to our side. Captured for God! "There is none like that; give it me!"

So, also, has it been with the picture making of the world. We are very anxious on this day to have the printing press and the platform on the side of Christianity, but we overlook the engraver's knife and the painter's pencil. The antiquarian goes and looks at pictured ruins or examines the chiseled pillars of Thebes and Nineveh and Pompeii, and then comes back to tell us of the beastliness of ancient art, and it is a fact now that many of the finest specimens, merely artistically considered, of sculpture and painting that are to be found amid those ruins are not fit to be looked at, and they are locked up.

How Paul must have felt, when, standing amid these impurities that stared on him from the walls and the pavements and the bazaars of Corinth, he preached of the pure and holy Jesus! The art of the world on the side of obscenity and crime and death.

Much of the art of the world has been in the possession of the vicious. What to unclean Henry VIII. was a beautiful picture of the Madonna? What to Lord Jeffreys, the unjust judge, the picture of the "Last Judgment"? What to Nero, the unwashed, a picture of the baptism in the Jordan? The art of the world on the wrong side. But that is being changed now. The Christian artist goes over to Rome, looks at the pictures and brings back to his American studio much of the power of these old masters. The Christian minister goes over to Venice, looks at the "Crucifixion of Christ," and comes back to the American pulpit to talk as never before of the sufferings of the Saviour. The private tourist goes to Rome and looks at Raphael's picture of the "Last Judgment." The tears start, and he goes back to his room in the hotel and prays God for preparation for that day when

"Shriveling like a parched scroll,
The flaming heavens together roll."

So, I remark, it is with business acumen and tact. When Christ was upon earth the people that followed Him for the most part had no social position. There was but one man naturally brilliant in all the apostleship, Joseph, of Arimathea, the rich man, risked nothing when he offered a hole in the rock for the dead Christ. How many of the merchants in Asia Minor befriended Jesus? I think of only one—Lydia. How many of the castles on the beach at Galilee entertained Christ? Not one. When Peter came to Joppa he stopped with one Simon, a tanner. What power had Christ's name on the Roman exchange or in the bazaars of Corinth? None. The prominent men of the day did not want to risk their reputation for sanity by pretending to be one of His followers. Now that is all changed. Among the mightiest men in our great cities today are the Christian merchants and the Christian bankers, and if to-morrow, at the Board of Trade, any man should get up and malign the name of Jesus, he would be quickly silenced or put out. In the front rank of all our Christian workers to-day are the Christian merchants, and the enterprises of the world are coming on the right side. There was a farm willed away some years ago, all the proceeds of that farm to go for spreading infidel books. Somehow matters have changed, and now all the proceeds of that farm go toward the missionary cause. One of the finest printing presses ever built was built for the express purpose of publishing infidel tracts and books. Now it does nothing but print holy Bibles.

I believe that the time will come when in commercial circles the voice of Christ will be the mightiest of all voices and the ships of Tarshish will bring presents and the queen of Sheba her glory and the wise men of the East their myrrh and frankincense.

I look off upon the business men of this land and rejoice at the prospect that their tact and ingenuity and talent are being brought into the service of Christ. It is one of the mightiest of weapons. "There is none like that; give it me!"

Now, if what I have said be true, away with all downheartedness! If science is to be on the right side and the traveling disposition of the world on the right side and the learning of the world on the right side and the picture making on the right side and the business acumen and tact of the world on the right side, Thine, O Lord, is the kingdom! Oh, fall into line, all ye people! It is a grand thing to be in such an army and led by such a commander and on the way to such a victory. If what I have said is true, then Christ is going to gather up for Himself out of this world everything that is worth anything, and there will be nothing but the scum left. We have been rebels, but a proclamation of amnesty goes forth now from the throne of God, saying, "Whosoever will, let him come." However long you may have wandered, however great your crimes may have been, "whosoever will, let him come." Oh, that this hour I could marshal all the world on the side of Christ! He is the best friend a man ever had. He is so kind. He so loving, so sympathetic. I cannot see how you can stay away from Him. Come now and accept His mercy. Behold Him as He stretches out the arms of His salvation, saying, "Look unto Me, all ye ends of the earth, and be ye saved, for I am God." Make final choice now. You will either be willows planted by the water courses or the chaff which the wind driveth away.

THE SABBATH SCHOOL

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR MAY 19.

Subject: Jesus Ascends Into Heaven. Luke xxiv., 44-53; Acts i., 1-11. Golden Text, Luke xxiv., 51. Memory Verses, 9-11.—Lesson Commentary.

44. "These are the words." Now you will understand what seemed so dark to you when I told you about the Son of man being put to death and rising again. Chap. 18:31-34. "The law—the prophets—the psalms." The three Jewish divisions of the Old Testament Scriptures, here mentioned as containing, each of them, things concerning Christ.

45. "Then opened He." Now by the influence of Christ they see, not only the prophecies which pointed out the Messiah, but also the Messiah who was pointed out by these prophecies. "Understand the Scriptures." Jesus opened their minds by explaining to them the true meaning of the prophecies, and by unfolding the true nature of His kingdom.

46. "Thus it is written," etc. Here are the two great essential facts of the gospel: 1. The atonement of Christ. 2. His resurrection from the dead.

47. "Repentance." This implies that a measure of divine wisdom is communicated to the sinner, and that he thereby becomes wise to salvation. That his mind, purposes, opinions and inclinations are changed, and that in consequence, there is a total change in his conduct. "Remission of sins." The forgiveness of sins, the removal of the punishment, and deliverance of the soul from the power of sin. "In His name." As obtained for sinful men by His atoning sufferings, as the fruit of His intercession, and the effect of His grace. "Among all nations." God wills the salvation of all, and Jesus tasted death for every man. "Beginning at Jerusalem." Because it was thus written. Isa. 2:3. Because there the facts on which the gospel was founded were transacted; and because Christ desired to give further proof of His love and example of forgiving His enemies.

48. "Ye are witnesses." They had been with Jesus throughout His ministry, they had heard His teaching, they had seen His miracles, they knew His character, they had seen Him after He rose from the dead, and now their work was to bear witness of these things.

49. "I send the promise." The Holy Ghost which was promised to the church through Christ. "Endued." Invested, or clothed with. "From on high." It is from on high, and therefore draws the soul upward, and makes it aim high. This power was the promise of the Father; it could not fail.

50. "As far as Bethany." Not the village itself, but on the descent to it from Mount Olivet. "Lifted up His hands." Probably to lay them on their heads, for that was the ordinary way in which a blessing was given. Gen. 48:8-20.

51. "Into heaven." The disciples did not see Him rise out of the grace, because His resurrection could be easily proved by their seeing Him afterward, but they saw Him return to heaven, as there would be no other way to prove it.

52. "They worshiped Him." In gratitude for His blessing upon them. The cloud that received Him out of their sight did not put them or their services out of His sight. "With great joy." Every sorrow had been turned into joy. They were full of love and joy in the Holy Spirit.

53. "Continually in the temple." While they abode together at Jerusalem, waiting and praying with one accord for the Spirit of power, truth and holiness, they went to the temple at the proper times to join in the worship there performed.

1. "The former treatise." The gospel of Luke. Luke was the author of Acts. "O Theophilus." He was probably a magistrate or high official who had been converted to Christianity. "To do and teach." A very important statement, dividing the work of Christ into two great branches; the one embracing His work on earth, the other His subsequent work from heaven.

2. "Through the Holy Ghost." God gave not the Spirit by measure unto Him. John 3: 34. Jesus who was anointed with the Holy Ghost (Luke 4; Matt. 12) in the power of the Holy Ghost, gave commandments to the apostles to be His witnesses, so that such commandments were given by the Spirit also. "Apostles." The twelve generally called disciples in the gospels are in the Acts spoken of as apostles, or "those sent forth."

3. "Passion." Sufferings on the cross. "Infallible proofs." The single Greek word, translated "infallible proof," denotes the strongest proofs of which a subject is capable, an irresistible proof.

4. "Not depart from Jerusalem." The coming of the Spirit was to be at the next great feast after the crucifixion. They waited by prayer, by conference together, by doing necessary duties. Vs. 13, 14. "Promise." Jesus thus termed it, because God the Father had promised the gift of the Spirit, through the prophets under the old covenant. "Heard of me." In His conversations with them. See on verse 49.

5. "John." The Baptist, the forerunner of Christ. "With water." John's baptism was a baptism unto repentance. "With the Holy Ghost." The outpouring of the Spirit upon them would eradicate all sin from their hearts and fill them with love and power.

6. "Come together." At the Mount of Olives. V. 50. "At this time restore." "Wilt thou break the Roman yoke from off our necks and immediately erect the kingdom of the Messiah?"

8. "Shall receive power." They were promised the power of the Holy Ghost in order to properly carry on God's work. "Witnesses." They were to be witnesses to a crucified Christ, a risen Christ, a coming Christ. "Uttermost part," etc. They were to begin at home, with the Jews, and gradually reach out until the glorious gospel reached the whole human race.

9. "A cloud." Perhaps it was like the "fiery, cloudy pillar," the symbol of God, that led the Israelites through the wilderness; or Elijah's storm chariot, or the bright cloud of glory which overshadowed Him on the Mount of Transfiguration. This was His "royal chariot," as Chrysostom calls it.

10. "Were looking." (R. V.) Wondering what it all meant. "Two men." Angels in the form of men. "White apparel." Matt. 28:3. The white garments were an emblem of purity.

11. "Shall so come." The second or final coming. This will not be in obscurity like His first coming; but "He will come in power and glory, on the clouds, and with His holy angels with Him." Matt. 24:30, 31; 26:64.

Just as strong an idea of the extent to which a vast number of the homeless of New York City are huddled and crowded together, the Dry Goods Economist mentions some of the figures compiled by the Tenement Commission. These include not only actual tenements, but flats and the many rightly "apartment." They show that of the population of Manhattan Borough, per cent. is housed in "tenements," and of the residents of Brooklyn, "the city of homes," so-called, 80.6 per cent. while of the entire population of the city over 69 per cent. occupy similarly constructed quarters.

Notice to Non-Resident

In Circuit Court of Chilton, Alabama.

The Concordia Land and Improvement Association, a Corporation under the Laws of Alabama, having its principle place of business at Thorsby, Alabama, Plaintiff, vs. John J. Snell, defendant, who resides at Boone Post Office in the State of Iowa.

To John J. Snell, the Defendant in the above stated cause, who resides at Boone Post Office in the State of Iowa:

You will take notice that the Concordia Land & Improvement Association, a Corporation under the Laws of Alabama, having its principle place of business at Thorsby, Alabama, the Plaintiff in the above stated cause, sued out an attachment in said cause against the said John J. Snell, the Defendant, on the 7th day of May, 1901, to recover a collection of a debt due by a promissory note containing waiver of exemptions as to personal property, in the sum of $470.00 with interest at 8 per cent per annum since the day of October, 1900, together with $60.00 as an Attorney's fee for suing said note; that said attachment was sued out without bond; and said attachment was levied upon the following described tract of land bounded as follows: Commencing at a point on the west side of the southwest corner of the southwest fourth of the southwest fourth of section six, township twenty two, range fourteen and running thence north 16 links, thence east at right angles to the right of way of the L. & N. R. R., thence in a southeasterly direction along said right of way to the south line thence following the south line to the starting point. Also the following described tract of land: Commencing at a point on the north side of the southwest fourth of northwest fourth of section seven, township twenty two, range fourteen, both pieces containing 2 and 75 100 acres, more or less, rights of way 20 feet wide on the west sides of said tract of land, situated in Chilton County, Alabama, as the property of the said John J. Snell, Defendant, by the Sheriff of said Chilton County on the 7th day of May. Let this notice be published in The Banner, a weekly newspaper published in said Chilton County, for three consecutive weeks next following, and a copy of each issue containing same be sent by mail to the said John J. Snell, the Defendant.

Witness my hand, this the 7th day of May, 1901. E. B. [illegible]
Clerk of the Circuit Court of Chilton County, Alabama.

[illegible] MAN ON THE CORNER

[illegible] of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not

Another court has come and gone and the everyday business of life has set on again as usual. The report of the Grand Jury was very satisfactory and shows the county is in good condition. The learned Judge complimented the county, the jurors and officers only small offenses to deal with, the criminal docket is finished in two days, and everyone goes away feeling perfectly satisfied that we are living in as good a county as there is to be found on the face of the globe. Long may Chilton continue to flourish.

The long expected constitutional convention is at last here and we all now keep ourselves employed in watching the proceedings. There have been many conjectures, as to what the convention would do and what it would not do. It is scarcely worth while making any more guesses now, a little more patience and all will come out as clear as mud. Keep your eye on the convention, it is bound to be interesting and we look for whatever may develope, hoping all may be the best.

Maplesville.

The statistics of our county in last Banner has greatly increased our patriotism. We are not so much enthused as to wish to "shoulder arms" but would be glad for someone else to do so in our defence, we can twine a few more laurels in the wreath by adding the statistics of our census enumerator, who was so hospitably treated while on duty; true some of the females giggled most irreverently when asked of their age (for which they were sometimes excusable) but hospitality was ever uppermost generally.

We wish it were in our power to report the state of our cotton crop, which is indeed most deplorable. Farmers have plowed up the entire crop to plant over; corn too is late and very stand.

There was a misunderstanding about our Sunday-school picnic but those who attended had a very pleasant time.

The Misses Dyer, of Stanton, are with us.

Mrs. Dennis gave us a most excellent sermon the second Sunday in this month. He and Bro. Lee were most hospitably entertained by D. C. Savage.

Our townsman I. U. Crumpton and wife are very justly proud of their daughter Blossie, have been quite sick the past week, but are glad to state are convalescent.

Little Felton Claughton has been sick, but is not much better.

Mr. Buck Bowline expresses his gratitude to his attending physician and friends for attention during his last serious illness.

Miss McKarryl is visiting her sister here, Mr. D. C. Savage.

Mr. Damsky's brother, of Ridgeville, has lately visited him and Miss Alice, here.

Mrs. G. Foshee has spent several pleasant days with her brother, family here, R. D. Martin.

Mr. A. S. Foshee is now with Wheeler, at Blocton.

We regret to state that during the absence of the family, the home of Mr. Brownlee was robbed of a gold watch and some money.

The surveyors have finished their work that will come soon and lay off town lots. Mr. Alexander, of Montgomery, expects to build on one of them.

We have reasons to believe our town will soon be filled with a good industrious class of people who are always on the bottom rung of the prosperity of every county.

Clanton, May 20, 1901

Editor Banner—The constitutional convention will soon convene, and for what purpose? Is it to eliminate negro suffrage, or taken as a whole, is it to disfranchise the poor illiterate, regardless of race or color? It has been said the motive was to disfranchise the negro only, and with the present Federal constitution no state can frame a constitution disfranchising the negro, from the simple cause that he is a negro. Such would be in conflict with the Federal constitution, the 14th and 15th amendments of which guarantees every man the right of suffrage, regardless of previous race or color. The only legal disfranchisement of the negro is a qualification for suffrage without any discrimination. The poor illiterate white man must be turned from the ballot box just as the ignorant negro, or else the managers must perjure themselves.

What to do with the negro is a problem that is puzzling the ablest statesmen of to-day. The negro today enjoys every privilege the white man does, notwithstanding it is against nature. God intended the white man should rule. The white man trampled under foot God's command to the Israelites. Thou shalt not mix with the Canaanites, they are a wicked generation and thou shalt not mix with them lest you be cut off and assigned your portion in the regions of h— with those who forget God. We have taken the negro to our bosom; given him every privilege God has given us; given him Federal appointments where he dominates the white man; placed him in prominent positions where he can live off the fat of the land while the poor white man with superior intelligence and qualifications makes his living by the sweat of the brow. Such is against nature, and a practice of unnatural indulgence must bring about a bad effect. Does not every intelligent man know that the negro is in principle a brute? He has no remorse of conscience. Every day the newspapers give an account of some diabolical crime he has committed on some woman, or murdered someone. Any crime that is comprehensible to his mind is practical with him, and still we invite him to aid us in our progressive government. Not long can a nation prosper practicing a social equality with such a dissipated and damnable race. The negro has done more to dispute the American people than anything since it has been a government. He was the indirect cause of the Civil war which disunited the U. S., and now it is possible that at this late day, after the dawn of 36 years, when we laid down our guns in subjection; and most all of our old brother soldiers who fought by our side, and have since answered the bugle blast in heaven, are we going to deny their posterity, who from poverty caused by the war never had any educational advantages, do all this just in order to eliminate the negro vote, deny them the right of suffrage? I do not favor the embarrassment of the poor, unfortunate white man on account of the negro. Remove the negro into the humiliated station of life that nature intended for him; make it a capital offense for the whites and negroes to have sexual relations with each other; down with social equality with the negro. How can we do this if men are conscientious in their advocation of the negro. The problem can be solved. Choose men to represent us in congress and the U. S. senate whose views coincides with those of that distinguished Statesman, John T. Morgan, and the 14th and 15th amendments of the constitution will be amended and negro suffrage wiped out. Here is luck to all who are opposed to trusts and incorporations and negro domination, but favor white supremacy, special privileges to none; equal rights to all.

Editor Banner—Please allow me space in your columns to express my thanks to my neighbors and friends for their valuable attention and assistance to my affliction. I have been confined to my room almost five months and have not been neglected by neighbors and friends, but on the 24th ult. I was furnished the means of relief by the skillful hands of Dr. E. A. Matthews, assisted by Dr. W. E. Stewart, who performed an operation and I am now able to get out, and will soon be able to attend to my business, both domestic and official. Again thanking my neighbors and friends for their kindness, I am very sincerely yours,

A CARD OF THANKS.

Clanton, May 20, 1901

Editor Banner.—Please allow me to express through your columns, to the good people of Chilton county, and Clanton in particular, our grateful appreciation of the deep interest manifested in our recent affliction, evidenced by the stream of letters which came to us from all parts of the country at Blocton. These letters contained words of deep solicitude and sympathy, told of the earnest prayers offered in our behalf, and bore to us ample means to defray necessary expenses. And not the least appreciated, among the favors granted, was the special attention and protection given our children during our absence, and the many tokens of sympathy and kindness received since our return. We feel closer drawn to the people, and especially Clanton, by these kindly offices, and are thereby brought under a lasting debt of gratitude to our friends both in and out of the church. Having resided among you for more than two years, we feel warranted in saying that neither your town nor county has ever had the credit their real worth merits. There is an under current of sympathy in the hearts of our sturdy citizens, born of true nobility, and supported by genuine benevolence that is as broad as human want, and only requires proper conditions to stir it to its depths, and thereby discover to the world a magnanimous people. I am glad my lot has been cast among you.

And now as the beneficiary of your sympathy, prayers and material aid, I stand with bared head and uplifted hand and extend to you my sincere thanks, and in the "name of the man of Galilee" pronounce a solemn, earnest God bless you all.

Sincerely and fraternally,
Mr. and Mrs. F. M. WOODS.

Maine has gone to work to provide herself with a State flag. The flag is to be buff, with a green pine tree in the centre and a star—the Pole star—in blue in the upper left-hand corner.

A Connecticut journal accepts with becoming gratitude what was meant to be a complimentary allusion to itself by a State contemporary which spoke of one of its "editorials" as "wonderfully fair," but it somewhat plaintively adds: "We have no desire or ambition to be anything but fair, and would prefer to have our contemporary do its wondering when it thinks this journal unfair."

Jesse M. Roper, in command of the Petrel in Manila harbor, went to his death fearlessly, nobly, in the effort to save the lives of some humble shipmates. He had not the aid of the excitement of adventure. He had not the hope of fame or reward. His was an exhibition of the highest, the most inspiring form of physical and moral courage. He belongs to the ranks of those heroes that can be held up as examples without any necessity for qualifications, omissions or apologies.

One thing that materially helps to stiffen the iron market is the prospective heavy railway construction to be undertaken this year. The Railway Age gives a list of projects under contract for 5000 miles of new construction. There are prospective enterprises which would increase the total to 8200 miles. The greater part of the new rails will be laid down in the Southern States. The development of the interior resources of the South is at present the chief objective effort of speculative enterprise.

The fundamental idea of a course in physiology in the public schools is hygiene. The aim is to supply a basis for the more important hygienic knowledge, which not only pertains to the care and preservation of health but which gradually inculcates an intelligent respect for the wonderful structure known as the human body. Give a child a proper knowledge of structure and functions of the various organs of the body and the chances of his abusing it or ignoring the laws of health are greatly diminished, states the Chicago Record-Herald.

It is hardly possible to realize that only twenty-five years ago the telephone was hardly more than the dream of two or three imaginative scientists, and that it was not until at least a decade later that this means of communication began to play an important part in the daily life of a considerable fraction of the earth's inhabitants. The telephone has come to be something not much different from a necessity of life. Social and commercial activities have so adjusted themselves to the machine which gives indefinite extension to ear and tongue that were the facility not long ago unthought of to be suddenly withdrawn, the most serious embarrassment would follow. The efficiency of every business man would be so materially decreased that for a while at least there would be grave trouble and confusion. Yet people have already come to use the telephone without a thought of what a marvelous thing it is, and we hear vastly more about the cost and imperfections of the service than about the numberless and inestimable advantages derived from it.

There have been many accidents from the use of modern machinery on farms, yet they seem largely due to carelessness. We used to hear of frequent cases with mowing machines where the victims tried to pick out clogged grass from the knives, and a step forward of the horses tormented by flies took off a few fingers. The buzz saw on the farm has done more damage in ten years past than all that are used in mills, though there are more in saw mills and they run faster than those run by power on the farm. The danger comes usually from careless or too rapid feeding. Threshing machines do not catch the arms of the feeder as often as they used to, because men have more experience and are more careful. The corn shredder has been called a "man eater," yet we think the danger will be lessened when men learn that a machine making several hundred revolutions a minute is too quick to be easily dodged, and that it is better to keep outside of the danger line. It is better to be careful than to show a disposition to be smart, warns the American Cultivator.

Gold Land Deal.

The Anniston Gold Mining Company filed in the probate office at Edwadsville last Thursday a deed to 320 acres of land, consideration, $160,000. A wonderful development of hidden wealth and the conversion of yellow dust into shining ingots will soon begin.

Recognized Their Union.

The strike of the employes of the Warrior Coal Co., at Tidewater, came to an end Thursday afternoon, the miners winning out. Their was no trouble over the prices paid the miners, but the lessees of the mines would not recognize their union recently formed.

Cotton Burned at Selma.

Fire raged for two hours about midday Friday in the warehouse of J. J. Babcock, in Selma, where were stored about 1,800 bales of cotton, and it is estimated that about 1,000 bales were burned and that the 800 saved were partially damaged by fire and water. The ignition of a match head by a truck is supposed to have been the origin of the fire. The loss of the cotton, office fixtures and warehouse will be about $75,000, but it is fully covered by insurance.

The President of University.

Col. M. L. Stansel has written Col. H. B. Foster that the meeting of the sub-committee of the board of trustees of the University of Alabama, which was appointed at the January meeting of that body, will meet in Tuscaloosa on May 29th, at which time it is thought that some one will be recommended to the board of trustees for the presidency of the university. The sub-committee consists of Messrs. Stansel, Foster and Lomax. There are a number of gentlemen before this committee for consideration.

The Medicine Mixers.

The Alabama Pharmaceutical Association, whose session in Montgomery was completed Thursday, will meet in 1902 in Birmingham. The officers for the ensuing year are: President—T. W. Peagler, Greenville. First Vice-President—R. H. Stickney, Jr., Anniston. Second Vice-President—D. T. Bowers, Mobile. Scretary—W. E. Bingham, Tuskaloosa. Treasurer—F. F. Ravenroft, Union Springs. Local Secretary—John L. Parker, Birmingham.

Alabama Coal to Mexico.

The Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Co. has contracted to supply the Mexican Central Railroad with 150,000 tons of Alabama coal, the delivery to cover a period of several months. This contract was secured after competition with coal concerns of Philadelphia, and the Alabamians secured it on better showing made as to price, etc. The coal will be shipped from Birmingham to Pensacola and from there to Tampico by boat. Shipments will ensue at once. This is the largest lump contract ever made by Alabama in that market, and the prospects now are that a steady trade in that section will develop.

A Five Year Lease.

Brown ore mining on Oak and Pine ridges in the mineral district of Leeds has been revived. It is understood that Col. J. W. Castleman, former assistant General Manager of the Sloss Iron & Steel Co., has secured a five year lease on all the property of the company in this locality, and is now engaged in building a tram track from the end of the present spur track of the Southern Railway Co. down Pine Ridge, and will eventually extend the same across Cahaba valley to the Oak Ridge and to the big deposits, discovered some years since by J. B. Elliott, of Leeds.

Oil Hunters.

A number of oil and gas experts are in Athens and think that they have located gas and oil both, and are taking leases on the available lands for the purpose of sinking wells. These gentlemen are from the gas and oil belt of Indiana, and say that they are satsified to try this place. They propose having one or more wells sunk by the early fall. Several splendid properties have already been leased.

Avondale Bonds Bought.

The issue of $15,000 six per cent thirty-year school bonds of Avondale, Ala., were purchased by John Nuveen & Company, bankers, of Chicago, at par.

Moonshine Whisky Seized.

The distillery plant of Barnes Upton, at Mountainboro, Ala., has been seized by the government and the plant is now in the hands of Collector Bingham. It is alleged that the plant has been operated at night in the absence of the Government gauger. Twelve barrels of whisky were seized with the still and brought to Birmingham. The Barnes & Upton still is one of the oldest in the state and is one of the largest and best known, and the operators are prominent citizens.

Anniston's Knitting Mill.

The new plant of the Anniston Knitting Mill Company is almost ready to begin operation, and the mill will be in full operation by the first of next week. This company was recently formed in Anniston. Mr. A. L. Tyler will manage the plant, having resigned his position as manager of the local plant of the Central Foundry Company, and being succeeded by E. P. Cooper. When the new knitting mill starts up, it will give to Anniston her ninth textile manufacturing industry. Five of the nine textile plants have been started here this year, and are now in full and successful operation.

Alabama Grand Lodge I. O. O. F.

The Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows completed its work in Birmingham Thursday night, by installing its new officers as follows: Grand master, W. S. Lewis, of Mobile; Deputy grand master, John Ellis, of Anniston; Grand warden, J. Burger, of Birmingham; Grand chaplain, I. O. Adams, of Eufaula; Grand marshal, J. C. Gould, of Mobille; Grand conductor, I. Yaretzky; Grand guardian, Pat Felton, of Pratt City; Grand herald, J. T. Suddreth. Selma was chosen as the next place of meeting. The discussion on the question of a new constitution and by-laws was not completed, and it was decided to refer the matter to the next Grand Lodge. Before retiring from the chair as Grand Master, Mr. Pepperman was presented with a beautiful silver loving cup. The presentation was made by Dr. E. A. Meadow, representing Lodge No. 88, of Blocton.

Six trustees for the Widows' and Orphans' Home were selected and it is expected that they will soon seek propositions for the location of the Home, and will also make provision for the fund which will be created by a per capita tax on the six thousand and more members of the order in the state. The Rebekahs before adjourning chose the followng officers: President, Mrs. L. Harris, of Ensley; Vice-president, Mrs. J. R. Wing, of Montgomry; Secretary, Mrs. Lizzie Wegelin, of Bessemer; Treasurer, Mrs. G. R. Doran, of Montgomery; Chaplain, Mrs. M. E. Holt, of Birmingham; Warden, Mrs. Lydia Roran, of Montgomery; Conductor, Mrs. H. L. Rose, of Montgomery; Marshal, Mrs. C. Brown, of Mobile; Outer guard, Mrs. A. Sullivan, of Gurley; Inner guard, Mrs. Mollie Williams, of Bessemer.

A most disastrous fires in Talladega started Friday p. m. shortly after 6 o'clock, when the Talladega Grist Mills were totally destroyed and the Talladega Mercantile Company was almost consumed. The fire originated in some hay in the horse stables adjacent to the property, and burned with great fury. Part of the mercantile stock was consumed, and the buildings are almost a total loss. Loss estimated at about $55 000; $35,000 insurance.

Frank Miller's Latest Exploit.

Frank Miller, who is under sentence to hang June 28th, in Birmingham, has created another sensation in the county jail. He sprinkled his bed with kerosene and set it afire. Whether he intended to burn himself, or hoped to escape in the confusion, or did it because he was mad at having been put into a new cell that night is a matter of conjecture. Miller himself says he did it to get rid of bed bugs. The precaution taken by Sheriff Burgin to prevent fire in the jail enabled Night Warden Ball to promptly put it out.

A Distressing Accident.

A very distressing accident occurred at Lapington's mill in Athens that came near costing young Paul McCulley his life. He was off-bearing lumber when he allowed a plank that he was carrying to come in contact with the saw, which caused it to fly up, and striking him in the face, crushed his cheek bone and knocked him senseless. He was given prompt medical attention and will recover.

LABOR TROUBLES SETTLED

The Albany Strike Ended and Soldiers Withdrawn.

SUCCESSFUL LAUNCHING OF THE OHIO

Albany Strike Ended—Ohio Launched Oklahoma Storms—West Point Matters—That Runaway Priest Louisville Has a Big Fire.

Hotel Burned.

The Ocean View hotel, at Wrightsville Beach, was burned on the 18th inst., with bath houses, pavilion and several cottages.

Louisville Has a Fire.

Fire, cause unknown, early Saturday morning burned out the wholesale tinware and hardware store of Stratton & Terstegge, causing a loss of $65,000 on building and stock. The Kentucky Jeans Co. and Kahn, Martin & Co., wholesale boots and shoes, adjoining, sustained damages. The insurance is ninety per cent of the losses.

Death in the Elements.

The town of Box, O. T., was devastated by a windstorm Saturday and a half dozen houses demolished. Several farm houses near by were wrecked, and a Mrs. Andrews was killed. At Berry the home of Sandy Boucher was struck by lightning and his 12-year-old daughter killed. At Geary damage was done by hail, and at Weatherford Mrs. Milward was struck by lightning, and is feared will die.

Uncle Sam's New Battleship.

The Ohio, took her first dip into the sea at San Francisco, at 12:26 Saturday afternoon, and fifty thousand people cheered themselves hoarse. President McKinley arrived at the Union Iron Works where the Oregon and the Ohio were both built, shortly after 11 o'clook, was greeted and presented a gold plate in memory of the occasion. He spoke briefly to the men, and after an inspection of the works went to a stand, where he saw the launching. The ceremony was very simple but significant. Mrs. McKinley was to have pressed the button that started the Ohio down the ways, but on account of her illness, her niece, Miss Barber, acted in her place. Miss Deshler smashed a bottle of California champagne over the vessel's prow and gave her the name "Ohio." One of the notable banners displayed bore the inscription, "The Oregon has made her record; watch the Ohio."

Peace In Albany.

The street railway strike, lasting twelve days, requiring the presence of 3,000 members of the National Guard in Albany, N. Y., costing the lives of two citizens and entailing an expense to the county of Albany of over $39,000 is amicably settled. The agreement was reached early on Saturday and when it became known, the city became almost hysterical with joy. Both sides granted concessions, and under the agreement it is possible that strikes will be avoided in the future. The company on its part agrees to receive representations regarding grievances from any committee of its employes, representing organized or unorganized labor, but reserves the right to employ union or non-union men and to discharge employes for cause. The wages of all the motormen, conductors, linemen and pitmen is to be 20 cents per hour, and of pitmen helpers 17 1-2 cents per hour. The troops were immediately withdrawn.

A Kick on Col. Mills.

There seems to be a growing unpopularity of Colonel Mills, the Superintendent of the West Point Military Academy, who, army officers allege, has issued orders and prescribed regulations which the cadets say are entirely opposed to the traditions and best interests of the school. The trouble has been known to exist since the investigation of the Booz hazing, and matters have grown so bad of late that it is reported that no fewer than eighty cadets were confined to quarters and that several may be court-martialed.

Presbyterian Assemblies.

The Northern and Southern Assemblies of the Presbyterian church are convened at Philadelphia and Little Rock. There are overtures filed by the Philadelphia meeting asking for the exclusion of the word "dancing" from the preamble. The Cumberland Presbyterian Assembly also in session at West Point, Miss.

Millions of Perch.

Three million yellow pike perch, brought from the government fish hatchery at Sandusky, Ohio, were put in Little River, Tennessee, Friday. This consignment is the largest ever secured for a southern stream.

Murder, Arson, Then Suicide.

Evret Conway, shot and killed C. W. Garrison and wife in Evansville, Ind., Sunday, set fire to the Garrison property and badly wounded Patrolman Ben Wallis. After being driven to desperation by the police Conway killed himself.

Grant and Bates Recurs.

Brig.-Gens. Fred D. Grant and J. C. Bates arrived from Manila Saturday. General Grant is on his way east to join his son, a student at West Point. General Bates intends to visit friends in Chicago and St. Louis. It is expected he will be placed in command of the Department of Missouri.

Fell to His Death.

Late Saturday afternoon, Edward Green, a fireman, slipped from a line of hose upon which he was descending from the roof of a burning building in St. Louis, and was dashed to death on the pavement sixty feet below. A moment after his death, four other firemen, caught in the same trap, made perilous descents on the hose in safety.

At Milwaukee Next.

Milwaukee has been selected as the place for holding the biennial convention of the sovereign camp of the Woodmen of the World in 1903. The convention now in session at Columbus, O., will probably continue all week, as a great portion of work remains unfinished. A proposition to admit coal miners as an extra hazardous risk was referred to the committee of the whole.

On His Track, Perhaps.

It is reported that Father Amado, the runaway priest from Guadalajara, Mex., who took with him $100,000 belonging to religious societies of that city and a young woman of one of the best families, has crossed the frontier into the United States. By growing a beard and wearing citizens' dress he eluded pursuit. Another Guadalajara priest has created a sensation by telling his hearers not to discuss the matter under pain of excommunication.

The Gas Exploded.

An explosion of gas occurred in the Federal building at Topeka, Kas., last Saturday, injuring Josephine Herron and Carrie Sheffield, clerks. Miss Herron is not expected to survive. During the night gas accumulated from a faulty jet in the stamp vault. The two women entered in the morning after their packages. One of them struck a match and the explosion followed, blowing them against the walls and burning them severely. Several packages of stamps were destroyed.

Wanamaker's Home Burned.

The country home of Thomas B. Wanamaker was struck by lightning Saturday morning and entirely destroyed. Loss estimated at $500,000. The house contained valuable paintings and bric-a-brac, all of which was destroyed. Mr. Wanamaker and family were in Philadelphia at the time. Servants sleeping in the house narrowly escaped burning to death. The house was built in 1826, size rivaling a hotel. Its abutting wings contained a ball room, banqueting hall, library and picture gallery. The pictures in the art gallery are an irreparable loss. Their approximate value was $250,000, and several were specimens of the old masters. One alone, a Vandyke of Cabrles I., cost Mr. Wanamaker $43,000.

College President Resigned.

S. W. Boardman, A. B., D. D., president of Maryville College, Tenn., has resigned and gone to Newark, N. J., where he will make his future home. The reason for his resignation is his age, he being 70 years old.

By Savage Allies.

The Boer delegation in Amsterdam is greatly excited over a telegram from Durban, Natal, which says the British have sent the Zulus to raid the Vryheid district, agreeing to give them ten per cent of the plunder they procure.

Politician in Trouble.

H. H. Gouchenhour, a prominent Democratic politician of Tennessee, who opposed Congressman W. P. Brownlow is under indictment for using mails for fraud. It is alleged that he collected from postmasters contributions to the campaign fund, promising to repay and made this promise good by mailing enough campaign literature to more than reimburse the postmasters.

Senator Morgan on the Convention—Mrs. Lyman J. Gage Dead—Purchase of Two New West Point

The Treasury Department bought $79,000 short term 4 bonds at $113.693.

Senator John T. Morgan last Friday an interview the work of the forthcoming constitutional convention. He says:

"The convention will be a representative assemblage of the best of the state. It will be composed of delegates, all from useful callings of standing in professional, business life, lawyers, merchants and farmers. It will be a deliberative body, what is best for the welfare of citizens composing the state. The question is not one of party, but involves administrative integrity and character of the state. The convention meets to relieve the state of the evils of ignorance and vice. The work of the convention must accord with the requirements of the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments to the federal constitution, and I believe it will do its work with wisdom and justice to all. I believe that a majority of the people of the United States will sympathize with and approve of what the convention has done when it is accomplished. The idea that the elimination of the negro will give birth to a new republican party in the South is based on an understanding of the sentiments of our people. There are republicans who vote with us on national matters, for respectability's sake, for the protection of their family, their business, but they vote the democratic national ticket and express their party loyalty. The elimination of the negro will enable these people to vote for Republican State officers without sacrificing their self-respect. The Democrats will still be Democrats and the Republicans still Republicans.

Mrs. Lyman J. Gage, wife of the secretary of the treasury, died at the residence in Washintgon, D. C., at 3:30 o'clock Friday night. The cause of her trouble, the result of grippe complications, was the immediate cause of her death. Mrs. Gage was a native of Troy, N. Y., and 58 years of age. She was married to Secretary Gage in Denver, Colo., in 1887. There were no children from their union. The remains will be interred in Rock Creek cemetery, near Chicago. During the residence in Washington, Secretary and Mrs. Gage have taken quite a part in social life at the capital. Mrs. Gage was a woman of charming personality, and delighted in extending the hospitality of their elegant home on Massachusetts avenue. Mrs. Gage's mother is probably closer to Mrs. McKinley than any other of the ladies of the cabinet circle.

Downing Street hopes that Canada and America will be able to effect a reduction of the Chinese indemnity. It is said that Germany has consented to continue to form a concert to this end.

WHEN THE NEWSPAPER "ROASTS"

When Is in a Clever Vein—It's a Game of "Prey," Asserts William.

That is a newspaper word that attracts attention. It sounds like something we wouldn't do ourselves. It must have a word that we do. There is a good deal of roasting going on. The papers roast the yankees who come to roast Dr. Parkhurst and roast the governor and the legislature. Roasts Park Commissioner Everybody and everything has to prey on something. The eagle preys on the hawk, the hawk preys on the chicken and the chicken goes up the worms and bugs. Everybody and everything has a natural prey and it is well we know it for it would make us sick. The people of Galveston and Jacksonville escaped the worst roast, the dread storm and fire—the agony of fear and apprehension—and a noble and generous deed it was for Galveston to do to give $1,000 to Jacksonville. What a redeeming trait in our northern cities to give to the sufferers. I think better of them than I think I do. There is a power of good in human nature, I know, and I reckon that many acts of charity, half good intentions and half show to inspect us, are done. The trouble with these people is that they know more about us than we do them and are surprised to find us civilized and intelligent. Dr. Parkhurst admits that he had never been south before. They know less about us than we do the Dutch or the German or the Chinese, and they know less about the negro. One of the Dutch boys said to me: "Those negroes seem happy." I hear them laugh and sing at the days. I had heard that they were miserable, ill-treated and oppressed.

Dr. Parkhurst says that we abuse the negro and say so, but the white man pretends to love him and show it. The doctor is mistaken. We do not hate the negro. We hate the white ones whom the north has emancipated, but there are lots of good people in every community whom we respect for and who are good, law abiding citizens. We can count scores in our town who are thrifty and industrious and pay respect to the respectable white people. Many of these we have more respect than for Pat Hanks and all his kin. Pat breaks into jail and breaks out. Pat broke into the chaingang and went down to see the prisoners and begged him out for his sake and paid his way home. He has been in jail or the calaboose ever since, and yet his poor wife goes to him and follows him with her children when he runs away. They are hid out somewhere now and she cares for them. Oh, the bonds and chains of matrimony that tie a beautiful, pleading woman to such a man as that.

There are many better negroes in our community than some of the folks I had rather depend upon in time of trouble. My daughter can trust her two little children with her servant Clarissy, as willingly as with most any white woman she knows. Clarissy is kind, watchful and affectionate and the children love her. She is a good servant, and you could not do better. Almost every family here has one. All such negroes are contented and I have the comfort of their presence in our homes. A good negro will give the sidewalk to a man he respects and will tip his hat to him. Social equality is not a fixed, natural privilege in any race or people. I would step aside and give the sidewalk to a king or a president or a great man. I am not envious because a rich man can travel in his private car. I recognize the fact that I am in a humbler walk of life and do not intrude. And so I am one of old-time masters who require the respect to be shown to me by negroes now that they exhibited in the olden time. No more, no less than those who do not do it are the men whom we hate, for those who have a regard that is akin to love for us and we would defend and protect them. Here is Sam Hander-son, who has gardens and chops wood for a dozen families and they are all friends and would help him in time of need. What a college education is doing for the education of negroes I am not able to know. If I ever saw a man who was not at work. This man is changing so rapidly that we poor sinners can't keep up with him. The most important feature now seems to be kicking or batting balls, and some of the colleges have boys two miles away to play base ball. I had hopes that the boys would come out good men, but they don't seem to have time to do anything but play ball. The development of the muscles of the back and legs is very important. Such men are needed in every town and city for firemen and to run with the hose reel and climb the ladders, so I reckon it is all right. I hope so.

We are all getting along fairly well now and in the enjoyment of more things than curses. The weather is delightful, the flowers are in bloom, the gardens prospering and we are luxuriating on green peas, strawberries and asparagus every day. The chrysanthemums are looming up and my wife wants me to separate them and transplant, but I don't feel like it. I plucked the first Marechal Niel rose this morning and stuck it in her Pocahontas hair at the breakfast table. On the first of next month she will be born again—that is to say, she will have another birthday—and I am ruminating what little token of devotion to give her. Two weeks later will be my seventy-fifth anniversary and I hope she is ruminating about a token for me. All's well that ends well. So mote it be.—Bill Arp, in Atlanta Constitution.

Advantages of Water Meters.

The water bureau of Albany, N. Y., has been gathering statistical information in regard to the average consumption of water in large towns of the United States. The direct result of this compilation has been to prove conclusively that water meters are very effective in reducing the well-known waste of water that occurs wherever a flat water rate is in vogue. The average daily per capita water consumption of 134 cities was found to be 157 gallons. Analysis of the data shows that those cities which supply ten per cent of their water consumption by meters average about 153 gallons daily per capita, while in those cities where over fifty per cent. of the taps are metered average only sixty-two gallons. Nothing could be more conclusive. Towns that sell by meter consume less than half as much water as towns which sell by guess work.

East Indian Superstitions.

Hare's blood useful for young infant. When young one attacked with ague, the blood and some mother's milk mixed together and given to drink to the infant, the sickness will go.

Black monkey is useful for magic. The monkey will be killed on Sunday. Drink a little blood, take off the skin, and make to cap. The magic could not touch that man.

Peacock's leg useful for deaf man. This will be killed on Monday. Take out both eyes. The left will be burned and the right as well. Keep the dust of the right, throw some of the dust on a woman's garments, and she will love you, throw dust of left eye, and she will leave off by pronouncing some magic words.—The Oriental Sporting Magazine.

They Were All Tired.

The parlor entertainer has some amusing experiences, although he is not always good natured enough to tell them against himself. One who appreciates a joke, however, relates that on a certain occasion he had been performing at an "at home," and responding to so many encores that the programme became unusually long.

After it was over, his hostess and her young daughter came up to him and, after congratulating him on the success of the afternoon, said, most cordially:

"Oh, Mr. Blank, come and have some punch and sit down for a while. I know you must be awfully tired."

"Yes," chimed in the sweet young daughter, with the best intentions in the world, "I'm sure we are."—New York Mail and Express.

British Building Trade Pensions.

A practical proof of what can be done in the way of establishing old-age pensions without Government assistance is given by the Provident Institution of Builders' Foremen and Clerks of Works. The members of the institution, when incapacitated by old age from following their employment, obtain a weekly pension of fifteen shillings, and this sum is about to be increased to eighteen shillings. When the pensioners die their widows are not forgotten, a sum of six shillings a week being allowed them. The society is in a prosperous condition, not mainly through the subscriptions—each member pays only £2 a year—but it has the good will of the large London builders, who liberally subscribe to the funds.—London Express.

English Ideas of Lynching.

At a recent dinner in London the conversation turned on the subject of lynchings in the United States. It was the general opinion that a rope was the chief end of man in America. Finally, the hostess turned to an American who had taken no part in the conversation, and said:

"You, sir, must have often seen these affairs."

"Yes," he replied, "we take a kind of municipal pride in seeing which city can show the greatest number of lynchings yearly."

"Oh, do tell us about a lynching you have seen yourself," broke in half a dozen voices at once.

Mining work is again beginning in South Africa, and before long the whole Witwatersrand will take on the activity which it displayed before the war. As the war has cost England more than $500,000,000 and the Vaal pretty nearly all its accumulated wealth, it will take some time for the product of the mines, the original cause of the trouble, to balance the account, if it ever does.

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

In the manufactures of Great Britain alone the power which steam exerts is estimated to be equal to the manual labor of 4,000,000,000 men, or more than double the number of males supposed to inhabit the globe.

There have been rapid strides in the iron and steel industry in South Russia during the past five years. No fewer than 14 ironworks have been started, while the quartet of pre-existing works have doubled the number of their blast furnaces.

The consumption of ice in Brazil is constantly increasing. This is due principally to the demand for ice in restaurants, hotels and other public places. Foreigners are most insistent in their calls for ice. Our consul at Santos is of the opinion that an ice company would prove a profitable undertaking in that place, the use of ice being practically unknown in the fish, vegetable and meat markets. He also thinks the American refrigerator would sell well in Brazil.

Spiders are met with in the forests of Java whose webs are so strong that it requires a knife to cut through them, we are told. A spider weighing four pounds, which has taken up her residence in a cathedral at Munich, regales herself with a large supply of lamp oil. A Texas spider weaves a balloon four feet long and two feet wide, which she fastens to a tree by a single thread, then marches on board with her half dozen little ones, cuts the thread, and away goes the airship to some distant point on the prairie.

In the light of the recent report of Major Reed, regarding the failure of the "electrical purification" of the harbor of Havana, which is practically an enormous cesspool, it is worth remembering that the Hermite electrolytic process for the purification of sewage, which is practically identical with the Woolf process used at Havana, was carefully tested and found unsatisfactory some years ago in England. Major Reed's report says that the purification of the Woolf process is "inadequate" and the better results at a less cost could have been obtained by the simple use of chloride of lime. A little time spent in looking up the literature of the subject would have evidently saved some disappointment, if nothing more.

Professor Pictet of Geneva is reported to have devised a new plan by which oxygen may be produced on the commercial scale and at a cost which will greatly increase its use. While in New York City, Professor Pictet demonstrated on the small scale a method for the production of oxygen, by bubbling air through liquid air, by which the air separated into its two constituents; the nitrogen flowing out through a tube at the top of the chamber, and the oxygen through a tube at the bottom. Apparently, practical difficulties were encountered which prevented its application. His new method is to drive the air into a condenser, which is cooled on the outside by liquid air. The low temperature causes the oxygen of the air to separate by gravity from the nitrogen. It is then drawn off from the bottom of the condenser, and the nitrogen from the top, while any carbonic acid present, made liquid by the low temperature, is drawn into tubes. As a 500-horse power engine will make 500,000 cubic feet of oxygen a day, it seems that the process is not expensive.

Farming in the Past Decade.

The last 10 years have witnessed a great many changes in the number, size and location of farms. In the later settled states and territories many new farms were opened by settlement on the public domain. In the older settled sections of the Southern and North Central states a large number of new farms were called into being by the subdivision of the old estates into smaller holdings. In the same parts of the country the area of improved land was considerably extended and the value of farm investments largely increased. The net additions to farm resources in the decade, stated in millions of dollars, will exceed the reported value of all farm investments in 1850. In other words, the increased wealth of our farmers, as the result of their last 10 years, labor, equals the farm wealth of the nation reported as the outcome of their toil and economies from the settlement at Jamestown to the middle of the 19th century.

What has been the effect of these changes upon the social and economic conditions of the masses engaged in the cultivation of the soil? The people of this country are deeply interested in the question, and for the answer thereto will eagerly scan the bulletins of the census of agriculture, which will begin to appear in a very few months.—Reviews of Reviews.

A New Theory About Coal.

H. W. Pearson of Duluth, Minn., is suing the Great Northern Railroad for 10 percent of the alleged value of some coal lands that he claims to have discovered in Montana on an entirely new theory. This theory, to which he has applied himself for 20 years, is that the coal beds were formed by flood-wood, or dirft-wood carried by repeated floods, and deposited in pockets by the currents.

REV. DR. TALMAGE.

DISCOURSE BY THE EMINENT DIVINE LAST SUNDAY.

Subject: Christian Malahrotisms—Workers For the Lord Who Are Religious Blunderers—How to Be Skillful in Spiritual Archery—More Backbone Needed.

[Copyright 1901.]

WASHINGTON, D. C.—In this discourse Dr. Talmage urges all Christian workers to increased fidelity and shows how much effort at doing good fails through lack of adroitness; text, Genesis x. 9, "He was a mighty hunter before the Lord."

In our day hunting is a sport, but in the lands and the times infested of wild beasts it was a matter of life or death with the people. It was very different from going out on a sunshiny afternoon with a patent breechloader to shoot reed birds on the flats when Pollux and Achilles and Diomedes went out to clear the land of lions and panthers and bears. Xenophon grew eloquent in regard to the art of hunting. In the Far East people, elephant mounted, chased the tiger. Francis I. was called the father of hunting. And Moses, in my text, sets forth Nimrod as a hero when it presents him with broad shoulders and shaggy apparel and sun-browned face and arm bunched with muscle—"a mighty hunter before the Lord." I think he used the bow and the arrows with great success practicing archery.

I have thought if it is such a grand thing and such a brave thing to clear wild beasts out of a country if it is not a better and braver thing to hunt down and destroy those great evils of society that are stalking the land with fierce eye and bloody paw and sharp tusk and quick spring. I have wondered if there is not such a thing as gospel archery, by which those who have been flying from the truth may be captured for God and heaven. The Lord Jesus Christ in His sermon used the art of angling for an illustration when He said, "I will make you fishers of men." And so I think I have authority for using hunting as an illustration of gospel truth, and I pray God that there may be many a man enlisted in the work who shall begin to study gospel archery, of whom it may, after awhile, be said, "He was a mighty hunter before the Lord."

How much awkward Christian work there is done in the world! How many good people there are who drive souls away from Christ instead of bringing them to Him! All their fingers are thumbs—religious blunderers who upset more than they right. Their gun has a crooked barrel, and kicks as it goes off. They are like a clumsy comrade who goes along with skillful hunters. At the very moment he ought to be most quiet he is crackling an alder or falling over a log and frightening away the game. How few Christian people have ever learned how the Lord Jesus Christ at the well went from talking about a cup of water to the most practical religious truths, which won the woman's soul for God! Jesus in the wilderness was breaking bread to the people. I think it was very good bread. It was very light bread, and the yeast had done its work thoroughly. Christ, after He had broken the bread, said to the people, "Beware of the yeast or of the leaven of the Pharisees." So natural a transition it was, and how easily they all understood Him! But how few Christian people there are who understand how to fasten the truths of God and religion to the souls of men!

The archers of olden time studied their art. They were very precise in the matter. The old books gave special directions as to how an archer should go and as to what an archer should do. He must stand erect and firm, his left foot a little in advance of the right foot. With his left hand he must take hold of the bow in the middle, and then with the three fingers and the thumb of his right hand he should lay hold the arrow and affix it to the string, so precise was the direction given. But how clumsy we are about religious work! How little skill and care we exercise! How often our arrows miss the mark! I am glad that there are institutions established in many of the cities of our land where men may learn the art of doing good—studyng spiritual archery and become known as "mighty hunters before the Lord."

In the first place if you want to be effectual in doing good you must be very sure of your weapon. There was something very fascinating about the archery of olden times. Perhaps you do not know what they could do with the bow and arrow. Why, the chief battles fought by the English Plantagenets were with the longbow. They would take the arrow of polished wood and feather it with the plume of a bird, and then it would fly from the bowstring of plaited silk. The bloody fields of Agincourt and Solway Moss and Neville's Cross heard the loud thrum of the archer's bowstring. Now, my Christian friends, we have mightier weapon than that. It is the arrow of the gospel. It is a sharp arrow; it is feathered from the wing of the dove of God's Spirit; it flies from a bow made out of the wood of the cross. As far as I can estimate or calculate, it has brought down 400,000,000 of souls. Paul knew how to bring the notch of that arrow on to the bowstring, and its whir was heard through the Corinthian theatres and through the courtroom until the knees of Felix knocked together.

It was that arrow that stuck in Luther's heart when he cried out: "Oh, my sins! Oh, my sins!" If it strike a man in the head it kills his skepticism; if it strike him in the heel it will turn his step; if it strike him in the heart he throws up his hands, as did one of old when wounded in in the battle, crying, "O Galilean, Thou hast conquered!"

In the armory of the Earl of Penbroke there are old corselets which show that the arrow of the English used to go through the breastplate, through the body of the warrior and out through the backplate. What a symbol of that gospel which is sharper than a two-edged sword, piercing to the dividing asunder of soul and body and of the joints and marrow! Would to God we had more faith in that gospel.

The humblest man in the world, if he had enough faith in it, could bring a hundred souls to Christ—perhaps 500. Just in proportion as this age seems to believe less and less in it I believe more and more in it. What are men about that they will not accept their own deliverance? There is nothing proposed by men that can do anything like this gospel.

The religion of Ralph Waldo Emerson was the philosophy of icicles; the religion of Theodore Parker was a sirocco of the desert, covering up the soil with dry sand; the religion of Renan was the romance of believing almost nothing; the religion of the Huxleys and the Spencers is merely a pedestal on which human philosophy sits shivering in the night of the soul, looking up to the stars, offering no help to the nations that crouch and groan at the base. Tell me where there is one man who has rejected that gospel for another who is thoroughly satisfied and helped and contented in his skepticism, and I will take the car to-morrow and ride 500 miles to see him.

The full power of the gospel has not yet been touched. As a sportsman throws up his hand and catches the ball flying through the air, just so easily will this gospel after awhile catch this round world flying from its orbit, and bring it back to the heart of Christ. Give it full swing, and it will pardon every sin, heal every wound, cure every trouble, emancipate every slave and ransom every nation.

Again, if you want to be skillful in spiritual archery, you must hunt in unfrequented and secluded places. Why does the hunter go three or four days into the Pennsylvania forests or over Raquette Lake into the wilds of the Adirondacks? It is the only way to do. The deer are shy, and one "bang" of the gun clears the forest. From the California stage you see, as you go over the plains, here and there a coyote trotting along almost within range of the gun—sometimes quite within range of it. No one cares for that; it is worthless. The good game is hidden and secluded. Every hunter knows that. So many of the souls that will be of most worth for Christ and of most value to the church are secluded. They do not come in your way. You will have to go where they are.

I remark further, if you want to succeed in spiritual archery you must have courage. If the hunter stands with trembling hand or shoulder that flinches with fear, instead of his taking the catamount the catamount takes him. What would become of the Greenlander if when out hunting for the bear he should stand shivering with terror on an iceberg? What would have become of Du Chaillu and Livingstone in the African thicket with a faint heart and a weak knee? When a panther comes within twenty paces of you, and it has its eye on you, and it has squatted for the fearful spring, "Steady there!" Courage, O ye spiritual archers! There are great monsters of iniquity prowling all around about the community. Shall we not in the strength of God go forth and combat them? We not only need more heart, but more backbone. What is the church of God that it should fear to look in the eye any transgression? There is the Bengal tiger of drunkenness that prowls around, and instead of attacking it how many of us hide under the church pew or the communion table! There is so much invested in it we are afraid to assault it—millions of dollars in barrels, in vats, in spigots, in corkscrews, in gin palaces with marble floors and Italian top tables, and chased ice coolers, and in the strychnine, and the logwood, and the tartaric acid, and the nux vomica that go to make up our "pure" American drinks. I looked with wondering eyes on the "Heidelberg tun." It is the great liquor vat of Germany, which is said to hold 800 hogsheads of wine and only three times in a hundred years it has been filled. But as I stood and looked at it I said to myself: "That is nothing—800 hogsheads. Why, our American vat holds 10,200,000 barrels of strong drink, and we keep 300,000 men with nothing to do but to see that it is filled." Oh, to attack this great monster of intemperance and the kindred monsters of fraud and uncleanness requires you to rally all your Christian courage! Through the press, through the pulpit, through the platform, you must assault it.

Would to God that all our American Christians would band together, not for crackbrained fanaticism, but for holy Christian reform! I think it was in 1793 that there went out from Lucknow, India, under the sovereign, the greatest hunting party that was ever projected. There were 10,000 armed men in that hunting party. There were camels and horses and elephants. On some princes rode, and royal ladies under exquisite housings, and 500 coolies waited upon the train, and the desolate places of India were invaded by this excursion, and the rhinoceros and deer and elephant fell under the stroke of the sabre and bullet. After awhile the party brought back trophies worth 50,000 rupees, having left the wilderness of India ghastly with the slain bodies of wild beasts. Would to God that instead of here and there a straggler going out to fight these great monsters of iniquity in our country the millions of members of our churches would band together and hew in twain these great crimes that make the land frightful with their roar, and are fattening upon the bodies and souls of immortal men! Who is ready for such a party as that? Who will be a mighty hunter for the Lord?

I remark, again, if you want to be successful in spiritual archery you need not only to bring down the game, but bring it in. I think one of the most beautiful pictures of Thorwaldsen is his "Autumn." It represents a sportsman coming home and standing under a grapevine. He has a staff over his shoulder, and on the other end of that staff are hung a rabbit and a brace of birds. Every hunter brings home the game. No one would think of bringing down a roebuck or whipping up a stream for trout and letting them lie in the woods. At eventide the camp is adorned with the treasures of the forest—beak and fin and antler.

If you go out to hunt for immortal souls, not only bring them down under the arrow of the gospel, but bring them into the church of God, the grand home and encampment we have pitched this side of the skies. Fetch them in. Do not let them lie out in the open field. They need our prayers and sympathies and help. That is the meaning of the church of God—help. O ye hunters for the Lord, not only bring down the game, but bring it in!

If Mithridates liked hunting so well that for seven years he never went indoors, what enthusiasm ought we to have who are hunting for immortal souls! If Domitian practiced archery until he could stand a boy down in the Roman amphitheatre with a hand out, the fingers spread apart, and then the king could shoot an arrow between the fingers without wounding them, to what drill and what practice ought we to subject ourselves in order to become spiritual archers and "mighty hunters before the Lord"?

But, let me say, you will never work any better than you pray. The old archers took the bow, put one end of it down beside the foot, elevated the other end, and it was the rule that the bow should be just the size of the archer. If it were just his size, then he would go into the battle with confidence. Let me say that your power to project good in the world will correspond exactly to your own spiritual stature. In other words, the first thing in preparation for Christian work is personal consecration.

"Oh, for a closer walk with God,
A calm and heavenly frame,
A light to shine upon the road
That leads me to the Lamb!"

I am sure that there are some men who at some time have been hit by the gospel arrow. You felt the wound of that conviction, and you plunged into the world deeper, just as the stag, when the hounds are after it, plunges into Schroon Lake, expecting in that way to escape. Jesus Christ is on your track to-day. O impenitent man, not in wrath, but in mercy. O ye chased and panting souls, here is the stream of God's mercy and salvation, where you may cool your thirst!

Stop that chase of sin to-day. By the red fountain that leaped from the heart of my Lord I bid you stop! There is mercy for you—mercy that pardons, mercy that heals, everlasting mercy. The twelve gates of God's love stand open. Enter and be forever safe.

There is in a forest in Germany a place they call the "deer leap"—two crags, about eighteen yards apart, between them a fearful chasm. This is called the "deer leap" because once a hunter was on the track of a deer. It came to one of these crags. There was no escape for it from the pursuit of the hunter, and in utter despair it gathered itself up and in the death agony attempted to jump across. Of course it fell and was dashed on the rocks far beneath. Here is a path to heaven. It is plain; it is safe. Jesus marks it out for every man to walk in. But here is a man who says, "I won't walk in that path; I will take my own way." He comes on up until he confronts the chasm that divides his soul from heaven. Now his last hour has come, and he resolves that he will leap that chasm from the heights of earth to the heights of heaven. Stand back now and give him full swing, for no soul ever did that successfully. Let him try. Jump! He misses the mark, and he goes down, depth below depth, "destroyed without remedy." Men, angels, devils, what shall we call that place of awful catastrophe? Let it be known forever as the soul's death leap.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR MAY 26.

Subject: The Holy Spirit Given, Acts ii. 1-11.—Golden Text, John xvi. 13.—Memory Verses, 1-4.—Commentary on the Day's Lesson.

1. "Day of Pentecost." The meaning of Pentecost is "fiftieth." It occurred fifty days after the Passover and was the second of the three yearly feasts held by the Jews. The resurrection was upon a Sunday and Pentecost was the fiftieth day from the resurrection, therefore it was also on Sunday. "Fully come." The day began at the previous sunset, and this would suggest an hour on the fiftieth day. They knew a great blessing was to come upon them, but how or when they did not know. Thus they were best led to watch and pray, to open their minds to the truth, to be bound together in love, and to seek the Lord with all their hearts, trusting Him for the fulfilment of the promise. "All." Probably the 120 spoken of in Chap. i. 15 who were altogether at the election of Matthias. "With one accord." There was no person uninterested, none unconcerned, none lukewarm, all were in earnest, and the Spirit of God came down to meet their united faith and prayer. "In one place." The upper room. Acts i. 13. At the time of Hadrian's visit to Jerusalem, then for the most part in ruins, there was still entire the upper church of the apostles in which Cyril of Jerusalem ministered A. D. 348. It is God's plan to have His people meet together in His name (Heb. x. 25; Matt. 18. 19, 20), and those who through negligence, or otherwise, absent themselves from the company of the saints will suffer great spiritual loss.

2. "Suddenly." Unexpectedly, in a moment, not gradually, as winds generally rise. "A sound." The suddenness, strength and diffusiveness of the sound strike with deepest awe the whole company, and thus complete their preparation for the heavenly gift. Wind was a familiar emblem of the Spirit. Ezek. 37: 9; John 3: 8; 20: 22. But this was not a rush of actual wind. It was only a sound, "as of" it. "It filled all the house." The sound was heard by all. To an upper room the Spirit came, a plain unfurnished room, where there was no ritual, no priest, no burnt offerings, no smell of incense.

3. "There appeared." After the audible sign immediately follows the visible. "Cloven tongues." The tongues of fire parted themselves off like streams from one source or like branches from one root, and distributed themselves among them. This was the baptism of fire which John had promised (Matt. 3: 11); the fire on earth which the Lord Himself longed to see kindled. Luke 12: 49. The tongues were the emblem of the languages they were to speak. The cloven tongues pointed out the diversity of those languages, and the fire seemed to intimate that the whole would be a spiritual gift and be the means of bringing light and life to the souls who should hear them preach the everlasting gospel in those languages. "Like as of fire." The fire indicated: 1. The penetrating power of the word of God. 2. The old symbol of zeal and enthusiasm. 3. Leaping, triumphant, transforming energy. 4. The resistless purifying which consumes the errors and burns up evil. 5. All the comfort, warmth, cheer, life, joy, blessing, which the Holy Spirit could impart. "It sat." There were as many flames as there were persons and they sat upon them for some time to show the constant residence of the Holy Spirit with them. The Spirit henceforth was to abide in the church, and hold His throne and seat there, as the Shekinah in the Holy of Holies of old, and as the spirit of life abides in our bodies, the organizing, controlling, life-giving power.

4. "Were all filled." Not only touched or made aware of the presence of the Holy Ghost, but filled; made full. The whole nature was filled with the love and power of God. The same measure and the same gifts of the Spirit were not bestowed on all alike; nevertheless, each one was filled, receiving the same measure of the Spirit which corresponded to his capacity. "With the Holy Spirit." (R. V.) The Holy Spirit was not now for the first time given to men, for the Old Testament repeatedly makes mention of His influence on the minds of the prophets and others (compare, also, Luke 1: 15, 41, 67); but He is now given in abundance and power, thus ushering in a new dispensation. At this time the hearts of the disciples were purified by faith. "Began to speak." The speech that publishes the glad tidings should be a tongue of fire. He who speaks the gospel coldly has not himself felt its power. When the preacher's heart is kindled his words will burn. Enthusiasm instead of being a blemish in a Christian is his normal condition. "Fervent in spirit, serving the Lord;" these two have been joined together by the word of God, and they should never be put asunder in the practice of men. The difference between one man and another is the difference of fire. "With other tongues." Their tongues were new with respect to language as well as to thoughts. "Gave utterance." Furnished them with the matters as well as the language.
